WHEELING: 37TH TV MARKET

One Station Reaching The Booming Upper Ohio Valley

"I'm outside foreman, a twenty-seven year man with Valley Camp. Sure, we work hard and we're proud of the quality coals produced here. This job keeps the missus, our child and me mighty comfortable. Live just a couple of miles from the mine, in the Elm Grove section of Wheeling. Do we watch TV? We sure do, our own station, too. WTRF-TV does a great job!"

MINING

THE VALLEY CAMP COAL COMPANY
Mining rich coal resources, Valley Camp operates three area mines, employs around 600 men, pays approximately four million dollars annually. Mined raw coal is washed, screened and thermally dried before it is shipped by rail, truck and water to America's industrial and commercial coal consumers. Valley Camp—with expansion underway, another impressive picture of this super market where 2 million people spend 2½ billion dollars annually, where 425,196 TV homes react to the influence of WTRF-TV.

KRLD-TV Channel 4

SERVES A GREATER AREA, WITH A STRONG CLEAR SIGNAL, THAN ANY OTHER TV STATION IN TEXAS

KRLD-TV, Channel 4, operates on maximum power and telecasts from atop Texas' tallest tower. It is the television service of The Dallas Times Herald, owners and operators of KRLD, the only full-time 50,000 watt radio station in Dallas-Fort Worth area. The Branham Company, national representatives.

JOHN W. RUNYON, CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD
CLYDE W. REMBERT, PRESIDENT
DOUBLE TALK • Advertisers and agencies are reacting to current softness in national economy in somewhat contradictory ways. Generally they talk with optimism (though somewhat restrained) about their future television plans. Yet coincidentally some of them are quietly calling on network officials for some relief from commitments they already have, sought-after relief sometimes takes form of outright dropping of shows, sometimes that of cutting back from weekly to alternate-weekly sponsorship. In some cases, it's not so much economy as dissatisfaction with program or time period that prompts relief call. But all three networks have some sponsors who wish to cut back for one reason or another.

Here are some of sponsors wanting relief from present commitments: On ABC-TV, American Chicic is looking for half sponsor of Jim Bowie and Liggett & Myers has sold off four more Frank Sinatra shows to Bulloa (April 25, May 9 and 23, July 6), in addition to Bell Telephone's decision not to renew Telephone Time in April. On NBC-TV, DeSoto reportedly is cancelling its half of Groucho Marx Show, Warner-Lambert is looking for alternate-week sponsor of Restless Gun and P. Lorillard is seeking partner for Friday 8-8:30 p.m. period, which probably will be filled by new western after Court of Last Resort is adjourned in April. On CBS-TV, Mogen David Wine is dropping out of Dick & The Duchess and co-sponsor Helena Curtis may follow but is looking for new show; Shulton and Lever are dropping Eve Arden but may replace it; Kellogg is abandoning its half-hour of Big Record and Purex is cutting back on, if not out of, Perry Mason Show.

RICOCHE • Although Chairman John C. Doerfer last week took brunt of publicity about alleged shenanigans at FCC, another commissioner is most apt to be personally hurt if FCC smear continues. He's Robert Bartley whose term is next to expire (June 30) and whose reappointment must be considered soon by White House. Unhappy irony is that of all commissioners, Comr. Bartley has probably most consistent voting record on matters of principle. Inconsistency in FCC voting is major target of Moulder Committee chief counsel, Bernard Schwartz.

One piece of good news for advertising came out of Washington last week. Bill introduced last year by Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-N. Y.) [Lead Story, June 24, 1957] to outlaw quantity discounts by advertising media is as good as dead. It's understood that even its author has abandoned measure—which would bring services under provisions of Robinson-Patman and Clayton Acts that now regulate pricing of commodities.

WEST COAST REPEAT • Richard A. Moore, president of independent KTTV (TV) Los Angeles, whose testimony before Senate Commerce Committee two years ago was in good measure responsible for starting antitrust investigations of networks, may ask FCC to testify by unique means at forthcoming hearings on Barrow Report. Mr. Moore would like to submit kinescope of his Commerce Committee testimony and thus avoid personal trip to Washington to repeat his charges that networks are violating antitrust laws in option time, must-buy and other established practices.

New controversy over radio audience measurement techniques will be provoked by report of NAB Radio Research Committee presented to Radio Board at Phoenix last Wednesday (story page 60). While report was carefully drawn and gave no specific answers, there were implicit in it arguments for out-of-home listener data which necessarily involves recall technique (now employed by Pulse). Conversely there was conclusion that coincidental method (Nielsen and Groover) could not do entire job. Report, submitted by E. K. Hartsenbrower, KCMO Kansas City, as radio research chairman, was not only approved but committee was transferred from ad hoc to standing status.

TOLL POLL • Informal poll of House Commerce Committee after subscription television hearings last week suggested that majority favors action to stop toll tests. Observers pointed out that persuasive lobbying by toll advocates could sway sentiment before issue comes to vote, but assuming toll opponents are equally active and evidence continues to mount that public doesn't want to pay, chances are committee will hobble or halt FCC in its announced course of authorizing tests of subscription system.

Precon Inc., developer of subliminal projection system, looks hopefully for adoption of subscription tv. Precon officials have quietly been passing word during west coast demonstrations that subliminal commercials would be ideal on toll system. People wouldn't consciously know they were being shown ads while watching television programs they had paid for.

SHUFFLING THE SPECTRUM • Joint government committee working on frequency allocations in preparation for 1959 Geneva international radio conference has come to agreement on one significant factor: U. S. must put its allocations house in order before conference. In domestic area this means taking care of military requirements for space and mobile users' demands for increased portion of spectrum. This means, according to informed observers, that FCC may have to take cognizance of lack of full utilization of uhf television band. Feeling on part of government experts is that U. S. must settle its own allocations problems well in advance of July 1959 date of Geneva meeting. Fear is that this sense of urgency may push FCC into making commitments on uhf before TASSO report is submitted (now promised by end of 1958).

MGMT-TV wants to produce tv commercials in New York as well as on West Coast where it now is expanding its commercial production services in Culver City, Calif. So far, MGMT-TV's Gotham search hasn't borne fruit. But, say MGMT-TV spokesmen, company's hunt for suitable studio space continues.

KFBF-AM-TV SOLD • Sale of KFBF-AM-TV Great Falls, Mont., by group headed by Joe P. Wilkins, president-general manager and 55% owner, to Ed Craney, Montana broadcaster, and Arthur Schwieder, president of KID-TV Idaho Falls, Idaho, for aggregate of $760,000 has been consummated subject to FCC approval. Mr. Wilkins will continue with new owners on consulting basis as part of overall transaction. Contingent transaction involves sale by Mr. Craney of KXLL Great Falls to comply with FCC duopoly rules. Transaction handled by Hamilton, Stubbfield, Twinning & Assoc.

Negotiations expected to be completed in next fortnight by Frank Atlas, program director of WWBM-TV Chicago, and Earl Muntz, tv set manufacturer, for controlling stock in HIT-TV Ciudad Trujillo. Deal would give Messrs. Atlas and Muntz each 25% interest and Dominican group smaller shares in Dominican Republic's only tv station, being purchased from J. Arismendi Trujillo, son of dictator Rafael Trujillo, who operated government-owned commercial stations. Additionally Mr. Muntz (who last year went out of U. S. tv business) plans to set up receiver production firm, it's understood. Republic now numbers about 15,000 sets, functioning with 525-line, 30-frame, 6-mc system.

NAB RESHAPES CONVENTIONS, CONFERENCES

NAB Joint Board of Directors unanimously approved sweeping change in convention and regional meeting formats at close of three-day board sessions Friday in Phoenix, Ariz. (Early stories start page 60).

Industry convention next April 27-May 1 in Los Angeles is not affected by revision but 1959 regional sessions will operate under new procedure. Board accepted report of special convention study committee headed by W. D. Rogers Jr., KDUB-TV Lubbock, Texas. Annual convention, starting in 1959, will be restricted to ownership, management and officers of active member stations.

"Serious problems facing the industry require that top management be marshaled each year for thorough deliberations and action." Mr. Rogers said.

NAB Fall Conferences, supplanting regional meetings, will be tailored to cover operating phases of station management, including administration, sales management and programming. Members can attend most-conveniently located meeting. Starting in 1959 fall sessions will be held later in season and in major cities. Sites in 1959 will be Boston, Washington, Chicago, Atlanta, Dallas, Denver, Seattle and Los Angeles.

Exhibit space at spring engineering conference and ownership-management meetings will be limited to broadcast equipment. Associate members offering film, syndicated features and other products and services will be limited to fall conferences. Tentative schedule for 1958 fall conferences will be followed. Spring conventions will be held in Chicago 1959-60 and in Washington 1961. Board's 1958 summer meeting will be held in Washington during June and 1959 winter meeting at Hollywood Beach, Fla.

Expansion of NAB public relations program was voted by joint board. Action, based on recommendations by Donald N. Martin, public relations assistant to President Harold E. Fellows, calls for films, spots, slides, announcement copy and background material plus stepped-up service of news written especially for broadcast. Most of these aids will be connected with special industry campaigns or events.

Films will dramatize radio and tv service to nation. Radio film will trace news and special events coverage starting with Harding-Cox election returns in 1920 to present. TV film will concentrate on medium's contributions to fields of public affairs and public service programming. Public relations manual will be provided along with speaker guides. "Prestige booklet" will contain facts on NAB history and services. Promotional booklet for radio members is planned.

Board approved plan for NAB participation in American Bar Assn. House of Delegates meeting Feb. 24-25 in Atlanta when media will argue their case against ABA Canon 35, banning them from courtroom. Robert D. Sweeney, WDSU-AM-TV New Orleans, chairman of NAB Freedom of Information Committee, will present broadcasters' case. Judge Justin Miller, former NAB board chairman, reviewed status of freedom-of-access situation, reporting no important changes since last board meeting.

Everrett E. Reevercomb, NAB secretary-treasurer, was re-elected for one-year term. Vincent T. Wasilewski, government relations manager, gave legislative report. Howard H. Bell, assistant to president, said 30 state presidents have accepted invitation to third annual state conference. Richard M. Allerton, research manager, reported on Barstville, Okla., wired tv project. A. Prose Walker, engineering manager, discussed FCC spectrum studies and Douglas A. Anello, chief attorney, reviewed municipal advertising taxes. Budget of $974,000 for fiscal year starting April 1 was approved.

Bruck Joins Pharmaceuticals, Big Advertiser Maps Expansion

Pharmaceuticals Inc., New York, blue-chip network tv advertiser, Friday announced election of Franklin Bruck, board chairman of Parkinson Adv., New York, and formerly president of his own agency, as vice president in charge of new business acquisitions. Parkinson is Pharmaceuticals' agency. Also announced: election of Sheldon Feinberg, assistant treasurer, to treasurer, replacing Jerome Cosman, appointed vice president in charge of finance.

Pharmaceuticals, which acquired J. B. Williams Co., Glastonbury, Conn., last summer and this year is budgeting about $20 million to network advertising—$14 million in network tv and $3 million in spot tv and radio [CLOSED CIRCUIT, Jan. 13]—is out to buy additional companies. Mr. Bruck will handle negotiations to purchase drug firms and related industries purchasing either consumer or ethical products, or both. Pharmaceticals, it's learned, is considering five companies with an eye to buying one or more.

Company's ad budget has jumped from estimated $9.8 million two years ago and $11.8 million last year to $20 million in 1958. Mr. Bruck also will supervise development of new consumer products for fast-expanding Pharmaceutical. Family-owned and headed by Matthew B. Rosenhaus, brother of Irving R. Rosenhaus, president-owner of WAAT-WATV (TV) Newark, N. J., firm began in 1935 as Serutan Co. Products of Pharmaceutical: Geritol, Serutan, R.D.X., Zarumin, Sominex, Aqua Velva, Lectric Shave, Williams shaving creams, Conti shampoo, Kremel hair tonic, Skol sun tan creams and lotions.

Louis Rupepp, 54, Dies

Louis Ruppel, 54, one time CBS director of publicity, died Friday in New York, following stroke. He was associate editor of American Weekly at time of death.

Mr. Ruppel was editor of Collier's from 1949 to 1952. During part of 1945 he was editor of Chicago Herald-American, and from 1935 to 1938, managing editor of Chicago Times. He had also been on staffs of New York papers.
Chmn. Doerfer Explains Travel; Harris Turns Back Station Stock

FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer issued second statement Friday in connection with implications in Schwartz memorandum that he had billed government for travel and per diem for trip to Oklahoma and Spokane, Wash., although expenses were paid for self and wife by NAB. Although Schwartz document does not identify Mr. Doerfer, FCC chairman had acknowledged he was commissioner involved.

At same time, Comr. Robert E. Lee said only time he had ever submitted bill to government where his expenses were already paid was to cover his own out-of-pocket expenses. Comr. Lee said he had ever received. Comr. Lee said, was for article on pay tv which appeared in Look Magazine March 20, 1956.

And, it became known Friday, that Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.), chairman of House Commerce Committee, parent subcommittee, has withdrawn from 25% ownership of KARK-TV (El Dorado, Ark. Mr. Harris, according to ownership report received by FCC Jan. 22 turned back his 50 shares in station in exchange for return of his $500 and cancellation of note for $4,500. Station, with 1,500 shares outstanding, remains in control of Dr. Joe T. Rushton, W. C. Blewster and William M. Bigley. Each has 50 shares, with 1,350 remaining in company treasury. Arkansas Democrat paid $5,000 for his 50 shares ($500 cash, $4,500 credit) last year.

Full text of statement issued Friday by FCC chairman's office follows:

"The National Assn. of Radio & Television Broadcasters urgently requested Mr. Doerfer to come to Spokane, Wash., to address their meeting. As an inducement, they offered to take Mrs. Doerfer and pay her expenses. There was, however, no discussion as to the paying of Chairman Doerfer's expenses. The reason which impelled Doerfer to go was the complaint that no commissioner of the FCC had ever visited that area to obtain, at first hand, knowledge of the local radio and television problems."

"Mr. Doerfer rearranged his plans so as to make the trip in connection with a prior engagement in Oklahoma. Before Mr. Doerfer left Washington, D. C., on Oct. 15, 1954, he applied for, and obtained, at government expense, for himself a plane ticket from Oklahoma City, Okla., to Spokane, Wash., and back to Washington, D. C. Mr. and Mrs. Doerfer left Washington, D. C. on Oct. 15, 1954. Mr. Doerfer inspected radio and television facilities in and about Tulsa and Muskogee and spent a few hours on such business in Denver. He also visited such facilities in and about Spokane, Wash., and after making the requested address in Spokane, returned to D. C. on Oct. 20, 1954. On the day of his return, Mr. Doerfer made out a voucher for five days per diem at $9 and taxi fares for $10.50. The government paid Mr. Doerfer this on Nov. 4, 1954.

"Not until Nov. 12, 1954, did a representative of the Association telephone Mr. Doerfer to ask the amount of Mrs. Doerfer's plane fare. Mr. Doerfer called his secretary, who stated she thought it was about $275 or $280, but would look it up. The representative stated this was sufficient for his purposes, and inquired whether $575 would be satisfactory.

"Mr. Doerfer accepted the reimbursement for Mrs. Doerfer's plane fare and a $300 honorarium under the 1952 authorization to members of the FCC to accept for publication or delivery of papers a reasonable honorarium or compensation.

"Only 10% of the work of the FCC involves litigation. The remainder involves the promulgation and enforcement of rules in respect to the construction and operation of television stations. Problems in large part are local in character, and involve not only technical problems, but hazards to air travel by reason of the height and location of towers.

"Any suggestion that trips incident to performance of such duties can be compared to a federal judge's discussing a pending case with a litigant is not only unwarranted but vicious."

Brown & Butcher Agency Formed, Lands Lucrative Babbitt Account

Formation of new agency, Brown & Butter Inc., New York, and its appointment by B. T. Babbitt Co. announced Friday. Babbitt, which bills total $2.5 million with large amount in radio-tw spot, switches $2 million portion (Babot, Cameo soap, other products) from Donahue & Coe and remains (Glim) from Doyle Dane Bernbach. Brown & Butcher succeeds Carl S. Brown Co. and is headed by Carl S. Brown and Thomas C. Butcher, former Colgate-Palmolive executive most recently executive vice president of Lennen & Newell.

Brown agency last fall reduced its billing 50% when it resigned Colgate-Palmolive's Halo and Vel Beauty Bar. Mr. Brown had serviced C-P accounts since 1943 including Ajax cleanser. Babbitt's new management team is headed by Marshall Lachner, formerly Colgate-Palmolive soap executive, and also includes Michael P. Frawley and Jack Sugden, both formerly with Colgate.

DDB Vice President-General Manager Maxwell Dane said his agency had resigned Glim earlier in week "due to conflict of opinions" about ad strategy while Donahue & Coe Executive Vice President Walter Weir said switch came as "complete surprise."

D&B staff was told switch was due to presence of new management team at Babbitt firm.

Comprehensive Tv Rating Service Planned by New Wallach Research

Newly-devised television rating service involving coincidental personal interviews as well as phone announced Friday by M. A. Wallach Research Inc., New York. Cost of service will be made available to networks, stations, advertisers and agencies has not been established.

New service was designed by Miles A. Wallach, president of research firm, and George J. Abrams, vice president of Revlon Inc., and chairman of radio-TV committee of Assn. of National Advertisers. Service will include personal interviews with viewers while program is in progress so as to gauge audience composition.

Using 2,000 interviewers, he said it is planned that 100,000 viewers will be interviewed during each rating period to determine family audience composition, multiple set homes by actual audience, commercial availability and acceptability of commercials; real audience of station-bought spot commercials, and channel switching.

Tornado Backlash

EDITOR:
Your story in the Dec. 23 issue concerning the Mt. Vernon, Ill., tornado and containing claims made by KMOX St. Louis, was inaccurate and incomplete.

Contrary to the claims made in this story the stricken area relied on WCNT Centralia, Ill., for emergency information after WMIX [Mt. Vernon, Ill.] knocked off the air.

This was determined by us as a point of interest after the disaster.

The station that "leaped into the breach" was WCNT Centralia, which immediately sent its mobile unit into the stricken community and stayed on the air many hours past its normal sign-off covering the disaster.

The claim made in your story that KMOX had "the only direct reports from the stricken town" is probably good station promotion but far from the actual truth.

WMIX and the city of Mt. Vernon appreciate all the assistance it received no matter what the source. Stations throughout southern Illinois as well as several St. Louis stations did a fine job reporting the event.

But let's distinguish between routine news coverage and real vital public service. All the rest covered the news, but only WCNT Centralia provided real disaster service for the majority of the people of the city of Mt. Vernon after WMIX was forced off the air.

Raymond J. Cheney
General Manager
WMIX Mt. Vernon, Ill.

[EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Cheney fails to point out that this publication the following week (DATELINER, Dec. 30, 1957) set the record straight by printing a story, equally prominent to that in the Dec. 23 issue, giving WCNT full credit for its emergency service and coverage and its cooperation with WMIX, based on information furnished by Mr. Cheney. It might also be noted that the information for the original story in the Dec. 23 issue, which omitted WCNT's part in the disaster, was furnished by KMOX the next day near deadline while telephone service was still unavailable in the stricken area and this magazine's staffers were unable to reach sources they ordinarily would check.]

The Show's the Thing

EDITOR:
It's encouraging to read in Broadcasting each week that radio men report a great resurgence of their medium; at least they're restoring their faith in their own industry.

In my opinion, radio never "died"; in some instances it was "killed" temporarily by men of small faith and management that forgot sound programming principles.

The show is and always has been the thing. Recent years have seen too much copycat programming.... Too much program planning is done by the radio "jack of all trades," instead of specialists in programming. How stupid to read "help wanted" ads for program directors who must have good air voices, first class license, and, oh yes, do some selling in between!

Program planning and production is a specialized business, based on experience, highly developed creative imagination, common sense judgment and that too often overlooked or minimized quality of knowing how to handle people. Our finest radio and television producers and planners were never performers, but top showmen, steeped in the tradition and knowledge of the basics of good programming.

Strong management, real selling and programming geared to the station's place in the community, and not to a formula, will insure radio's continuing upward spiral of success.

Roving Camera

EDITOR:
This is an open letter to TV producers of the bowl games and parades.

Every year during the football season most of you fellows irritate a few million viewers at half time by taking them away from the field just when the band show goes on. To those producers who do not pull away from the field and to those sponsors who use phantom commercials, our thanks and appreciation. But to those who use that time to show the faces of a couple of people, generally an announcer and a politician, in a conversation reviewing what we have just seen, we have strong criticism.

And just one more tip. Nothing bothers band people more than to have the camera pan away from a 100-piece band, which has spent many hours perfecting a difficult half time show, and... pick up some little freezing drum majorette, who cannot twirl (though she can wiggle) and hold the camera on her.

DUPONT SHOW OF THE MONTH

The excitement and immediacy of live television—abetted by perhaps the most remarkable casting job ever accomplished for one production—literally "lit up the sky" last Tuesday in the DuPont Show of the Month production of "The Bridge of San Luis Rey."

Thornton Wilder’s Pulitzer-prize winning novel is a challenge to dramatization. It is a short and simply written book, and its central theme is a philosophical essay on the meaning of love in its varied forms. Producer David Susskind and associates dove in head first; they came up smelling like a rose.

Distinguished theatrical talent electrified the production. As the Marquesa de Montemayor, Judith Anderson made the lonely, drunken old woman an intense personality, living and real, for the 90 minute life of the production. Viveca Lindfors gave a memorable performance as La Perichole, the actress, and in a scene they shared, she and Miss Anderson created a vivid television memory. Each performance was a creation in itself, yet implemented by fine directing, they blended into a tight dramatic unit.

Excellent camerawork intensified the elements of true drama: a gesture, a tapping foot, the movement of a fan or a body turning, the expression of eyes or mouth—all were caught and permitted to tell their part of the story.

As for production, surely this must have been one of television’s most demanding efforts; a huge number of sets were handled with expert ease; loving care was lavished on costumes and makeup.

There were some "however" about the production. In spite of the expertness of the adaptation, the sine qua non of the program itself may be questioned: does the Wilder novel truly lend itself to the dramatic form? It is a philosophical novel in latent, and while its characterizations are dramatic in themselves, the action of the story is not central in purpose. This, perhaps, was behind the somewhat slow pace, although the tempo picked up considerably after a hesitant beginning. Too, in the transition from novel to television, Wilder’s ironic humor got lost, leaving the play lacking in a dimension that the novel possessed.

Nonetheless, with the decision made and the program done, the "however" are drowned out in a chorus of magnificats.

To say that television succeeds most when it is most like living theatre would be unfair to the potential of the medium. But when the excitement and talent of good theatre are fused with the scope and talent of television, then viewing becomes a memorable experience. That was what happened for 90 minutes last Tuesday night.

TWENTIETH CENTURY
At this very moment, the U. S. criminal population—that segment behind bars, at any rate—numbers 188,000. A substantial number of them will be released or paroled this year, but the fact remains that of every 10 prisoners turned loose, 6 will go back to serve additional sentences.

Thus the question: Does prison confinement necessarily lead to rehabilitation, and if not, what does? On CBS-TV's The Twentieth Century last night (Sunday), the question was answered most dramatically by the people most concerned with criminal reclamation: the criminals themselves.

It was a startling departure in photojournalism. This was not the face of crime one expected. There were no stock shots of whatever passes for crime on the Late Late Show. Rather, it was a quiet look into the mind of the criminal.

The crux of the matter was stated by Austin H. McCormick, professor of criminology, U. of Calif., who noted that while high prison walls might be reassuring to the public, they were no guarantee against repetition of offenses.

Producer-writer-director Steve Fleischman wisely did not fall back on the old comparison technique of showing the worst and best in U. S. prisons: he merely allowed the cameras to roam through the best. Apparently the state of New Jersey has made rapid strides towards criminal reform in its two institutions, the State Diagnostic Center at Menlo Park and the reformatory for males at Bordentown.

At the former, convicted criminals are subjected to thorough psychiatric observations. Most gripping scene of the Menlo Park segment: psychiatrist Dr. Ralph Brancile leading a drugged juvenile delinquent into believing himself to be conducting a hold-up; at the crucial point, the boy "chickens out" and the psychiatrist knows half his battle is won. At the reformatory, convicts, at first sullen, aggressive and in many cases, incorrigible, purged themselves openly in what prison officials call "group psychotherapy"—long bull-sessions between prisoners in which all have a chance to talk freely. New Jersey penologists believe that when a criminal himself can recognize what made him go wrong, he has taken the first major step to wards parole. The challenge implicit in the whole program was hurled at the viewer by one prisoner, due for parole at the time this program was seen: "Try to understand us... if there is no understanding, you might as well not release us..."

Production costs: Approximately $55,000.

MD INTERNATIONAL
NBC-TV's late and lamented Medic program—which from time to time came up with some profound tear-jerkers—has nothing on the latest of Smith, Kline & French Labs' March of Medicine series, an hour-long color film entitled "MD International."

This program, aired last Thursday evening, was in the making for well over five months. It showed it. Lovingly put together by producer David Lowe and shot with the entire world as its soundstage, "MD International!" may well be the most profoundly moving television program of this or any other past year.

The "hero" of the program is the American doctor who has sacrificed both comfort and Cadillac for the privations offered by the world's most backward areas to stand by the side of the world, or in the words of writer Lou Hazam, "to lift the burden of pain off the backside of the family of man."

It was not a pretty sight—this hop, skip and jump excursion to Pusan, Korea, Hong Kong, Sarawak, Rangoon and wherever else the blessings of modern science have yet to make themselves felt—nor was it meant to be. Viewers may well have blanched (or covered their eyes) as the camera took in glimpses of advanced prosy, or peered deep into empty eye sockets or peeked in on a heart-valve operation.

Pretty or not, many of those who saw it must have felt a lump of humility in their throats as an American doctor spoke of his happiness in being able to restore the sight of India's blind "untouchables," or as one of his professional colleagues helped a Burmese lad find his missing "leg" after ten years.

One is told that there was no "glamor" involved in making this film, that camera man, writer and producer lived on the same primitive level as their subjects. Perhaps this is what made this film such an excellent document—the fact that by living among their "cast of characters," the men behind the camera received the kind of insight that money just can't buy back home in the network control booth.

Production costs: Approximately $110,000. Sponsored by Smith, Kline & French (in Association with the American Medical Assn.) through Doremus, Eshelman Co. on NBC-TV Jan. 23, 10-11 p.m. in color and black-and-white.

OUR RESPECTS to John Flint Dille Jr.

"I'm glad to be in all three of the major mass media, and am convinced they can be more complementary than conflicting," John Dille confesses, with an eye for the truth—in this case the Truth Publishing Co. and its broadcast properties.

Broadcasting (radio and tv) has entered a phase of "relative maturity and stability," he adds, but it wasn't always thus. As a newspaperman who followed in his late father's footsteps, Mr. Dille cites radio's once-presumed threat to newspapers and how the aural medium itself survived tv to make a strong comeback. And television has emerged as a "dynamic, businesslike, hard-hitting medium after a thorough shake-down cruise."

As president of the Truth broadcast properties (WTRC-AM-FM and WSJV [TV] Elkhart and WKJG-AM-TV Fort Wayne, Ind.), and editor-publisher of the Elkhart Truth and of WTRC, Mr. Dille has pioneered in all media compatible, sharing back-to-back telephone offices and advertising agencies. A native Chicagoan (born Nov. 14, 1913), John Flint Dille Jr. was graduated from Evanston (Ill.) Township High School in 1931 and attended the U. of Chicago, U. of Oklahoma and Northwestern U. At Chicago he majored in business and social sciences, receiving a B.A. degree and (in 1956) an M.A., specializing in communications.

As far back as he can remember, he wanted to get into mass media, Mr. Dille recalls. His first job was editing and sales promotion work for the National Newspaper Circulation Service, and he has been associated with Elkhart Truth for over 20 years of Navy service (1942-46, serving in the American and Pacific theatres and leaving as a lieutenant commander), he has been associated with National 17 years, starting in 1935, editing and developing new features, negotiating with artists and authors and handling sales and administrative duties. By 1947 he had become a vice president and director (and still retains those positions).

