FOR THE CHOICE CUT OF THE SIOUXLAND MARKET

A MARKET IN WHICH AGRICULTURAL AND URBAN INCOMES PROVIDE A HEALTHY, BALANCED ECONOMY

The choicest cut of the entire Siouxland TV market is the Sioux City metropolitan area—Sioux City and Woodbury County. Here 109,000 people have over $197 million to spend. And in 1957 they spent over $153 million in retail sales—enough to put Sioux City in 7th place in the nation for retail sales based on population. 1958's going even better—March data from Chicago's Federal Reserve Bank survey shows department sales in Sioux City up 9% over last year.

Some of the richest farm land in the state of Iowa is also in KVTV's coverage area. And in 1957, average gross income per Iowa farm was $11,752—66% above the national average. This healthy balance of rural and urban income in KVTV's coverage area adds up to a prosperous, buying market.

Prime programming makes KVTV the most watched station in this market. People get the shows they enjoy most. The most popular network, syndicated and local live shows are all seen on KVTV. (See Jan. Pulse and A.R.B. for rating data.) Your product'll go great on KVTV. Your Katz man has the details.

BEELINE[®] RADIO

delivers more for the money

Fast, accurate news coverage is one reason Beeline stations deliver a large and responsive audience in the Billion-Dollar Valley of the Bees. The five Beeline stations have their own news staffs for on-the-spot local news stories. They work closely with McClatchy newspapers and tie into available network news shows to add depth to their coverage.

As a group purchase, these radio stations deliver more radio homes than any combination of competitive stations . . . at by far the lowest cost-per-thousand. (Nielsen & SR&D)

WIP DEAL BREWS • Philadelphia pioneer station WIP (established 1922) will pass from Gimbel Bros. to Todd Storz ownership for about $2.5 million cash if negotiations in progress past fortnight are completed. Negotiations are being handled personally by Mr. Storz and Louis Broido, executive vice president of Gimbel Bros., and Benedict Gimbel Jr., president-general manager of WIP. At week's end, it was understood number of aspects remained to be cleared before contract could be completed.

It was learned that prior to Storz negotiations, Plough Inc. had discussed possible acquisition of station but that conversations terminated at figure of about $2 million. Purchase of WIP would give Storz Stations their fifth am outlet. Others are: WDGY Minneapolis-St. Paul, WHB Kansas City, WTIK New Orleans and WQAM Miami. WIP operates on 610 kc with 5 kw full time and is currently MBS affiliated. WIP-FM (established 1942) operates on 93.3 mc with 20 kw.

McLENDON BUY • Purchase of WGRC Louisville for approximately $750,000 will give McLendon group its fifth radio outlet. Agreement reached by Gordon R. McLendon with stockholders of Northside Broadcasting Corp. will be filed with FCC this week in application for transfer. Principal stockholders of Northside are Charles L. Harris, vice president and general manager, 36%; Robert S. Davis, vice president, 31% and J. Porter Smith, president, nearly 12%. McLendon stations are KLIF Dallas, KILT Houston, KTSA San Antonio and KEEL Shreveport. WGRC, established in 1946, operates on 790 kc with 5 kw day and 1 kw night. Messrs. Davis and Smith are principal stockholders of WJPS Evansville, Ind.

Larry Field, who retired as radio sales manager of Edward Petry & Co. in 1954 after career in spot sales, is coming back to radio—but at network level. There'll be announcement this week by Armand Hammer, president of MBS, that Mr. Field is joining network as assistant to president in charge of sales.

UP BEATS • Radio stations are looking for brighter business picture in second half of 1958. That's word from President Kevin Sweeney and other RAB officials on basis of talks with more than 150 stations in past 30 days. They report local business—especially automotive and appliance—has begun to come back, and say local outlook is for light gains, 5 to 10% on average, for second half over same period last year. They look for similar gains in network and spot—in order of 7 to 9% for all national business for 1958.

Radio won't be alone in overall 1958 gains (see above) if latest TvB estimates prove correct. These, worked up last week, anticipate net expenditures in television time, talent and production will come to about $1.44 billion or 9.5% ahead of last year's $1,315,000,000. By category, TvB's 1958 estimate breaks down as follows (with 1957 figures in parentheses): network $740 million ($667 million); spot $385 million ($367 million) and local $315 million ($281 million). NAB survey of radio-tv business prospects released last week (story page 78) also predicted gains for both, but not as large as RAB and TvB are predicting.

ALLOCATIONS • Community antenna interests get their turn at bat June 24, it has been tentatively determined by Senate Commerce Committee staff. Committee is also due to hear Dr. George Town, executive director of Television Allocations Study Organization, and is thinking seriously of having FCC return for clean-up testimony.

Because of pending proceedings involving its jurisdiction over community antennas, FCC for third week has passed over several applications for microwave relays by CATV operators. Usually such applications are granted as routine at staff level.

LESTOIL BOOM • Lestoil (household cleaner), one of television's greatest success stories and now spending over $6 million in spot tv, is pushing its budget up to $7 million. Lestoil is now shipping out as many cases in one day as it did in one year in 1953 before it started its tv campaign. Advertiser currently concentrates all of its budget in one medium—television. Agency for Lestoil is Jackson Assoc., Holyoke, Mass. Donald C. Heath, vice president of William B. Remington Inc., Springfield, Mass., joins agency this week in newly created post of executive director.

Operating on the theory that broadcasting is overlooking "house ad" opportunities utilized by printed media, Mutual this week reported to be beginning on-air campaign, suggesting that old-line users of radio as well as non-users consider possibility of utilizing network time and/or local station time. Copy will be direct "pitch" with off-beat humor, pointing up value of radio, and asking that inquiries be sent to MBS headquarters in New York. Both one-minute and 20-second announcements planned during unsold periods.

PINCH ON PAY-OFF • In wake of House Legislative Oversight Committee criticism of "pay-offs" in television cases, wherein surviving applicant has paid varying sums to those who drop out, FCC is considering proposal by Comr. Fred W. Ford that such transactions be limited to actual reimbursement for expenses. Specifically, Ford proposal would require sworn statements on expenses actually incurred for lawyers, engineers, prosecution of applications, etc. by non-surviving parties. This presumably would put FCC in position of determining reasonableness of professional fees and what actually constitutes legitimate expenses.

House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee's investigation of Pittsburgh ch. 4 grant is "98%" completed and hearings in all probability will be held next week. Federal grand jury in Washington has been investigating Pittsburgh case for several months, at behest of Dept. of Justice. Also due for hearing next week is applicants' side of alleged ex parte pressures (subcommittee charges page 68) in Miami ch. 7 grant.

CH. 10 REVISITED • So far, FCC hasn't had much luck in finding retired jurist to preside at court ordered re-hearing of Miami ch. 10 case. Several ex-judges have been considered but were unavailable. If FCC is unsuccessful in finding outside jurist, its chief examiner, James C. Cunningham, likely will sit on new proceedings which get under way on pre-hearing conference basis June 23. Meanwhile key staff officials conferred with Justice Dept. attorneys last week, scanned FBI reports for leads in developing roster of witnesses to be called or documents and papers to be subpoenaed.

Triple damage suit filed by Tribune Co. (KTNT-AM-TV Tacoma-Seattle) against Queen City Broadcasting Co. (KIRO-AM-TV) and CBS [AT DEADLINE, June 2] has caused sensation in Washington regulatory circles. It's contended $15 million suit in essence challenges propriety of joint operation of both am and tv networks and of am and tv stations.

HOW'S BUSINESS? • WGN-TV, Chicago independent, enjoyed its biggest month in ten years of operation last May, being 12% over May 1957, according to Ward Quaal, vice president and general manager. WGN was up 5% over May of a year ago.

Procter & Gamble, Cincinnati, expected to sign up for full half-hour weekly sponsorship of Tic Tac Dough, Monday, 7:30-8 p.m. on NBC-TV. Show is now on Thursday night and sponsored by Warner-Lambert until end of August. Specific P&G agency not yet assigned.

OVERSIGHT HEARING GETS TWO VERSIONS OF CHOATE-McCONNAUGHEY INTRODUCTION

Sharply contrasting testimony as to how Robert Choate, publisher of Boston Herald-Traveler and president of WHDH-TV Boston, met former FCC Chairman George McConnaughey highlighted Friday testimony before House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee in Boston (early story page 68).

Mr. Choate testified he met Mr. McConnaughey at his own instigation in May 1956 while Herald-Traveler application for ch. 5 was pending. He denied former Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks introduced him to then FCC chairman.

Following Mr. Choate to stand, William D. Taylor and John I. Taylor, publisher and treasurer, respectively, of opposition Boston Globe, said under oath that Secretary Weeks told them he had introduced Mr. Choate to Mr. McConnaughey and all other FCC commissioners. Globe sought to intervene in ch. 5 case before Commission.

Mr. Choate denied he tried to discuss pending application with Mr. McConnaughey and said he sought meeting only to discuss pending legislation in Congress relating to newspaper ownership of radio-TV stations. Mr. McConnaughey had testified earlier before committee that Mr. Choate did try to discuss case.

Friday Mr. Choate said he did not know any other commissioner except for one social meeting with Comr. Robert E. Lee.