Mr. Dille was offered an interest in the Truth Publishing Co., effective June 1, 1952, and was appointed vice president, vice president and general manager of the daily Elkhart Truth and of WTRC. He was elected president of the corporation Jan. 1, 1953, and supervised construction of WSJV, which began operation in March 1954. Two years later WTRC-AM-FM was split into a separate corporation (Truth Radio Corp.), with Mr. Dille as president. In April 1957 Truth Publishing Co. acquired controlling interest of WKJG-AM-TV for an estimated $1.6 million net and set up WKJG Inc., of which he was named president. The publishing firm has applied for ch. 2 in Terre Haute, with an FCC hearing set for March 31.

Vested with operational responsibility for the Truth broadcasting properties, Mr. Dille is not disposed to minimize the problems involved, particularly those of the "ufh islands" in the South Bend-Elkhart and Fort Wayne markets. WKJG-TV (ch. 33) has been "extraordinarily successful," he feels, and WSJV, Truth's original television property, has been gaining advertising recognition, though it hasn't come easily, he acknowledges. "The best evidence of our unflagging faith is our recent additional major capital investment in a brand new tower and transmitter, coupled with a movement to a much lower uhf channel" (from 52 to 28 this weekend) for WSJV.

Mr. Dille defines his corporate philosophy as primarily that of getting "a team of executives vitally interested in the mass media, who must have the qualities of understanding human values and a sense of humor." Working under Mr. Dille are Paul C. Brines, general manager of WTRC-AM-FM and WSJV Elkhart; Edward G. Thoms, general manager of WKJG-AM-TV, Fort Wayne, and John A. S. Stitz, administrative officer of Truth Publishing Co., all vice presidents. Truth owns 60% of WKJG-AM-TV and wholly owns the South Bend-Elkhart properties; Mr. Dille is largest single stockholder of Truth Publishing, with 45%.

Mr. Dille is a past member of the AP Managing Editors Assn.'s domestic and foreign news committees and presently serves on its new trends group. He also is working on Sigma Delta Chi's 50th anniversary committee for drafting a code of ethics. He belongs to the American Society of Newspaper Editors and is past president of the Elkhart Rotary Club and the Rotary Club of South Bend. He also holds membership in Alpha Delta Chi, along with Young Presidents' Organization and Presidents' Council, St. Mary's College, Notre Dame, Ind. (he's an Episcopalian and past vestryman). He also is a member of the national council of the National Planning Assn.

An enthusiast for curling, Mr. Dilles also plays golf but says his main hobby is "to see how much of a dent I can make in all the reading material which keeps piling up." He and Mrs. Dille (the former Jayne Paulman) have two children, John Flint III, 16, a junior at Lake Forest Academy, and Joanne, 9.

A MESSY PROBE GROWS MESSIER

- House staff chief charges skulduggery at the FCC
- Doerfer faces investigating subcommittee this week

The FCC took it on the chin last week.

The blows came in rapid succession. First a Drew Pearson column charging skulduggery was behind a contested Miami ch. 10 grant [At Deadline, Jan. 20]. Then another Pearson column charging Chairman John Doerfer with accepting expenses and favors from the industry. Then, Thursday, came the haymaker: a “leak” to the New York Times of a confidential House subcommittee staff report charging the FCC and its members on counts ranging from general malfeasance to deliberate breaking of the law.

And the end is not in sight. Sources indicate that still other charges against the FCC are in preparation by Congressional investigators: specifically, charges of “treasonous” pressures involved in FCC decisions in Miami, Boston and Indianapolis.

Chairman John C. Doerfer will testify Wednesday on “general” Commission problems before the House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee. Facing Mr. Doerfer will be Dr. Bernard Schwartz, the subcommittee’s chief counsel and author of a formerly top secret memorandum charging, without naming names, that several of the commissioners have been guilty of malfeasance in office.

Dr. Schwartz’s confidential report, in the form of suggested matters to be taken up by the subcommittee, was widely quoted last week in several papers and by the press associations. These wide “leaks” resulted in a 5½ hour meeting last Thursday by the subcommittee, interrupted only by House roll calls and a hurried consultation between three members of the committee and the House boss himself, Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.).

Following the meeting, Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.), chairman of the parent House Commerce Committee, and Rep. Morgan Moulder (D-Mo.), chairman of the subcommittee, told a news conference the Schwartz memorandum would not be released generally in spite of the leaks.

At the FCC, an outward calm was maintained in the face of the charges while Mr. Doerfer issued a statement labeling the report “inaccurate and misleading.”

Rep. Moulder said that, since details of the staff memorandum had been published, the general opinion of the nine-member committee was that the report should be officially released. However, he said, since the committee had not fully evaluated the “serious” allegations made by Dr. Schwartz, an official release might be construed as approval of the charges.

The subcommittee said it “recognizes its very responsible role in early and orderly study of such material and its duty to afford any person whose record or conduct is in question of dismissing him was questioned at length on Dr. Schwartz’ continued service with the committee. One newsman asked point-blank if Dr. Schwartz still was the committee’s chief counsel. Rep. Moulder replied that he is and that the question of dismissing him was not mentioned.

Rep. Harris was asked if he still had “faith and confidence” in the chief counsel. The congressman replied that he has been shown nothing which would cause him to discredit Dr. Schwartz’ integrity and ability.

These three questions were put to Dr. Schwartz at his home Thursday night:

Q. “Did you supply members of the press with your confidential memorandum?”

A. “I can’t say. .. I can’t answer that type question to the press.”

Q. “Do you know who was responsible for the leak?”

A. “No.”

Q. “Do you plan to resign as chief counsel of the subcommittee?”

A. “I do not plan to resign. I shall participate in the hearings .. . which the subcommittee begins today (Monday).

THE SEVEN BEING FIRED UPON FROM AMBUSH

DOERFER FORD HYDE MACK BARTLEY LEE CRAVEN

Rep. Harris said the question of where the leaks, or “plants” as described by one party, originated was discussed at “great length” during Thursday’s meeting. Rep. Moulder said the committee plans “to make every diligent effort” to determine the informant or informants. He said if there is any indication a staff member had given out the memorandum, such information would be followed to the fullest extent.

Rep. Moulder was asked about a report that Dr. Schwartz had been “forced” on the committee. He denied this, stating the chief counsel had been unanimously ap-proven by all members of the committee. The subcommittee chairman also was asked if Speaker Rayburn had been consulted about the leaks. Evidently speaking strictly for himself, Rep. Moulder replied he had not. However, it is known that during one break in the meeting (it convened at 2 p.m. and finally broke up at 6:30 p.m.), Rep. Harris and Reps. John Bell Williams (D-Miss.) and John J. Flynt (D-Ga.) made a hurried trip to Mr. Rayburn's office for consultation. The meeting was a short one, but the three congressmen did see the speaker.

Rep. Harris, asked about reports that a "deal" had been made to "whitewash" the Oversight Subcommittee's investigation, said there is "no basis whatsoever" for the charge. "It is unalterably untrue," he said, in stressing that all charges before the committee will be followed through. He said he would prefer open hearings on such charges, but the committee may vote to sit in executive sessions.

Rep. Moulder originally had wanted to tackle the FCC head-on but this plan was sidetracked two weeks ago by a 6-2 vote of the committee [GOVERNMENT, Jan. 20]. Voting with Rep. Moulder on the FCC investigation was Rep. John Moss (D-Calif.), another staunch supporter of Dr. Schwartz.

The FCC will not be questioned about the Schwartz memorandum at Wednesday's hearing, Rep. Moulder said, although the committee still plans a "thorough investigation of the charges." Asked what action the committee would follow Wednesday if Comr. Doerfer mentions the charges against himself and his colleagues, Rep. Moulder said "I just don't know."

Actually, it appears the Schwartz memorandum contains only some of the charges which may be thrown at the Commission. Baron Shacklefet, the committee's chief investigator, and Oliver Eastland, his assistant, have spent approximately six weeks in Miami investigating the FCC's grant of ch. 10 there to National Airlines.

A source said "tremendous pressures" have been uncovered regarding the grant and that questions have been raised on the actions of all four commissioners who voted for National—then Chairman George C. McConnaughey, Mr. Doerfer, Robert E. Lee and Richard A. Mack.

One source close to the committee reported that several new "promising" leads have been turned up regarding the grant of ch. 5 in Boston to WHDH-Herald Traveler and this is believed to be the next target of Schwartz and company. Also due for close scrutiny—the ch. 13 Indianapolis grant to Crosley (WLWI TV).

The subcommittee's hearings actually will begin today with James R. Durfee, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, scheduled as the first witness. He will be followed by the Interstate Commerce Commission Monday afternoon, the Federal Trade Commission and Transportation Commission on Tuesday, and the FCC and Securities & Exchange Commission on Wednesday. The hearing was called to "examine a few important areas of inquiry common to all of the agencies."

Following the general hearings, the agencies will be called individually according to plans of the committee. That's exactly what I intend to propose," Rep. Moulder said when asked if FCC members would be questioned about the Schwartz paper.

Text of the committee's statement refusing to release the Schwartz memorandum, released after last Thursday's meeting:

"It has come to the attention of the Subcommittee on Legislative Oversight that a confidential memorandum dated Jan. 4, 1958, prepared by Dr. Bernard Schwartz, chief counsel and staff director of the subcommittee, for the exclusive use and consideration of the members of the subcommittee, has been made public without authorization by the subcommittee, and is apparently in the hands of certain representatives of the press."

"The Subcommittee has observed that the purported text of the memorandum has been published substantially in certain newspapers and referred to in certain columns."

"The subcommittee has not authorized and does not authorize the release of the confidential memorandum, but in that it has been published emphasizes that it is a staff memorandum only. The subcommittee has not had adequate opportunity to either study or evaluate any of the material thus far reported by the staff director bearing upon the personal conduct of any member of the Federal Communications Commission or other allegations affecting the actions of any member of the Federal Communications Commission."

"The subcommittee recognizes its very responsible role in early and orderly study of such material and its duty to afford any person whose record or conduct is involved his full rights and an appropriate opportunity to challenge the accuracy of such charges in hearings at the earliest practical date."

"The Legislative Oversight Subcommittee will continue its fully comprehensive investigation and study as directed by the House, including the matters referred to in the memorandum, but it does not propose to lend itself to any procedure which might impugn property or injure the character and reputation of any person or persons by issuance of staff memoranda for publication."

"The subcommittee has not concluded its investigation on many of these matters involved and will insist upon full evaluation of the evidence it now has or will obtain."

Report misleading, Doerfer says

FCC commissioners publicly maintained a calm reserve last Thursday in the face of the charges recited in the Schwartz memorandum. The only one to speak out in detail was Chairman John C. Doerfer.

Mr. Doerfer said:

"The report is inaccurate and misleading. There is a provision in the Communications Act which provides that a commissioner may accept a reasonable honorarium and compensation for delivering an address. This is Sec. 4b.

"A commissioner may, when expenses exceed the $9 or $12 [per diem], validly accept more, and thereby exceed this limitation.

"With respect to the Copriller. General's opinion, I have no way of knowing whether he was advised of Sec. 4b of the Communications Act."

Sec. 4b of the Communications Act reads as follows:

"Each member of the Commission shall be a citizen of the United States. No member of the Commission or person in his employ shall be financially interested in the manufacture or sale of radio apparatus or of apparatus for wire or radio communication; in communication by wire or radio or in radio transmission of energy; in any company furnishing services or such apparatus to any company engaged in communication by wire or radio or to any company manufacturing or selling apparatus used for communication by wire or radio; in any company owning stocks, bonds or other securities of any such company; nor be in the employ of or hold any official relation to any person subject to any provisions of this Act, nor own stocks, bonds or other securities of any corporation subject to any of the provisions of this Act. (Such commissioners shall not engage in any other business, vocation, profession, or employment; but this shall not apply to the presentation or delivery of publications or papers for which a reasonable honorarium or compensation may be accepted.) Any such commissioner serving as such after one year from the date of enactment of the Communications Act Amendments, 1952, shall not for a period of one year following the termination of his services as a commissioner represent any person before the Commission in a professional capacity, except that this restriction shall not apply to any commissioner who has served the full term for which he was appointed. Not more than four members of the Commission shall be members of the same political party."

Comr. Rosel H. Hyde declared:

"I hope my conduct is not going to be judged by this ex parte staff report. I am sure that no one who is conversant with the way I have carried out my duties is going to permit this to vitiate my work."

Comr. Robert T. Bartley stated:

"I haven't read it yet so I can't comment."

Unofficial comments by commissioners and top staff officials labeled the "leak" of the report as a "surreptitious effort to embarrass us," according to one FCC officer; another declared that sections of the report paint an incomplete picture and in one part, obviously not the work of a "disgruntled" former employe.
The victims of a smear

THERE is serious doubt that the Moulder Subcommittee is qualified to carry on its investigation of the FCC and other government agencies.

So far, the subcommittee has been unable to discipline itself or its staff. The result has been a series of news leaks—"plants"—which have created the impression that the members of the FCC are incompetent, crooked and servile to the industries they regulate and that an energetic subcommittee staff is being cruelly suppressed in its patriotic desire to bring the culprits to justice.

All the news stories have been based on a confidential memorandum submitted to the subcommittee by Dr. Bernard Schwartz, chief counsel and staff director. The memorandum's recommendations were rejected by a 6-2 vote of the subcommittee a fortnight ago [GOVERNMENT, Jan. 20]. By that vote, the subcommittee decided to proceed with a general investigation of six agencies instead of opening its hearings with a probe of the alleged malpractices of the FCC.

It was after that subcommittee decision that the planting began, first in Drew Pearson's columns and later in the New York Times and other publications.

We don't pretend to know who has been the source. If the subcommittee knows, it has yet to identify the source. After its all-afternoon discussion of the leak problem last Thursday it issued a statement which added nothing but confusion to a situation which was already confused.

The subcommittee's hearings begin this week. As far as we know, there has been no change in the plan to work first on general questions pertaining to all six agencies, a procedure that may take some time.

Meanwhile, what of the personal reputations of the members of the FCC? How long are they to stand indicted by a chief counsel's memorandum without a presentation of the evidence and without a chance to prepare and offer a defense?

At the moment, the Moulder Subcommittee is a party to a smear. It must either disavow its chief counsel and his memorandum or it must provide a prompt and proper hearing to the men whom he has accused.

Schwartz' Citations Of FCC Wrongdoing

The Schwartz memorandum starts with a listing of alleged peculations by unnamed commissioners, accuses members of the FCC of undue "fraternizing" with the industry they are bound to regulate and moves right into its main contention:

That the FCC is a quasi-judicial agency; that FCC commissioners are judges; that they must comport themselves as do their brethren on the bench—and that they have not done so.

The Moulder committee counsel charged that FCC commissioners have accepted gratuities from industry sources; that they have discussed cases with litigants; that they don't even write their own decisions.

Mr. Schwartz' memorandum, first published in the Jan. 23 issue of the New York Times, made these other points:

- The FCC has been inconsistent in its decisions in comparative TV hearing cases, benefitting big, multiple owners to the detriment of new, small entities.
- The Commission wrongfully has failed to exercise its responsibility in the antitrust field and in some cases has given licenses to applicants guilty of antitrust violations.
- The FCC has failed to consider the patent situation and has aided RCA to maintain and expand its dominance in patent licensing.
- The FCC has aided monopoly, citing the 1956 Press Wireless-Western Union case.

The offenses alleged by Mr. Schwartz boil down to these:

- Commissioners have had their travel and expenses paid for by industry, yet have submitted vouchers and been paid by the government.
- Wives of commissioners have had their expenses paid by industry.
- Commissioners have color TV receivers and other communications apparatus in their homes, and are supplied gratis with repair service.
- Commissioners have used government telephones to make personal calls.
- It is following this listing of purported misconduct that Mr. Schwartz fired his number one charge:

"If any of the above mentioned practices were engaged in by a federal judge, there would be grave doubt as to that judge's fitness to continue in office. For a judge to receive favors from a litigant before him would be for him grossly to violate the canons of judicial ethics. Similarly, for a litigant to confer favors upon a judge would be for him to indulge in grave impropriety."

The memorandum went on to state that the staff has uncovered evidence which indicates that FCC members have discussed cases with litigants. Such 'wholly improper' conduct "violates a basic principle of American administrative law," the memorandum declared, "that of so-called 'exclusiveness of the record' under which administrative decisions are to be based solely upon the public record in cases before the agency. It is also clearly contrary to the Federal Administrative Procedure Act as well as Sec. 409 (c) of the Communications Act, as amended in 1952."

[Sec. 409 (c) provides a barrier between examiners and other members of the Commission in hearing cases; and between the Commission and its staff upon determination of a hearing case.]

"The basic theory of administrative adjudication upon which the Congress acted in delegating adjudicatory authority to the Federal Communications Commission is that the agency decision be based only upon materials contained in the public record."

In a long discussion of the FCC's responsibility to establish criteria for hearing cases and their application, Mr. Schwartz baldly stated that there have been "disturbing inconsistencies."

The New York U. professor first listed the six standard issues usual in comparative TV hearings: (a) local ownership; (b) integration of ownership and management; (c) past performance; (d) broadcast experience; (e) proposed programming and policies; (f) diversification of the control of the media of mass communications.

An analysis of some 60 comparative TV hearing cases, Mr. Schwartz said has indicated "a most disturbing inconsistency."

"Such inconsistency has, in effect, enabled the Commissioners to act in individual cases on the basis more of whim and caprice than that of the application of settled law to the facts of the case."

"At times, in truth, the Commission appears to have made decisions which are diametrically opposed both to the standards which it itself has developed and to its own decisions in other contemporaneous cases."

Not only this, Dr. Schwartz said, but in recent years there has been a tendency on Y&R Resigns Lincoln, Buick May Fit in Slot

The $3.5 million Lincoln automotive account was resigned last week by Young & Rubicam, New York, causing rumors that the agency is open for the more lucrative $24 million unattached Buick account. Officials at Young & Rubicam, however, had no official comment to make except to admit the resignation.

The Buick Div. of General Motors has been silent as to where the account would land. It was known, however, that Edward T. Ragsdale, general manager of the division, was in New York this past week, presumably to hear agency presentations. Trade talk continues that Leo Burnett Co., Chicago, and Benton & Bowles, New York, as well as Young & Rubicam, are the three agencies in the top running for the Buick business.

No new agency was announced for the Lincoln Div. of Ford Motor Co. The Edsel account will continue to be handled by Foote, Cone & Belding and Mercury will continue to be serviced by Kenyon & Eckhardt.

Presumably, a decision will have to be made shortly for both Buick and Lincoln since media plans should already be in the works for auto campaigns which traditionally break in October.

Lincoln was last in tv on The Ed Sullivan Show on CBS-TV with Ford's Mercury Div., but dropped out of the show last November. Lincoln used spot radio-tv during the fall.

Results 'Phenomenal' for Tv Test, Seaboard to Expand Use of Medium

The "phenomenal" sales results obtained by the Seaboard Chemical Corp., Newell Pharmacal Div., Livingston, N. J., in introducing a new product in the New York area on a three-week test campaign has prompted Seaboard (1) to triple its expenditure for a 13-week spot tv effort in the area starting today (Monday) and (2) to formulate plans for a nationwide tv campaign.

Paul H. Collins, president of Seaboard, said his company, a small one in the field, developed a product several years ago called "Liqua-Band," which he described as "a liquid antisepctic that forms its own bandage." The product, he said, has been on the market for about 18 months with distribution on the East Coast. Last June, the company allocated $5,000 for a test campaign in the Philadelphia area, using two metropolitan newspapers, Mr. Collins reported, and the results were "very disappointing."

In the middle of November, according to Mr. Collins, Seaboard decided to spend the same amount—$5,000—for a three-week tv campaign in the New York area, using 20 spot announcements per week on WABD (TV) New York. Despite the drawbacks—the New York market is considered "highly tough" and the campaign was presented during the Christmas holiday season—Mr. Collins termed the results "phenomenal." Sales during December and January for the New York territory alone were four times as high as in all the other territories combined and 23 drug wholesalers in the area wrote in to ask for "Liqua-Band," as compared with only four which had handled the product before the tv campaign. Eight of the wholesalers, Mr. Collins continued, called for repeat orders, adding that wholesaler acceptance is "a must" for success of a drug product in the contemporary marketing scene.

Starting today, Seaboard will invest $15,000 for a 13-week campaign, using 12 announcements per week on both WABD and WOR-TV New York. The company, according to Mr. Collins, now has appropriated funds for a tv campaign in other that the hearings proposed in his memorandum on the FCC would be only the "beginning," he said. Mr. Collins added, "It is said that as further investigative material is developed by the subcommittee staff, additional hearings will be held on the FCC."

The concluding paragraphs of Dr. Schwartz' document read as follows:

The proposals for hearings contained in this memorandum have been put forth by the subcommittee staff without anything like dogmatic conviction. They are intended only to serve as the basis for determination by the subcommittee of the subjects to be explored by it in its first public hearings. At the same time it cannot be denied that the whole question of the operation of the federal regulatory agencies is now the subject of public interest and concern to an unprecedented degree.

"A period of ferment is one for a straightforward and vigorous public articulation of issues. Administrative law, almost more than any other branch of the law, well exempli-ifies Justice Cardozo's famous statement that the law has its periods of ebbs and flow. One of the flood seasons is now upon us. It is for this subcommittee to gather up the driftwood and leave the waters pure."

The Schwartz Charges Of FCC Malfeasance

Uncle Sam doesn't want its officials to travel on somebody else's tab even if it saves expense to the government. That's the import of an opinion the Comptroller General of the U. S. (he keeps his eye on government spending) gave to Rep. Morgan M. Moulder (D-Mo.), chairman of the House Commerce Legislative Oversight subcom-

The comptroller general's views were expressed following Moulder committee staff assertions that members of the FCC had their expenses paid by industry, yet also collected travel and expense money ($12 per day) from the government for the same trip.

The memorandum composed by Dr. Bernard Schwartz made these charges of malfeasance against unidentified FCC commissioners:

"(1) A commissioner was fully reimbursed by the industry for the expenses incurred by him and his wife in attending an industry convention at which he delivered an address. This commissioner also claimed from and was paid by the government his full expenses (travel and per diem) to attend the same convention. Such duplication of expense accounts apparently involves a criminal felony in that a 'false, fictitious, or fraudulent' claim was filed against the United States by the meaning of 18 U.S.C. 287 by the commissioner in question. See also 18 U.S.C. 1001, 1914.

"2. Members of the Commission have had their room, board and other expenses (e.g., cafe, valet, golf fees, etc.) paid by the industry while attending industry conventions. At the same time, these commissioners have claimed and received per diem from the government for living expenses incurred by them in attending the same convention.

"3. Members of the Commission have had their hotel bills paid by the industry while attending industry conventions. At the same time they have claimed and received per diem from the government for living expenses incurred by them in attending the same convention.

"4. Members of the Commission have had their wives' expenses paid for by the industry for attendance at industry functions.

"5. Members of the Commission engage in constant fraternization with individuals and corporations who appear as litigants before the Commission. This includes such things as payments by individuals, corporations or associations subject to the Commission's regulatory authority of commissioner-ers' entertainment, travel, payment of hotel bills and the like.

"6. Members of the Commission have received for their personal use color television sets and other communications equipment.

"7. Members of the Commission have received free service contracts for their personal television, radio and hi-fi sets from a company which appears as a litigant before the Commission. These free contracts involve savings of up to several hundred dol-ars per year for the particular Commissioners concerned.

"8. Members of the Commission have used Commission telephones (at government expense) to make purely personal telephone calls."

The memorandum quotes the Comptroler General as indicating not only that the law prohibits dual payments, but also his view that "irrespective of whether the United States may be saved the cost of traveling expenses, our decisions have indicated generally that the payment by others of the traveling expenses of an officer or employee of the Government in a regular duty and pay status is prohibited by 18 U.S.C. 1914."

eastern territories and eventually will exand to markets throughout the country.
Mr. Collins believes a product like "Liqua-Band" is shown to fine advantage on TV because demonstration of the produe's performance is a strong selling point.

W-L, Borden's Shuffle Internal Organization

Two major broadcast advertisers last week announced internal reorganizations.

Warner-Lambert Pharmaceutical Co., Morris Plains, N. J., has formed a new marketing division to be known as Family Products Div. It will embrace all Warner-Lambert proprietary drug, cosmetic and toiletry lines including Listerine, Bromo-Seltzer, Super Analyst, Richard Hudnut and DuBarry beauty preparations.

The Borden Co., New York, consoldated its cheese and food producers, Borden Cheese Co. and Borden Food Products Co., into a single arm to be known as Borden Foods Co.

No change in the companies' agency assignments are contemplated at present.
Warner-Lambert is serviced by Lambert &
Feasley (Listerine brand products), as well as Sullivan, Stauffer, Colwell & Bayles (Richard Hudnut), Ted Bates & Co. (Super Analyst), Lennen & Newell (Emerson drug products, including Bromo-Seltzer and Fizzies) and Norman, Craig & Kummel (DuBarry). Warner-Lambert uses TV spot and some network.

The Borden agencies are Young & Rubicam and Doherty, Clifford, Steers & Sen-field, the latter handling Borden's Instant coffee. Y&R services both cheese and food products. Borden sponsors The People's Choice on NBC-TV on alternate weeks, but places considerable emphasis on local dealer spot drives through its many distributors and local branch dairies. Heading the new Borden company is Theodore O.
Hofman, who resigns as general control-er of the parent Borden Co. The parent firm also has set up a new autonomous regional unit comprising dairy and food products operations in eight southern states to be known as Borden Co. Southern Div., with headquarters in Houston. Two months ago, Borden formed a similar company for western state marketing.

At Warner-Lambert, reorganization reportedly has just begun. J. S. Hewitt, president of the recently-acquired Analyst Co., has been designated president of the new Family Products Div. Though the agencies probably will not be changed, advertising is being consolidated from brand status to divisional status. Irvin W. Hoff will become vice president and advertising director for the entire division. But each brand product will have its own advertising manager, to be appointed later.

W-L executives named to new posts include Robert G. Urban, executive vice president and general manager of the Hudnut-DuBarry lines; Frank Camp, vice president and general sales manager for all products save DuBarry; William Strawson, vice president for Emerson drug products; Gerald Fowler, vice president and marketing director, DuBarry; Matt F. Ruffe, Hudnut marketing director; Robert MacFarlane, marketing director for all Anahist products, and Joe Brown, trade promotion manager for Anahist.

Ellis Retires as Kuder Head; Rohrbaugh Named as Successor

The resignation of J. H. S. Ellis as president of Kuder Adv., New York, was accepted "with regret" last Tuesday by the agency's board of directors. C. M. Rohrbaugh, an executive vice president, was elected as Mr. Ellis' successor.

Mr. Ellis' move had been expected since he announced his projected retirement last month shortly after Kuder lost the $23 million Buick account [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, Dec. 23, 1957]. At that time, Mr. Ellis said he planned to sell his stock in the agency to other company executives and retire from advertising.

The directors of Kuder also elected Charles K. Hook, an executive vice president, as treasurer and J. W. Millard, a vice president, as secretary. All other officers were re-elected.

Recently Kuder overhauled its executive committee in order to relieve the load carried by Mr. Ellis, who also served as chairman and treasurer and performed creative work. At that time, Mr. Rohrbaugh was appointed chairman of the executive committee.

An agency spokesman later said that Mr. Ellis already had sold his stock in the agency to other executives in the company but could not specify the amount of stock Mr. Ellis held.

Morgan Succeeds Buchen As President of Agency

The retirement of Walther Buchen as president and the election of new officers, including Leon Morgan, treasurer, as his successor has been announced by The Buchen Co., Chicago advertising agency.

Also elected at a stockholders' meeting Jan. 14 were John M. McDonald, formerly first senior vice president, as chairman of the board; Joseph H. Caro, senior vice president who continues in that position and also becomes treasurer, and Walter H. Baers, promoted from vice president to senior vice president.

Mr. Buchen, who founded the agency 35 years ago, is being retained as consultant and Walther Buchen Jr. continues as account executive to have headed his officers except Mr. Caro, who joined in 1952, have been with the agency over 22 years. Buchen handles Chicago Title & Trust Co., Masonite Corp. and Wood Conversion Co. accounts, all of which have been active in network or local TV.

Jaffe Forms Firm to Monitor Tv Commercials for Advertisers

The formation of National Television Monitor Corp., New York, which offers to monitor TV commercials for advertising agencies and clients was announced last week by Ken Jaffe, president. The company is at 541 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. Telephone is Plaza 3-3815.

Mr. Jaffe claims his firm can provide "tear sheets" for TV advertisers and agencies, providing them with proof of "satisfaction performance." NTMC charges $3 for each report on a commercial and covers an exact timing of the length, a description of the commercial and a summary of other points a client might want to know. In the TV monitoring service, he reported, is available in 72 TV markets and is expected to expand to 150 markets.

Mr. Jaffe said his method of operation is unique in that the monitoring is performed by disabled persons throughout the country. He has more than 200 of these "home-bound" individuals, whom he describes as "high-caliber and intelligent," on call. Mr. Jaffe selected them on the basis of recommendations from welfare organizations.

It was his background as advertising manager of the Chunky Chocolate Co., Brooklyn, that prompted him to start his service. Mr. Jaffe said it was his feeling then, he added, that some stations might cut a 60-second commercial short; a live performer might not present the commercial as instructed; a filmed commercial might be reeled in reverse; an outdated commercial might be used in new commercial dates; wrong store tags, wrong dealer lists, wrong members might be telecast. Mr. Jaffe said he realized there was a need for an organization that could prove "satisfactory performance" for an advertiser. He resigned from Chunky Chocolate last October to form National Television Monitor Corp. For the past three months, Mr. Jaffe has been building his organization and telling his story personally to TV advertisers and television agencies.

Some of the clients for whom NTMC has worked, he said, are Ballantine Beer, Chunky Chocolate, Hicks & Greist, Philip Morris Ltd., American Character Doll Co. and Serutan.

PROFESSOR BLASTS TV'S 'MEDICAL' ADS

A professor of pharmacology at Rutgers U. spoke on WATV (TV) Newark last week on what he called "distorted" medical advertising on TV. He charged that a few claims are so twisted they might be labeled "outright lies." He also accused advertisers of "all-out encouragement to the public to take the shortest cut to health care, to take the quick way to the doctor's office instead of taking care of themselves." He warned that "to watch TV is to risk the danger of becoming ill or the chance of detecting an ailment early if you watch TV.

The doctor said he finds "the message of TV...is that you can be treated...without ever seeing a doctor or going to a hospital...unless you are lying down in a hospital bed." Professor Rodman apparently lectured on what he considered the danger of believing certain TV medical ads. To drive home his points, Dr. Rodman presented TV ads for Diners Club, Serutan, etc., which he noted, were a "not-too-subtle gimmick" to lead the public into thinking they see a doctor instead of an actor.

He charged "many medicines advertised on TV do not allow a person to treat his ills on the basis of correct information. Instead, they present distortions." Among others, he criticized products "which claim to relieve acid stomach or 'tired blood' and which 'may lull a seriously sick person into a false sense of security and delay his going to a doctor. This may prevent early diagnosis of ulcers, cancer, tuberculosis and other ailments which, if treated properly, can be cured."

Neither Pharmaceuticals Inc. nor its agency, Parkson Adv., New York, would comment officially on the charges concerning "tired blood" ad claims. Pharmaceuticals' Geritol uses such a term in its TV copy. Agency President Ted Bergmann pointed out all Geritol ads, immediately after describing symptoms of iron deficiency, anemia or "tired blood," to the viewer to "see a doctor if the condition persists.

A Rutgers U. public information officer last week saluted Irving J. Rosenhaus, president of Bremer Broadcasting Co., owner-operator of WATV, for allowing Dr. Rodman's discourses to go on the air uninterrupted. Mr. Rosenhaus, brother of Pharma- cist of the Month, Mr. Ida in its tv commercials; Morris Ltd., American Character Doll Co. and Serutan.

Administration have "clamped down" on the "wild claims of yesteryear," the poor copywriter has only one thing to stress—speed. But even this, Dr. Rodman claimed, is fallacious. "There exists no proof that headaches are gotten rid of any faster by one product than by another. Certainly the consumer is wasting his money if he thinks product X can shorten his pain. It cannot. Furthermore, no one has ever been able to say where and when pain stops and relief begins after swallowing a pill. Standard time for aspirins is 20 to 30 minutes. I do not see an acceleration by use of other medicines," he contended.

- Made known his impressions of the claim by one deodorant manufacturer who advertises the product by showing a woman in a steam cabinet. He observed that the tv spot maintains that the model's brow did not "sweat" because it was covered by the sponsor's anti-perspirant. "Humbug," noted Dr. Rodman. He and his staff spent five years studying the human temperature regulating system and have found no chemical that could stop body perspiration at 104 degrees fahrenheit temperature—the figure cited in the tv ad, he claimed.

"You can find scientific proof for any hypothesis," Dr. Rodman noted at another point. "Science is notorious for its ability to come up with conflicting theories. Just because one scientist or testing bureau reaches one conclusion does not mean that it is 'safe.' Most of these ads go beyond permissible puffery . . . and while they may not be all downright lies, they are worded in such a way as to make them scientifically suspect."

BARTER BOUT Fought IN RTES ARENA

Headley, Ezzes battle issue of television film trading to a draw

An issue with which the television business has had to grapple is the limited but far-reaching practice of bartering film for time. At the Radio & Television Executive Society's timebuying and selling seminar in New York Tuesday, agency and broadcast executives discussed the pros and cons of barter in a debate on the topic: "Is Film Barter Harmful to the Television Industry?"

Speakers were Frank M. Headley, president of Station Representatives Assn. and of the station representative firm, H-R Television Inc., and Erwin H. Ezzes, vice president and general manager of C & C Television Corp. Mr. Headley maintains that the barter concept has a depressive effect on the television business. Mr. Ezzes takes the opposite tack. The debate, including opening remarks, rebuttals and questions and answers, is reprinted in condensed form.

BARTER: A SECOND-RATE PRODUCT WITH AN EXPENSIVE PRICE TAG

The fatal flaw inherent in barter is simply this: Good time and good programming will always be sold for cash, dictated by the law of supply and demand.

This same flaw has been expressed by Edward D. Madden, former vice president of International Latex. Mr. Madden, who, along with Matty Fox is an outstanding expert on barter, expressed the belief that, except on a limited scale, the barter deal has seen its day. "You've got to have a good product," he said.

It is obvious that a good station in a large market will not barter away its valuable air time for second-rate product.

A large part of the hubbub is traceable to Matty Fox's biggest barter deal—the trading of the entire RKO Pictures library in return for spots sold to International Latex. However, it remains one of the only successful national film barter deals. The reason is twofold: the RKO-Latex transaction is the only barter deal which involved prime, first-run film.

Many top-billing advertising agencies have made careful investigations of barter. Most backed off when they were unable to obtain sufficient information concerning proposed stations and times, or the promissory nature of the list or schedule.

Let's take a look at some of these aborted deals:

1. A proposed 116 market barter deal involving Exquisite Form Brasriere and National Telefilm Associates broke down when NTA failed to deliver enough of the required network-affiliate stations within a prescribed time limit. NTA has since vehemently renounced barter.

2. Hazel Bishop was claimed to have "closed" a $7 million, five-year spot deal with Matty Fox. It never got off the ground.

3. It was reported that McCann-Erickson readied a test of barter time for Rival Dog Food in one of the ten major markets. This deal did not materialize.

4. It was reported that Procter & Gamble bought barter spots from MCA-TV on behalf of Spic 'n Span. If there were negotiations, they never reached the sit-down stage.

5. Last May it was intimated that Lever Bros., Pepsodent was planning a $50,000 summer barter experiment. If Pepsodent ever considered barter, the idea has long since fizzled.

6. Even a barter transaction as heavily publicized and apparently successful as Matty Fox's old nationwide MPTV deal may have a sequel. C & C Super bought much of the time involved but not all. Erwin, would you tell us why, after three years, quantities of this time are still unsold? Barter is highly similar to time brokerage, and, as such, a throwback to the confused, uncoordinated system which prevailed in radio during the late 1920s and early 1930s before the establishment of exclusive national representation.

In those days, most national advertising contracts were negotiated by time brokers. Now enter a new generation of time brokers—the barter boys hawking their wares in the language of discount merchants. Let's examine film barter from both the advertiser's and station's viewpoint:

(1) The appeal to advertisers is couched in terms of a cut rate price.

No matter how apparently advantageous a buy is, unless it is able to fulfill the purpose for which it was purchased—in this case effective advertising impressions for the advertiser—it may be of little value. Since a barter schedule consists of time currently unsold, it is probably composed of the least valuable or so-called fringe time of each station.

Barter time is by nature run-of-station. Although a few token spots in each deal may be Class A or B, most bob randomly like corks in a hurricane sea. Not all spots within a time period have equal actual value, since certain adjacencies may have higher ratings than others. If a schedule is purchased for cash by an experienced timebuyer, he will make sure the spots are the highest rated which current availabilities permit. But you can bet barter spots will be clustered around the lowest rated adjacencies in any time classification.

In terms of rating points, audience composition and even audience impressions per dollar, barter may turn out to be very, very expensive. On the other hand, a timebuyer in a cash transaction will never make a purchase unless it is a good value.

(2) Barter operators speak blithely of the savings resulting from eliminating agency and rep commissions. But they fail to point out that other middlemen step up and take their cut.

(3) Barter deals are blind buys. Barterers talk mainly in terms of tonnage and percentage discounts below card rate, and very little about specific station clearances.

(4) Flexibility, one of the greatest assets of the spot medium, becomes almost nonexistent in barter. There's no cancellation clause in barter contracts. The film vendors must make at least a 52-week commitment with the stations. The advertiser in turn is tied down for upward of a year. The reverse is also true in this arrangement. There are no renewal options in barter deals.

(5) Barter advertisers are tied down to an R O S schedule, and therefore their time is on a pre-emptible basis. This means a card rate advertiser can automatically take over any choice adjacency occupied by a barter client.

(6) Once a schedule has been bought, there are make-goods to arrange, affidavits of performance to process and many other details. On a card rate schedule, these numerous services are provided by the station rep and the agency. Who will provide these necessary services for the barter advertiser?

Now, let's look at barter from the station's viewpoint:

(1) Barter arrangements grant preferential rates to participating advertisers not available to others. This is a violation of the standard 4A contract. Barter involves under-the-counter rate cutting.

(2) The station which participates in barter trades away, at discount rates, its only commodity—highly precious air time—which it may be able to sell for cash and profit.

(3) Barter deals enable film vendors to undercut the station's own salesmen in the sale of its own time.

(4) Just as bartered time is essentially time the station has been unable to sell, bartered film, with some notable exceptions as the RKO library, is film which no longer can be sold.

Barter, which even in its heyday never consisted of more than a handful of well publicized deals, has slipped badly in the past few months.

BARTER: A PRODUCTIVE ASSET FOR STATION AND ADVERTISER

I intend to sell you on an appreciation of program barter arrangements which pay off for the stations.

Program barter as a selling concept started back in the early 50's. We started it just after FCC lifted the freeze. Hundreds of new stations were coming on the air. Some had tremendous dollar budgets intended for programming which was consumed in application contests, in transmitter buys and building and other costs. Although the station's dollar budget was consumed, stations still needed programming.

When a station throws the switch on a transmitter at night, the time they haven't sold that day has no revenue producing value for a station whatsoever. Some stations even then were sold out in prime time, but there were very few of these. We had to overcome a bug-a-boo, the then widespread misconception of what the FCC meant by time brokerage. We sought Commission approval and the FCC ruled that the barter exchange of film for television spot time was not a violation.

So, with a thousand feature films, we brought programming to stations who could not otherwise afford it, and as the word got around the industry, the bandwagon got pretty full.

Now with the release of the RKO pictures in 1956, this touched off a new trend. We had a virgin library of first run, major company products, a programming source that was much desired but hitherto unavailable to stations. At that time it was one of the most sizable business risks to take programming as important and as costly as this, and release it on program barter type of distribution. We did so thanks to the vision and courage of Matty Fox and A. M. Panell of the International Latex Corp.

How do we work with the Latex company? We licensed the RKO feature films through the station, in exchange for ten spots a day, for a three-year period. The station gets these pictures for a ten-year period; we get the spots for three years. The station makes these spots available on a schedule basis, within four daily time periods that span the entire broadcast day. None of these spots fall in prime evening time. Of the ten spots made available, six turn create local, regional, and even national spots. The station has to tender all the spots, they come at fixed positions, but not necessarily fixed in the best time periods.

Does the station like the arrangement? The answer is unequivocally yes. We have closed barter deals with stations reaching 33 million tv homes, and all these stations now carry the Latex spot.

The stations like the deal because their unsold time has been converted into a productive asset which pays for good film programming, that, in turn, is flexible, that, in turn, creates local, regional, and even national sales. By bartering their time for film, their overall programming improves.

Does the advertiser like the deal? Now, understand that 100% of the time which C & C receives is assigned to one advertiser. We don't compete with the sales representation.

We barter RKO films now for tv spots which carry the Latex commercial into stations whose combined coverage reaches 85% of the nation's tv homes. This gross bank of time could be valued at over $50 million at end-card rate. Latex uses this time at the rate of approximately $15 mil lion a year.

Examine the recent budget expenditures of the ten top spot advertisers of the country. The top position is held by a soap company in Cincinnati that you might be familiar with. Their first quarter budget, I read, is $3,726,000. Now, at the rate of $15 million a year, measured in even quarters, Latex expends $3,750,000, which I suppose in the first quarter of 1957 would make them the number one tv spot advertiser.

Latex spots average a 5.7 ARB. One spot on all stations carrying them reaches an average of 3,390,000 viewers. In Cleveland last month, the ARB showed that the ten Latex spots a day, in one week, reached 76.3% of the total tv homes, an average of 5.14 times.

Although you can plead that the run of schedule Latex spot is lower rated than it would be on a fixed position, prime-time basis, the cumulative effect of a saturated exposure does reach a huge audience.

You can't keep a client happy, as you know, unless sales have increased. Latex sales have increased five times more in tv markets than in non-tv markets. Their girdle sales alone, none of which barter arrangements, increased from 100-130% in tv markets and only 5-25% in non-tv markets. In the 1957 annual report of the Stanley Warner Corp., the Latex parent company, the per share earnings was $1.82 against 1956's per share earnings of $1.47, which for the parent company was a 24% increase in net earnings.

The C & C-International Latex arrangement enables the station to turn a wasting asset into a productive asset and provides it with an inventory of important programming, which in turn generates sales income and frees dollars to improve the station's overall inventory of programming. It is good for the advertiser because his sales have increased.

Mr. Headley: In rebuttal I would like to remind you that the subject of this debate is whether or not film barter is harmful to the tv industry, not whether the RKO-International Latex deal is harmful to the tv industry. I told you in my major argument that I thought the RKO-Latex barter deal was the only one that has ever used first-run film, and, therefore, in my opinion, was a good barter. A few facts that I would like to mention.

During the radio-tv workshop session at the Assn. of National Advertisers' annual meeting, participants were asked if anyone was using tv on barter. Nobody was.

The association subsequently polled its members and announced that only 16 of its 234 members have ever used barter. Of the 16, only nine consider their experience satisfactory. Only four of the nine are still using it.

With the exception of the numerous leading stations which participated in the RKO-Latex deal, it is mostly marginal stations which barter time for film. The top-ranking stations in a market, with limited availability, are not likely to exchange valuable air time for film. Generally, only stations in markets outside of the top 50 or 75 are most amenable to barter; or the weaker independents in a multi-station market, or the uhf in a vhf area.

Erwin mentioned something about FCC approval on the RKO-International Latex deal. This I believe: Many film barter deals are either outright brokerage arrangements or very close to them. Barter film deals are an invitation to greater regulation, and may lead to restrictive consequences in other areas as well.

Some sponsors like to change programs every 13 weeks. Others will keep a program on for a full year and perhaps run it through the first reruns. But the contract signed by J. Walter Thompson Co., Los Angeles, with George Bagnall & Assoc. made news because it called for the Boyle-Midway Div. of American Home Products Co. to sponsor the fourth rerun of I Search for Adventure in the same way as actual market runs and on the same stations that carried the 52-week series for its first, second and third runs for the same sponsor in the past three years. Latest reruns start Feb. 1 on KERO-TV Bakersfield, KJEO-TV Fresno, KCRA-TV Sacramento, KCOP (TV) Los Angeles, KPIX (TV) San Francisco, all California; KOOL-TV Phoenix, Ariz.; KSL-TV Salt Lake City, Utah; KOIN-TV Portland, Ore.; KING-TV Seattle and KXXL-TV Spokane, both Washington.

Some barter deals tie up a station's time as long as five years, constituting a lien on station time which the FCC may interpret as loss of program control.

Stations which barter extensively may be placed in an unfavorable cash position, and may lack current means of providing advertising services with added services, such as merchandising.

International Latex supposedly made the best barter deal of all time. Why, then, has it recently queried reps on availability?

One of the top agencies in radio-tv billing made a thorough study of barter. Part of its conclusions were that barter deals or any method of obtaining tv time at off-the-card rates should be approached with great caution. If it is important to an advertiser to be in tv, the barter method is not the way to do it, for the reason that the more important stations in each market no longer are desperate for film or for cash. This restricts a barter advertiser to low grade tv stations.

McCann-Erickson intensively researched barter last spring. A spokesman for McCann said: "The companies who have negotiated successful barter deals seem to have fallen into the category of being less than desirable television clients, and therefore were satisfied to advertise on the less desirable stations in the market. Such clients in all cases had no previous television history. From a media standpoint, we are dealing in what would otherwise remain unsalable time. It is highly unlikely that any media schedule would include the spots which would be included on a barter deal."

I will not substantiate my position by breaking down an actual barter deal and revealing the markets where stations were willing to barter and where the advertiser had to shell out the green stuff. The total schedule ran in better than 100 markets, of which almost half were barter arrangements. This doesn't sound like a bad ratio, does it? But let's look into it further... In markets 101 to 200, there were 37 barter deals and only 15 cash deals. It still sounds pretty good! Now let's go into the top 100 markets. Here, out of a total of 60 markets carrying the schedule, only 14 were obtained from barter, and the other 46 received cash. Now let's get down to basic markets where all advertising campaigns begin, and where so many are reaching the end—the top 25. Out of these vital markets, 20 were bought, but only three on a barter basis, in each instance the barterer was the lowest rated station in its market. Of the top 75 markets, 46 were purchased, but only 10 bartered.

On a coverage basis, the indictment of barter as an effective means of reaching a mass market becomes even more devastating. Although the campaign went into well over a hundred markets, less than 25% of the nation's tv homes were reached via barter! It all seems hardly worthwhile.

Mr. Ezzes: Frank is in agreement with us essentially. He's arrived on the periphery of the lessons we have learned from the day we started to go into barter. There are fundamentals, I think, to be considered. From the point of view of a sales manager, I find it easier to barter good products, to barter first front products, and to get an advertiser the kind of time that will move an advertiser's product.

From the point of view of an advertiser, if a barterer bartering any kind of film can secure enough coverage both on a specific station and on a group of stations, he can provide an advertiser with the kind of exposure that the advertiser can find useful. It is easier to barter with a first-run product. We learned that when we started back in '52 and '53.

A floor discussion after the debate developed these questions and answers:

Q: Mr. Headley, on what do you base your statement that only RKO film barter is based on first-run film?

A: Well I'll answer that very fast. It is the only one that I am familiar with that has used first-run film successfully.

Mr. Headley, there is a second part to the question: Don't you have a problem to make good the ratings on cash buys?

A: Indeed we do, but in connection with barter deals, I ask you, who is going to handle that for the agency and the advertiser?

Mr. Headley, do you honestly feel that a large advertising agency will recommend barter to its clients, knowing that in most cases barter will outpull cash buys?

A: Seems like a loaded question. The study that I have completed in connection with this subject would indicate to me that those large agencies that have investigated barter have come to the conclusion that they are not in a position to recommend it to any of their good clients.

Mr. Ezzes, of the stations delivering time to C&C, how many of the top 100 markets delivering time are independent stations?

A: Very few, I would say about three or four actually. The aim of our arrangement is to barter our time with network affiliates.

Mr. Ezzes, have you measured, or can you estimate the percentage of the 33 million homes covered by stations carrying the International Latex deal who have actually seen the commercial? In other words, what is the net audience in a one- or four-week period?

A: I can't really answer that accurately. I don't get into those figures. I get most of them from International Latex. I don't know what the specific market coverage would be other than an average. I know that if you accumulate, if you take the per spot rating accumulatively, you hit a figure at the end of a week, that in the case of Cleveland was about 700. As to what it is on specific markets, it varies according to the time placement.

New officers also were elected, with Fran Faber, head of his own Minneapolis agency, becoming president; Gladys Lamb, Kelly-Lamb Adv., Columbus, re-named vice president-treasurer; Ken Warren, Warren & Litzengerber, Davenport, Iowa, vice president, and James Taylor, head of the agency bearing his name in Ottumwa, Iowa, secretary. The two-day convention was held at the Bismarck Hotel.

The name change was dictated by the expansion of Midwestern beyond present regional boundaries, according to Allan J. Copeland, head of his own Chicago agency. New members include Brooks Adv. Thomas Co. Sold on Tv; Desired: Creative Sell

Wanted: "Creative selling and techniques" by tv stations and "one tv success story for our product."

This was the challenge to telecasters offered by Larry Smith, advertising director of the Thomas Organ Co., during an interview in New York last week. The company held a showing there of its new electronic organ model that has a self-contained hi-fi system.

Thomas Organ—a subsidiary of Pacific Mercury Corp., Sepulveda, Calif., which with plants at Sepulveda and Hoplin, Mo., supplies Sears, Roebuck & Co. with tv receivers for all its stores in 11 western states and subcontract both government and civilian electronic work—claims second place in electronic organ manufacture and sales, though in business less than two years.

According to Mr. Smith, Thomas has been in tv (spot) during the past two years—but not to the extent it would like.

Will Thomas organ pump a sweeter tune—and more money—into television? From Mr. Smith's viewpoint:

* The company "expects to be a sponsor of a network tv show next fall" with one hitch: "We need a musical show that can integrate the demonstration of our organ in the commercials and in the program itself. The programmer must be 'sold' on the Thomas concept and on the product." He explained the company at one time had considered sponsorship of the Nat King Cole Show on NBC-TV (now defunct). "But we were not sure we could meet production and distribution demands" at that time.

* "We are ready to push television, if we can get a tv success story for our product. And the company is prepared to encourage its 1,100 dealers throughout the U.S. to use local co-op in tv (partly financed by national advertising funds) appreciably where stations creatively sell. Every one of our distributors and dealers could be sold on tv if creative techniques were used by the tv medium."

Thomas Organ is "sold" on tv. "Our product, we find, has customers in all income brackets and in all walks of life—no one group has a special claim on the market. We must reach the most people possible, visually and with demonstration. Tv is a mass medium that can do it."

At the present, about two-thirds of Thomas Organ's $1 million advertising budget goes into co-op advertising by dealers and distributors. In the calendar years 1956 and 1957, the company placed an estimated $150,000-200,000 per year in spot tv—personality shows—in Los Angeles, New York, Atlanta, Miami and Philadelphia plus some 20 other markets. This spring, the company once more will move into spot markets but this time will "experiment" on a market-by-market basis with current sights on about 20 markets. It's agency is Foote, Cone & Belding, Los Angeles.

Out-of-Home Radio Listening Adds 25.7% in 1957—Pulse

Out-of-home radio listening "continued at a record level" during the past summer, adding 25.7% to radio's in-home audience, Dr. Sydney Roslow, director of The Pulse Inc., announced last week.

He said the 25.7% figure compared with 24.9% in the summer of 1956.

The figures are based on out-of-home studies in 26 major markets. The summary showed that during the average quarter-hour between 6 a.m. and 12 midnight, 4.5% of all the homes surveyed reported listening in cars, at work or in other away-from-home places. Authorities said this compared with 4.6% in summer 1956.

Pulse said 14 of the 26 markets showed higher levels of out-of-home listening during the past summer than in the preceding one. The biggest gain was in Dallas, where 5.5% of the homes reported out-of-home listening during the average quarter-hour, as against 4.7% in the 1956 summer. Dallas' 5.5% level also was higher than in any of the other markets. Fort Worth was second with 5.3%.

Other cities registering higher out-of-home levels in the summer of 1957 than that of 1956 were Atlanta, Detroit, Kansas City, Miami, Milwaukee, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Richmond, Va., St. Louis, San Diego, Seattle and Washington.

In some markets the out-of-home level was unchanged in 1957 from 1956. These included Birmingham, Chicago, Cincinnati, New Orleans. Other markets in the survey: Boston, Buffalo, Columbus, Houston, Los Angeles, New York, San Francisco. Among the individual markets, the percentage added to the in-home audience by out-of-home listening ranged from 22.2% in Los Angeles to 28.5% in Dallas. Pulse said the 26 markets contained 17,842,200 radio families.

Co-Sponsors At Bat
For Dodger Coverage

Pabst Brewing Co., Los Angeles, and American Tobacco Co., New York, will co-sponsor radio coverage of all games played in 1958 by the Los Angeles Dodgers. This includes the pre-season and regular schedule, at home and away.

Pabst, for its Eastside Old Tap Lager beer, will cover nine southern California counties and possibly Las Vegas. The American Tobacco Co. buy is for Los Angeles only. The specific American Tobacco product for promotion on Dodger coverage has not been set and will not be named for another month, according to the tobacco firm.

Agency for Pabst is Young & Rubicam, Los Angeles; for American Tobacco, BBDO, New York.

The Pabst announcement was made jointly Jan. 19 by Walter O'Malley, president of the baseball club, and Robert Shlaudeman, vice president of the brewery. Mr. O'Malley confirmed a previous announcement that there would be no free tv coverage of his team's first season in Los Angeles. He expressed disappointment at difficulties encountered by the toll tv organizations in attempting to go into operation in Los Angeles, but said that unless the games can be telecast on a fee basis there will be no television for his team this year.

"Subscription television should be just the thing for sports," he said, noting that free tv has cut down gate receipts without adding enough revenue to compensate. "Last August, we were playing Milwaukee for the leadership of the National League and there were 9,000 people in the park. The tv audience for that game was estimated at 3 million.

"Our total revenue from admissions and radio and television rights last year was less than we got from admissions and radio rights before we started to let our games be telecast, about 12 years ago," he declared. "And it's not as if we didn't have a good team, either."

Commenting that he had no fight with free tv except where it cut into the earnings of his team, Mr. O'Malley said he had received an offer for tv rights for the 1958 season that would have been interesting if the games were to be played at Wrigley Field, with a seating capacity of 19,000. "We'd fill that regardless of tv," he stated. "But the Coliseum, with 100,000 seats, is going to be hard enough to fill without letting people watch the games at home."

Counties to be covered by the Dodgers radio broadcasts are Los Angeles, Riverside, San Bernardino, Ventura, Santa Barbara, Kern, San Luis Obispo, Orange and Imperial, all California. Stations have not been selected.

No sportscaster has been named to report the play-by-play, but Vince Scully, Jerry Doggett and Al Helfer, all under contract to the Dodgers, have been mentioned as likely choices for the assignment.

Whirlpool Allots Sizable Chunk of 1958 Ad Budget to Radio-Tv

Whirlpool Corp. last week sliced its 1958 $21 million advertising melon for RCA Whirlpool products, with broadcast media getting a substantial piece.

Jack D. Sparks, Whirlpool marketing director, reported 18% would be allocated for network tv and 30% divided between local (spot) radio, television and newspapers. Another 35% has been set aside for special promotions, of which a portion, it was believed, would go into broadcast media. Another 17% has been set aside for national magazines. Agency is Kenyon & Eckhardt Inc., Chicago.