Mr. Choate denied that he or any employe had made any ex parte contacts on behalf of ch. 5 application or sought to have others exert political pressures. Asked about several telephone calls to government officials while case was pending, he replied he had no recollection or memoranda of calls.

At start of Choate testimony his counsel, Washington attorney William Dempsey, took sharp issue with opening statements Thursday by Acting Chairman John Bell Williams (D-Miss.). Mr. Dempsey denied ever exerting pressures in 18 years of practice before Commission and said statement would be grounds for criminal libel if it did not have Congressional privilege. Rep. Williams told Mr. Dempsey that statement that "a WHDH counsel" had exerted pressures was not directed at him.

Rep. Williams told Thomas Joyce, Boston attorney for Mr. Choate, he was not familiar enough with subcommittee evidence to clear Mr. Joyce of same charge.

Herald-Traveler and WHDH-TV agreed to comply with challenged subpoena issued by subcommittee for records pertaining to ch. 5 grant [GOVERNMENT, June 2].

tising director (see page 32), Revlon Friday announced hiring of David North, advertising director, Martinson's coffee, New York, as Revlon product ad manager. Other appointments seem likely.

AFTRA Loses WCKY Strike

Nine-month AFTRA strike against WCKY Cincinnati officially ended Friday after union withdrew from proposed election. AFTRA notified regional director of National Labor Relations Board that all its members had been replaced on station's staff and that it no longer sought to represent WCKY employes. Non-union staff has operated station throughout long dispute with AFTRA.

Storer Closes in S. F.; Grubb Out

Storer Broadcasting Co. Friday announced closing of west coast national sales office in San Francisco headed by Vice President Gayle V. Grubb. Storer said Mr. Grubb has not announced future plans. Office was established several years ago to service west coast accounts when Storer owned KPTV (TV) Portland, Ore., but since sale of station "the need for a west coast operation has been eliminated," firm explained.

BUSINESS BRIEFLY

Late-breaking items about broadcast business; for earlier news, see ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, page 32.

L-O-F DECIDING • Libby-Owens-Ford expected to make decision early this week on television plans for next season. Advertiser probably will retain part sponsorship of NCAA football games on NBC-TV but may drop out of portion of Perry Mason on CBS-TV until next January. Fuller & Smith & Ross, N. Y., is agency.

TALKING TERMS • Financial and advertising circles are wondering how long it will take Colgate-Palmolive to pull wraps off its diversification program. Soap firm is known to have talked terms to numerous existing companies, some of them in foods line. Move, if made, would be in direction of rivals Procter & Gamble (Jif, Big Top peanut butters, Duncan Hines foods, Fluffo shortening) and Lever Bros. (Good Luck, Imperial margarines, Spry shortening, Lucky Whip dessert topping).

STRIPE MAY SPOT • Toothpaste that squirts out of tube with pink stripe, appropriately labeled Stripe (marketed by Lever's Pepsodent Div.), has come out of spot tv "testing" stage. Up to now, Stripe in introductory period has embraced print media but flirted with idea of using spot tv. It's been known for some six months that Stripe, via J. Walter Thompson, N. Y., has tested spot in two unidentified cities [BUSINESS BRIEFLY, Dec. 30, 1957; ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, Jan. 20]. JWT is non-committal but reports are reliable that Stripe has been buying spot tv schedule for June through October in certain eastern markets.

COMPTON GETS HOTPOINT • Hotpoint Inc. (tv sets, white goods), Chicago, appoints Compton Adv., same city, to handle $3.5 million account. Compton replaces three other agencies: Needham, Louis & Brorby, Maxon, J. R. Pershall. Look for Hotpoint to reconsider return to network, either radio or tv. It's understood broadcast media will get serious study in 1958-59 advertising plans, with campaign built around company's new electric kitchen.

FILBURT'S BUSINESS • J. H. Filburt's (Filburt's margarine), Baltimore, buying spots in 100 radio markets and 50 television stations, effective June 11 for eight weeks. Agency: Sullivan, Stauffer, Colwell & Bayles, N. Y.

LOOKING FOR PASSENGER • Don't be surprised if Ford Div. of Ford Motor Co. comes up soon with another national advertiser to share in Ford's unique $4 million-plus Ford Road Show 52-week package on

Scoop Russell Resigns NBC Post, Will Set Up Own Consultancy

Frank M. (Scoop) Russell is resigning as NBC Washington vice president to set up own independent consulting business, with NBC as client under five-year contract, effective July 1 [CLOSED CIRCUIT, June 2], NBC President Robert W. Sarnoff is announcing today (Mon.).

Mr. Russell, widely known throughout radio-TV field, joined NBC in 1929 at invitation of network's first president, late Merlin H. (Deac) Aylesworth. Born June 23, 1895, at Lohrville, Iowa, he studied agriculture and journalism at Iowa State College, entered newspaper work after World War I. Moved to Washington in 1921 as assistant to close friend, Charles Pugsley, who had been named assistant secretary of agriculture. In organizing and running Agriculture Dept.'s press services he set up what has been described as first radio news service in government. He subsequently served as assistant to agriculture secretaries Wallace (the elder), Gore, Jardine and Hyde before moving to NBC.

Senate Unit Moves FCC Money

Senate Appropriations Committee has acquiesced in House recommendation that FCC get $8.9 million for fiscal 1959, $50,000 less than President asked. Senate said FCC should have flexibility in assigning personnel in order to clear backlogs; this was in response to House condition that $100,000 be used to clear up am backlog. Just where this leaves FCC if Senate adopts appropriations without further clarification is unknown. Senate committee also recommended $6 million for Federal Trade Commission, up $50,000 over House approved funds, but $25,000 less than President requested.

RCA Declares Two Dividends

Two dividends announced Friday by Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, RCA board chairman, following regular board meeting: quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share on common stock payable July 28 to holders of record June 20, and dividend of 87½ cents per share on first preferred stock for period July 1-Sept. 30 payable Oct. 1 to holders of record Sept. 8.

Cross Picks Longfellow, Stephens

FCC Comr. John S. Cross Friday appointed Bruce S. Longfellow his engineering assistant [CLOSED CIRCUIT, June 2] and Louis C. Stephens his legal assistant. Mr. Goodfellow, chief, Technical & Allocations Branch, Broadcast Bureau, has been with FCC since 1938; Mr. Stephens, who joined FCC four years ago as legal assistant to former Comr. Frieda Hennock, has handled major rulemaking proceedings, congressional liaison and special projects as legal counsel, Broadcast Bureau.

DER BINGLE'S MAGIC

It didn't take long. Almost on heels of disclosure that it had signed Bing Crosby to long-term exclusive tv-radio contract (see page 87), ABC-TV announced Friday that Oldsmobile Div. of General Motors had signed for sponsorship of two Crosby-starring 90-minute specials in 1958-59 season, first of which is slated in October or November. ABC-TV officials said announcement of Crosby availability touched off "enormous" sponsorship interest among advertisers but that Oldsmobile—which also is set to sponsor Patti Page Show on ABC-TV (Wed., 9:30-10 p.m. starting in September)—got there first. Agency: D. P. Brother & Co., Detroit.

KMOP Tucson, Ariz. • Fifty per cent interest sold to Richard N. Jacobson and Howard A. Kalmenson for $60,000 by Ray Odum and A. V. Bamford. BUSINESS BRIEFLY

CBS Radio. First year's contract runs out Aug. 31. Ford holds option to continue through rest of year, but can, of course, renew for another 52 weeks starting in September. Plan to have another advertiser pick up part of tab is under consideration. J. Walter Thompson Co., N. Y., is Ford agency.

PARTNERS IN RISK • Though none of principals (General Foods, Benton & Bowles and MGM-TV) will detail purchase of tv rights to Father of the Bride (see page 36), arrangement is seen as "share-the-risk" plan. Contract understood to call for co-financing of pilot by GF and agency with producer MGM. (Pilot cost could fall anywhere between $50-90,000.) Advertiser, agency get options to series, profit rights including residuals. If General Foods drops out and series is re-sold, contract reportedly provides for GF to get its investment back under financial arrangement. MGM-TV has been talking to other agencies along this share-risk vein, is reportedly hoping to set trend.

IMPORT BUSINESS • Look for Volkswagen G. m. b. H., Wolfsburg, Germany, to make sizeable splash in spot radio-tv this year, its first advertising effort in U. S. Unlike some American auto manufacturers who are cutting back on spot allocations, German-made car reportedly has hiked its total U. S. budget from initial $750,000 to $2 million and through J. M. Mathes Co., New York, will go all out in co-op broadcast campaigning.

TV FOR CADILLAC • Cadillac Motor Car Div., General Motors, which last year spent estimated $500,000 in radio announcements and few tv network participations, this fall reportedly will turn to spot tv during new model announcement time—first time ever. Reason: 1959 Cadillac is understood to be completely restyled. It's unlikely, however, that total ad budget will be hiked, but some tv money may come out of print allocations. Agency: MacManus, John & Adams, N. Y.