Whirlpool currently alternates sponsorship of the Eddie Fisher and George Gobel series, plus participations on the Perry Como Show, both on NBC-TV. The new advertising-promotion program will cover Whirlpool's full line of laundry, range, refrigeration, air-conditioner and vacuum cleaner equipment, plus complete kitchens and accessories.

Contest Features Presentations Of 'Crowns Stations' to Agencies

The "Crown Stations" of the Northwest—KING-AM-TV Seattle, KGW-AM-TV Portland, and newly added KREM-AM-TV Spokane—staged a series of presentations for agency people in New York last week, then topped it off with a treasure hunt which featured a $1,800 Ampex stereophonic sound tape recorder as first prize.

Walter Teitz, Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample, won the first prize and the other members of his team won Vespa motor scooters. They were Marian Jackson, Foote, Cone & Belding; Dick Boege, D-F-S; Bette White, Young & Rubicam, and Hubert R. Sweet, Atherton & Currier.

Other prizes were 15 RCA hi-fi consoles, five Lasle ski sweaters, 150 boxes of Oregon pears and 150 boxes of Washington apples. A vacation trip for two to the Pacific Northwest, the door prize, was won by Sidney B. Silleck Jr., Kenyon & Eckhardt.

In all, nearly 300 buyers and other agency people took part in the treasure hunt, held Thursday night. To be eligible they were required to attend one of the various presentations put on by the stations at luncheons held Monday through Thursday or at breakfasts Tuesday through Thursday.

Mrs. A. Scott Bullitt, president and principal owner of the stations, headed the "Crown" delegation. Others included Otto Brandt, vice president and general manager of KING-AM-TV; Walter Wagstaff, manager of KGW-AM-TV; Robert Temple, manager of KREM-AM-TV, and Gloria Chandler, public service director for all Crown Stations.

KREM-AM-TV's addition to the Crown group was cleared last Monday, effective date of FCC approval of the purchase of the stations by King Broadcasting Co., licensee of KING-AM-TV.

Allison Merges With BDA

Burke Dowling Adams Inc., New York and Atlanta, and J. Howard Allison & Co., Atlanta, have announced consolidation, effective Feb. 1. Allison & Co. will become Adams Allison Co., a division of Burke Dowling Adams Inc., and will be relocated in BDA's Atlanta office at 992 W. Peachtree St., N. W.

Pellegrin to Address Chicagoleans

Frank E. Pellegrin, partner and vice president of H-R Representatives Inc. and H-R Television Inc., has been scheduled to address the Broadcast Adv. Club of Chicago Jan. 30. He will talk on "What Do Agencies Really Want to Know About Stations?" at the club's regular monthly luncheon meeting at the Sheraton Hotel.

The first faint sounds of Sputnik as it soared through space were heard on NBC. This was one of the year's most important news breaks. More than that, it was dramatic evidence of the spirit which characterizes NBC News today.

At a time when headlines have a special urgency for America, NBC News is providing minute-by-minute coverage of world events unmatched in broadcast journalism for speed, alertness, comprehensiveness and mature interpretation.
This has been evident all through the past months of crisis. For its resourcefulness at Little Rock, Variety called NBC News "a heads-up, hustling, news-digging operation."

Just recently NBC received astonishing evidence of the role it is playing in informing America. During an interview with Nelson Rockefeller on TODAY, Dave Garroway offered a copy of the Rockefeller Study to anyone who would send for it. Following this single announcement more than 200,000 requests for the study were received by NBC.

Official recognition came when the annual Sylvania Award for outstanding network news was given to the National Broadcasting Company "because it has taken a big step in 1957 in doing more things and greater things with news."

Three JWT Executives Promoted to New Posts

New top-level executive appointments in J. Walter Thompson Co.'s media department in New York were confirmed Thursday, although a formal announcement had not been made.

Arthur P. Porter, vice president and director of media, will have expanded duties to include specific accounts (he already has been assigned to Chesapeake-Pond's); Richard P. Jones, associate media director, has been named manager of the media department, and Ruth Jones, broadcast and station relations supervisor, takes on the additional post of associate media director.

Mr. Porter has been at JWT since December 1954, when he joined as a vice president and director of media. For nine years before that he was with Leo Burnett, Chicago, in subsequent capacities of director of research, account executive and vice president in charge of media. Before his agency association, Mr. Porter was managing director of the Gallup Poll of Canada and had been a contact man for a publishers' company.

Mr. Jones was a media buyer at D'Arcy Adv., St. Louis, and at Leo Burnett (starting in 1949). At Burnett he moved up to account executive and in 1954 returned to media as a group supervisor. He joined JWT in 1955 as an associate media director. First agency post for Miss Jones was as an assistant timebuyer with Benton & Bowles (1945-52), leaving B&B as supervisor on Procter & Gamble broadcast advertising. She then served for three years with Compton Adv. as station relations supervisor and head timebuyer on P&G. She left Compton in November 1955 to become head timebuyer at JWT, and was named later as the agency's broadcast and station relations supervisor.

Hertz to Up Radio-Tv Spending

A "goodly portion" of Hertz Corp.'s substantially-boosted advertising budget for 1958—up 63% from $2.6 million to $4.25 million—will be allocated to broadcast media on behalf of the company's rent-a-car system, it was announced last week.

The new budget heralds the firm's entrance into radio and tv on a scale "not heretofore extensively employed," according to Walter L. Jacobs, president.

The exact amount to be spent in broadcast media was not revealed but was understood to be substantial. Campbell-Ewald Co. is the Hertz agency.

Radio-Tv Score High In Talks to Retailers

Radio and tv emerged with high honors at a how-to-do-it seminar for retailers who normally lean by tradition toward newspapers—at the sixth annual Retail Advertising Conference in Chicago's Palmer House Jan. 18-19.

Perhaps the best endorsement came from Russell Carr, sales promotion manager of Kobacker Stores Inc., Toledo, Ohio. His report on media results from a special "giveaway" event showed how radio and tv both outshowed newspapers.

Walter Schwimmer, president of the film syndication-distribution firm bearing his name and Radio Features Inc., suggested syndicated film shows and successful radio packages as the best buys for local retailers, particularly large stores or retail chains.

Leading retail representatives addressed the two-day meeting, conducted by co-founders Bud Gore, retail advertising manager of the Chicago Daily News, and Ralph Heineman, Ralph Heineman Inc. About 150 retailing media, agencies, and other representatives attended the sessions. Among other key speakers was Edward H. Weiss, head of the advertising agency bearing his name.

Mr. Carr cited a recent event at Kobacker's during which the store gave away a Mercury automobile, utilizing all media for the special promotion. Waging aside frequency use and other factors, Mr. Carr cited media results, tabulating 48% of the actual registration for the "giveaway" in what he described as a "fair sampling." The results:

For newspapers—A return of 35% for 87% of the budget.

Radio—A 5.4% return for 1.3% of the budget.

Television—14.6% for 4.1% spent.

Direct Mail—13.8% for a cost of 7.6%. (The results were 31.2% registrations for no-cost items—windows, signs, etc.)

Broadcast media, he noted, contributed ratios of about four to one for every budget dollar spent on radio, tv, and newspaper advertising as compared to about one to three for newspapers.

"On a promotion of this type in the future," Mr. Carr asserted, "more money will be spent on the high-result media . . . radio, tv and direct mail . . . less will be spent on newspapers." He added, "This survey played an important part in determining, line by line, just where we would spend our money to promote the store for the fall."

Mr. Schwimmer suggested that, while tv may be highly expensive for the average retailer, the large department store or retail chain "can handle television and work it successfully into his advertising schedule." He noted tv for the average retailer is "gen-

CAR SALESMAN

A schedule of three tv spots per day, Monday through Friday—6:30 p.m., 8:30 p.m. and 10:30 p.m.—in the top 100 markets will reach 28,257,000 tv homes (72% of all tv homes) and 10,430,000 new-car-owning homes (70% of all new-car-owning homes), Halsey V. Barrett, director of national sales, Television Bureau of Advertising, told the National Automobile Dealers Assn. convention in Miami. Each of these homes, Mr. Barrett claimed, would receive four sales calls per week—a total of 115,854,000 sales calls within five days to 7 out of every 10 tv homes and 41,720,000 sales calls on those new-car-owning homes. Using IDs he said, these sales calls can be made "for less than a dollar per thousand."

The large retailer's best buy in television, Mr. Schwimmer suggested, is a "good national syndicated show, something that is of proven merit—rather than building his own program, which is fraught with peril." Reasonable and "people still listen to radio—not as much as they used to, but during the daytime hours, particularly; millions of women are faithful to the better programs on the better radio stations." Mr. Schwimmer described results obtained by advertisers from his Tello-Toest, which his company syndicates nationally, as one of the more successful program packages.

In Chicago, Mr. Schwimmer reported, National Food Stores took on S & H green stamps to help increase their business and also bought the Tello-Toest series for use as a five-minute program, seven times daily. "As a result of this double-barreled campaign," he claimed, "they reported that, as of two months, their sales had been increased very substantially."

Radio can be used profitably for local retail advertisers, he explained, if (1) the program cost is reasonable; (2) it gets heavy listenership; (3) it brings in store traffic, and (4) it results in sales increases.

Mr. Weiss complained that so-called motivational research is lost on "many top advertising men" and cited the case of a sales vice president for a $300 million-a-year firm and marketing expert who acknowledged he knew nothing about the subject at all. "MR" has not yet been applied to the retail store field, Mr. Weiss observed, but he described it as a "potential field" for it.

In 10 years the people behind the screen who make TV tick have done quite a job. Today, there are more than 100 million televiewers and 40 million TV sets—and the number of both is going up.

Acceptance of the “fabulous infant” has been nationally contagious—and nothing is more indicative of TV's impact than the ascendancy of TV GUIDE.

Although only half as old as the medium it mirrors, America's Television Magazine has become the byword (often the last word) in the TV home. By capturing in print the excitement of TV's people and programs it has become the authoritative voice of television for more than 14 million viewers.

It now receives one of the rarest tributes a magazine can earn: 6,000,000 weekly circulation.

Its circulation performance is unequalled in publishing: five consecutive million-or-more per year gains.

TV GUIDE's outlook—like that of TV—is bright; it is clear both have a look America likes.

NEW MEETING PROCEDURES

PUT UP TO JOINT BOARD

A plan to overhaul NAB's convention and regional meeting procedure starting in 1959 was submitted to the association's Joint Board of Directors at its meeting last week in Phoenix, Ariz. (see page 9).

This "radical revision" of the association's meeting format was offered by a special committee which conducted a study of the problem. The group investigated numerous complaints that the abundance of industry meetings imposes a severe drain on the time of management and staff personnel. It also looked into details of programming, coming up with these changes:

- The Management Conference will be limited to ownership and management delegates.
- The Engineering Conference will precede the management session.
- Exhibits will be confined to the engineering meeting and will be limited to heavy equipment.
- Autumn regional meetings will be programmed to meet the needs of department heads in such areas as sales, programming, news and promotion.
- Light equipment and services (film, transcription, syndicates) will exhibit at the eight regional meetings instead of at the annual convention.

These changes, it was felt, would meet complaints that annual industry meetings are too cumbersome, having a gross attendance of 4,500. The limit on attendance would cut this figure to about 1,000, the committee said, and save both staff time and heavy travel expense.

NAB's convention committee in charge of detailed planning for the 1958 convention in Los Angeles, April 27-May 1, meets today (Monday) at the Biltmore Hotel, that city, to review programming and arrangements for the concurrent Broadcast and Engineering Conferences. Both the Biltmore and Statler Hotels will be utilized for the meetings and exhibits. The plan to revamp the whole convention setup does not apply to the 1958 convention and regional sessions.

Southern California Broadcasters Assn. will take part in today's committee meeting to report on convention social features.

The special committee on future conventions, named last spring, includes John E. Fetzer, WKZO-TV Kalamazoo, and Merrill Lindsay, WSOY Decatur, Ill., representative TV and radio chairmen; W. D. Rogers, KDUB-TV Lubbock, Tex., and J. Frank Jarman, WDNC Durham, N. C., respective board vice chairmen; Alex Keese, WFAA Dallas; C. Howard Lane, KOIN-TV Portland, Ore.; Robert T. Mason, WMRN Marion, Ohio, and James D. Russell, KTVT (TV) Colorado Springs, Colo.

Messrs. Rogers and Jarman are co-chairmen of the 1958 convention arrangements committee. Other members include Messrs. Fetzer, Lindsay, Lane and Russell, Thomas C. Bostic, KIMA Yakima, Wash.; William C. Grove, KFBC Cheyenne, Wyo.; Robert O. Reynolds, KMPC Hollywood, and Harold P. See, KRON-TV San Francisco.

NAB's Circulation Audit

KILLED BY TV BOARD VOTE

NAB's five-year development of an industry-wide tv circulation audit perished last week in the Phoenix, Ariz., meeting room of the association's TV Board.

This elaborate project, designed to show television's circulation and coverage on a nationwide basis, was the victim of a membership survey that showed strong objection to an industry-wide operation.

The nonprofit project, somewhat resembling the old Broadcast Measurement Bureau idea, would have covered every county in the U. S. It had an estimated first-year budget of about $1 million.

The years and dollars devoted to the study will not be entirely wasted, the TV Board indicated Thursday announcing it would make available to member stations and networks its new technique for measurement of tv average-day and average-week circulation on a county-by-county basis.

Campbell Arnoux, WTAR-TV Norfolk, Va., chairman of a special circulation study committee and one of the original sponsors of the audit idea, told the board "the basic research job accomplished can be of real value to the industry and to individual members." His committee submitted a negative report on the industry-wide project.

NAB will issue a detailed description of research specifications and surveying techniques developed during the years of planning, programming and arranging during the years of planning. This will be prepared by the research subcommittee headed by Hugh M. Beville, NBC vice president, aided by Richard M. Allerton, NAB research manager. The method utilizes a telephone questionnaire technique. It establishes 15 minutes or more of continuous viewing as a unit of circulation.

NAB research into the idea involved development of a special type of meter used on home tv receivers. The meters were used to check the accuracy of the interviewing technique.

First signs of industry opposition to the circulation audit developed last summer during the association's regional meetings, when numerous broadcasters said they didn't like the idea of paying for a survey that would show coverage of stations not contributing to the project. Others felt a survey that didn't mention all call letters wouldn't be of much use to timebuyers.

Research developments at last week's board meeting included a report to the Radio Board on "Radio Audience Measurement." It was prepared by Robert T. Bower, director of the Bureau of Social Science Research, Washington, for the NAB Radio Research Committee. E. K. Hartenbower, KCMO Kansas City, presented the report as committee chairman.

The Bower report reviews basic requirements of radio audience measurement and methods of measuring coverage. It pointed to the need of combining out-of-home data with in-home coverage and the use of individuals as the unit of measurement.

"The person listening to the radio out of the home is acting as an individual," the report said in objecting to the use of the household unit in radio audience research. "Even though he is a member of the household, only he, or a device attached to a radio where he is, can report his behavior. Obviously, any valid out-of-home measurement must collect data concerning the individual who has done the listening. Second reports showing who else was listening cannot be used for this audience. Total radio audience measurement calls for a sample of households in which all members of the household are included."

(I AND OTHER OUTCRIES)

I'm embarrassed. I'm sorry. I'm flooded with enquiries. I'm appealing for help, patience, charitable forbearance, and other tender mercies.

I thought we'd get about half a dozen enquiries about our ad about the Silver Dollar program in the December 23rd issue of Broadcasting. After all, how many people read ads on Christmas Eve, practically.

I couldn't have been wronger if I'd picked the Browns to beat the Lions.

This is a small sample of the flood of responses to the ad. Up to now, I'm just barely keeping my nose above the flood of enquiries, and if the flood gets any higher, they'll have to send helicopters. This would be a terrible disgrace to dry, balmy Georgia.

all I can say is:

1. Thanks for your interest.
2. Please, please be patient, until we can get around to giving you the complete details.

believe me, it's worth waiting for.

Radio Board Maps Campaign For New ASCAP Negotiations

An industry-wide move to study the music copyright problems of radio stations, which will be started May 1 by radio stations, The radio copyright contract with ASCAP expires next Dec. 31, a year later than the just-renewed tv music pact.

Scene of the radio project will be the NAB annual convention in Los Angeles, which starts Sunday, April 27, and winds up the following Thursday, May 1. The plan resembles that of tv stations, which set up an industry-wide move during the 1957 NAB (then NARTB) convention.

The radio plan was announced last Wednesday during the NAB Radio Board meeting in Phoenix, Ariz., by Merrill Lindsay, WSOY-TV Decatur, Ill., radio chairman. He said the board has set aside time for an all-radio industry discussion of music licensing. All radio stations are invited to attend, whether or not they belong to NAB.

The radio group decided to schedule a month-long coast-to-coast radio celebration to succeed last year's National Radio Week. The idea of a full month of events originated last spring in Philadelphia. May was selected for the 1958 celebration. NAB, Electronic Industries Assn., Radio Advertising Bureau and National Appliance & Radio-Tv Dealers Assn. will sponsor the event jointly.

The board heard a Washington legislative report by Vincent T. Warilewski, NAB government relations manager, on proposals to overhaul the copyright law. He listed arguments on behalf of the present copyright notice on all documents and the 28-year copyright term. Douglas A. Anello, NAB chief attorney, reviewed radio legal problems and told of the threat of local advertising tax proposals.

A. Prose Walker, NAB engineering manager, discussed progress of the association's program for remote control of transmitters and automatic logging.

Reports were received by the board from these committee chairmen: finance, Alex Kops, WAVZ New Haven, Conn.; Simon Goldman, WJTN Jamestown, N. Y.; Donald W. Thornburgh, WCAU Philadelphia; Hugh M. Smith, WCOV Montgomery, Ala.; F. C. Sowell, WLAC Nashville, Tenn.; Robert T. Mason, WWSM Marion, Ohio; Edward F. NEW NAB BUDGET

A new NAB budget of $974,000 was submitted last week to the NAB Joint Board of Directors, meeting in Phoenix, Ariz. (see page 60). The figure is $122,000 above the budget for the current fiscal year, which ends March 31.

Net estimated income of $950,000 includes radio (am and fm) station dues of $570,770; tv, $318,000; and sums from networks, associate members, the general fund, and miscellaneous sources. Excess of income over expenses is estimated at $20,000.

The tv fund, separate from the general fund, anticipates net income of $472,000, about $6,000 above the current fiscal year. This is based on dues from 319 stations. Of the tv total, $318,000 was allocated to the NAB general fund.

The budget specifies $125,577 for the NAB Tv Code, about the same as the current sum.

Promotions, Civic Observances Set for Farm Broadcasting Day

Proclamations recognizing Feb. 1 as Farm Broadcasting Day are being issued by governors and mayors in all parts of the nation. Over 1,000 radio and tv stations have received promotion kits prepared by NAB as a salute to the day. Coordinating organizations are NAB, the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture and the National Assn. of TV and Radio Farm Directors.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson saluted farm broadcasters, saying in a recorded statement that "the public, and especially farm people, owe a great debt of gratitude to the farm broadcasting profession. From my own personal experience as a farmer, I know how much farmers depend upon day-to-day broadcasts on market trends and quotations, community meetings, weather forecasts and storm warnings, news of scientific developments . . . and explanations of our national farm program policy. "Farmers now, more than ever, need access to good farm radio and television service. We're in the midst of a technological revolution in agriculture. As a result farmers today need lots of capital and a wide variety of know-how to bring their farms to peak efficiency."

Theme of the observance is "Farm Broadcasting Serves Rural America."

AN EVENING STAR STATION
NAEA RAKES TV OVER THE COALS

- Hits rising costs, 'imbalance' coverage, rating claims
- Calls for research to boost print's competitive costs

Television has had it—particularly network tv. It might just as well cede advertising (and entertainment) supremacy to newspapers now.

Print salesmen, who know a good opportunity when they happen upon it, seized the initiative from Madison Ave. agency buyers last week and mounted their own frontal attack on television costs [Lead Story, Jan. 13].

Members of the Newspaper Adv. Execs. headed an alternately added fuel (and a good deal of fat) to the tv cost controversy and raked the visual medium over the competitive coals at their annual Chicago convention. Delegates met Monday through Wednesday in the Edgewater Beach Hotel.

As advertised, newspaper salesmen, lead by Mr. James Gediman, executive vp of Newspaper Pubns. Assn.'s bureau of advertising, raised several charges, some old, some new and all scathing. Perhaps the newest—and most damaging—was the implication left by a Hearstman—H. James Gediman, executive vice president of Hearst Adv. Service Inc.—that tv's costs are responsible for sapping the profits of the country’s top 100 companies, despite the pattern of rising sales (see story, page 66).

Newspaper speakers, paradoxically, also had a few unkind words about advertisers and their agencies, and did some soul-searching within their own ranks.

Charles T. Lipscomb Jr., president of ANPA’s bureau of advertising, called for stronger research efforts to prove that newspaper space produces more sales per dollar of advertising cost than do other media.

"The one most serious problem in selling national newspaper advertising," he suggested, "is that agencies and national advertisers today believe that newspaper advertising is considerably more expensive than television, radio, magazines or supplements."

On the basis of 1956 figures supplied by Mr. Lipscomb last Monday, total advertising volume was approximately $10 billion, with newspapers getting $3.2 billion and radio and tv-outdoor about $3 billion including $1.2 billion in tv.

Nearly $4 billion went into direct mail and other miscellaneous media, he reported. Additionally, newspapers got 60% of all local advertising (nearly four million U. S. retailers invest about $2.5 billion in the daily newspaper—more than they spend in all other media combined) while tv gets a mere one-tenth of the print share.

Among other statistics (also 1956):

- Forty-eight "big" advertisers spend $783 million in national tv and newspapers, magazines and outdoor—nearly one-third of the total U. S. advertising dollars in these media. (Radio does not supply figures by advertisers.)
- These "big" spenders put $232 million in newspapers—about 30% of all national newspaper advertising.

In his talk Mr. Lipscomb warned that despite their sales gains, the newspapers' share of the national advertising market is "weakening, with some very soft spots." He recommended more newspaper research on audience characteristics, readership and performance and "well-documented figures proving that we are competitive in cost."

He declared "Electronic media have been getting by with murder in their cost claims. But the honeymoon is about over and many big advertisers and agencies are beginning to realize that even a correct average cost-per-thousand advertising messages on tv doesn’t mean anything to them. There are few 'average' shows. Some big, successful tv shows are getting a very good payoff. But many low-rated shows, below average shows, are losing a great deal of money for advertisers. This kind of thing does not happen in newspaper advertising."

Mr. Lipscomb cited costs for a weekly half-hour network tv program ("death million") and claimed "It takes between 13 and 26 weeks to find out whether a show is a success or failure." He felt tv's big gamble "feast or famine"—is worrying lots of agencies and advertisers, especially as tv costs continue to rise and new stations split audiences and reduce ratings," a contention held by Philip L. McHugh, radio vice president, Campbell-Ewald, and denied by the Television Bureau of Advertising.

Some advertisers have felt over the past seven years they couldn’t boost their share of the market unless they were successful in television and "this situation has had a great deal to do with the unusual amount of turnover in agency accounts," Mr. Lipscomb suggested. He noted agencies have a "tremendous investment" in television along with advertisers.

"Tv and newspapers are at an impasse on acceptable research data today," he continued, "but figures indicate sales messages in newspapers that are just as economical as in tv. All media need better cost and coverage research, he added, "But let's be sure that advertisers get the correct interpretation of the research now available."

Newspaper ratings, however, represent "live prospects" for advertisers, while "broadcast ratings indicate people with an interest in the program, not necessarily a buying interest in the product."

He asserted that the "true facts about newspaper duplication are now out in the open." Mr. Sweeney said no combination of newspapers can provide coverage in their own city zones "much less the wider area they claim—the retail trading zone." In many cities, the combination of all newspapers provides only 30% of the families," he continued, "and in only a handful of cities does combined circulation approach seven out of ten families. This is, of course, why radio is gaining and newspapers slipping in those categories where 'whole market coverage' is essential."

He termed the reference by Mr. Lipscomb to "ready to buy" prospects delivered by newspapers as "pure blue sky." He said there was "nothing to prove that there is a real correlation between interest in a newspaper advertisement and buying."

Mr. Sweeney, in taking up the speech point-by-point, hit back at Mr. Lipscomb's assertions by emphasizing radio's power in the areas covered, and concluded:

"We salute one item in Mr. Lipscomb's presentation—the complete, scientific appraisal of newspapers’ performance as an advertising medium.

"Newspapers along with other media should find out why they can sell some merchandise and can't sell other merchandise, should quit claiming they 'can lick everyone on the block' and establish the area in which they are superior."

"Newspaper advertising is going to be waving a white flag soon because in proportion newspapers perform a service to consumers."

"If the publishers will do something about their slipping circulation, about getting in step with the times editorially, they will make the Bureau's job of justifying newspaper schedules somewhat easier."

The Television Bureau of Advertising found Mr. Lipscomb's speech to be riddled with "generalities" and commented that when the newspaper bureau saw fit to stop playing with semantics, tvB would issue a formal answer.

Radio Advertising Bureau President Kevin B. Sweeney reacted to Mr. Lipscomb's recital by commenting "Newspaper advertising certainly has a place in the advertising spectrum but it isn't what Mr. Lipscomb paints it to be."

Mr. Sweeney declared that "there is not a major market in which newspapers are showing a [circulation] gain in proportion to the gain in total population. In many markets affected by the rise in cost per copy, there is a continuing sharp downward trend. Show me a half dozen large markets where there is a real rise in circulation since 1948 and I'll eat a copy of the Sunday New York Times at Macy's window."

Television costs also occupied the core of a New York news presentation Tuesday by Herbert M. Steele, sales promotion director. He claimed that "runaway" production and talent costs make it "virtually impossible to plan a firm budget." Taking a dozen or more network tv shows over a five-year period, he said, would cost much less by as much as 300% in some instances. By comparison combined line rate for all daily and Sunday newspapers jumped 16.7%, or about 3% a year.

Mr. Steele also claimed network advertisers can't secure the balanced coverage needed across the country and "where an advertiser most needs strength his program is frequently weak" because of this factor and "unpredictable audience preferences." So-called "iron-clad commitments" of network tv were coupled with "imbalance, scatitation" to point up the claimed "balanced, mass" coverage and flexibility of newspapers.

Hearst-man Links TV To Declining Profits

Hearst-man H. James Gediman last week linked the alleged declining profit margins of America's top 100 companies with "vaunting costs and investments in network tv." As a result of advertisers' experiences with television, he asserted, there's been a "return to reality" and the rediscovery of newspapers.

Addressing the Newspapers Adv. Executives Assn. convention in Chicago, the executive vice president of Hearst Adv. Service cited a Fortune article of November 1957, pointing out a paradox of mounting corporate sales and declining profits. The article read, in part, that "In the past two years, while sales and investment have continued to rise, aggregate profits have turned down. In 1956, for the 100 biggest firms, profits were down 4% compared to 1955, and apparently the drop will be greater in 1957—they are not expected to recover in 1958.

Mr. Gediman speculated they will not recover if "the pattern of distribution of their advertising investments, their long-term pursuit of sales at-any-price, is not abruptly reconstituted and squared with certain fundamentals." He continued:

"These have been the years of vaunting costs and investments in network tv, the years that saw a movement of a greater share of the national advertising dollar toward tv—the years of the great tv spectaculars, the years of multiple millions poured into a medium that admittedly did demonstrate a capacity to boost sales and no doubt will do so. But you cannot run a business on the theory of a serial series of advertising hits and misses—not at $50, 60, 100 thousand dollars and even more on a single throw.

"Not when costs alone in one market—New York—run $241,000 for a 52-week half-hour program on double A time on one major tv station.

"Not when five 20-second night spots per week, just one spot for each of five nights, for 52 weeks over that same one station cost $598,000—that's time cost only.