REYNOLDS FIRMS TWO • R. J. Reynolds Tobacco, Winston-Salem, N. C., has settled two network tv shows for next season (one alternate week sponsorship). Reynolds has decided to place Lawman, western series, in Sunday 8:30-9 p.m. period on ABC-TV, directly following Maverick. Advertiser since January has backed Scott Island in that time period, with Anybody Can Play, quiz-type, as summer replacement. On NBC-TV, Reynolds has renewed alternate weeks of People Are Funny for third straight season (Sat., 7:30-8 p.m.). Alternate sponsor also renewing for next season is Toni Div. of Gillette, through North Adv., Chicago. William Esty, N. Y., is Reynolds agency.

IN TV AND RADIO—EVERYBODY
BROADCASTING YEARBOOK!

It's a logical dependence. Just as those other venerable volumes are respected as fountainheads of information in their respective fields, so too is the BROADCASTING YEARBOOK recognized as an authority without peer in the business of television and radio!

Why? First of all, there's nothing else like it. Here is the most complete compendium of accurate facts available. It's handy as well as helpful...handier than ever this year because the 1958 BROADCASTING YEARBOOK combines both TV and radio within a single set of staunch covers. Furthermore, you can't beat its established reputation for reliability. For 23 years now, these information-crammed source books have held a place of importance on the desks and bookshelves of every key person in TV-and-radio advertising. Few reference volumes get dog-eared and thumb-printed so fast by so many makers of decisions as a BROADCASTING YEARBOOK.

Now...right around the corner...is the publication date of the bigger-than-ever BROADCASTING YEARBOOK for 1958 — bigger because (1) it contains more, and (2) it covers both electronic media in a single edition.

The publishers of Blackstone, Gray's Anatomy, and Bowditch have life easy compared with the editors of this great yearly sourcebook. The former concern themselves with static facts that change little from year to year. But television and radio are phenomena that today move as fast (and unpredictably) as a greased rabbit. Only the largest, most experienced and most competent editorial staff in the TV-radio business publication field is equipped to assemble such a wealth of up-to-date data...to check and correlate, prepare and recheck...and then present the facts in comprehensive, useable manner. In short, only BROADCASTING can produce the BROADCASTING YEARBOOK!

The 1958 edition is scheduled for September publication, will be snapped up by 16,000 busy people with the stakes of their livelihood in television or radio...or in both. And because they make BROADCASTING YEARBOOK a working partner, day after day, this remarkable volume becomes a powerful, long-lasting medium for your advertising. This year, the NEW combined format represents a greater value than ever.

Mark these dates, large and loud, on your calendar. Deadline for advertising if proofs are desired: July 14. If no proofs, July 28. Regular rates and mechanical specifications apply. Write, wire or phone your reservation before another day's sun has set. The NEW 1958 BROADCASTING YEARBOOK is too good a bet to miss!

DEAN OF AMERICA'S TIMEBUYERS — FRANK SILVERNAIL — PUTS 33 YEARS OF RADIO AND TV KNOWLEDGE BEHIND THE NEW 1958 BROADCASTING YEARBOOK... AIDS ITS EDITORS AS CONSULTANT TO MAKE THIS GREAT SOURCE-BOOK MORE VALUABLE THAN EVER FOR BROADCAST ADVERTISING BUYERS!

Aware that even the best can be made better, BROADCASTING has enlisted the help of Frank Silvernail, outstanding timebuyer who retired March 31 as manager of station relations at BBDO, to act as consultant in preparing the new combined TV-RADIO BROADCASTING YEARBOOK. Throughout his illustrious career in broadcast advertising... extending back to 1925 and involving the placement of over $25,000,000 in station time... Mr. Silvernail has been a constant user of BROADCASTING's many Yearbooks. Thus he is eminently equipped for this assignment. Not only does he know the value of BROADCASTING YEARBOOK with the respect of a top advertising executive, but he also brings to it the practical wisdom of his tremendous background in the advertising field. Working closely with BROADCASTING's editors, he has suggested many changes that will make this year's expanded BROADCASTING YEARBOOK a far more valuable tool for buyers of TV and radio.

During his career, Mr. Silvernail has been associated for a decade and a half with BBDO, served as chairman of the Standing Committee on Broadcast Media of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, been a member of the AAAA's Media Relations Committee, president of the New York Chapter of Broadcast Pioneers and vice president of the national body. His experience includes previous duties with Young & Rubicam, Pedlar & Ryan, and the National Broadcasting Company. The roll-call of sponsors for whom he has handled radio and television campaigns includes many of the largest names in American business, embracing every type of product from soap to automobiles.

THE NEW, TWO-IN-ONE BROADCASTING YEARBOOK OFFERS FEATURES LIKE THESE:

-  Latest working information about both television and radio (thus eliminating the need for separate Yearbooks as previously).
-  Directories restyled for faster reference—giving facilities and key personnel of advertising agencies, networks, stations, station representatives, program suppliers, equipment sources, and many other organizations related to TV-radio business.
-  Definitive round-up introductions, reporting on progress in each major area of activity covered by a directory.
-  Special articles and reports on such important developments as —

... radio and TV audiences, their size and composition.

... radio and television time sales — by network, spot and local — nationally and by individual markets.

... market information for every U.S. county.

... trends in the use of feature and syndicated film.

... analyses of specialized radio programming—foreign language, Negro market, multiplexing, stereophonic broadcasting.

... a review of how advertising agencies have grown with radio and television.

-  PLUS — all the many other standard features which have made BROADCASTING YEARBOOKS the most authoritative, most closely-read reference work in radio and television for the past 23 years!

SHIRLEY TEMPLE STORYBOOK

In adapting such well known and well loved stories as "Beauty and the Beast," which opened the Shirley Temple Storybook tv series last January [IN REVIEW, Jan. 20] and "The Sleeping Beauty," yesterday's story, Producer Alvin Cooperman and his aides have adhered to one major principle: "Stay as close to the original as possible."

That philosophy paid off handsomely with "Beauty and the Beast" and again with "The Sleeping Beauty." Neither contained any foreign element to disturb the memories of the oldest for whom the story was being repeated for the more-than-a-thousandth time. Both held all of the classic enchantment for youngsters to whom the stories were brand new.

This is not to say that the adapters needed only to make a literal translation of the fairy tale from printed page to tv camera. Turning a story that can be read or told in 10 minutes into an hour-long production, building characters that were merely identified in the story into people or fairies or witches that are believable on the tv screen takes a lot of imagination, skill and hard work.

But the results make it worthwhile, as "The Sleeping Beauty" proved. From the opening lines to the final fadeout everything was fitting and proper. The language was pure fairyland: "Once upon a time," Miss Temple began, "there lived a king and queen who were as rich as they deserved to be and as loved as they deserved to be. But, because they had never been blessed with a child, they were not as happy as they deserved to be."

There was the christening scene, when the uninvited Black Fairy, wonderfully played by Judith Evelyn, shocks the court with her "gift" of a sleep that will spare the girl from the pains of womanhood until a "true prince" shall waken her. Then, challenged that the good fairies—Garnet, Opal, Topaz—might undo her magic, she scornfully stares them down with a curt "Not they. They're not semi-precious fairies."

The three suitors—self-admiring dandy, bragging huntsman and greedy miser—were developed by the script and portrayed by Phillip Pine, Pernell Roberts and Robert Quarry, respectively, as characters acceptable to any child as typifying three vices of the adult world. For older viewers, the trio were equally acceptable as caricatures of individuals we all have known.

An extrafine touch was added at the story's end, when the "true prince" was revealed as the princess' childhood playmate, the gardener's boy. Combining youthful adoration of royalty and love of democracy, the Black Fairy satisfied all conventions—and all viewers—with her words: "I promised you a true prince. If he lacks noble blood he had what is far better, a noble heart."

THE BASEBALL CORNER

That baseball is more than a sport and that baseball players are more than athletes was admirably demonstrated a week ago Sunday on the premiere of The Baseball Corner. At the end of 30 minutes, the viewer knew that baseball is a science and that its major league players are intelligent, articulate citizens, more at ease before a camera than many a statesman or actor.

With Buddy Blatner, who played in the New York Giants infield a decade ago, as host, and with such guests as Frankie Frisch, Peeewe Reese, Duke Snider and Bob Feller, the pace of the program sometimes reached bewildering speeds. It was not a show for the casual, once-a-month grandstand manager; it was a show for the dyed-in-the-wool bleacher fan who knows the average of the league's leading batter, the earned run average of its leading pitcher, and the probable percentage of sending a righthand batter to pinch hit in the eighth inning against a lefthand pitcher when you are two runs behind.

The five experts discussed such currently intriguing issues as the Los Angeles Coliseum, with its left field wall only 250 feet from the batter's box, and differences between the game 20 years ago and now. "Uncle" Frisch defended the glory of yesterday eloquently, growing wistful as he talked of the "good old days."

Film clips of the guests were shown to the accompaniment of often wry comments (Snider, who has hit only two home runs this season, reacted to a scene of his hitting one far over the wall in Brooklyn by saying: "We miss that ball park—at least I do.")

There were, in addition, demonstrations by Snider of his batting grip and by Feller of his finger grip while pitching. But primarily the show's atmosphere was that of several good friends sitting around a crack-barrel chatting about something they lived and loved—baseball.

One problem may arise as a result of the announced intention to have four different guests every week. The producers will be hard put to equal the informality and breeziness which made the premiere of The Baseball Corner such a delight.

Community Service Award

Presented to -

Art Barrie, People's Opinion Program, & to WSPD Radio, by the American Legion of Lucas County; for outstanding service to the community in providing an easily accessible and readily available outlet for a free exchange of opinion on topical items of local & national interest; for providing access to information & knowledge on many subjects; and for promotion of many & varied community projects.

Fifth day of May 1958

Here, Art Barrie receives the American Legion Community Service Award from Lucas County Commander Charles Phillips.

“...for outstanding services to the community...”

Only four times in 39 years has a community service been of such significance as to merit the Lucas County, Ohio. American Legion Community Service Award, recognized as the highest local award. This rare honor has just been awarded to Art Barrie, People's Opinion Program, and WSPD Radio in Toledo.

“The People's Opinion program was singled out,” according to Commander Phillips, “because it provides any citizen easy and ready access to express an idea or opinion. Such expression receives wide coverage. “Definitely,” Phillips continued, “our citizens in this area can be and are more informed on local and national issues than others in communities which do not utilize such a medium for a free exchange of ideas. Barrie and WSPD have given re-birth to “town meetings.” Our community can only profit from this imaginative radio service.”

THE INVESTIGATOR

Whatever else can be said for or against The Investigator, it is live. As such, NBC-TV's hour-long mystery series is a welcome recruit to the dwindling ranks of live television.

The series offers another dividend. Private eye Jeff Prior (played by Lonny Chapman) has an asset not often encountered in this milieu—a father (played by Howard St. John) who adds the experience of a completed newspaper career to the efforts of his energetic boy in getting to the crux of the "case."

The initial episode (June 3) was a drawing-room thriller, i.e., the emphasis was on talk. And much talk was needed to explain an intricate scheme by a disbarred lawyer out to discredit (and frame) his gem-importer cousin Donald Aldrich, so he could inherit their aunt's fortune. A stripteaser turned nightclub operator was unwittingly involved in the diabolical plan and in due course she fell for the investigator. Meanwhile, the rich aunt was persuaded to change her will and subsequently was done in by her villainous nephew. At length the elder and younger Priors caught up with the criminal.

It was a point of law that put the finishing touches on the case and provided an opportunity for some resourceful camera work. An extensive search of lawbooks, given vitality by some interesting close-ups and camera angles, revealed to the sleuths that the old lady's will as rewritten was void. A re-enactment of the crime provided another chance for visual interest. Such occasions were scarce in the drawing-room script.

Though the unfolding plot kept the viewer on his toes, more was needed in the way of character development. Greater interest would have been generated had the participants emerged more as living and breathing, as well as talking, beings. Possibly in weeks to come the Priors, their friends and their adversaries will emerge as full-dimensional personalities.

Production costs: $35,000.

Sponsored by Liggett and Myers through McCann-Erickson, and RCA and RCA-Whirlpool, through Kenyon and Eckhardt, on NBC-TV Tues. 8-9 p.m. EDT, live in color and black-and-white. Started June 3.

"MILLION DOLLAR MOVIE CONTEST"

The contest is built around the Multi-Million Dollar Package of films to be shown on "Million Dollar Movie" this fall—"Million Dollar Movie's" 5th and greatest season on WOR-TV. The 16 films in the package are the strongest week-in, week-out, all-season-long lineup ever shown on any movie program in New York.

- ... All the films are first-run
- ... 8 out of the 16 are post-SAG* films
- ... The first post-1948 RKO films—the only post-SAG's from a major Hollywood studio
- ... Great pre-SAG pictures like "Murder My Sweet", "Citizen Kane", and "Hunchback of Notre Dame"
- ... Hollywood's biggest stars—James Cagney, Humphrey Bogart, Charles Laughton, Jane Russell and Marilyn Monroe

In short, a lineup designed to further strengthen "Million Dollar Movie's" position as New York's highest-rated television program—DELIVERING MORE DIFFERENT HOMES THAN ANY OF THE TOP 10 NETWORK PROGRAMS

On the facing page are the 16 movies to be featured on "Million Dollar Movie" (Sept. 22, 1958-Jan. 11, 1959) along with 16 quotes from reviews of the film from major New York newspapers and Cue Magazine. To enter the contest, merely match the quote to the film by placing the number for the appropriate quote in the box alongside the title of the film. For example, as shown, Quote #1 is for the film "Godzilla".

Now . . . match the remaining 15 . . .

The Public's Taste Comes First

EDITOR:

. . . Jerry Feniger of Cunningham & Walsh [Adv. & AGENCIES, May 12] would undoubtedly prefer to program what he thinks the public should have, rather than what they obviously want. Heaven help him if he ever steps down from his ivory tower and tries to run a radio station!

The fact that the independents have made their greatest audience gain at the expense of the network stations would suggest that it's the network that should do some soul-searching.

It's not what you like or what I like, or even what Mr. Feniger likes. It's what the public likes that is all important . . .

Denies Limited Appeal Charge

EDITOR:

I am tired of the continuing baseless criticism of music and news radio stations voiced by some industry people . . . on the notion that such stations appeal only to the so-called "pre-shave" set. But never has one of these critics produced the facts to substantiate this fantasy.

The reason is simple. All research evidence available confirms that these "modern" radio stations not only have a predominantly adult audience but consistently draw more adult listeners than the old line soap opera network stations.

Why Do They Do It?

EDITOR:

I'm a real old radio fan who started with a crystal set and kept going until not so long ago I took up television. My wife and I enjoy most of the programs but we can't figure out why. . . [there] are so many unnecessary things. We don't object to commercials although lots of them are crude and noisy and, in our opinion, don't cater to good taste or interest. What we object to:

The ballyhoo of so many masters of ceremonies which is usually overdone and resembles old-style low comedy. . .

Permitting audience applause to override introductions. . .

Interrupting a program for a commercial seems to have established a standard form of speech. Are there no other expressions than "right now"?

The blast of raucous music between scenes which obviously have changed. Music as such is well appreciated but not as a sound curtain to separate tv scenes when it often interferes with what follows. . .

An unseen announcer introducing the master of quiz and panel shows as "our star" when actually he is the host and moderator. . .

Emcees seeking audience applause by crying "give the little girl a big hand" . . . reminiscent of the old amateur nights in vaudeville.

EDITOR:

In its coverage of the FCC hearings on the Barrow Report, BROADCASTING states [GOVERNMENT, May 26] that Mr. John Wright submitted tables "to show that the spot rates for the eight affiliates [represented by CBS Tv Spot Sales] are higher in 75% of the time periods weekly."

Actually, the tables referred to were submitted as part of my testimony and showed that the network rates—not the spot rates—of these stations are higher in 75% of the time periods.

EDITOR:

Your SPECIAL REPORT on community antenna tv May 12 was read with interest inasmuch as we are right in the middle of this hot subject.

J. P. Wilkins, president and general manager of KFBB-AM-TV, presented several reports on free versus pay tv and what might be expected in the way of service from both. These reports were simulcast and the response has been tremendous. Over 21,000 people wrote the station protesting any CATV or pay tv systems. Many thousands of these people outside the Great Falls metropolitan area realize that any local CATV system which endangers the ability of a local tv to survive would, in effect, deprive these urban thousands of television, should the local station discontinue operations. Of the 21,000 writing, less than 25 said they were dissatisfied with KFBB-TV service . . . a record that any tv station could be proud of.

These letters were sent to Sen. Magnuson May 21. Since that time, despite the fact there have been no further broadcasts on the subject, an average of 200 letters are received daily from people concerned over the threat that CATV and pay tv systems pose.

FCC, JUSTICE DEPT. FLANK NETWORKS

- Justice tells FCC option time, program tie-ins are illegal
- Agrees it won't lower boom until FCC makes own findings

The FCC and the Justice Dept. admitted last week that they have joined forces for an out-of-court prosecution of the networks on antitrust charges.

Confirming what had been reported earlier [CLOSED CIRCUIT, May 12], FCC Chairman John Doerfer testified that Justice feels option time and purported tie-in practices by the networks are violations of the antitrust laws. For now, however, Justice is letting FCC carry the ball—until conclusion of the latter's current inquiry into network practices (Barrow study).

Confirming in turn what the FCC chairman said, antitrust chief Victor R. Hansen told BROADCASTING that "We are working with the FCC—we're not trying to impede it." Mr. Hansen said Justice and the Commission were now studying questions raised during the April huddle disclosed by the FCC chairman during testimony before the Senate Commerce Committee last week. It was believed he referred to the liaison now established with the Commission's network study staff working on the still-unpublished programming section of the Barrow Report.

Chairman Doerfer revealed the liaison in testifying before Sen. John W. Bricker (R-Ohio) on the latter's bill to bring networks directly under FCC jurisdiction (see page 54). He said that although Justice feels the two practices in question constitute antitrust violations, it was agreed to let the FCC complete its own study and decide whether they are in the public interest. The FCC then will submit its findings to Justice for an official ruling on antitrust violations.

If Justice then formally recommends that the two practices are illegal, the Commission will have no alternative but to declare them so, Mr. Doerfer stated.