"Contrast these appropriations with newspapers where hardly a dozen national accounts average as much as 25,000 lines a year. Can you imagine the job you could do with newspapers with that kind of money?"

Mr. Gediman felt newspapers are "on the threshold of being rediscovered again..." He suggested a "harassed industry," which has "over-balanced its advertising placement and under-profiled its stockholders," tend to pay the lower chart of tv for the flow chart of newspapers.

"The advertiser is searching for a better somewhere within reason." Mr. Gediman declared, claiming that 30 of approximately 60 new network tv programs this season are destined to be flops. This 50% predicable in time and talent exceeds $100 million.

While echoing the concern of some agency buyers over tv costs, Mr. Gediman also chided agencies for being susceptible to catch phrases and magic formulas, citing subliminal exposures (with the future possibility of a "cost-per-thousand-per-commercial 1/3,000th of a second") and the western fever.

Kiefer Elected President Of FM Development Assn.

J. B. Kiefer, KMLA (FM) Los Angeles, was elected president of FM Development Assn. at a membership meeting Jan. 17-18 in Detroit. He succeeds the late Robert Brazzil, first FMDA president.

Steps are being taken to incorporate the group as a non-profit association. Sigmund Timberg, counsel, was directed to take care of legal formalities prior to the NAB convention, to be held April 27-May 1 in Los Angeles. FMDA plans to hold a two- or three-day meeting before NAB programming gets under way.

Frank Knorr Jr., WPXM (FM) Tampa, Fla., was elected vice president. Edward A. Wheeler, WEAF-FM Evanston, Ill., and Harold Tanner, WLDM (FM) Detroit, continue as secretary and treasurer, respectively. These committee chairman were named: licensing, William B. Caskey, WPEN-FM Philadelphia; Philadelphia Sesquicentennial, WFMF (FM) Chicago; membership, Mike Merla, WBNY-FM Buffalo; organization, Larry Gordon, WBRY-FM, and ways and means, Al Wertheimer, WDJS (FM) Syracuse, N. Y. A drive for new members is planned along with an effort to recruit associate members from equipment firms and related groups.

ABA Meet to Hear Broadcasters In Industry Case vs. Canon 35

The industry's case on behalf of broad- cast coverage rights in the courtroom will be heard Feb. 24-25 at the winter meeting of the American Bar Assn.'s House of Delegates in Atlanta, under a plan approved last week by the house rules committee.

For the first time the house will meet in committee-of-the-whole, according to Sylvester C. Smith Jr., Newark, chairman of the rules and Senate and other media spokesmen will have a chance to explain their side of the case and to oppose an ABA committee report proposing only minor changes in the ABA's Canon 35, which bans radio-tv and cameras in the courtroom.

The NAB's role at Atlanta was reviewed at last week's board meeting in Arizona (see story page 60).

Mr. Smith said the special house hearing was ordered "in order that all members may have the opportunity to consider all aspects of this important subject before any final action is taken. The question of photographing trials is one that affects the public interest because of its relation to the administration of justice. Our committee feels that, in fairness and in the interest of reaching an informed judgment of the house, all sides of the issue should be presented fully."

The committee plan was approved by Charles S. Rhynie, Washington, ABA president, and James L. Shepherd Jr., Houston, chairman of the house's House of Delegates, members of the rules group. The house, ABA's policy-making body, comprises 238 delegates representing all state and 23 large local bar groups and other organizations.

BPA Appoints Nine As Regional Chairmen

New regional chairmen for Broadcasters Promotion Assn. have been announced by Howard Meagle, WWVA Wheeling, W. Va., along with a promise of "all-out effort" to double the complement before the third annual BPA seminar in St. Louis Nov. 16.

New regional chiefs, besides Mr. Meagle as chairman, are: the northeast, William R. Johnson, WPEN Philadelphia, northeast; Ken McCure, WMUR Jacksonville, Fla., southeast; Marian Annenberg, WDSU-AM-TV New Orleans, south central; Roy Pedersen, WDAY-AM-TV Fargo, N. D., north central; Montze Tjaden, KWTV (TV) Oklahoma City, Okla., southwest; Janet Eaker, KYW Cleveland, Great Lakes; James Barker, KBTV (TV) Denver, Rocky Mountains; Edward Morrissey, KIMA-AM-TV Yakima, Wash., west and northwest, and Harvey Clarke, CFPL Cleveland, Ont.

Mr. Meagle suggested bi-monthly meet- ings of the promotion membership, particularly in larger cities, and appointment of regional co-chairmen. Appointment of editors for BPA alternating monthly bulletins also was announced by Elliott W. Henry, ABC Chicago and BPA president: Gene Godt, WCCO-TV Minneapolis (audience promotion); Hilda Woehrmeyer, WOWO Fort Wayne, Ind. (sales promotion); Kenneth Chernin, WFIL-AM-TV Philadelphia (merchandising promotion), and Dorothy Sand- ers, WLWD (TV) Dayton, Ohio (employ- ment exchange).

Illinois Outlets to Get 'RFD' Show

Midwest radio broadcasters have met with members of the Illinois Agricultural Assn. to discuss a new 15-minute package pro- gram, RFD Illinois, which will be made available free to Illinois stations.

The association, which serves as state headquarters for the American Farm Bureau Federation, has been servicing Illinois sta- tions with five to six tape recordings in recent years. The new transcribed series will include short news items and music.

Serving on the broadcasters' advisory group and meeting with IAA officials to re- view the association's programming activities were Ray Livesay, WLW Cincinnati; Emil Bill, WMHD Peoria; Richard Fair, WTAQ Quincy; George Biggar, WLKB De- Kalb; Hugh Cordier, radio-tv director, U. of Illinois, and Tex Barron, assistant informa- tion director, American Farm Bureau Fed- eration. IAA was represented by Tom Vannier, radio director; William Allen, publicity director, and Don Peasley, editor of IAA's newspaper, Tape.

THE GATES "DUALUX"

From coast to coast, broadcasters are saying, "This is the finest." As one broadcaster put it, "I have yet to ask for a facility that Dualux could not provide."

But Dualux is far more than a large assemblage of switches and controls. Each of the many facilities is the result of human engineering. Controls are electrically and functionally correct for the 100% plus job to be done. The operator will instinctively find his fingers at the proper control, similar to the instincts associated with a typewriter keyboard.

Inbuilt intercom, a Gates innovation in speech input equipment, permits two-way conversation to studio and remotes and listening on every major circuit. First again is the inbuilt variable high pass filter for instant program correction when the unlooked for happens. Now, all Dualux consoles are supplied with the new Gates 10 watt ultra-linear monitoring amplifier. And Gates solid process printed wiring, fabricated entirely in the Gates factory, provides the cleanest, easiest to service speech input system ever built.

The entire Dualux story is told on brochure 197-C, yours for the asking, or a Gates field sales engineer will gladly call at your convenience.

ABN WATERS DOWN LIVE POLICY

• Economy behind switch to recorded programming

ABN officials decided last week to abandon their five-month-old "all-live" programming policy in order to save money.

Although details were still being worked out, the tentative plan was to cut all-live musical programming from five and one-third hours a day to about two. The rest would be replaced by record shows headed by personalities now presiding over the all-live programs.

Greater emphasis on news also is planned.

As a result of the new strategy, Stephen B. Labunski resigned as vice president, effective last Friday. He has been heading up the network's program activities since joining ABN last June from WDGY Minneapolis, where he was vice president and general manager [NETWORKS, June 17, 1957].

ABN President Robert E. Eastman, who introduced the all-live policy, said that in view of the policy change Mr. Labunski felt there was little left for him to do and consequently resigned. Mr. Eastman expressed regret at his decision and said, "I feel sure he will continue to make a valuable contribution to the broadcasting industry in whatever new undertakings he chooses. Everybody at ABN wishes him well and is confident of his future success."

In explaining the program changes to ABN affiliates, Mr. Eastman acknowledged that they represent a departure from policy but that "We feel that they are right and that we should never be so small that we are afraid to change our minds and give the reasons why."

He also advised affiliates that "In the very near future we are going to have a series of regional affiliate meetings around the country, at which time we want to discuss with you our overall programming and planning and personally receive your suggestions and criticisms."

Several reasons were given as contributing to the decision to cut back live programming. But observers felt the most important clearly was money and speculated that the board of ABN's parent AB-PT had virtually dictated that economies be made.

With five live shows involved, having a total of five orchestras averaging 25 musicians apiece, plus about five singers per show, there have been estimates that talent costs were running $20,000 to $25,000 per week. Mr. Eastman said two months ago that musical arrangements alone were costing more than $6,000 a week, and in its beginning stages he told BROADCASTING in an exclusive interview that the all-live concept would add "at least 50%" to overhead [BROADCASTING, Sept. 16, 1957].

Plans being developed last week called for the retention of two all-live shows. These would be Breakfast Club at 9-10 a.m. EST and the Jim Backus Show, which would be moved into the 10-10:55 a.m. spot to form a two-hour live block each morning, Monday through Friday.

The Herb Oscar Anderson Show and Merv Griffin Show would become record programs presided over by Messrs. Anderson and Griffin, respectively, with the Anderson show probably moving from 10-10:55 a.m. to 2-2:55 p.m. and with the Griffin show continuing possibly in the 7:15-8:55 p.m. spot but with records aimed primarily at the teen-age audience. The Johnny Pearson Show at 9-11 a.m. Saturdays, which converted to records a few weeks ago, would be continued and a weekday version introduced, probably at 1-1:55 p.m.

Plans call for dropping the Jim Reeves Show altogether. It originates at WSM Nashville at 1-1:55 p.m.

Officials made it clear that this schedule was tentative and still subject to change.

In a letter to ABN affiliates, President Eastman explained the projected new lineup and spelled out the reasons for the policy change.

"For several very sound reasons," he said, "we are altering some of our present live-talent shows to personality shows employing carefully selected recorded music."

He gave these reasons:

1) It has been the request of many affiliates that we do this, at least for certain personalities; (2) it will permit more cut-in announcements for local sale than is possible within a live show; (3) it will permit us to do a more extensive news job which has been requested by affiliates; (4) we have had a very good reaction on the conversion of Johnny Pearson's Saturday morning show to the employment of records in lieu of live talent; (5) this effects some important and necessary economies; (6) some of our personalities are more adaptable to working with phonograph records than to being with a live cast."

Mr. Eastman said that "there are certain elements difficult to express, but nonetheless real, which make one show, with a given personality, most effective on a live basis. The same will not apply to another personality. We feel that the Jim Backus Show has been outstandingly successful with the cast just as it is. Therefore the plan is to retain this in its present format."

"We are confident that the proper execution of these [program changes] will build better ratings and prove to be more compatible with your local programming."

There was no indication as to the effective date of the changes. Authorities indicated that the live programs may continue for five or six weeks, until the expiration dates of the current talent contracts.

Nor was there any indication of the reaction of sponsors currently participating in or signed for the live programs. These include Lever Bros. (Dove soap and Breeze detergent) and Hudson Vitamins, all of which are currently participating in some or all of the programs, and Knox Gelatin Co. and Gillette Co., which are set to start this week and Feb. 3, respectively.

The all-live policy went into effect last Sept. 2 with the Herb Oscar Anderson Show. Other all-live musicals were introduced within a few weeks. One cutback came a few weeks ago when the Bill Kemp Show was dropped from the 8-8:55 p.m. period and the time was added to the Merv Griffin Show. The Johnny Pearson Show on Saturday morning also started as a live show but switched to records on Jan. 11.

MBS TO ELIMINATE 'BONUS' STATIONS

- They'll get full affiliation
- Roberts cites move to suburbs

Mutual is scheduled to put into effect shortly an order that will eliminate "bonus" stations from the network roster and place all MBS outlets on a full affiliation basis.

According to MBS President Paul Roberts, the "bonus" station principle—a station is committed to carry commercial messages without compensation—is being eliminated from the sales philosophy of the network. All outlets carrying commercial programming will receive payment for service to advertisers. Approximately 100 of Mutual's 460 affiliated stations are "bonus" outlets, according to Mr. Roberts.

Mutual is the first of the radio networks to eliminate the "bonus" station, Mr. Roberts said. These bonus stations are located in smaller communities, and in the past, advertisers buying a schedule on Mutual were given a "free ride" on these stations. It is Mr. Roberts' contention that the "bonus" station philosophy is "outmoded" today. He cites these reasons:

"There is a population swing from the big city areas into the suburbs and other small communities. Another important factor is the ever-increasing audience potentials in automobiles. . . . I think it's quite safe to assume that motorists keenly listening to traffic information are going to remain with these stations and not switch to big-city stations that are presenting non-informational shows. The advertiser right now, on the bonus station principle, is reaping a harvest of listeners at no cost to himself—and to the detriment of the small station owner."

Mr. Roberts said that Charles King, Mutual's station relations director, is checking the affiliation contracts of all MBS "bonus"
The House Interstate & Foreign Commerce Committee won't dawdle over its decision to flag down or pass the FCC's proposed test of subscription television. Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.) said last Thursday that the committee would meet this week, probably Thursday, to take action on the issue. He further stated that the whole issue was economic.

Rep. Harris underscored the need for immediate disposition of the matter at the conclusion of nearly two weeks of hearings on the proposed toll tests last Thursday. As previously specified by the FCC, that agency will begin consideration of applications for three-year trial operations on March 1.

The final days of the committee hearings were sharply accelerated by Chairman Harris, faced with a schedule that would not permit continuation of the hearings to this week and further pressed last Thursday with the need of freeing committee membership for other emergency congressional activities.

The three days last week were principally devoted to testimony of the heads of the three tv networks, NBC President Robert Sarnoff; American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres President Leonard Goldenson and CBS Inc. President Frank Stanton.

All three forecast that subscription tv tests posed an economic crisis that could strike a devastating blow to present free television. However, they emphasized that public would be the real loser since the networks could shift to pay tv operation without losing their positions.

Precluded from cross examination on the final day by the hurry-up schedule was Thomas F. O'Neil, president of RKO Television Pictures, the first major broadcast interest to say it would go into pay tv operation.

Mr. O'Neil's advocacy of the toll tv trials also carried a warning that wire subscription television posed an even greater threat to present free tv. Misgivings about wire pay tv also were voiced by Norwood J. Patterson, general manager of uhf KSAN-TV San Francisco, who felt that the advent of wire pay tv in his market would be KSAN-TV's death knell.

Milton J. Shapp, president of Jerrold Electronics Corp., however, expressed the opposite position: that cable tv, such as in Bartlesville, Okla., did not pose any dangers whatsoever to the present status of television.

Rep. Carl Albert (D-Okla.) was the first witness when pay tv hearings resumed last Tuesday morning. He said he could not imagine anything less popular to the public than to authorize pay tv. "My constituents agree with me," the majority whip of the House stated.

"It is naive not to suppose that fast on the heels of pay tv would come proposals to 'share the cost' by the introduction of advertising so that the price of viewing, for example, the World Series could be dropped from $1 to 50¢. I doubt that such a proposal would meet with much resistance either from the public or from the FCC. Certainly it seems evident that commercials have had no inhibiting effect. . . . I believe that the promise of no commercials is illusory," Rep. Albert said.

Adding extra significance to Rep. Albert's statements is the fact that Bartlesville, home of the first operating wired pay tv system, is located in the Oklahoma congressmen's district.

Robert Sarnoff, president of NBC, followed Rep. Albert to the stand. "With a box pay tv would cover, pay tv could easily outbid our advertiser-supported medium for the same programs and talent we have developed and which provide us our economic base," Mr. Sarnoff said in predicting the end of the present free system if toll tv is authorized.

"The reason pay tv will win a "tug of war" over programs," he said, is because it will need only a fraction of the audience free tv pulls to be a financial success. As an example he cited the recent Annie Get Your Gun spectacular watched by nearly 60 million people. "One-tenth of these homes, at $1 each, would produce over $2 million in revenue from the show," Mr. Sarnoff stated.

"Is there any doubt where talent and programs would gravitate under the pull of that type of financial magnet?" Mr. Sarnoff asked.

"As for the remaining 50 million people unable or unwilling to pay the dollar, their threatened disenfranchisement from programs once seen free is at the core of the issue this committee now deliberates," he said.

Under pay tv, the NBC president contended, "the development of new programs, the continuance of those public service programs that have made television such a vital force in American life would be financially unendurable. . . . Our program log shows that hundreds of officials of the federal government appear on NBC programs devoted wholly or in part to the examination of serious national issues."

Mr. Sarnoff said he does not suggest that pay tv would cover all of the current programing but the effects would follow if subscription embraced only the principal stars and attractions. "The two cannot coexist, he emphasized. "Pay tv can succeed only by cannibalizing free television."

He said that under a toll system, tv viewers would be divided along economic lines and that the amount of programming offered would "be reduced to a fraction of its present volume. . . . To use pay tv an amount equal to the present average set usage five hours daily would cost far more than the average American now spends for the movies, the theatre and sports attendance combined."

He said that "as far as NBC is concerned, " stations, and within a short time "a suitable amendment" to the contracts will be made, changing the stations' status to full affiliation.

Mr. Roberts described this action as a direct outgrowth of Mutual's plan to integrate network stations via fm multiplex links. This plan will permit Mutual to implement its many thousands of miles of Class A and Class C lines with fm transmissions from a projected 80 fm affiliates throughout the country. The latter group will, in turn, provide network links to Mutual's am stations.

"With high quality transmissions available to all Mutual stations," Mr. Roberts continued, "it makes sense for us to eliminate the 'bonus' station philosophy and reclassify all stations as full affiliates."

Mr. Roberts reported that in connection with Mutual's plans for fm links, the station has signed WCLM (FM) Chicago and WKX-AM-FM Raleigh, N. C., as affiliates. WCLM will serve as the network's fm transmitting link for the northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin areas and WKIX-FM for the North Carolina area. These "feed" stations are two of an anticipated 80 throughout the country which, within the next two years, will be network links for Mutual's am affiliates.

A demonstration, via tape recordings, of Mutual's fm side-band transmission was to be made at the Oklahoma Broadcasters' Assn. meeting in Muskogee last Friday. Abe Jacobowitz, Mutual's general engineering director and creator of the fm transmission plan, was to speak at the meeting.

Mr. Roberts also announced that Mutual and the 42-station Intermountain Network have entered into a new affiliation arrangement, effective Feb. 1. Under their agreement, MBS will act in Intermountain's behalf on time and program sales to national advertisers.

Stanley Heads NBC Public Affairs

Edward Stanley, manager of NBC's public service programs, last week was promoted to director of public affairs, succeeding David C. Taylor, public affairs vice president who has resigned effective Feb. 1 [Networks, Jan. 13]. Mr. Stanley joined NBC in 1950 as manager of the public affairs and education department and earlier had been a newspaper reporter and editor for 12 years, including a 10-year tenure with the Associated Press.

WXTL, Springfield, Mass., WCGC Belmont, N. C., and WAMY East St. Louis, III., have become ABN affiliates, network reports.

WEIR Weirton, W. Va., reports that it has become NBC affiliate.
we neither seek nor wish to enter pay tv. But if it comes . . . we—like the public—will have no real choice. Our only choice will be to go in the pay tv field or go out of business.

In my view, the proposed tests promise no meaningful resolutions of the issue. . . . Tests provide an artificial, not a real, environment for assessing the effects of pay tv, for they can be conducted on a basis far removed from the realities of the operation once the tests conclude . . . . The proposed tests would not resolve this dilemma. They offer the pay interests a golden opportunity to infiltrate, beyond recall, under the guise of experimentation.

"I urge that this committee officially request the F.C.C. to withhold action on the pending pay tv tests until Congress has resolved this public policy issue; that it report favorably on the proposed legislation which would prohibit the use of broadcast channels for pay tv, and that it take appropriate action to expedite enactment of this legislation by the congress."

In answer to a question by Rep. Kenneth Roberts (D-Ala.) Mr. Sarnoff admitted it is possible pay tv might develop some new talent but before this could be accomplished, current stars would be "siphoned" from free tv.

Rep. John Heselton (R-Mass.) asked how toll could establish itself as a "going business. . . . do not think it should be given an opportunity to establish itself," the witness replied. To which Rep. Isidore Dollinger (D-N. Y.) stated: "If you people will give the people the programs they want, there will not be any clamor on anybody's part for it by pay tv."

Earlier in his statement, Mr. Sarnoff testified that mass advertising actually has lowered the prices consumers pay for products and this statement was attacked by Rep. Heselton as being a "highly speculative conclusion. " He asked the witness for specific examples and Mr. Sarnoff replied that advertising has been a driving force in the increase in the U. S. gross national product. Questioning network must buy policies, Rep. Heselton asked Mr. Sarnoff to furnish for the record all instances where affiliates have turned down NBC programs.

Rep. Walter Rogers (D-Tex.), stating the committee has a "bear by the tail," questioned Mr. Sarnoff at length on whether the networks should pay the public for the use of the radio spectrum. The questions and answers went like this:

"Who do present broadcasters pay for use of the spectrum which belongs to the public?"

Q: "Who do present broadcasters pay for use of the spectrum which belongs to the public?"

A: "I don't believe we pay anybody."

Q: "You are assuming that you have the right to use this public property without paying anyone for it, are you not?"

A: "I suppose in a sense that would be right, yes."

"Why should this be called free television when your claim is . . . that the public can no longer receive it, but you never refer to the fact that you are using public property without paying anyone for it?"

A: "If you want to put it this way, you can, that we are using it free and they are getting it free. That means to me that it is free."

"John J. Flynn (D-Ga.) asked Mr. Sarnoff if he "would be willing to concede that instead of free tv it [tv] actually is financed by hidden costs. " "No, I think it is free tv. . . . Under the circumstances free broadcasting is as free as anything can be," was the reply. The witness then was asked if the only question was not "who gets the money in the long run?" "No," replied Mr. Sarnoff.

Rep. J. Arthur Younger (R-Calif.) said that he had difficulty in following the witness' arguments and that they seem "to be the general arguments presented against any competitive force."

"As an opportunity to expedite pending pay tv."

In which belongs to the public for the time being unless the network would feel it is necessary, for economic survival, to enter pay tv. Mr. Sarnoff stated that pay proponents would not be satisfied until the medium had reached the stage of normal operations and by then it would be too late to save the current system.

Rep. Bruce Alger (R-Tex.) asked Mr. Sarnoff if he were in the committee's shoes, "do you believe you have the right to deny the public a test of pay tv?" "I believe so," was the reply.

Rep. Edmund P. Radwan (R-N. Y.) and Rep. Leslie C. Arends (R-Ill.) did not testify in person but entered statements last Tuesday. "Ever since this scrambled phonovision promotion scheme reared its ugly head several years ago, I have seen in it a threat to the survival of free television as we have come to know it," Rep. Radwan stated. He continued:

"Despite pious protests to the contrary, I have little doubt that fee television can only prosper at the expense of free television. . . . It would be virtually impossible for pay television to improve upon the best of free television. . . . The result is obvious. Pay television would have to take over the best in present television and the leftovers would wither because they could not stand by themselves."

"If free television is suffering from an illness, then the cure offered by pay television profiteers is worse than the illness."

Rep. Radwan said he has received a large volume of mail on the subject "unequivocally opposed" to any toll plan.

Rep. Arends, minority whip of the House, said he particularly was concerned about the affect toll tv would have on the rural areas. "It would mean that almost all the people who now enjoy free television would be blacked out . . . unless they pay their quarters and fifty-cent pieces," he said of his predominantly rural constituents.

He said a poll taken by the Minneapolis Tribune showed that 70% of urban population and 83% of rural families were against pay television. While free tv can be improved, Rep. Arends said, "I do not think that putting pay television into effect represents an improvement. On the contrary, it is my view that it will mean the denial of television . . . to those who cannot afford to pay."

Solomon Sagall, president of Teleglobe Pay-tv System Inc., told the committee of a sensational new pay tv method. "While the Teleglob system has many, many great advantages, its most redeeming feature is its application for education," Mr. Sagall said.

He outlined plans for the creation of a new institution, the International Television University, which would enable the student to "register, take a course, do his homework, take a test and get a degree from an accredited college or university without leaving his living room."

The Teleglob system transmits the video picture intact, while the audio portion is sent as a scrambled version through wire lines, Mr. Sagall said. A subscriber then would flip a switch on his set to unscramble the sound.

In answer to two questions by Rep. Flynt, Mr. Sagall said it was undecided how many subscribers would be required to make Teleglob feasible and that wiring the video signal would not be economically practicable because of the prohibitive cost of coaxial cables.

Rep. John F. Baldwin (R-Calif.) opened Wednesday's session by expressing his full support for the anti-toll tv bill (HR 3866) of Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-N. Y.) and any other legislation designed to keep television free. The Californian stressed the expense hardship that pay tv would inflict on retired people, disabled veterans and others forced to live on pensions or limited incomes.

Leonard H. Goldenson, president, American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres Inc., took the stand to state AB-PT's position, as follows:

1. Pay tv will supply little, if anything, that the public does not receive today on free tv.

2. If subscription television succeeds, free tv programs will move to pay tv with the public as the big loser by being forced to pay for programs it now receives free.

3. The lower and middle income groups, which can least afford it, will suffer most.

4. Congress created the FCC to develop and foster free radio and tv, but not to encourage another system which could destroy the present method without first ascertaining the will of Congress.

5. Irrevocable changes should not be made in the present system by the FCC until Congress expresses its will.

6. FCC experience demonstrates the difficulty of "turning the clock back" after interests have become established and there has been a substantial expenditure for the pay tv tests.

7. Congress should not be by-passed on matters of basic national policy.

Even a trial basis for toll tv could spell ruin for free television, Mr. Goldenson said, by stripping the latter of its most popular programs "by the sheer weight of its bidding power."

There is no assurance that the quality of tv programming would be improved, nor is there any guarantee that pay tv ultimately would not carry advertising, he pointed out.

Mr. Goldenson cited the role of free television in presenting political conventions, congressional hearings, Presidential addresses and other national events. He also enumerated the many public service programs being donated by free tv. All this was to underscore Mr. Goldenson's next point:

"The revenues which networks receive from commercially-sponsored programs make possible the presentation of public service programming which individual stations on their own cannot afford. Any significant threat to the economic base of free network television threatens this programming—at a time when it is more important than ever to have an informed and alert citizenry."

The inability of a network to put its program in markets, where scarce facilities would be used for toll tv, would make free network programs unacceptable to national advertisers, he said. Cancellations would occur, Mr. Goldenson warned, and the economic base of television would dry up.

"We would be obliged, as a matter of self-preservation, to enter the pay tv field," the AB-PT executive declared. "And our experience and know-how in the entertainment field should enable us to take a leading position, should this occur. Nevertheless, we prefer to continue to serve all the American people with a constantly growing and improved program service rather than depend on a small portion of the public for a possibly higher profit."

Mr. Goldenson expressed disbelief that the tests could be controlled since the investment required would create economic interests which, once established, would be "virtually impossible" to dislodge.

"In the last analysis, when you cut through all the arguments for and against pay television, it is inescapable that what is proposed is a major reshaping of our national policy in the field of broadcasting," he said. "A matter of this magnitude, with its far-reaching implications, should be one for congressional rather than administrative decision."

Mr. Goldenson suggested that the committee advise the FCC that no authorization or trial should be granted pending congressional determination of policy.

To Rep. Alger's questioning on pay tv's siphoning effect on present television programming, Mr. Goldenson said, "If you took off 20 of the top programs now in free tv, you could very well reduce free tv to mediocrity overnight." He also maintained that within the three-year period of the test, free television could be destroyed.

Mr. Goldenson told Rep. John V. Beamer (R-Ind.) that public service programming now being telecast "would necessarily have to fall by the wayside" if the advent of pay tv impaired free television's economic base.

The AB-PT head explained, under questioning by Rep. Younger, how the Sid Caesar-Imogene Coca show starting yesterday (Sunday) on ABC-TV would cost $100,000 and would be viewed by 10 million people, whereas in pay tv 1.2 million viewers could bring in $600,000 and the other 8.9 million would be deprived of the program.

Rep. Younger interjected that ABC-TV had siphoned the show from another network and questioned, "NBC isn't going out of business because of it?"