(Also last week, Rep. Emanuel Celler [D-N. Y.] loosed a blast threatening renewed hearings by his antitrust committee unless the Commission moves quickly to ban option time, must buys and alleged program tie-ins. See below.)

The FCC-Justice meeting everybody was talking about occurred April 24. The Justice officials opened the conference, Mr. Doerfer said, with the statement that "their informal opinion was that option time was a violation of the antitrust laws per se . . ."

One of the reasons why Justice believes it would be better for the FCC to continue its present network proceedings and to work with the Commission is, according to Mr. Doerfer, that the Commission's action could come much more quickly than if Justice had to file an antitrust suit and fight it out in the courts.

It was also pointed out that, disregarding the question of antitrust violations, the FCC had the power to prohibit any network practice it finds against the public interest—and thus if it rules this way on option time, or program tie-ins, the question of antitrust may never come into the open to face litigation.

On the other hand, Mr. Doerfer stressed that if the Commission were to find that option time is needed by the networks in order to function and that it is in the public interest—and if the Justice Dept. formally rules that the practice is illegal—then the Commission must follow the Justice Dept.

FCC'S DOERFER JUSTICE'S HANSEN
THE NETWORKS WERE IN THE MIDDLE

recommendation, but can ask Congress to specifically exempt this practice from the antitrust laws.

Mr. Doerfer emphasized that it was his feeling that the Justice Dept.'s opinion on the illegality of option time and tie-ins was "in the sense of a tentative conclusion."

There are about 60 witnesses, Mr. Doerfer observed, who have made charges with the Justice Dept. against network practices. Some of them have asked to remain anonymous, he said.

"I objected to the use of that evidence unless they would submit themselves to cross examination," Mr. Doerfer explained.

Mr. Doerfer explained that it was his understanding that the Justice Dept.'s attitude was based first on the fact that option time gives networks a dominant position in the industry, and that the alleged practice of requiring that the network be allowed an interest in a program before it would buy it became illegal in the light of this dominance.

The programming section of the Barrow Report was never included in the massive two-volume document issued last October. This material is being collated and processed by the present network staff, and is scheduled to be issued as a separate report in the fall.

This newest development, it is believed, may set this schedule back further, perhaps until some time late this year, although Chairman Doerfer indicated last week that he hoped it would be available in "three or four months."

Mr. Doerfer also told the committee that it was planned to conclude the present Barrow hearings with Dean Roscoe L. Barrow and Dr. Jesse Markham, Princeton U. economics professor. This may be in July.

He also added that after the formal proceedings are completed, "it may take a considerable time to prepare the findings."

Rep. Celler unloosed his salvo at the FCC on Tuesday, with charges that the Commission was dilatory "in what appears to be a deliberate effort to refrain from taking action to ban these various restrictive and anti-competitive practices."

"Further foot-dragging by the FCC on these vital matters can no longer be countenanced," Mr. Celler declared.

He stated that the committee will reopen hearings "should there be further unjustified delay by the Commission."

Mr. Celler referred to the 1956-57 hearings by his House committee and its report of June 10, 1957, which found that option time "appears" to have a marked similarity to block booking practices in the movie industry outlawed by the Supreme Court.

Judge Hansen appeared before the Celler committee in 1956. At that time he stated that antitrust lawyers in his office thought that option time may be a violation of the antitrust statutes [GOVERNMENT, Sept. 17, 1956].

In November 1957, Judge Hansen told BROADCASTING that the government was still investigating network practices and still felt that option time and alleged program tie-ins were illegal, but that he felt that the Commission should be permitted to conclude its network study and rule itself on these practices before the Justice Dept. should step in [GOVERNMENT, Nov. 11, 1957].

REVSONS SPLIT; REVLON INTACT

The split-up of the Revson brothers of Revlon Inc., expected for some time, was made formal last week. Charles H. Revson, president of the firm, announced the resignation of Martin E. Revson as executive vice president, attributing it to personal differences.

A two-sentence news release reported the end of a close relationship in which the two had worked to spiral Revlon Inc. from a one-room lab into a sprawling cosmetics empire with annual net sales estimated in excess of $100 million.

Behind this announcement lay deep speculation about what had led to the rupture between the brothers Revson after 26 years—a split that was said to have direct bearing on future advertising plans and policies. To be certain, last week's mysterious manipulations at Revlon headquarters in Manhattan tended to lend further credence to Time magazine's recent contention that older brother Charles Haskell Revson was perhaps "the most feared, cheered and jeered advertising client since the late George Washington Hill . . ."

Though no one at Revlon Inc. or its numerous agencies would comment officially, there was no doubt that only one man could actually say what had led to the break and that man was not talking. Word of the impending split had been making the rounds of New York's advertising precincts for over a month. Recently Wall Street informants reported that Charles had bought up his brother's share of the 950,000 Revlon holdings the brothers were reputed to have owned jointly—shares estimated at total worth of about $25 million—out of the firm's total 2.7 million shares. And while the phrase "personal differences" led to all sorts of speculation, reliable sources suggested last week that the areas of conflict could be narrowed down to two spheres: (a) advertising operations and (b) product diversification.

Neither sphere seemed clearly defined. But seasoned advertising executives, long exposed—directly or indirectly—to Charles Revson's predilection for the flamboyant, felt that the friction, long abounding might have grown out of Martin Revson's conservative and scientific approach to the business. One put it succinctly: "There's room up there for only one genius — and that's Charles." Martin Revson leaves open the post of marketing chief—advertising, merchandising, sales promotion and diversification.

No sooner had the first shockwave died on Madison Avenue than a second tremor was being felt by Revlon's agency quintet. Twenty-four hours after announcing Martin Revson's resignation came news release No. 2 stating Revlon had hired a sixth agency and that, furthermore, it would shuffle products among the others. The newcomer is an agency known primarily for its work in direct mail and inquiry response advertising techniques.

Maxwell B. Sackheim & Co., New York, which now will take over Clear-O-Dan shampoo (a product originally assigned to Emil Mogul Co.) can be called a "dark horse." Its work in the package goods field has been, to all intents and purposes, insignificant. Heavy on publishing firm accounts, mail order "clubs" (CBS Inc.'s Columbia Records Club, The Literary Guild, Music Treasure's of the World, etc.), Sackheim has made little use of tv-radio but when it has, it has been "remarkably effective," according to one major client, Time Inc. (It is a little known fact that while Young & Rubicam is credited with being Time Inc.'s agency, it is Sackheim that has handled Time magazine's radio drives). For Time and for Jackson & Perkins (rose growers), Newark, Sackheim has perfected a form of "direct mail radio" campaigning that Revlon now hopes to use on behalf of Clear-O-Dan. Its billings at the outset will be "small" but should jump considerably after undergoing test runs on radio-tv.

Of the five remaining agencies, only one shop will be left unaffected by the latest Revlon gyrations: Charles W. Hoyt Co., New York, which inherited Revlon's ethical advertising billing from Noyes & Sproul, New York, last January.

REVSONS IN HAPPIER DAYS
CHARLES (L) WILL GO IT ALONE

Emil Mogul Co., New York, will increase aggregate billing despite its losing Aquamarine spray and Silken Net spray. It will gain Satin Set—currently Revlon's No. 1 hair product—and Top Brass deodorant for men. It already has Top Brass hair cream. Gaining Aquamarine spray (Mogul retains the rest of the Aquamarine line) as well as Silken Net is C. J. LaRoche & Co., which is giving up Satin Set. It also loses Clean and Clear facial cleanser, which goes to Warwick & Legler as do Silicare lotion and hand cream (out of Dowd, Redfield & Johnstone). DR&J gains no new product at this time, but LaRoche is due for two new facial creams, presently unnamed.

Warwick & Legler, which last fall inherited the plum of the Revlon billings from BBDO [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, Sept. 23, 1957], remains the pivotal nucleus of Revlon's agency set-up, gaining a third product, also a face cream. W&L remains agency of record on CBS-TV's $64,000 Challenge, which next season moves into the Sunday, 10-10:30 p.m. time slot with P. Lorillard Co. (companion program, $64,000 Challenge, now on Sundays, is dropped effective September). W&L also will service the new Bid 'n' Buy panel quizzer that takes a try-out run this summer in the former Question Tuesday night period on CBS-TV. Should this show "make it"—says advertising vice president George J. Abrams—Warwick & Legler will place the show this fall.

LaRoche, last year's agency of record on the abortive ABC-TV-Desilu Walter Winchell File and CBS-TV's 20th Century-Fox Hour will be assigned agency responsibility for the new Garry Moore Show on CBS-TV next season. The Tuesday, 10-11 p.m. program seeks a co-sponsor with Revlon.

The surprising divorce of the Revson brothers ends the family enterprise that began in a one-room office in 1932 when the two teamed up with a third brother, Joseph (now retired), and chemist Charles Lachman—the "L" in Revlon. They parlayed a $300 investment into a multimillion-dollar cosmetic empire, claimed to be the world's largest. Its success was predicated on the theory that cosmetics should be promoted as style items, not mere beauty aids. In that time, advertising expenditures were hiked from zero to an estimated $20 million of which tv-radio takes more than 50%. Primarily a network advertiser, Revlon in 1958 promises to use more spot on behalf of such products as Hi and Dri roll-on deodorant and Clear-O-Dan.