Next to face the committee was Frank Stanton, CBS Inc. president, who declared that there could be no co-existence between pay and free television "as we know it." Dr. Stanton also voiced support of legislative action which would prevent administrative authorization of free tv airwaves for toll techniques until Congress itself granted such authority.

The CBS Inc. president pointed out no stand was being taken against closed-circuit pay television since it did not involve the spectrum and CBS Inc. did not seek "federal protection from competition which did not use the airwaves." However, Dr.
Stanton did point out that closed-circuit toll tv proposal to ride "hig" back on free television by seeking to use existing sets bought for free tv; also, though wired sercices would not black out airwaves, it still will have "all the same injurious effects on free television as will over-the-air pay television.

If pay tv begins to take hold and supplant free tv, "we will participate in it, if we must, to survive economically," he stated.
"If we must go into it, we believe we would get our fair share of the multi-billion dollar bonanza which pay tv promoters portray."
Accordingly, the economic fate of CBS-tv does not hang in balance. Dr. Stanton continued, "but the fate of free television does."

He termed pay tv essentially "subtractive rather than additive" in that every time a scrambled signal goes out, it necessarily blocks a free signal. Dr. Stanton also labeled as "subtractive" the tendency that pay tv would have to "siphon" programs from free television. "And with the enormous number of dollars which just a small minority of the audience can bring in, pay television will most certainly be able to take those free programs away," he emphasized.

"Now more than ever the best in television is available to all Americans, pay television will fence off the best for the carriage trade," Dr. Stanton charged. "One prosperous viewer can pay and deprive a dozen of his neighbors of the programs they are now enjoying."
The CBS Inc. president then cited the cost of buying or renting a decoder (between $40 and $85); the estimate that pay tv would annually cost the average family $473 for two-thirds of the viewing hours it now receives free, along with other statistical data that had been presented the week before to CBS-TV affiliates meeting in Washington [NETWORKS, Jan. 20].

Dr. Stanton claimed that the test is not necessary, since:

(1) There are "decisional facts" available in abundance to justify denial of the toll tv proposals. He charged, among other things, that the advantages of pay tv have not been demonstrated by the proponents;
(2) There is no stipulation that the choice of the majority would be considered in the test,
(3) The test outlined cannot achieve the Commission's objective.

Dr. Stanton stated that pay tv promoters would be on their best behavior throughout the test. He compared it to writing a book on child behavior during the week before Christmas. "But here the stakes are not a tricycle or a doll—they are $6 billion a year," he said. "The proponents will have the incentive to show the patience and the time to walk carefully."

Dr. Stanton said that FCC Chairman John D. Doerfer's inference that he would be reluctant to grant the last two or three applications in an eligible area, would be "built in incentive" to abandon free tv.
"The first station to succeed may have an advantage to the point of monopoly by squatters' rights," he declared. "It would put a premium on early desertion from free television."

Like preceding witnesses against pay tv, Dr. Stanton feared that the vast effort and expense necessary for the test would create a situation that might be irreparable. He pointed out that the difficulties of the tests are not difficulties of details; they cannot be fixed by "a little patching here and there."

Rep. Alger raised the point that if only a small minority chose pay tv, then perhaps the advertisers could still find a means of using tv in those times not used for toll tv and which would reach a large audience.

Dr. Stanton replied, "I think if you took key programs in prime time out of free television and put them in pay television, you would shrink the universe for tv in this country. Free tv would not maintain anything like its proportionate share of the viewing it has today because you need the prime time to pull along the rest of the schedule."

The status of affiliates was touched by Rep. Avery, prompting the CBS president to state that the network would not "conceive of our affiliates sitting still if their competition went into pay television. I think they would want to go in. The network as we know it would slowly disintegrate."

"Do you think the economic factor is the only reason you would lose them?" Rep.
Flynt queried.

"Yes—pure and simple," Dr. Stanton answered.

Under Rep. Beamer's questioning, Dr.
Stanton maintained that although there might be a transition period, there ultimately would be commercials on subscription television. He also said that public service and news programming might not fare too well in pay tv, pointing out that for example, CBS-TV last year suffered a net loss of $11 million in providing this type of programming.

Rep. Bennett asked if wire subscription tv might not kill free tv. Dr. Stanton said it was difficult to answer due to lack of ex-erience with the problem, but "at least we could compete—we would not be blacking out services."

Rep. Rogers asked about the plausibility of the government taking up all the channels and then putting them up for the highest bids.

operating career," Dr. Stanton replied.

"This is certainly contrary to the Communications Act . . . I think it would have to be applied to all use of the spectrum and not just confined to television."

In the course of questions by Chairman
Harris, the CBS president said it was difficult this time between pay and educational tv. Toll tv conveys "boxoffice," he explained, whereas education should be free, attracting to people to it and whetting appetites.

Rep. William H. Ayres (R-Ohio), not a member of the Commerce Committee, was permitted to read a brief statement into the hearing record. He condemned "slot machine payment" for tv programs and presented polls conducted in his district that showed public disfavor of subscription tele-

Milton J. Shapp, president of Jerrold Electronics Corp., Philadelphia, and a major advocate of cable theatre subscription 20, was next to testify. Mr. Shapp urged that Congress direct the FCC to prepare a technical study of all proposed scrambled broadcast toll tv systems.

This, he said, would "reveal beyond a doubt that none of the proposed scrambled broadcast systems are workable." Then, Mr.
Shapp contended, the way would be clear for the "orderly" development of a cable theatre service currently "inhibited" by pub-l fear and confusion about scrambled radio Pictures Inc., and Raymond F. Kohn,

Mr. Shapp explained the installation by Jerrold of the first cable theatre system in Bartlesville, Okla. [SPECIAL BARTLESVILLE REPORT, Sept. 9, Nov. 14, 1957]. The system involves cables into the homes and connected to tv sets. The owners have a choice of special features with monthly bills rendered for services used.

Mr. Shapp contended that cable theatre can supply programs that networks and independent broadcasters cannot present due to lack of sponsorship. He said these include: new movies that have production costs too high for the advertiser to bear; cultural programs of limited audience appeal; foreign language programs "which never found their way from radio to tv"; major sports events currently blacked out to commercial tv or restricted to motion picture theatres; educational programs, and programs of a public service nature.

The next three witnesses, all testifying against subscription tv, were Mrs. Samuel J. McCartney, General Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Harold Milligan, American Mothers Committee, and Marie Hurley, National Federation of Music Clubs.

George A. Kuyper, manager of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, took the witness chair to support toll tv. He charged that television thus far has failed to present enough "fine music." He also contended pay tv revenues would furnish financial support to many musical organizations now operating at a deficit.

Mr. O'Neill asserted pay tv had these benefits:

1. As an additional program source, it would bring top box office attractions into the home.

2. The added competition of this new programming would stimulate present programmers to more creative efforts, upgrading tv programs in general.

3. It would make independent stations stronger, network affiliates more independent. It would help to increase the number of tv outlets in present markets and eventually increase the number of television markets.

4. Opportunities for testing and "grooming" new talent would be afforded.

5. "Traditional American entertainment forms, now in financial jeopardy," would be given a new lease on life.

6. Subscription tv would prove compatible to advertiser-supported television—"just as subscription fees and advertising dollars work together successfully to finance newspapers and magazines, under broadcast subscription these elements will operate smoothly to bring an expanded television service to the public."

Mr. O'Neill declared that broadcast pay tv would be much more acceptable than wired subscription "with its costly installation problems, inherent incompatibility with present broadcasting facilities and lack of present federal control."

The proponents of wired subscription are already in operation, he warned, and "are threatening to monopolize programs sources for box office entertainment. It is urged that broadcast subscription be given a real opportunity to compete with this more costly system.

Mr. O'Neil charged that the opponents of pay tv advanced arguments marked by "syllogisms and prophecies" that sounded "somewhat familiar."

He said there was the "old, familiar melody" that had been sounded with regard to the anticipated effect of the new radio industry on the phonograph and record business and later to predict the "dooms" of radio at the hand of "that terrible infant, television."

Statements against subscription television were entered into the record by the motion picture operators' Joint Committee on Toll TV and the Indiana Joint Committee Against Toll TV. The statements echoed sentiments of earlier witnesses opposing pay tv and emphasized the contention that under the Communications Act, the FCC cannot legally permit the tests.

Chairman Harris concluded the Wednesday sessions by saying that the committee would also accept written statements (within five days) from John Holdren, Amvets, Washington, and Byron Bentley, Theatre Arts magazine, New York. Amvets, like other veteran organizations, opposes pay tv.

Thomas F. O'Neil, president of RKO Teleradio Pictures Inc., led off Thursday morning urging the support of the toll tv trials. RKO Teleradio, with holdings that include six am, four fm and four tv stations as well as the Don Lee and Yankee Networks, last fall became the first major broadcaster to say officially that it would participate in the pay tv tests [Program Services, Nov. 11, 1957].

Mr. O'Neil noted that RKO Teleradio stations were independent in some markets, network affiliates in others. This, he said, permitted a well-rounded evaluation of the various program needs. Networks provided a good backbone for programming at the affiliated stations and could be effectively complemented with syndicated and local live film. Mr. O'Neil asserted. However, at independent stations, such as WOR-TV New York, it was ultimately found that feature films attract the best audiences, he said.

Mr. O'Neil disagreed that pay tv robbed lower income families of the right to watch tv and said that low income families as well as high income families spend money for recreational activities. He cited findings that showed the average family with income under $2,000 per year spends $98 per year on recreational activities while the average family whose income exceeds $10,000 per year spends $513.

With the deadline hour for winding up the hearings at hand, the committee did not cross-examine Mr. O'Neil. However, Rep. Hesseltine asked and was given permission to prepare some questions which the RKO Teleradio president agreed to answer in writing for the hearing record.

Next witness, Norwood J. Patterson, general manager of KSAN-TV San Francisco also supported the proposed toll tv trial. He said that KSAN-TV, the only uhf station in San Francisco and the sole tv outlet there without a network affiliation, has been in the red since its inception in 1954 and that it looked to pay tv as its "salvation."

Mr. Patterson said the end result would be better and more programming for San Francisco viewers.

Like the preceding witness, Mr. Patterson saw an "imminent threat" of wired pay tv. He said the new San Francisco Giants appeared committed to wired tv; that KSAN-TV attempts to negotiate for such tv rights had been fruitless in that the baseball club would not consider any arrangement except on a subscription television basis.

"I am sure they would switch to broadcast pay tv if it becomes available before a wire system is installed," Mr. Patterson maintained.

"In any event," he noted, "we'll go out of business if a wired system gets started in San Francisco before a broadcast system is authorized."

Lashing out at opponents of subscription television, Mr. Patterson declared, "The National Assn. of Radio & Television, the trade association for the networks and their affiliated stations, is going to great lengths to prevent the establishment of subscription television as a competitor."

Andrew Biemiller, director of the legislative department of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations, testified against the subscription tv trials. He cited anti-sentiments of AFL-CIO President George Meany and a resolution at the AFL-CIO convention in Atlantic City that "unreservedly" opposed pay tv.

The next witness, Henry Wadsworth, Hollywood AFL Film Council, supported the tests. He cited the stimulus that pay tv would provide in the film industry and said that film workers did not regard television as a "beast" but rather as an opportunity.

Rep. Rhodes questioned the Council's stand at the AFL-CIO convention referred to by Mr. Biemiller. Mr. Wadsworth answered the Council had decided to remain silent at the convention.

Another advocate of the tests, Raymond F. Kohn, president of Penn-Allen Broadcasting Co., Allentown, Pa., said that trial opponents were the "same interests who choked off fm and uhf."

He cited the dismissal of his application in 1955 for permission to use the now-dark uhf facilities of WFMZ (TV) Allentown to test the "devil's handwork or heaven's blessing" of this new development. At that time, he said, the FCC did not dismiss it as "illogical, but as 'premature.'"

Mr. Kohn maintained that no one could say at this time whether or not subscription was good or bad and that the FCC had taken a "sane, sensible, logical" step in looking for a public demonstration.

In the closing moments of the hearings, Harvey Rosenberg, American Citizens TV Committee, expressed opposition to testing of toll tv. Chairman Harris then accepted written statements from the following: WTAO-TV Cambridge, Mass. (blackout uhf), which contended that pay tv would enable it to survive.

Illinois Congressman Deluged With Heavy Anti-Pay Tv Mail

Two Illinois members of the House Interstate & Foreign Commerce Committee were literally flooded last week with anti-pay tv letters after WCIA (TV) Champaign, Ill., asked viewers to inform their congressmen how they felt on the matter.

Republican William L. Springer late Thursday had received over 8,000 letters and 453 telegrams; Democrat Peter F. Mack over 10,000 letters and 2,300 telegrams. Impressive to the two congressmen was the fact that each letter was different from the next and all had been individually written.

WCIA, after first determining that Reps. Springer and Mack would like to know how their constituents felt on the subject, made the plea over the weekend of Jan. 18. The station also broadcast editorials against pay tv, but stressed that viewers should express their sentiments, whether for or against.

Rep. Mack’s office reported that all the letters except one have been against pay tv. Rep. Springer, who had four members of his office staff working on the letters Thursday, said the sentiment was “overwhelmingly against” toll. Rep. Springer, an outspoken foe of pay tv, said the letters had served to solidify his stand as the right one.

He also felt that WCIA had rendered a public service in bringing the toll situation to the attention of its viewers and said that editorializing by stations on such matters as pay tv is a good thing [see EDITorials, page 114].

Most common argument—and one which was not stressed in the just concluded pay tv hearings—against pay tv was one by mothers who said they would deposit coins for a program and then be interrupted to take care of the children, answer the phone, and 1,000 other daily chores of the housewife. Consequently, they would spend their money without actually being able to watch the program.

Also last week, the march of anti-toll bills continued unabated. Reps. Thomas J. Lane (D-Mass.) and Albert P. Morano (R-Conn.) both introduced measures which would prohibit the charging of a fee to view television in the home. The two bills (HR 10164 by Rep. Morano and HR 10162 by Rep. Lane) raised the number of anti-pay tv bills pending in Congress to nine. Several more legislators have announced intentions to introduce similar measures.

Second Oral Argument Heard By FCC in Flint Ch. 12 Case

The FCC last week for the second time in four years heard oral argument on the ch. 12 Flint, Mich., tv case.

At issue is whether the change of transmitter site by WJRT (TV) Flint, the successful applicant following a hard fought comparative hearing, for the station was of the application to such an extent as to disqualify it.

The Commission approved the WJRT application for a change in antenna location from south of Flint to north of the city in 1955. Unsuccessful applicants WFDF Flint and W. S. Butterfield Theatres Inc. contested the change, claiming that applicant WIR Detroit was changing its application. FCC regulations prohibit an applicant from amending his application after a hearing has begun. The FCC denied the WFDF and Butterfield contentions; they appealed and the U. S. Court of Appeals in Washington remanded the case to the FCC on the ground that the comparative hearing was still “open.”

Last year a hearing examiner issued a supplemental initial decision affirming the FCC’s 1954 grant [GOVERNMENT, Sept. 16, 1957]. The argument last week was on this recommendation.

Also arguing against WJRT was ch. 57 WKNX-TV Saginaw, Mich. This station held not only that WJRT should be disqualified, but took the position that the status of the other applicants also had changed so radically the whole hearing should start again from scratch. At the time of the original hearing, WFDF was part of the Consolidated group (Harry Bit- ner); all except the Flint station were sold to Time Inc. There have been changes in the Butlerfield situation also, WKNX-TV contended.

WJRT stated it had not intended, nor does it conceal any information on its plans and the change was made after it had received the grant and the comparative case was closed.

In a second oral argument last week, Midwestern Broadcasting Co. (Les Biederman interests) and Straits Broadcasting Co. (WCBY) argued in their own behalf for the grant of ch. 4 Cheboygan, Mich. An initial decision favors Midwestern.

All Will Have Time to File For Barrow Report Testimony

The FCC last week told inquiring networks and affiliates anxious to appear at the March 3 open hearing on the Barrow Report [GOVERNMENT, Jan. 13] that it would be lenient—it would give all comers time to file appearances.

The deadline for appearances is Jan. 31, but the Commission has already told one group of CBS affiliates that it could file its nominations by Feb. 8, and another CBS group by Feb. 15. The filings are for the purpose of identifying witnesses and the subjects on which they will testify.

Meanwhile, the Commission has received responses to its “citations” last month [GOVERN- MENT, Jan. 6] asking networks and stations to respond to charges carried in the Barrow Report of network pressures on stations involving rates and time clearances. First responses were from Storer Broadcasting Co. (two stations) and WBTB(TV) Charlotte, N. C. Both stated that they had no knowledge of the alleged pressures, and anyway their spot rates were not changed to the levels allegedly sought by the networks.

The Commission granted CBS to Feb. 7 to answer the purported violation of present chain broadcasting rules. It is also understood that ABC has asked for an extension. NBC’s reply is not due till this week.

Liquor Bill Comes Up Again

The anti-spirits crusaders are slated for their annual journey to Capitol Hill next month when hearings will be held by the Senate Interstate & Foreign Commerce Committee on the bill (S 582) of Sen. William Langer (R-N. D.) to regulate liquor advertising on radio and television. Committee last week agreed to permit Chairman Warren D. Magnuson (D-Wash.) to designate the exact date. It will not be held until Feb. 15, following a request from labor groups which intend to participate but which will be holding national conventions in late January and early February.

GENERAL ELECTRIC
BRICKER NETWORK BILL UP AGAIN

- Senator to press for hearings on regulation measure
- Timing depends on action on Barrow, Cox proposals

Sen. John W. Bricker (R-Ohio) let it be known last week that he will push for Senate passage this year of his nearly four-year-old proposal for FCC regulation of radio and television networks.

At the same time Chairman Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.) of the Senate Interstate & Foreign Commerce Committee, of which Sen. Bricker is ranking minority member and former chairman, announced that hearings will be held on the Bricker legislation (S 376) in the "near future."

An "informal" (telephone) conference among Sens. Bricker and Magnuson and Chairman John C. Doerfer of the FCC—planned over the past weekend—was to determine just how near in the future that will be.

The snag: The Commerce Committee wants the FCC to go on the witness stand to state its views on the proposal to regulate networks and to comment on charges which have been made against network operation time, must-buys and other practices, which have been condemned in a staff report to the committee by its former special TV counsel, Kenneth A. Cox (LEAD STORY, July 1, 1957), and by others before and after. The FCC, on the other hand, has withheld its views pending its final action on its own staff study, the Barrow Report, which makes similar charges and covers much the same ground and on which the FCC has set hearings beginning March 3.

The weekend conference among Sens. Bricker, Magnuson and Chairman Doerfer was asked by the two senators so they could get an estimate of when the FCC expects to wind up its hearings and act on the Barrow recommendations.

If the senators learn that the FCC expects to clean up the Barrow Report by, say, "April," a Bricker spokesman said Thursday, then the Senate Commerce Committee will hold up its own planned hearings on the Bricker bill until after it receives the final FCC report. But if the senators ascertain that the Commission will not be ready to make its report until "something like June"—which would give little time during this session to hold hearings on the measure and get Senate action on it before an expected adjournment in early or mid-August—both Sen. Bricker and Sen. Magnuson are prepared to begin hearings as soon as the committee can clear dates for such sessions.

It was learned that the Ohio Republican wants to get his proposal before the Senate and passed during this last session of the 85th Congress, although he does not expect there will be time to get it acted upon by the House.

Sen. Bricker's long-range plan is to get Senate approval this year, even if the measure dies in the House upon Congress' adjournment late this summer. He feels Senate approval this year, preceded by committee hearings, would mean there would be little Senate delay in approving the same legislation when Sen. Bricker re-introduces the bill into the 86th Congress, as he fully intends. This would get it to the House side sooner for consideration in the 86th Congress.

The Bricker proposal was first introduced May 13, 1954, during the GOP-controlled 83rd Congress when Sen. Bricker was chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee. Although the Democrats have controlled the 84th and 85th Congresses, the Ohioan has re-introduced the identical measure each time. But, until now, he has never pushed for its passage.

The reason Sen. Bricker has been willing to let the network-restricting legislation lie in committee is that the Senate Commerce Committee has been conducting its three-phase probe of television—TV network practices, uhf-vhf allocations problems and pay television.

This investigation was inaugurated by Sen. Bricker when he was chairman of the committee in 1954 and has been continued by the Democrats under Sen. Magnuson. The Bricker move for a TV probe by the full committee followed hearings on uhf problems, held in the spring of 1954 by a Senate Commerce subcommittee then headed by Sen. Charles E. Potter (R-Mich.).

Last week Sen. Bricker apparently felt he had waited long enough to see action on his proposal. And apparently the senator feels that his proposal, as amended, has been justified to some extent by a suggestion in the Barrow Report that the FCC might want to look into the possibility of whether it should regulate the networks.

Sen. Bricker's spokesman said last week the Ohioan is still convinced that "sooner or later some form of regulation for networks" is needed. "Not strangulation," he said, but "some check" to make them responsible to the FCC so that agency will know "what they are doing—that they are not just free entities." He said those people who feel the senator wants to make public utilities of the networks are "wrong."

The Bricker spokesman was quick to admit that hearings on the Bricker legislation would in large part duplicate what has been done already by the Senate Commerce Committee in its overall TV probe, and by other groups such as the House Antitrust Subcommittee. But he still felt that such additional hearings were necessary on the senator's proposal to make networks, as such, answerable to the FCC and to the provisions of the Communications Act as the act would be amended by the measure.

Smathers' BMI Bill Set for Hill Hearing

The Communications Subcommittee of the Senate Interstate & Foreign Commerce Committee will begin hearings March 11 on a bill (S 2834) by Sen. George Smathers (D-Fla.) which would prohibit radio and television stations and networks from ownership in music publishing firms and/or record companies.

In announcing the hearings, Sen. John O. Pastore (D-R.I.), subcommittee chairman, took notice of the widespread interest the bill has attracted within the industry [Government, Sept. 2, Aug. 26, 1957]. He said individual prominent in broadcasting and the music recording industry will be invited to testify.

In introducing the bill, Sen. Smathers charged the networks, through ownership in BMI, have created a “monopoly” with the result that inferior songs are broadcast to the damage of better material.

Specifically, the legislation provides that no construction permit or license for a broadcasting station shall be granted or held by (a) any person or corporation engaged in, or which owns any interest in a corporation engaged in, the business of publishing music or of selling or controlling recordings of musical composition; (b) any corporation which directly or indirectly is controlled by any person or corporation engaged in the business of publishing music or of manufacturing and selling recordings.

Any licensee in violation of the bill, at the discretion of Congress, would be given a “reasonable time” to dispose of the interests placing it in violation. The networks, while not licensed as such by the Commission, would come under provisions of the bill because of their ownership of radio and television stations.

Members of ASCAP and Songwriters Protective Assn. have been vocal in their praise of the Smathers proposal. ASCAP repeatedly has charged that its songs have been forced off the airwaves by the networks in favor of BMI songs. ASCAP currently has pending a $150 million damage suit against BMI.

Sen. Smathers' bill, in turn, has been bitterly attacked by broadcasters associations and BMI, which charged Sen. Smathers has been misled by ASCAP "propaganda." ASCAP, BMI charged, is seeking publicity which will prejudice the courts in the pending lawsuit.

Sen. Pastore stated Thursday that the lawsuit will play no role whatsoever in the hearings. "My only and sole concern is in the public interest," he said, in stressing that testimony will be limited to matters over which Congress has jurisdiction.

Members of the subcommittee are Sen. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.), Strom Thurmond (D-S.C.), John Bricker (R-Ohio) and Charles Potter (R-Mich.). Sen. Smathers is a member of the parent committee.

Latest opposition to the S 2834 bill has been registered by the Connecticut Broadcasting Assn. in letters to the two Connecticut senators, Republicans Prescott Bush and William Purcell. The association claimed the bill implies that broadcast licensees would do show partiality to BMI songs over ASCAP numbers. To refute this contention, the Connecticut group invited senators to visit, unannounced, any station and witness the methods by which music is selected for programming.

WMUR-TV Bid Still in Hearing; New Filing for Ch. 9 Dismissed

The application of Television for New Hampshire Inc. for ch. 9 Manchester, N. H., in opposition for license renewal of ch. 9 WMUR-TV that city has been dismissed by Chief Hearing Examiner James D. Cunningham [Closed Circuit, Jan. 13].

The dismissal was requested by the former group. The WMUR-TV application was continued in hearing. At one point several weeks ago an arrangement was worked out by which TV for New Hampshire Inc. was to buy WMUR-TV from former New Hampshire Gov. Francis P. Murphy. The price was said to be $720,000. The deal, however, fell through.

Last year WMUR-TV was sold to Storer Broadcasting Co. for $850,000. Action followed on the move of the ch. 9 outlet closer to Boston. This transaction fell through when it became impossible to find a site near Boston which would receive Airspace Panel approval.

FCC Threatens to Pick Up Two Station Authorizations

It ordered a hearing for ch. 13 KYAT (TV) Yuma, Ariz., for failure to build. It also sent a McFarland letter to KTHE Thermopolis, Wyo., charging that its ownership had been changed without prior FCC approval.

In the Yuma case, KYAT has been trying to move ch. 13 into El Centro, Calif., and asked the Commission to extend its cp until the rule-making proposal is determined. KYAT is owned by Weather-Alvarez Broadcasting Co., which also owns KPMB-AM-TV San Diego, Calif., and KERO-TV Bakersfield, Calif.

In the Thermopolis case, W. S. Black was charged with operating KTHE illegally, since he did not secure prior Commission approval. Mr. Black bought the station for $5,000 at a bankruptcy sale last year [Government, Nov. 25, 1957].

FCC to Deny WSLA-TV Move

The FCC last week directed its staff to prepare an order denying the application of ch. 8 WSLA-TV Selma, Ala., to move its transmitter closer to Montgomery, and to build a 2,000 ft. tower. The proposed site is 50 miles from Selma and 23 miles from Montgomery. A hearing examiner recommended disapproval last December [Government, Dec. 17, 1957]. The proposal was opposed by Montgomery stations and the U. S. Air Force.

Watch Over FCC Mileage Rules Seen by Lindow as AMST Duty

Full tv service for the public requires constant watch over FCC mileage separation rules by Assn. of Maximum Service Telecasters, the association points out in its first annual membership report.

In submitting the resume of the year's developments, Lester W. Lindow, AMST executive director, described field studies and laid out plans for the coming year. The AMST membership will meet April 27 in Los Angeles during the NAB convention.

All FCC applications for new stations and for transmitter shifts as well as all rule-making petitions are scanned by AMST counsel, the report shows, with oppositions filed if breakdown of maximum service is proposed.

Projects on the current schedule include continued efforts to obtain removal of the excise tax on all-channel tv sets to encourage uhf development. Reporting of House and Senate committee investigations will be continued. The association anticipates continued efforts to break down mileage separations and pressures on tv by other services. Organized and accelerated moves to create a system of drop-ins at degraded mileage separations are anticipated.

Accomplishments include reports on field studies of tv propagation characteristics in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and Baton Rouge, La., areas plus an upcoming report on the Madison, Wis., area. Mobile units are now operated in Columbia, S. C., and Fresno, Calif. The units traveled over 40,000 miles in 1957. The AMST findings have been submitted to Television Allocation Study Organization.

Three California TV Outlets To Carry 'Fee or Free' TV Debate

The subscription television issue will be debated again Jan. 31, 7:30-8:30 p.m., PST, on three northern California tv stations, according to KRON-TV San Francisco which will originate Fee or Free. Other stations may be added.

KSBW-TV Salinas-Monterey will pick up and rebroadcast the program while transmitting the KRON-TV signal by microwave relay to KSBY-TV San Luis Obispo. Participants thus far include Paul McNamara, International Telemeter Corp. vice president (for pay tv), against John Coban, KSBW-president-general manager, and Arnold C. Childhouse, director, Northern California Theatre Owners Assn. Questions telephoned by viewers, to be answered on the air, will be received on special telephones set up in the cities during the program.