Speculation centered late last week on Martin Revson's successor. Most likely candidate seemed to be Mr. Abrams but he dismissed these reports as "premature." Advertising's voice in Revlon's future management is slated to be louder: for example, William Mandell, advertising manager, has quietly moved up to assistant to the president. Succeeding Mr. Mandell is William F. Siegel, advertising director of Coty Inc. Should Mr. Abrams move into the executive vice presidency, as has been suggested, Revlon would probably go outside of the corporation for a new advertising vice president.

As to Martin Revson's plans, there was only conjecture. Following Wall Street reports that Mr. Revson had bought "substantial holdings" in Parke-Davis & Co., Detroit, there were reports he would be joining that pharmaceutical house. Another report had it Mr. Revson would purchase an interest in an advertising agency. Neither could be substantiated last week.

This Is Revlon's Agency Team And Products Serviced by Each

With Revlon's product line undergoing rapid expansion it is becoming more difficult by the day to keep tabs on who handles what. Here is an agency breakdown:

- Warwick & Legler: Futurama lipsticks and nail enamels, Touch 'n' Glow eye make-up, rouges and manicuring aids, Clean and Clear silicare lotion and hand cream, Living Curl hair spray and unnamed face cream, Christmas gift sets. (Tv functions: "tune-in" ads for Revlon's network programs, production on Question and Bid 'n' Buy.)

- C. J. LaRoche: Clearaway acne preparation, Seven Wonders face cream, Love Pat, Moon Drops creams, Liquid Asset face lotion, Intimate colognes and Aerosol sprays, WHO'S ON SECOND?

Status of Bid 'n' Buy—New Revlon show slated to go into the Tuesday, 10-10:30 p.m. slot on CBS-TV in lieu of $64,000 Question, on hiatus this summer—was “very much up in the air” Thursday. Warwick & Legler, Revlon agency, charged with production on the new John Guedel-Flying-A package quiz, admitted that “nothing was set” but claimed that the decision “was between Revlon and CBS.” Apparently the network feels Bid 'n' Buy isn't of substantial strength to go out under the CBS label and late Thursday Revlon advertising officials were understood to be closeted with CBS officials in an effort to arrive at a solution. W & L's position: “Until we're notified otherwise, Bid 'n' Buy is scheduled for Tuesdays.”

Revlon “treatment” cosmetics (Second Nature, Build Up, White Sable), Aquamarine spray, Silkenet hair spray, two new facial creams. (Tv functions: agency of record on Garry Moore Show.)

- Emil Mogul Co.: Aquamarine lotion, Top Brass deodorant for men, Top Brass hair cream for men and future men's line products now in lab stage, Hi and Dri roll-on deodorant for women, Home Beautiful room deodorizer, Esquire shoe cleaners and waxes (Knemark Mfg. Div.) and Satin Set spray. (Tv function: participation in network programming plus placing radio-tv test campaigns in spot.)

- Dowd, Redfield & Johnstone: Eye Fresh eye drops, Thin Down reducing pills, Sun Bath sun oil, Baby Silicare powder and lotions, Hi-Gloss lacquered hair spray. (Tv function: see Emil Mogul Co.)

- Maxwell B. Sackheim & Co.: Clear-O-Dan medicated shampoos.

- Charles W. Hoyt Co.: Femicin menstrual pain reliever and ethical advertising (Thayer Labs Div.).

Of indefinite status are the following products, either temporarily shelved or about to be reassigned: Fine and Handy liquid detergent (temporarily at Warwick & Legler), Fire and Ice fragrances (presently at LaRoche), and sponge cake makeup (now assigned to DR&J).

Starlac Account Puts D-F-S Near $100 Million Billing

Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample, New York, last week picked up the $2 million Starlac account from Young & Rubicam, New York, which handles most of the Borden Co.'s advertising. Starlac is Borden's non-fat dry milk product.

Though not a coup of the Frigidaire variety, the Starlac acquisition is noteworthy as the third new account acquired by D-F-S in less than two months. It sets the D-F-S billing pace nearer the select $100 million per year category.

D-F-S current rate of yearly billing is over $90 million, counting in Frigidaire's $6 million (national) acquired in May and the Swift & Co.'s $1.5 million as well as the new Borden business. Applying the general breakdown used by the agency of 60% of its billing in broadcast media, its radio-tv billing now shoots over the $50 million mark.

Lever, Pharmaceutical Back Gleason Comeback

- Half-hour 'spectacular' set
- Budget near $100,000 per show

Two major advertisers—Lever Bros. and Pharmaceuticals Inc.—next fall will back what reportedly will be the most expensive regularly scheduled live half-hour television series in tv's history.

The program will mark the return to tv of comic Jackie Gleason (his services are under contract to CBS-TV). As explained last week, the show will “telescope” the former hour Jackie Gleason Show into a 30-minute, but “spectacular,” format. Lever and Pharmaceuticals will place the comedy-variety program in the Friday 8:30-9 p.m. period on CBS-TV, starting Oct. 3. They will sponsor the show on alternate weeks.

The program's cost (production-talent, not time) will fall somewhere between $70-100,000 per show—and a spokesman last week placed the figure “closer to $100,000 than $70,000.” Up to now the highest-budgeted regular five half-hour program series have been estimated in the $55-60,000 range. The advertisers have signed for 26 weeks. Taking $90,000 as a possible production cost for a single show, the entire series would call for a budget over the $2.3 million mark.

Agency negotiating for Lever was J. Walter Thompson, New York (Lever has six agencies handling its 18 products). Although JWT services Lever on four products—Rinso, Lux Liquid, Lux toilet soap and Stripe toothpaste—other products as represented by Lever's divisions can voice interest in participation on the show.

Pharmaceuticals, via Parkson Adv., will use Geritol, Sominex and some of its J. B. Williams' product line on the program. Pharmaceuticals, not as weighty in network tv as Lever but nonetheless a major network tv advertiser, has been active in reforming its lineup of shows for next fall [CLOSED CIRCUIT, May 5].

The advertiser has had approximately $14 million in network tv this year, a figure expected to be higher next year. The company next fall gives up its Saturday 10-10:30 p.m. slot on NBC-TV; Ted Mack Amateur Hour now in that period runs through this summer. Its entry into an alternate-week arrangement for Jackie Gleason reflects Pharmaceuticals' trend toward that type of sponsorship. Once the sole sponsors of To Tell the Truth (CBS-TV, Tuesday, 9-9:30 p.m.), Pharmaceuticals now has sold off alternate weeks to Philip Morris for Marlboro cigarettes. Its only single sponsorship remaining is Twenty One on NBC-TV which will be seen on Thursdays 8-8:30 p.m. next fall.

It was learned last week that Pharmaceuticals is negotiating for additional time on CBS-TV, a nighttime half-hour show and certain daytime periods.

Details of format and cast are still to be worked out on the new Gleason series. Mr. Gleason will be returning to network tv after an absence of 16 months. His former Saturday night series on CBS-TV started in September 1952 and was terminated at his request in June 1957.

'Specials' No Bargain, ABC-TV Study Holds

The tv “special” isn't really anything special in terms of cost efficiency, the ABC-TV research department contended last week in a special report [CLOSED CIRCUIT, June 2].

Where the cost-per-thousand per commercial minute for the average half-hour weekly program is $3.39, the report asserted, the comparable cost for the average once-a-month special is $4.29. A. C. Nielsen Co. cost analysis data was cited as source for the figures.

By program types, the average cost-per-thousand per commercial minute for weekly half-hour shows was given as follows: western drama $2.62; quiz and audience participations $2.83; general drama $3.14; situation comedy $3.45; suspense drama $3.62; variety $4.28 and adventure $3.67.

The cost of four weekly half-hours is approximately the same as the cost of one special the report asserted putting the cost of the former at $344,724 and the latter at $353,600. “But four weekly programs reach far more different homes than does one special,” the report continued. On this score the number of different homes reached in four weeks was placed at 18,771,000 in the case of the average weekly half-hour and 15,838,000 for the average special.

In terms of sales impressions, the report said the average evening half-hour makes 101,640,000 in four nights as against 80,498,000 for the once-a-month special.

The research department—whose network is light on specials as compared to its competitors, despite ABC signing of Bing Crosby last week for two specials a year (see story page 87)—did not conclude that there is no place for specials. Instead it said:

“Specials serve a function—they attract attention, are useful for introducing a new product, celebrating a special occasion, etc. In other words, specials are effective when they are truly special. However . . . as a regular and continuing advertising effort, a series of weekly telecasts is a superior advertising vehicle. It is this more conventional programming that allows an advertiser to place his sales message before the greatest number of prospects the greatest number of times at the lowest costs.”

Harrington West-Bound To Be HC&M Chairman

Eugene I. Harrington, who eight years ago merged his San Francisco agency with Fletcher D. Richards Inc., last week quit the New York agency and its presidency (earned in 1955) to return to the West Coast. The move admittedly caught a agency Chairman Fletcher D. Richards by surprise. He denied Mr. Harrington was leaving on account of a "rift" by pointing out that Mr. Harrington had received "a most attractive offer out there."