The program will be the third on pay tv carried by KRON-TV since late last summer. The first was repeated by kinescope on KSBW-TV and KSBY-TV and reportedly prompted 5,006 viewers to write the two stations, with all but four condemning the pay system [Program Services, Nov. 11, 1957].

Will you “weather the winter” in good health?

During the stormy, disagreeable winter months, colds, pneumonia and influenza may strike with increasing frequency. And this winter brings another variety of influenza—“Asian flu.”

The symptoms of “Asian flu” are much like those of other “grippy” colds . . . fever, marked tiredness, and aching. Should these symptoms occur, call your doctor, go to bed . . . and stay there until he tells you that the likelihood of complications is over. Barring complications, doctors recommend home care rather than hospital treatment.

“Asian flu,” like a severe cold, can lead to pneumonia. Medical science, however, has become increasingly skillful in treating pneumonia. Today, all but a very small proportion of pneumonia cases are saved. But treatment must be started promptly to bring pneumonia under control quickly.

How you combat any respiratory disease depends a lot on your physical condition. While it is wise to maintain your general health in every way, it is equally wise to take preventive measures which may help guard against all respiratory infections.

Cover your coughs and sneezes with paper tissues.

Wash your hands thoroughly before eating.

Keep any member of your family who has cold or flu-like symptoms.

MGMTV TO BOOST ITS TV ACTIVITY

- Vogel reveals new tv plans
- Mgmtv reduced Loew's '57 losses

MGM-TV is stepping up its tv activity even further.

The new report of MGM-TV's plans for increased expansion is coincidental with this disclosure: money from tv was a major prop for Loew's in a period when the motion picture company's corporate health apparently sagged the most.

Indication of tv's importance in the past was contained in a report to stockholders by Loew's President Joseph R. Vogel that mixed hopeful news with the sad. The blue note was a $445,000 loss for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, 1957. The trumpeting: Loew's would have earned $745,000 if the company hadn't changed its accounting practices; the "downward trend" of Loew's business has been halted, and there will be a "resurgence of business" for the company starting with this motion picture season.

Loew's MGM Lion for about a year and a half has been on the prowl in the tv field. Loew's now leases exclusive rights to the pre-1948 MGM library; is filming programs for tv; is negotiating at present with ABC-TV to produce film for the network; has been expanding its production of tv commercials and rents studio facilities to other companies for tv film production. (Example: California National Productions' filming on the MGM lot of the Union Pacific tv series.)

Mr. Vogel did not detail Loew's current tv activity, but noted, "Our television production has expanded profitably and is contributing to a more efficient utilization of our studio facilities."

He revealed tv's hypodermic effect in a brief rundown of the corporation subsidiary contributions which showed every division making money except motion picture production and distribution.

Before interest charges and federal income taxes, Loew's MGM Television, radio, record and music publishing subsidiaries earned $5,520,000; its domestic and Canadian theatres earned $3,975,000; but its MGM studio and distribution operations lost $7,784,000.

MGMTV has a number of projects underway. This is the status of current activity and future plans:

- Charles C. (Bud) Barry, MGM-TV vice president, was expected to leave for England this week to negotiate the sale of Northwest Passage tv series to BBC. Northwest has been sold to NBC-TV and will be slotted as a half-hour or hour series on Sunday nights next fall, possibly as a lead-in audience builder for the Steve Allen Show.

- MGM-TV has been conferring with George Cukor, MGM producer-director, on a proposed hour or 90-minute dramatic anthology (on the idea of Playhouse 90, MGM explains). The series would draw on unproduced properties owned by MGM. A number of other MGM properties on which motion pictures were based in the past also is being considered by MGM-TV for television series.

- New accounts are being signed for its tv commercial production unit in Culver City. Mr. Barry has appointed Elmer Wilsche, formerly in a managerial function with Fine Sound, an MGM subsidiary, as business manager of the department. Virgil (Buzz) Ellsworth is manager of the commercial and industrial department.

- MGM-TV has revived talks with Leonard Goldenson, president of AB-PT, and James T. Aubrey Jr., ABC-TV vice president in charge of programming and talent, on possible MGM production for ABC-TV. It has dusted off the proposed anthology formerly called Mystery Street and now titled, Act of Violence.

- The studio's first entry on the network—Thin Man on NBC-TV has been chalked up as a success. Colgate-Palmolive has renewed the show (At Deadline, Jan. 13) for another 26 weeks—13 new programs for the rest of the season and 13 reruns.

- The MGM features (more than 700 being distributed to tv by MGM-TV itself) are now in approximately 88 markets, representing a value in gross sales of about $52 million.

- The fiscal 1957 period was a critical one for Loew's. The huge motion picture (MGM) and theatre (Loew's Theatres) company was undergoing an internal tug-of-war over control, while attempting to reduce unwieldy, top-heavy expenditures and at the same time build up its motion picture production.

Mr. Vogel came out on top after a prolonged battle with a dissident stockholder group. He also has been effecting economies. In the first quarter of the current fiscal year, Loew's lost $1,290,849, or 24 cents per common share, Mr. Vogel said, "before the upturn began to assert itself."

Gold Medal Studios Announces $750,000 Expansion Plan in N. Y.

Gold Medal Studios Inc., New York, which leases space to television and motion picture producers, will spend $750,000 in the next three years to expand its facilities based on the firm belief that both motion picture and television film production will be done more and more in the East. Martin Poll, president of Gold Medal, stated at a luncheon last Tuesday.

Mr. Poll stressed the substantially lower equal to production costs as a primary factor in helping his organization reach its decision to expand. He also has been effecting a substantial and careful approach to the city because of the economic benefits.

The expansion at Gold Medal Studios (located in the former Biograph lot in the Bronx) will include the addition of six new stages in addition to the present two. Almost immediately, Gold Medal will take over one additional studio in the Bronx and add another in the DuMont Telecentre, 205 E. 67 St., in midtown Manhattan. The studio, to be known as Gold Medal Midtown, is considered a secondary development compared to the Bronx expansion—where four new stages will be built. The Bronx studios will be known as Gold Medal Uptown.

Dietz Status at Loew's Revised

As part of an economy move by Loew's Inc., the film firm announced that Howard Dietz, vice president in charge of advertising, publicity and exploitation, has relinquished his $2,000-per-week post to become consultant to the firm at $1,000 per week. The veteran executive is credited with many industry publicity innovations, including the lion head trademark for MGM. Loew's President Joseph R. Vogel meanwhile is submitting a revised slate of 19 board nominees to stockholders for the annual meeting Feb. 27.

Parton to New SG Sales Post

The promotion of A. Frank Parton to the newly-created post of southwest area manager of syndication sales for Screen Gems Inc. was announced last week by Robert Seidelman, syndication sales manager of Screen Gems. The southwest area becomes the sixth division of SG's syndication sales organization.

Mr. Parton has been a sales executive with Screen Gems in Houston for two years and previously was with Ziv Television Programs. As part of an expansion move in the southwest area, Richard Campbell, formerly manager of KNAC-TV Fort Smith, Ark., has joined the staff under Mr. Parton. The division headquarters is in Houston.

NTA 'Hall of Fame' Programming
Now Being Offered to Stations

National Telefilm Assoc., New York, is offering tv stations a program service plan providing them with unlimited use of about 1,000 hours of film programming, including feature films, series and short subjects, it was announced last week by Harold Goldman, NTA executive vice president.

Titled "Hall of Fame" programming, the package will be sold through NTA's Famous Films Div., which handles sales on re-run films. Feature films in the package include "How Green Was My Valley," "The Ox-Bow Incident," "The House on 92nd Street" and "The Foxes of Harrow." Among the half-hour series in the library are The Adventures of China Smith, Combat Sergeant, International Playhouse and Orient Express. The library also includes cartoons and short subjects.

Edward M. Gray, NTA vice president, is in charge of the western area for Famous Films and Stanley Florschheim, general manager, supervises the eastern area. New account executives at Famous Films are Charles D. McNamee, with NTA since 1955; Charles King, formerly with Television Programs of America; Leo W. Knight, previously with Ziv Television Programs, and Jerry Weisfeld, formerly with C&C Television Corp.

NTA Network Status Uncertain
As Initial Programming Ends

The direction that the NTA Film Network will take in the next few months was in doubt last week as its main programming effort, Premiere Performance, was ending its schedule of 39 weeks in a few scattered markets throughout the country.

The network began operating on a commercial basis last April with Warner-Lambert Pharmaceutical Co. sponsoring two-thirds of Premiere Performance—consisting of one and one-half hours per week of feature film programming on 134 stations. The 39-week sponsorship ended the beginning of January, except in markets which had not run off all the dates. During the 39-week period, other advertisers sponsoring Premiere Performance included P. Lorillard & Co., Hazel Bishop, Sunbeam Corp. and Smith Bros.

A spokesman for Lambert & Feasley, agency for Warner-Lambert, said the company was "very satisfied" with the NTA programming, adding the sponsorship was not renewed because the company committed itself last fall to sponsor one-half of NBC-TV's Tic Tac Dough and all of NBC-TV's Restless Gun. He added that Warner-Lambert had tried, unsuccessfully, to sell half of Restless Gun, hence could not consider renewed sponsorship of Premiere Performance.

An NTA spokesman insisted the dropping of Premiere Performance will not interfere with other plans for the NTA Film Network. He said plans are now in the formative stage and encompass various half-hour series produced by TCF Television Productions, Hollywood, and several live series.

ON CAMERA

CBS reports it has authorized Talent Associates Ltd., N. Y., to begin production of pilot film for new television series Too Young to Go Steady, starring Don Ameche and Polly Bowles, which will be done live from New York. Series will be produced by Michael Abbott, with David Susskind as executive producer and will be owned jointly by CBS and Talent Assoc.

Screen Gems will begin production next month in Hollywood of Dial 116, half-hour tv film adventure-suspense that is expected to be ready for syndication next fall. Series will be produced for SG by Herbert B. Leonard. Cooperation of Rescue Squad of Los Angeles Fire Dept., whose telephone number is 116, has been enlisted by producer.

Warner Bros.-Tv has begun laying groundwork for its fourth new tv series scheduled for advertiser-availability next fall. Series of 39 episodes is titled Room for One More. TV Spots Inc., Hollywood, is making 26 five-minute episodes of new Crusader Rabbit tv cartoon series for distribution by Capital Enterprises. Sam Nicholson is production supervisor and Chris Bob Hayward, writer. Series is planned for March 15 release.

Voters Get the Picture In Pro-Radar Campaign

The battle in Pennsylvania over the legality of installing radar "speed traps" along the state's major arteries may be settled peacefully—through local television bought and paid for by a state agency.

For years, the Pennsylvania state legislature has delayed radar for traffic control by keeping enabling legislation bottled up in committee. Among those for radar and against the legislature is Gov. George Leader.

Last Monday, the pro-radar forces took their battle to the public. That day, the Bureau of Highway Safety, Dept. of Revenue—through Smith, Taylor & Jenkins Adv., Pittsburgh—bought 10 live 30-minute blocks of time from WTPA (TV) Harrisburg. Purpose: To show the public, via remote tv, how the installation of radar can cut down traffic hazards and save life and limb. Two programs per afternoon, Monday through Friday, were scheduled.

The means used in the attempt to justify the end: Pennsylvania's annual state farm show sponsored by the commonwealth's agriculture department and a big attraction at this time of the year. While other state departments exhibited their prize accomplishments and purposes, the Highway Dept. staged an educational exposition of radar. This is how it did it:

WTPA (TV) General Manager Don Wear sent the station's remote unit to a busy stretch of U. S. Rt. 22 five miles outside of Harrisburg. Its job: To "track" approaching autos and trucks with one camera while another concentrated steadily on the state-manned radar meter. When a vehicle broke the 35 mph limit, the camera would pick up the radar needle clocking the speed and superimpose this image over the guilty car or truck.

Able to watch this—and listen to the running commentary by WTPA Program Manager Mac McCauley—were 214,485 fair visitors plus regular WTPA viewers. WTPA installed four 21-inch monitors at the highway safety exhibit at the fair and staged its "test programs" twice each afternoon, at 2:30 and again at 3:30. The purpose was to convince the voter that radar policing does not constitute "invasion of privacy."

About 51% of all vehicles seen during the test were exceeding the speed limit. Viewers on Tuesday afternoon saw a state patrolman catch and ticket a speeding truck. This was unannounced. After writing the ticket, the patrolman drove back to the WTPA remote truck to ask what was going on and learned he had been on television.

WGN-TV Gets Cubs Home Games

A new two-year contract for rights to the Chicago Cubs daytime home games has been signed by WGN-TV that city and the club's management, it was announced Wednesday. The pact, covering the 1958-59 schedules, supplements a three-year TV agreement previously negotiated with the Chicago White Sox (1958 through 1960) and a five-year arrangement for radio broadcasts of all Cubs contests starting this season. Jack Brickhouse and Vince Lloyd will handle play-by-play of both teams on telecasts. Jack Quinn and Lou Boudreau have been signed for radio coverage.

WOR-TV to Carry 78 Games Of Philadelphia Phillies

WOR-TV New York, which had been telecasting the games of the Brooklyn Dodgers until the team moved to Los Angeles at the end of the last season, last week completed plans for carrying 78 games of the Philadelphia Phillies schedule this spring and summer. It was reported the station bought the tv rights for about $350,000.

A joint announcement last week from Gordon Gray, executive vice president and general manager of WOR-TV, and Robert R. M. Carpenter Jr., president of the Phillies, said the station will telecast 58 home games and 20 road contests. The Phillies will meet Cincinnati 14 times, the Braves 9 times and Los Angeles, San Francisco, Pittsburg, St. Louis and Chicago once each.

The schedule has been arranged so it will not conflict with the home game telecasts.

Precon, KTLA (TV) Agree On SP Telecasting Plan

KTLA (TV) Los Angeles and Precon Equipment & Development Corp. have concluded an agreement whereby KTLA will utilize Precon equipment and know-how to initiate subliminal perception telecasting in Los Angeles, according to an announcement made jointly by Lew Arnold, general manager of KTLA, and A. Brown Moore, Precon president.

The developers of the Precon system, Dr. Robert E. Corrigan and Hal C. Becker, both Precon vice presidents, will work with John Silva, chief engineer of KTLA, to bring the technique to television as soon as possible. Equipment designed for the Precon system of subliminal communications now is being manufactured by General Precision Labs., New York.

The agreement between KTLA and Precon is a leasing arrangement whereby the station is to pay Precon $2,500 a month for the right to use the apparatus and to have the help of the Precon experts in developing proper techniques for communicating with the TV audience at a level below that of conscious perception. The agreement specifies that the subliminal telecasts will conform to the rules and regulations of the government agencies involved and that KTLA will inform the viewing public whenever the process is being used.

The KTLA lease was concluded last Monday, just six days after the Precon process had been demonstrated and explained at a meeting of the Los Angeles Advertising Club [Program Services, Jan. 20]. At that time Mr. Moore had felt that TV broadcasters were poor prospects for his company until the FCC gives its blessing to subliminal telecasting. Now, a company spokesman said, TV stations are considered to be the most promising market for Precon equipment, particularly stations in such major cities as New York, Philadelphia, Detroit and Chicago. Neil Sinclair, Precon sales manager, will be in New York this week to discuss the matter with TV station executives in that city.

Syracuse Case Dismissed Again

A $1 million treble damage antitrust suit against the Syracuse Post-Standard and Herald Journal and WSYR-AM-TV Syracuse was dismissed for the second time in five years last week by a federal judge.

Judge Stephan W. Brennan dismissed the claim filed by WNDR Syracuse against the Newhouse newspapers and broadcast stations. He said that WNDR had failed to supply vital information. The suit had previously been dismissed by Judge Brennan in 1955, but an appeals court reversed the dismissal in 1956 and ordered trial [Sta-TIONS, Sept. 17, 1956]. WNDR brought the suit on charges that the Newhouse newspapers engaged in “package” advertising deals and that spread “false rumors” about WNDR.

WOR Spends $450,000 on News For Return of $1.5 Million

There is a sound profit motive behind the expansion of quarter-hour news periods by WOR New York—a million-dollar motive.

Introducing a lunch meeting of the Radio & Television Executives Society of New York to the inner workings of WOR's news operations last Wednesday at WOR, Robert J. Leder, station vice president and general manager, said the "payoff has been tremendous" in both income and ratings. He said WOR last year realized $1.5 million gross from its news programming on an investment of $450,000 for both talent and facilities. News shows now command premium rates, he noted.

Earlier this month WOR expanded its quarter-hour news schedule to every hour on the hour Monday through Friday, 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Five-minute and quarter-hour news shows also are aired at other periods, including those of MBS. WOR emphasizes straight news without interpretive commentary and uses many live pickups from two mobile units plus an airplane, the latter also enhancing showmanship, Mr. Leder said.

WOR has eight news casters and 10 writers on its staff, plus stringers both locally and abroad.

The WOR executive said success of the quarter-hour newscast is evidenced in rating results and proves "people want the news in depth. I've never found a valid reason for the five-minute news show. It is just a sales expedience and I believe the sales departments of stations have dictated the trend."

Mr. Leder explained that in each case where a quarter-hour news strip was added the audience rating improved. He said that in one month the new 11 a.m., 12 noon and 1 p.m. quarter-hour newscasts obtained a 30% rating increase over previous programming.

The WOR demonstration for RTES was heightened by a news break involving a mobile unit. What made fast coverage of a hillside disaster in the Bronx unique was that WOR could claim a beat. News executives of competitive major stations were part of the "captive" audience in the WOR studios at the time.

KLOS Granted Stay Against KQUE In 'Who's Got the Button' Case

There seemed to be a little confusion in Albuquerque, N. M., last week over a potent question: "Who's got the button?" Interested parties were KLOS, KQUE and the radio audience.

KLOS at the weekend had a temporary court injunction restraining KQUE from broadcasting clues aired by KLOS, operating a $500-per-week "Button, Button" contest built around hidden checks.

The button contest, controlled by Murray Worner, was started Jan. 14 by KLOS, according to E. Boyd Whitney, station president-general manager. Rights to clues were sold to sponsors and a $500 check was found the first week after the clues became highly directive.

Mr. Whitney told Broadcasting that KQUE monitored KLOS and put KLOS clues on its own air. Last Thursday Judge Robert W. Reidy of the district court granted a temporary injunction restraining KQUE from broadcasting the KLOS clues; a hearing will be held tomorrow (Tuesday). Mr. Whitney said KQUE offered $600 to any listener who would give it a $500 check hidden by KLOS.

KQUE made this statement to Broadcasting: "Our station is now and in the future against sensational money giveaways. We are for solid radio entertainment. Our format speaks for itself. We like contests but, frankly, it's hard enough for us to support KQUE, let alone all of Albuquerque."

Young Report Claims Big Swing To Independent Radio Dominance

The growth of local independent radio over the network affiliate, according to Adam Young Inc., New York, is "no longer a trend . . . it's an accomplished fact." The station representative Friday made public a revised edition of its earlier report, "The Dynamic Change in Radio," continuing the analysis of audience trends in the nation's top 25 markets between 1952-56. The revised report brings the report through late 1957.

The report claims a protracted drop in popularity of the network affiliate. In 1952, it noted, top-rated stations in the top 25 markets were dominated by network affiliates. At the time there existed no independent station with a "top" rating. Today the reverse is practically in order, the Young report claimed, with the ratio of independent vs. network affiliate in terms of popularity being 21 to 4.

It also said that "with the exception of the progressive plans of ABN [for other news concerning this network, see page 68], network programming fails to generate listener identity. This is why in every one of the top 25 markets, an independent station ranks among the top three in audience size. It is also noteworthy that in markets where network affiliates have substantial audiences, their non-network programming closely resembles the format of leading independents."

The Young organization represents stations in 12 of the 25 markets analyzed. At present it represents no network affiliate save, perhaps CKLW Windsor, Canada (Detroit), which carries occasional MBS programming.

WERE-FM Silence Not Complete

WERE-FM Cleveland is off the air while a new antenna is being installed. When the station resumes broadcasting in mid-February it will operate with 40 kw, using a new RCA six-bay antenna and new studio equipment.

While WERE-FM raises its new transmitter, WBOE (FM), the Cleveland Board of Education station, is broadcasting part of the WERE-FM schedule on a non-commercial basis. Three hours of programming are fed each evening from WERE-FM studios to WBOE for broadcast under a cooperative plan worked out by Leo Batten, manager of the educational station, and Sam Eldred, director of programs and promotion of WERE-FM. Arrangements were made on a tentative one-month basis.
BOSTON SUBURBS—Streeter Stuart, news commentator of WBZ-AM-TV Boston, was getting ready to leave the office Thursday afternoon when two Air Force jets collided over the Arlington-Winchester area near Boston, three blocks from his home. The commentator, a film hobbyist, reported to work that day ready to go on the air with a complete story in narrative and motion pictures. WBZ-TV laboratories processed the film and had it ready for broadcasting in 20 minutes, setting a shop record.

While Mr. Stuart was getting first pictures of the crash, regular staffs and stringers of the Westinghouse stations were being dispatched by the mobile telephone system employed by station personnel and some 30 stringers. Reports were quickly rounded up from where the two planes hit (one crashed into two unoccupied homes, the other on the beach) and from the hospitals where two surviving pilots were taken.

Coverage was coordinated by John Luttrell, news editor of WBZ-TV, and F. E. (Dinny) Whitemarsh, news supervisor. WBZ-TV telecast the first film at 2:20 p.m. and new reports thereafter during the day. Radio highlights included several eyewitness reports by beeper phone.

WINSTON-SALEM—Spot coverage of the Ku Klux Klan-Indian riot at Maxton, N. C., by George Thomas, news director of WTBW Winston-Salem, N. C., went out to the world over CBS and wire services. One of his reports went on the air five minutes before the actual riot, at which time he predicted momentary violence, WTBW reports. In addition to his coverage, the wire services reported an incident of violence which occurred when Mr. Thomas and three UP bureau men were held up on a highway near the Indian village of Pembroke by three loads of rioters. Mr. Thomas’ byline story for INS was carried by many of the nation’s papers.

DENVER—Robert J. Scott, of KIMN Denver, obtained an interview with a confessed murderer of a local policeman and the station reports that it scooped 21 other radio and TV stations. The man, Donald Carl Zorens, was interviewed behind bars in the Denver County Jail and gave full details of his crime and his emotions before, during and after it happened. During the interview Mr. Zorens offered to give his car money to the widow and six children of the dead policeman.

FAIRBANKS—Live-camera coverage of Sputnik II passing over Alaska was given this month by KFAR-TV that city. It was visible in Alaskan skies for about four minutes and the station carried it on TV for 60 seconds. KFAR-TV reports that viewers called in to say the picture was clear. To get a picture of Sputnik, it was necessary for KFAR-TV’s chief engineer, William Van Blitterswyk, to lie on his back in the snow underneath the camera. Engineers used the stars to check reference points.

NIAGARA FALLS—A scoop was claimed by WJJJ, Niagara Falls, N. Y., last Tuesday for its coverage of a disastrous explosion there which injured many people and rocked the city. Direct lines with the police, hospitals and sheriff’s offices were maintained by News Director Jim Thompson and he coordinated the information for steady release over the air. Reports from the scene of the tragedy were fed to WJJJ by Sales Manager Walter Allen. General Manager Tom Talbot and Chief Engineer Gus Czapak were stationed at both of the city hospitals’ waiting rooms. In addition, Mr. Talbot gave a complete documentary, including a description of the damage.

NASSAU—Sylvia Scott, hostess of the weekly Get Together show on WMAR-TV Baltimore, set out for a two-week swing through the Bahamas filming feature material for her program when two ships showed back home. Her material was quickly turned tropical, however, when she got into Nassau in the middle of a general labor strike Jan. 14. Miss Scott used the transoceanic telephone to alert the WMAR-TV newsroom, going on to record and film a series of reports on the situation.

WFLN-AM-FM Schedules Stereo

A series of six stereophonic broadcasts of the Philadelphia Orchestra will be carried live by WFLN-AM-FM, that city, and made available to other stations in the form of stereophonic tape. WFLN is making the tapes available at $100 per program or onetime hourly rate, whichever is lower. Six stations already have notified Raymond S. Green, WFLN executive vice president, that they will carry the programs.

The first program will be broadcast March 14. WFLN will carry one pickup on its new am outlet, scheduled to take the air March 14, and the other on the fm station.

Republic-NBC Film Deal Brings Guild Actions

The sale of 140 post-1948 theatrical motion pictures to NBC's Owned Stations division for use on the network's own TV stations has brought Republic Pictures a pack of labor trouble along with the $2 million which NBC reportedly paid for the package [Film, Jan. 20].

Last Monday, the board of Screen Actors Guild unanimously voted to serve Republic and its TV subsidiary, Studio City Television Productions, with a 60-day notice of cancellation of contract for failing to negotiate with the Guild for additional payments to actors for this additional use of films on which they worked. In addition to the notice to Republic, SAG also notified its members that, effective 60 days from then, they may not work for Republic or any of its subsidiaries.

SAG said that the action was in accordance with a clause in its collective bargaining agreement with motion picture producers which permits SAG to withhold the services of its members from any producer putting theatrical films made after Aug. 11, 1948, into TV without arranging for payments to SAG members. Guild officials also stated that about a year ago Herbert Yates, Republic president, had made an oral "gentlemen's agreement" with the Guild that he would negotiate with it before selling any of his post-48 pictures for TV use.

The council of Writers Guild of America, West, meeting Monday evening, also voted to serve Republic with a 60-day cancellation of contract notice, to apply not only to the parent company and its subsidiaries but also to any organization in which it holds a 50% or more interest. This move, it was explained, would deprive independent picture producing companies working at Republic studios and financed in whole or majority by Republic from employing screen writer members of WGAW. To speed action, the WGAW council also put the matter on the agenda of its Feb. 13 membership meeting, at which time a strike could be called against the motion picture company.

Screen Producers Guild, whose president, Samuel G. Engel, got a group of leaders of the other guilds and also of the Theatre Owners of America together in Hollywood Jan. 16 for a strategy meeting on how to block the release of post-'48 films to television, took no action against Republic last week. The SPC contracts with motion picture production companies, it was learned, contains no clause like those in the SAG-WGAW agreements requiring the negotiation of extra payments if post-'48 films are released to TV.

The NBC-TV stations for which the Republic films were purchased may put those pictures on the air without fear of guild retaliation, guild spokesmen said. The agreements recognize the right of a motion picture company to release its pictures to television as well as to movie theatres and put no restrictions on the buyers and lessors. The guilds require only that the producing company make satisfactory arrangements with them for additional payments to their members for the TV use of the films made originally for theatrical presentation.

Richard G. Yates, vice president of Hollywood Television Service, Republic subsidiary which arranged the sale of the films to the stations, declined to comment on the action of the guilds.

A spokesman for the American Federation of Musicians in New York said the AFM is not involved in the dispute with Republic since the union holds contracts with producers covering release of post-'48 features to TV.

AFM, IATSE Officials to Plan Block on Imported Soundtracks

Presidents James C. Petrillo of the American Federation of Musicians and Richard Walsh of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees with other top level officials of the two unions will meet Feb. 4 in Miami to discuss means for blocking the use of imported soundtracks for filmed programs for television.

Conferences will include Eliot Daniel, president of AFM Local 47, Hollywood, whose members would normally be employed to provide music for TV programs filmed there. The local's monthly publication, Overture, devotes a full page of its January issue to a list of TV programs originating in Hollywood, of which 28 are said to use "live" music, five more that use it occasionally and 113 shows "using non-union and foreign canned music." The soundtrack editors are members of IATSE, hence that union's concern over the problem.

The members of Local 47, who are currently engaged in a court fight with the national AFM over its negotiating policy of securing payments into the muscle performance trust fund from employers, instead of wage increases for the musicians they employ, allege that the trust fund payments are being spent on foreign soundtracks on TV films. The AFM requirement that TV film producers employing union musicians contribute 5% of the overall cost of production to the trust fund resulting in payments so much in excess of the normal musical budget for a TV program that the producer is virtually forced to import his soundtrack, the rebelling musicians assert.