MR. HARRINGTON

The offer: board chairman of Honig, Cooper & Miner, Los Angeles, which on July 1 becomes Honig-Cooper, Harrington & Miner. It would be that agency's third name change this year, having originally been Honig-Cooper until its merger with the Dan B. Miner Co. The $15 million agency has offices in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle, servicing such broadcast advertisers as Procter & Gamble's Clorox Div. and Star-Kist tuna.

Mr. Harrington said that "they (HC&M) made me a very attractive offer. . . . All of this has happened quite suddenly."

Mr. Richards will assume the presidency of the Richards agency for the time being. He said it was not a "pro-tem" office but, on the other hand, "nothing permanent, either." Reports that Sherwood Dodge, ex-Foote, Cone & Belding New York general manager who joined Richards as executive vice president last summer, would be named president were dismissed as "decidedly premature" by Mr. Richards.

Meanwhile, Fletcher D. Richards announced the amalgamation of Tandy Adv. Agency Ltd., Toronto, with the Richards office in Montreal. The result is a new agency, Tandy-Richards Adv. Ltd.

The "amalgamation"—so called because Tandy-Richards Adv. is a Canadian-charttered firm "affiliated" but not owned outright by Fletcher D. Richards—combines three major Canadian accounts, all broadcast time users; Sun Oil Co. (Tandy), Studebaker-Packard Corp. (Tandy) and U. S. Rubber Co.'s Canadian subsidiary, Dominion Rubber (Richards).

Multiple-Set Question Goes Into 1960 Census

The radio and tv homes count in the 1960 decennial census of the United States will show multiple-set homes.

On top of the announcement by the Census Bureau that radio had been restored to the 1960 enumeration after it had been thrown out a few weeks before [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, June 2], the bureau disclosed that the 1960 broadcast question will provide for the first time this additional data on homes with more than one radio and/or tv set.

RADIO HOME-RUN

In a day when a too-cautious attitude towards advertising is poor business, a small realty firm in Cleveland showed positive thinking and hit a radio bonanza of nearly a million dollars worth of home sales. The results were accomplished in two weekends with a radio spot campaign placed by Paul C. Warren Adv., Cleveland.

Fazio Realty, a two-man office, came to Warren Adv. with a modest advertising budget for a housing development. The agency scheduled 85 spots on Cleveland's WDOI, WHK and WJW the first weekend, with Fazio subsequently reporting 26 homes sold. The next weekend a package of 50 spots ran on WDOI and a "sold-out" sign went up at the development. Final tabulations by Warren Adv.: 50 homes sold @ $17,500; cost to the client: $1,020.

The radio-tv questions will be phrased to include check blanks for none, one and two-or-more sets. This will break down each type of home—non-radio or tv, single radio or tv set; multiple sets—by metropolitan areas, counties and states.

A new compilation of estimated tv sets by cities, counties and states is being completed by Advertising Research Foundation. It is based on Census Bureau samples of tv homes plus Nielsen and other data [CLOSED CIRCUIT, June 2], and will be ready in a few weeks.

NAB and broadcast stations generally have requested that the 1960 census include circulation figures for fm, battery portable and auto radio receivers. They have also asked color tv and uhf-vhf breakdowns.

The Census Bureau has said informally that the cost and trouble involved in counting fm, uhf-vhf and color sets would be prohibitive and it has applied a similar argument to suggestions that battery portables and auto sets be counted.

Several weeks ago FCC Comr. Robert E. Lee, defense commissioner, asked the Census Bureau to include battery portables and fm receivers in the 1960 census. The bureau turned down his request.

TV'S HARDIEST MAKES 10-YEAR MARK

After 10 years, $35 million advertising dollars and 520 tv programs, Ed Sullivan last night (Sunday) clocked a milestone on the longest run in commercial television—a decade of continuous sponsorship by a single advertiser on an hour-long network show.

The show started June 8, 1948, with a 9-city list. It's now on 200 stations. Mercury came in as sponsor in March 1949, now is in its 10th season.

The show will formally celebrate its 10th anniversary on June 22. Among the stars to honor Mr. Sullivan on the show will be Jackie Gleason, Phil Silvers, Teresa Brewer, Maurice Chevalier, Sophie Tucker, Walt Disney, Victor Borge, Margaret Truman, Ben Hogan and Johnnie Ray.

In conjunction with the celebration, Kenyon & Eckhardt, agency for Mercury, is conducting an Ed Sullivan tenth anniversary station promotion managers contest in which the top award will be a 1958 Mercury Commuter station wagon. The agency's media department has divided the stations into four categories. For the best proof-of-promotion in each category the winners will receive $500. In addition, one of the $500 winners, judged the best over-all, will receive the station wagon for his station.

ED SULLIVAN AND CHORUS: THEN AND NOW

Tv Audience Up 5.4%, Nielsen Survey Shows

Television gained 5.4% in viewing audience and 10% in viewing hours during the past year, A. C. Nielsen Co. reports in a study announced today (Monday).

The report shows that 95% of all U. S. television homes use their sets during a typical week. This comes to 40,163,000 households as compared to 38,082,000 in the comparable winter week of 1957.

The average home, according to Nielsen figures, watches television 43 hours and 12 minutes a week for a total of 1.74 billion hours of home watching per week. A year ago the average came to 41 hours and 31 minutes per week and the weekly total was 1.58 billion hours.

The study distributes the weekly tv activity thus: 12% is done in the morning between 6 o'clock and noon; 27% between noon and 6 p.m.; 57% between 6 p.m. and midnight, and 4% after midnight.

Although after-midnight viewing represents a relatively small percentage of total viewing, Nielsen officials said, almost 22 million different homes—more than half of all tv homes—do watch television after midnight at some time during the week, averaging three hours of post-midnight viewing per week.

The study also notes that during the single morning hour from 8 to 9 a.m. the weekday audience mounts up to 13 million different homes in the course of a week. During the average minute of this hour some five million homes are watching.

The tv report is a counterpart to the 1958-vs.-1957 report on radio listening, issued a week ago, in which Nielsen found the weekly radio audience up 8% [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, June 2].

Tv Turns the Tide For Dodger's Stadium

On Sunday, June 1, something new was added to television and to politics. At 5:30 p.m. the Tax Payers Committee for Yes on Baseball began an eight-hour telethon on KTTV (TV) Los Angeles. The purpose: To persuade the viewer voters of the city to ratify the deal their city council had made with Walter O'Malley, owner of the Los Angeles Dodgers, for a parcel of land in Chavez Ravine as a stadium site.

With Joe E. Brown, wide-mouthed comedian, ardent baseball fan and chairman of the committee as master of ceremonies, the "Dodgerthon" presented an assortment of notables that included Jack Benny, E. Talbot Callister of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, Laraine Day, Chester Quon of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, George Burns, Dr. Lyman A. Brewer of the County General Hospital, Jerry Lewis, councilwoman Rosalind Wyman, Debbie Reynolds and scores of singers, actors, athletes, musicians, sportscasters and representatives of civic, patriotic and political organizations. A few sang or performed but the great majority just presented their reasons for favoring approval of the contract.

From time to time the show left the KTTV studio for the airport where announcer Steve Bailey let individuals from the crowd assembling there to welcome the Dodgers home from a road trip ask questions of Mr. O'Malley, who answered them before a camera in another studio. Another interlude in the studio activities took viewers for a filmed tour of Chavez Ravine. A little after 9 p.m. the program shifted to the airport where the crowd (by now numbering more than 75,000) sang, cheered and crowded around the tv cameras until the plane brought the Dodgers in for a triumphal welcome (from a losing tour). The players were interviewed one by one as they alighted from the plane while the crowd cheered again and again.

When they were all off the plane the Dodgerthon ended with the request for viewers to call their friends to tell them it would be repeated on tape beginning immediately—and, with a few deletions it was.

The Dodgerthon, live and tape, ran for 8 hours from 5:30 Sunday to 1:30 a.m. Monday. It cost the committee between $7,000 and $8,000 as a paid political broadcast.

Was it worth it? The answer given by Los Angeles voters June 3 was a decided "yes." The previous week political prognosticators had estimated that Proposition B for baseball on the primary ballot would be defeated by about two to one. Instead it was approved by a 25,000 majority. The Dodgerthon was the only apparent reason for the change.

Ironically, the Dodgers, who refused to allow their first Los Angeles games to be telecast—holding out for pay tv—owe their future home to the medium they snubbed.

PREVIEW

Selling dog care for 'dog days'

No one probably feels the "dog days" of summer more keenly than the dogs themselves. Accordingly, Polk Miller Products Corp., Richmond, Va. (Sergeant's dog care products), has launched a three-month campaign, on NBC-TV's Jack Paar Show (Mon.-Fri., 11:15 p.m.-1 a.m.) and ABC-TV's American Bandstand (Mon.-Fri., 4-5 p.m.) to impress on viewers the needed summertime dog care.