NABET Strike Vote Asked in Dispute

The negotiators for the National Assn. of Broadcast Engineers & Technicians last week asked its membership for strike authorization after charging that NBC and ABC representatives were employing "stalling" tactics in the current contract talks in Boston.

The discussions between NABET and the networks for a new contract covering 2,400 radio-TV engineers and associated employees began early this month. The present contract expires Friday and strike authorization would enable the union's negotiating committee to take this step, if it was deemed necessary.

The major demands sought by the union are a four-day, 32-hour week; a 15% wage increase; protection from "theatricalization"; an improved pension plan at NBC and the establishment of a pension plan at ABC, and non-contributory health and welfare plans in place of present plans supported partially by employee contributions.

Tyler Byrne, NABET international executive vice president and chairman of the negotiating committee, said network representatives had dismissed the union's demands as "fantastic." He claimed that both networks "could meet our demands without impairing their financial positions in the slightest degree."

Network officials could not be reached for comment on NABET's allegations.

A negotiating committee representing TV film commercial producers met again in New York last week with officials of the Screen Actors Guild to discuss demands made by SAG two weeks ago [Personnel Relations, Jan. 20]. It was reported that producers considered SAG's proposals "excessive" and felt they were merely a device to wring certain concessions from management. The Guild is seeking pay increases that range as high as 100%, predicated largely on a reclassification of the use payments principle. The present contract expires in March.

Stations Now Mailing ASCAP Renewals of Music Licenses

The first signed renewals of ASCAP television music performance licenses, extending the old agreements for four years on the same terms, are beginning to come back to ASCAP headquarters from stations around the country.

The three TV networks already had signed, on Jan. 10, four-year renewals of their own ASCAP contracts.

The ASCAP board of directors agreed Jan. 9 to the four-year renewals of both station and network agreements, which were favored not only by ABC-TV, CBS-TV and NBC-TV but also by an overwhelming majority—the vote was about 350 to "5 or 10"—of the nation's stations [PROGRAM SERVICES, Jan. 6].

ASCAP itself had indicated willingness to accept four-year renewals even before the stations were polled. But it wanted assurance that a "satisfactory" majority of stations would go along. Hence the polling, conducted by a 15-man all-industry committee headed by Irving Rosenhaus of WATV (TV) Newark, which had negotiated with ASCAP and unanimously recommended that stations accept.

Renewal contract forms were distributed to stations by Mr. Rosenhaus. They are to be returned directly to ASCAP, 575 Madison Ave., New York.

The new agreements are retroactive to Jan. 1 and expire Dec. 31, 1961. For blanket licenses, the choice of virtually all stations, the networks pay 2.05% of time sales involving ASCAP music, plus a sustaining fee equal to their highest quarter-hour-card rate per month. Networks pay 2.5% of time sales plus a sustaining fee of 110% of their highest half-hour rate per month.

The old agreements, which expired Dec. 31, have been extended to Jan. 31 to allow for signing and returning new contracts.

Petitions for Referendum Filed By L.A. Anti-Pay TV Committee

Chances for early inauguration of closed-circuit toll TV in Los Angeles dimmed last week as the Citizens Committee Against Pay TV filed petitions with the city clerk's office asking that the ordinances issued by the city council be set aside until the voters have a chance to express their views. Two petitions were filed, one for each of the franchises granted by the council to Skiatron TV Inc. and jointly to Fox West Coast Theatres and International Telemeter Corp.

Each petition carries more than 100,000 signatures, according to Julius Tuchler, chairman of the committee and representative of the Southern California Theatre Owners Assn., which has spearheaded the campaign to block the entry of toll TV into Los Angeles. The clerk's office has 30 days in which to check the names on the petitions to make sure they are actually registered voters. But with signatures totaling twice the number required for the referendum (51,767), it is anticipated that the toll issue will be on the primary ballot in June.

IRE Braced for New Record At March 24-27 Convention

The electronics show of the year—the Institute of Radio Engineers' annual convention—will be bigger than ever. It's set for March 24-27 in New York with a record 55,000 engineers and scientists expected.

The convention will feature 33 technical sessions at the Waldorf-Astoria and 22 at the New York Coliseum, which also will house the radio engineering show (20,000 displays by 850 exhibitors who represent 80% of the electronic industry's total production.)

A radio and TV session will occupy the afternoon of March 27 at the Coliseum. Speakers and topics slated: D. Sillman of Westinghouse Electric on design problems in transformerless single rectifier TV receivers; R. M. Bowie of Sylvania Electric Products on problems in two dimensional TV systems; J. P. Wolff and R. G. Rauth of RCA on a new high-power horizontal-output tube deflection system for color TV; C. Droppa of Sylvania on improvements in deflection amplifier design, and R. H. Overdeer of Philco Corp. on automatic gain control design considerations for TV receivers.

Also of interest to radio-TV sessions March 26-27 on broadcast transmission systems: stereophonic disc recordings; communications systems; audio, amplifier and receiver developments, and beam and display tubes, and a March 27 session on propagation and antennas.

Minter Shows New Stereo System

With two stereophonic disc recording systems already having been displayed—London and Westrex—a third made its debut last week as Components Corp., Denver, N. J., and Electro-Sonic Labs, Long Island City, N. Y., jointly introduced the Minter stereo disc compatible recording system. It is designed by Jerry B. Minter, electronic engineer who conceived the system.

The new system differs from Westrex and London in that it does not require either a special playback cartridge or a special cutter for twin cuts. It has one groove and can be played on any present monaural system. The second stereo channel is produced by means of an FM side channel which is contained within the primary signal recorded in the same lateral groove. For stereo operation, the signals are separated electrically and fed through separate amplifier and speaker systems. Stations investigating the use of stereo disc systems probably won't settle on a standard system for some time. Minter, as do Westrex and others, merely wants "to bid for serious consideration."

WFMY-TV Whips Up Promotion

The station knew State Trooper was coming, “so they baked a cake, . . .” As an announcement that Puffin biscuits had picked up sponsorship of the syndicated film series, WFMY-TV Greensboro, N. C., baked cakes decorated with frosted stars representing state trooper’s badges. The station sent them to top chain buyers in the Greensboro market, along with a note informing the buyer that the badge made him an honorary “State Trooper of Arizona.” The station reports that local buyers and the advertising manager for General Foods (manufacturers of Puffin biscuits) have commended WFMY-TV for the delectable promotion.

New Studios Opened by KPAR-TV

With reportedly more than 20,000 viewers sharing in the celebration, KPAR-TV Abilene, Tex., opened its new studios and increased its power to 91.2 kw Jan. 9. For a week preceding the opening, two “bunny” girls (representing KPAR-TV’s “Sam the Rabbit” trademark) visited Abilene service clubs with number-bearing arrows and peanut butter “kisses from KPAR Kuties.” The day of the opening, the “bunnies” and station personnel distributed the arrows to the crowd—in preparation for a drawing for a $5,500 prize giveaway. The 6:30 on-air dedication was emceed by Jimmie Isaacs, vice president of the West Texas Television Network (KPAR-TV, KDUB-TV Lubbock and KEDY-TV Big Spring). The network’s president, W. D. “Dub” Rogers, also spoke, as did several Abilene civic leaders. Viewers watched proceedings and the selection of prize-winning numbers through the glass windows which offer live studio presentations in full public view. The studio has 67,000 sq. ft. of production, office, and lab space. According to the station, the new power will be increased to 150 kw as soon as additional transmitting equipment installation is completed.

Buffalo’s Not-So-Sneak Preview

Telephone chaos resulted from WBUF-TV Buffalo’s attempt at getting immediate viewer response from a sneak preview of its new syndicated film package. Unlisted in any local newspaper, the movie went on the air unpromoted except for spot announcements. At the end of the film WBUF-TV gave the station’s phone number and requested that listeners call in saying whether or not they liked the show. In a period of two hours the station received 1,437 calls (one, from the state Telephone Co., informed WBUF that whatever had happened on the station, it was tying-up Buffalo’s dialing system). A final count showed 83% of viewers approved and looked forward to more movies from WBUF-TV’s package.

Name-Calling Gets WJAM ‘Firsts’

Inquisitive listeners are getting new advertisers for WJAM Marion, Ala. Several times a day it mentions names of merchants in the area who do not buy time from the station. Listeners’ curiosity, aroused by the unqualified announcement, prompts them to phone the retailer named. WJAM’s manager, Wayne Vowell, reports “this demonstration of radio’s power generally brings the retailer into the station,” adding that WJAM has many new advertisers since this technique was inaugurated.

French Auto Gets KBUR Test

A gasoline-economy test on the Simca automobile was staged by KBUR Burlington, Iowa, and the local franchise holder introducing this French import in the city. A six-day “count-down” spot campaign was scheduled and, on the day of the test, KBUR’s promotion manager Joe Young interviewed executives and mechanics of the car firm in a 25-minute program from the Simca’s garage while it was being readied. Under police surveillance 10 gallons of gas were put in the car and the tank sealed. Mr. Young then headed the Simca south, stopping every hour to call in a progress report to KBUR which it put directly on the air. The small car eventually ran out of fuel in Caruthersville,

KQV Promotes Affiliation With ABN

A many-faceted campaign was staged by KQV Pittsburgh announcing affiliation with ABN Jan. 13 and its new live policy. Operation “The Live One” started Jan. 6 with a series of one-inch teaser ads in the city’s three dailies. Each of the messages was directed at a first name (“Sam,” “Marie,” “Jerry” etc.) and read: “Call Express 1-3911. The Live One.” The station ran 252 of these ads during the advance promotion and installed a telephone answering service that said: “Hello. This is ‘The Live One.’ I invite you to tune into the newest sound in Pittsburgh—American live radio—station KQV . . .” Over 25,000 calls were received and almost as many busy signals were recorded, the station reports.

Agency executives and timebuyers were visited by one of the three models the station retained for giving out locked attache cases labeled: “The ‘Live One’ will return to open this Jan. 13.”

Focusing attention on KQV’s live policy, Program Director John Gibbs and d.j. Chuck Daughtery called on Pittsburh’s mayor, presenting him with a live Kinkajou bear. The mayor in turn signed a “Live One” Day proclamation and recorded a message that was aired frequently during the week’s promotion. On Jan. 11 three live turkeys were loosed in a busy shopping area and KQV announced $10 rewards plus the fowl for catching and bringing them to the station.

On the day of the switch to ABN, 24 models visited the admen and timebuyers to open the mysterious attache cases. Inside each was a transistor radio, dial permanently set on KQV, and a personal letter from the station’s general manager. The models, wearing KQV banners and carrying portable radios tuned loudly to the station, then mingled with the downtown shoppers. Topping off the promotion, a helicopter with “Live One” signs on both sides, flew over the city.

Last week ABN announced drastic revisions to its live programming policy (see NETWORKS).

KSD-TV Reveals All

KSD-TV St. Louis is making friends with the curious these days by inviting "sidewalk superintendents" to watch the station's new transmitting plant and tall tower go up. In a neat little folder advertising this special service, KSD-TV promises to send progress reports by mail "for your convenience." The cover of the promotional folder shows a typical sidewalk superintendent, with head thrusting eagerly forward through one of the knotholes in a bright orange fence.

WNOE's Owens Breaks Up N.O.

Gary Owens, WNOE New Orleans' morning disc jockey, has teamed up with author Gerald Monday to produce a daily comic strip of the air, One Man's Frenzy as the strip is called, satirizes various facets of the radio industry. Morning man Owens uses his versatile voice to portray eight different characters. The gimmick is now being sold to New Orleans sponsors, the station reports.

Cartoons Appear on WBAL-TV

Baltimore TV viewers will be treated to some editorial cartoons as Bill Johnson, former newsmen and syndicated cartoonist for 176 college papers, parades his efforts on the daily, 6:30 p.m. Newsbeat show on WBAL-TV. Newsbeat features the commentary of WBAL-TV news director John F. Lewis, whom the station characterizes as "the only Baltimore television newsmen currently editorializing on the air."

'Peteie' Plugs KOME in Tulsa

KOME Tulsa, Okla., claims to be "for the birds" and, to take the word of a parakeet named Peteie, the station is not making an empty boast. For more than a month KOME bird-dogged around Tulsa looking for a fowl with the urge to talk, specifically one who could chirp "There's no place like KOME, 1300 on your radio!"

The search ended when Peteie was found. As the bird in the hand, Peteie and his owner, L. M. Pierce, split a $100 savings bond. Peteie now sings out after every newscast on KOME, indicating to Tulsa listeners that being bird-brained isn't so bad after all.

'Houston Press' & KXYZ Swap Staff

The Houston (Tex.) Press and KXYZ there are undertaking joint public service efforts. A direct wire connects the paper's city room with KXYZ permitting the bulletining of local news stories throughout the day and morning news-sportscasts are scheduled by the Press' staffers Fred Nahas, KXYZ' president-news commentator, and disc jockey Larry Kane are writing weekly Paper columns, while Bill Roberts the paper's social columnist continues his daily KXYZ program. Advice for the lovelorn also is given daily in Amy Lane of the Air, a radio version of the Press' feature. This interchange of staff from the two independent media was promoted by on-air announcements and front-page stories. A party

THE THIRD anniversary of KEPR-TV Pasco (satellite of KIMA-TV Yakima, both Washington), was celebrated last month by a telecast cake-baking contest and "open house" for people with birthdays on that day. Cash and tv sets were awarded as the bakers of best cakes and, following the studio party, the cakes were presented to patients in local hospitals. Arguing over the rival entries are (l), Bill Moody, KEPR-TV program director, and Monte Strohl, station manager. was given for employees on both organizations so that radio and newspapermen could meet their opposite numbers.

ABC-TV to Show New ETV Methods

A special report to "broadcasters, educators and the general public" titled "Bold Journey Goes to School," will be presented on ABC-TV tomorrow (Tuesday, 3-3:30 p.m.). Broadcast tells how ABC-TV's "Bold Journey" series of true adventure and travel films is establishing new techniques for television's use as a teaching source. The program originally was scheduled as a closed-circuit report to station managers but ABC-TV decided to put it on the air for general viewing because of wide interest in the ways of using TV for educational purposes.

KWK Deletes R 'n' R From Library

In revolt against rock 'n' roll music, KWK St. Louis is pointing out its policy by conducting a record-breaking campaign. A sharp snap is heard by listeners following the playing of a rock 'n' roll disc and the disc jockey announces they will not hear that one again over KWK as he drops the pieces in the wastebasket. Order for this audible thinning out of KWK's record library came Jan. 13 from its president, Robert T. Convey, after finding staffers were in agreement that rock 'n' roll "has dominated the music field long enough." By today the station should be fresh-out of this type of music.

HOLIDAY HOP • KTSA San Antonio’s Super Seven d.j.s hosted more than 5,000 teen-agers Dec. 27 at a record hop in the Municipal Auditorium. Besides providing Christmas vacation entertainment, the Bexar County March of Dimes fund was enriched more than $1,200. Mary Frances Willard (Miss KTSA) was the official hop hostess and 29 musical aggregations brought live music to the scene. Thousands of records and other gifts were given as door prizes. A live appearance was also made by the station mascot, a 300-pound lion named Lover Boy.

WARMTH IN IOWA • The KCRG-AM-TV Cedar Rapids news department reported a story before Christmas which initiated aid to a family burned out of their home. A mother and her four children lived outside the city limits and were unable to pay the required fee for the firemen when their home burned. The landlord also refused to pay. KCRG circulated the story via UP and response followed from parts of the nation. Several hundred letters, money and Christmas gifts flowed in to the family. KCRG listeners contributed a tree, clothes and home furnishings for the new apartment the mother found.

MESSAGES TO MEMURDO • Action Central, WPTF Albany, N. Y., news unit, responded to a request for recorded music from Navy personnel stationed at Murdok Sound, Antarctica, with a Christmas bonus. Action Central called on Dave Marks, a local ham operator, who contacted the Antarctica base and obtained the names of the men from the Albany area. Tape-recorded Christmas greetings from their families were sent by ham radio directly to the men. The tapes and musical recordings, sent under the Navy’s mailing stamp, reached the men in time for the holidays.

HI-FI ANTHEM • Every radio and television station in the U. S. plus every public, private and parochial school in the country soon will receive a free copy of what is said to be the first high fidelity recording of the U. S. National Anthem ever produced. The announcement was made last week by John C. Cornelius, president of the American Heritage Foundation. The new 78 rpm disc was recorded and produced in November for the foundation at cost as a public service by RCA Victor Records division. The record features the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Fritz Reiner, conducting, and the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch conducting. According to Mr. Cornelius, Louis Schweitzer, owner of WBAI-FM New York, informed the foundation that although high fidelity was introduced a decade ago, the only recordings of the National Anthem available up to this time “have been inadequate, old-fashioned platters and most of these have been by foreign orchestras.”

DOUBLE DRIVE SCORES • WTMJ-AM-TV Milwaukee raised nearly $65,000 in the six weeks before Christmas to provide for the needy at home and abroad. Two programs campaigned for the Salvation Army fund to be used in Milwaukee. Contributions totaled $33,271. Two other programs collected a total of $31,384 for the CARE Food Crusade.

SCHOOL’S OUT • KMPC Los Angeles newsmen, working with the Los Angeles County sheriff’s department, smashed an elaborate outdoor nude photography class at the old Spanish mansion in nearby Flintridge. KMPC reporters learned of the operation and after checking its illegal nature assisted undercover agents in amassing the evidence. The raid netted two art models, the operator of the “school,” and 15 amateur photographers. William A. McMann, Chief of the sheriff’s vice squad, commended KMPC for its cooperation.

LET’S DANCE • WHBQ Memphis presented a check for $1,491, collected from a dance contest, to the local chapter of the Goodfellows Organization, a group devoted to helping the needy. The three-week contest was staged on the Top Ten Dance Party, a syndicated tv series. Viewers were asked by m.c. Wink Martindale to enclose a penny with each vote for their favorite contestants.

Because of the success of the venture, the contests will be continued and all proceeds collected in 1958 will go to a youth center fund under the direction of the Memphis Park Commission.

EMBLEMS FOR PEDESTRIANS • WHKY Hickory, N. C., in its public service program has undertaken the sponsorship of a new safety project. The station is cooperating with the Safety Beacon Council, a Hickory Community Chest agency, to help publicize and sell a pedestrian safety device called “Walker’s Safety Beacon,” fashioned from a crystal material that picks up the reflection of headlight beams and which can be worn around the neck, on the lapel or clipped to a pocket.

DONORS CALL • WIL St. Louis received more than 100 calls within an hour from listeners who responded to an appeal for blood to save a critically ill child. News Director Bob Hardy made an early morning report after the parents called him for aid. The hospital 23 of the prospective donors had the required type.

WFBM-TV added this new dimension in sound to thrill the many thousands who viewed Delco-Remy's "Christmas in Song," commemorating General Motors' 50th Anniversary.

Two microphones, one television and one radio, carried two separate audio transmissions—regular broadcast for radio listeners and STEREOPHONIC SOUND for those of our TV audience who had both television and radio properly placed and tuned to this special program.

At WFBM-TV, an experienced staff accustomed to being first is the difference, too!

NEEDED: AN END TO THE 'HUCKSTER' CONCEPT

The longer I am in the advertising business, the more I find to admire and respect in it. I see more fine creative work. I see more and more evidence of advertising's contribution to our ever-rising living standards. We are full partners in the American business system bringing better and better values to more and more people.

Among the things I have come to admire most are the people in this business. I am constantly finding new people to admire. They are industrious, intelligent, creative, resourceful and loyal. They possess the same basic qualities and characteristics that make for success in any endeavor. The military calls these leadership qualities and in business they are sometimes referred to as executive capabilities. Call them what you will, they abound in the personnel of the advertising industry. I have a healthy respect for these people, my associates.

Sure, we have our blackguards and ne'er-do-wells, but no more than in any other field, and perhaps not as many as in some.

Yet, we haven't learned the basic lesson that other businesses have learned in the Twentieth Century: that good deeds, alone, are not enough. We haven't learned that an important part of our job is building understanding of our role in society. We have failed completely to defend our contributions before the court of public opinion.

I am personally concerned with what the public thinks of the advertising business, and I believe that everyone in it should have a personal concern. We who are a part of it know how much it takes to succeed, how much talent is required to compose an ad that will tell a story in a few well-chosen words, how much thought goes into every advertisement whether it is a 30-second spot or a concentrated magazine campaign. More thought goes into the intelligent appraisal of how to use the advertisement, where and when, to reach the greatest audience of potential customers. All these considerations are a part of a good advertising plan. Plotted in advance to bring the client's product into public view in an attractive manner. Therefore, when an ad campaign accomplishes its purpose, I am not at all surprised. I consider it the appropriate conclusion rather than an accident.

FALSE IMPRESSIONS CAUSE FOR CONCERN

I am increasingly concerned and very much annoyed by the false impressions made believable to the public through advertising. These half-truths and downright untruths persist and grow every time some novelist feels the need to 'jazz up' his book, filling it with ne'er-do-well characters, cheats, glib charlatans, and eccentrics, depicting them as typical advertising people. On top of this abuse, the enterprising Hollywood script writer further distorts the author's original distortion so that the lead actor resembles a Mickey Spillane of Madison Avenue. The finished product, as grotesque as it is, appears on the motion picture screen as a revealing behind-the-scenes glimpse of the advertising business for the American people to see. The format is usually built around a little or no actual work, lots of Martinis and fast and sharp criticisms. Just how far afield from the truth do they have to go to be entertaining?

I am flushed with embarrassment when a book or motion picture takes such liberties with our industry, and I consider that it insults the intelligence of the American people.

Yet, because it is entertaining it is believed. In all fairness, stories of this sort never reflect a true picture of the caliber of advertising people whose talents are employed every day by the greatest companies in America today. We have good-naturedly let anyone and everyone take swipes at us and we have laughed it off. Now, it is much more serious than just embarrassment. Now we find municipal advertising taxes beginning to rear their heads and they can't be laughed off. One of the prices paid for adverse public opinion is exacted by politicians. If it becomes "good politics" to kick us around, we'll have real trouble.

Correcting these false impressions is not a job for someone else to do on our behalf. It is a personal assignment for every one who calls himself an advertising man or woman. It is a job to be started now and carried on in everything we say and do; in all our personal and business contacts. It means that as individuals and as agencies we shall have to avoid any behavior that would seem to give credence to the ridiculous image that others would give us. It means that the advertising and selling press will need to do a job of reporting in depth with a growing understanding of the business they cover in their "beat." For our part, it means we shall have to deal open-handedly with the news people who cover our business, and without revealing any client confidences, give them something more than gossip to report.

This is no small task, and it is a continuing one. But it needs to be done if we are to continue to grow and, indeed, survive. I am reminded of what Arthur Page, public relations adviser to AT&T said many years ago: "Management has no inalienable rights if the public is of a contrary opinion." Management in our business is no exception to this rule.

The Real Public Interest

THE House Commerce Committee hearings on subscription television have dramatized a weakness in U. S. broadcasting. The weakness is the broadcasters' failure to sell the public what broadcasting is all about.

During the hearings, committee members have repeatedly asked whether broadcasters had any evidence of the public's attitude toward subscription television. Pitifully little evidence has been supplied.

A few stations have had the initiative and nerve to broadcast editorials about subscription television. Their viewers have responded with overwhelming opposition to pay tv, and we have no doubt that this response from their constituents will impress the Congressmen who represent the areas which the stations serve.

But what about the Congressmen from the hundreds of other congressional districts served by stations which have maintained their historic silence on an issue of importance to their future?

For months it was known that the show-down hearings on toll tv would be held by the House Commerce Committee this month. So it cannot be argued that stations have not had time to form their own opinions on the subject and make those opinions known to the people of their communities.

It can only be admitted that most stations—by far the majority—have chosen once again to take their case directly to the Congress through their trade association and their networks without letting the public know what is going on.

It seems to us that the policy of shutting out the public has by now been thoroughly discredited. This session of Congress has already scheduled more trouble for broadcasters than any other session of recent times. We venture that most of the people of the United States are wholly unaware that regulation and legislation to change profoundly the nature of their broadcasting service are being seriously considered.

Say "Barrow Report" to the man in the street, and he will have no idea what you are talking about.

A Pulse survey conducted for Broadcasting magazine disclosed that 30% of the people hadn't even heard about subscription television.

As long as the public—the electorate, let us say—is ignorant of broadcasting issues, the Congress and the FCC can settle those issues without particular regard for public reaction.

Now who is to educate the public on matters affecting the shape and destiny of radio and tv? It won't be the newspapers. If anything, the newspapers will befuddle the public by incomplete or slanted reporting.

Nor is it in the interests of magazines to write of radio and tv in such a way as to inform the people of the meaning and nature of broadcasting.

Obviously, if the public is to know how broadcasting operates and what endangers it, the information will have to come from broadcasting itself.

So far all broadcasters but a conspicuous few have lacked either the desire or the courage to put their case before the highest court—the public.

Nice Try

We CAN only regret the decision of American Broadcasting Network to cut back substantially its "all live" programming.

The all-live policy raised a lot of eyebrows when it was announced several months ago. The owners of those eyebrows may now be disposed to say "I told you so," but we would hope there will be no such gloating.

The venture was a daring experiment. It represented a departure from standard thinking in network radio in recent years. It was new and different. As other networks have done in other ways, ABN was trying to offer a service not available elsewhere and thereby win larger audiences and, it hoped, more advertisers.

ABN must be commended for trying. The progress that network radio generally has made since its gloomiest early-tv days is traceable in large measure to experimentation on the part of its operators. Change is a basic part of progress.

The all-live plan did not pay off as expected—this is evident from the decision to cut back. It also makes that decision understandable. ABN can make substantial savings by switching to a part-live, part-recordings operation. And we might add that this arrangement also leaves room for further testing of the all-live policy. If the live portions eventually prove profitable, other live segments may be introduced gradually.

In any case, the network could hardly be expected to go on taking substantial losses indefinitely when relenting on its all-live policy would bring a good measure of financial relief. After all, radio networking is still too much a charity operation.

Passing Fancy

Barter was back in the news last week.

We're pleased to report, however, that it was planted there. It didn't make the headlines spontaneously through some new films-for-time deal the way it used to be.

The forum was the Radio & Television Executives Society in New York and the occasion was a debate arranged by RTES. The debaters were two leading experts in their fields, Frank M. Headley, president of H-R Television and also of Station Representatives Assn., argued that barter is harmful to television. Defending the practice was Erwin H. Ezzer, vice president and sales manager of C&C Television Corp., whose multi-million-dollar deal trading KFO feature films for spot announcement time for International Latex Corp. is probably the most successful barter on record.

Mr. Headley advanced forceful arguments and Mr. Ezzer defended the C&C-RKO-Latex deal persuasively. But it turned out they weren't really arguing. Mr. Headley recognized the success of the C&C deal at the outset—even used it to make his point that barter depends first of all upon the barterer offering good film product. Mr. Ezzer acknowledged that he and Mr. Headley were "essentially" in agreement.

This does not make for heady controversy and splashy repartee, but we count it an encouraging sign. A year ago a debate on the same subject could have been heated, because then barter was in flower. The lack of real argument now reflects the lessening interest in barter deals since then.

The reason that barter has subsided must be a growing awareness that—as Mr. Headley pointed out and Mr. Ezzer did not deny—the "advantages" which barter per se offers to both stations and advertisers are questionable at best. There is still no substitute for hard cash in a time sale.

When budget is the consideration, consider this: "Your TV Dollars Count for More on Channel 4." This has been the buy-word in Buffalo since 1948 when WBEN-TV first pioneered television in Western New York.

And if picking spots for a spot-campaign is your current concern, "spot" judgment again dictates WBEN-TV, particularly in our two top-movie programs. Both enjoy the highest popularity in their respective time slots. Women — and plenty of them — enjoy our MATINEE PLAYHOUSE. Adults — and plenty of them — make it a point to see our 11:30 Theatre.

There's a good spot for you on these "good buys" in Buffalo. HARRINGTON, RIGHTER and PARSONS, our national representatives, will be Johnny-on-the-spot when you call them for details.