The one-minute announcements are a combination of live and film. Commercials stress how easy it is to take care of the family dog with Sergeant's products—and the copy is dashed with humor. For instance a commercial for Sergeant's "Shampoo" and "E-Z Groom" products points out:

"Now . . . let's meet the well-known world traveller and best-dressed male specimen you ever saw—His Lordship Abercrombie Groomwell. Fresh from his triumphant vacation on the Riviera. Notice the rich silky gloss of his coat . . . the healthy twinkle in his eyes . . . the brisk clean look. (Pause). Explanation. Groomwell . . . is groomed—you might say—with products designed specifically for dogs. He's groomed with Sergeant's."

Similarly, an announcement for Sergeant's "Flea and Tick Spray," designed to launch this new product this summer: "Poor 'Scratchy' is leading a dog's life . . . and it's so unnecessary. Guess his owner hasn't heard about this great new product—'Flea and Tick Spray'—from Sergeant's . . . One easy-to-use aerosol can do six jobs. Just press the button and Sergeant's new 'Flea and Tick Spray' goes to work (see cut) . . . to kill fleas and ticks . . . kills bacteria and soothes the skin . . . brightens your dog's coat . . . and stops doggy odors!"

The campaign was conceived by N. W. Ayer & Son, Philadelphia and New York, with Robert H. Chase as film production supervisor; Barbara Peabody as copywriter, and David Lyons as art director. The film sequences were produced by Herbert Kerkow Inc., New York.

'Father of Bride' Bought Early By GF in Five-Year Rights Pact

General Foods Corp., New York, through Benton & Bowles, same city, has announced that it has purchased five-year television rights to the tv film series Father of the Bride from MGM-TV for network showing during the 1959-60 season.

The buy is an unusual one, and is one of the rare occasions where an advertiser has bought the rights to a tv series so far in advance of air date. Work will begin immediately on shooting the first pilot.

Negotiations for the five-year package were handled by Ed Ebel, vice president of advertising, General Foods Corp.; Tom McDermott, vice president in charge of radio and television, Benton & Bowles, and Charles (Bud) Barry, vice president in charge of television for Loew's Inc., parent company of MGM-TV. Father of the Bride, a novel by Edward Streeter, was produced as a theatre feature by MGM in June 1950.

"By planning more than a year in advance, we not only have bought a valuable property, we have bought time—time to develop a television series based on a highly successful novel which became an outstanding motion picture with an enviable box office record," Mr. Ebel and Mr. McDermott explained.

In the approximately ten years that we have been on TV, WMAR has for most of that time been the backbone of our TV program. Nothing but ten second spots have been used for many years, and they have done an outstanding job for us.

The business of the Koester Bakery has steadily increased year after year, and WMAR-TV has, undoubtedly, been one of the big factors in this growth. We anticipate projecting our program with you through the coming critical years, and we feel sure that the combination of Koester and WMAR will continue to be successful.

I might add that your personal splendid cooperation with us, has been a large part of this successful story.

It's always a pleasure for an advertiser — and an agency—to see a program develop a top TV rating. Food Fair's "Dialing for Dollars" on WMAR-TV with an average ARB rating of 15.6 in February is still leading all morning daytime TV programs — and many nighttime network shows in the Baltimore market. "Dialing for Dollars" (created and produced by this agency) has been a consistent leader in ratings ever since it went on WMAR as a simulcast (with WCBM radio) after 17 successful years on radio.

We enjoy being part of a real "success story" and appreciate the cooperation of the entire staff of WMAR in keeping "Dialing for Dollars" at the top of the TV ratings in Baltimore.

TV SUCCESS STORY

WEISS MOTOR CO.

Unlike many automobile dealers these days, our client —Weiss Motor Company— reports no pain or strain. Weiss sales figures for 1958 Fords are definitely on the healthy side. Naturally, Weiss's position as Maryland's largest Ford dealer has played an important part in their success. Another key contributing factor has been their sponsorship of the 11 P.M. News on WMAR-TV every Wednesday and Friday night. Both Weiss and this agency are convinced that this program is proving an ideal "showcase" for the Weiss Ford story. We especially wish to commend announcer Matt Thomas for his fresh, forthright delivery.

Schick Files Bid With Court To Re-Open Case Won by W&L

The Schick-Warwick & Legler contest over ownership of advertising ideas may not be settled after all. Counsel for Schick intends to reopen the case, although a Philadelphia federal district court sustained the former Schick agency in its quest for a permanent injunction against Schick and its current agency, Benton & Bowles, prohibiting the advertiser from using an idea conceived by W&L [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, May 19].

Schick counsel, Dunnington, Bartholow & Miller, has filed an application with Judge J. Cullen Ganey, asking that he set aside the judgment of early May. DB&M's argument is that it has a number of key witnesses who could substantiate the defendant's claims—witnesses who, the court had commented, were not available at the time of the hearing.

Radio-Tv Support by Dealers Urged for New Sealy Promotion

Dealers handling Sealy Inc.'s Golden Sleep mattress products distributed by its 28 licensed plants throughout the country are being encouraged to buy radio and tv spot announcements in support of the company's "Golden Values" national promotion this summer.

Both radio and television "will be used for maximum support," according to Gerald Shappell, Sealy advertising manager, though the firm plans no national spot purchases for the present. Filmed and recorded spots are being offered to dealers as promotion aids for use on stations carrying local programs, or for individual dealer time buys.

A special 60-second tv film incorporates two salesmen with contrasting approaches—the "pitchman" or medicine man and the "soft-sell" salesman. Brief film spots and two new recorded radio announcements, with live tags to be supplied by Sealy dealers, have been produced by Sealy's national agency, J. Walter Thompson Co. The "Golden Values" promotion is a followup to Sealy's major spring campaign for its Posturepedic mattress, with spots featuring celebrities Arlene Dahl, Eddie Albert and Mercedes McCambridge [AT DEADLINE, April 21].

BALABAN SETS PARAMOUNT TACK

Paramount Pictures "is trying to make it (that is, money) over the ground, under the ground and through the air," its stockholders were informed last week at the company's annual meeting in New York.

This was the picturesque way Paramount executives, including President Barney Balaban, underscored the motion picture company's increased and diverse operations. To wit:

- "Over The Ground"—Use of the main studio lot (Paramount Studios) for continued production of motion pictures for release to theatres and utilization of the Paramount-Sunset Lot (operated by subsidiary Sunset Corp.) in leasing facilities for both tv motion picture production as well as Paramount Sunset's own tv production efforts. The first of this tv film series will be "The Conquest of Space" [FILM, June 2].

- "Under The Ground"—Oil well drilling on Paramount-owned acreage in Hollywood (including a section of 60 acres of which the Paramount lot covers 32). Actual drilling on the latter acreage will begin "no later than" the week of June 16.

- "Through The Air"—Pay tv and a subsidiary company working on space satellite equipment. (The "air" also will be carrying more of pre-1948 Paramount features acquired and now being sold by MCA. Subsidiary International Telemeter Corp., in which Paramount holds a 90% interest, Mr. Balaban reminded, will be in operation in some communities by the end of the year.

In his comment on International Telemeter, Mr. Balaban went a bit further than IT President Louis A. Novins' statements made a few weeks ago in Hollywood [PROGRAM SERVICES, June 2]. Mr. Balaban said the pay tv closed circuit system would be installed "in two communities in the U. S. and one in Canada." He would not identify the communities by name, however, other than to indicate they would be located near metropolitan areas.

Paramount's interests are spread along a wide and diverse segment of the entertainment-electronics economy. It has its Hollywood studios; is in tv film production; has a pact with MCA on the sale of its pre-1948 feature backlog; has a pay tv system; owns KTLA (TV) Los Angeles and 22% of Metropolitan Broadcasting Corp.; holds 26% of manufacturer Allen B. Dumont Labs; has a chromatic div. that is associated with the Lawrence Color Tv Tube (see story, page 90); owns outright Dot Records Inc., that it acquired last year and the Autometric Corp. (engaged in defense work). And its subsidiary, Telemeter Magnetics Inc., is engaged in digital data storage work in the electronics field.

In a news-producing appearance before his stockholders, Mr. Balaban provided these highlights among others:

- Paramount is selling its library of shorts and cartoons (200-250) for $1.7 million (before taxes) in short installments and its New York newsreel laboratory for $1.2 million in cash, also before taxes. Later, the buyers were identified, respectively, as Harvey Publications, publisher of comic books, and Consolidated Labs (owned by Republic Pictures).

- Paramount's management "knows of no major company today considering the sale of post-1948 features to television. Mr. Balaban asked: "What happens to television when the available supply of motion pictures has been run and re-run a number of times and then is exhausted? It is estimated that all . . . pre-1948 feature films will be used up within two or three years." He said tv "would seem to be facing some serious problems" because of this and such crucial factors as "production costs of live programming rising constantly . . . with the current alarming mortality rate of live shows." The Paramount chief found the "brash newcomer" had its problems "temporarily alleviated by the transfusion" of "four to five thousand" feature pictures into tv programming in the past two years. But he, warned, a single tv station market can consume in a couple of months "the 600-odd hours of entertainment produced annually (of feature films) by Hollywood."

- Metropolitan Broadcasting Corp. (formerly Dumont Broadcasting Corp.) now is a "profitable operation" and "we anticipate continued and orderly growth." Metropolitan, operation of WTTG (TV) Washington, WABD (TV) New York, WNEW New York and WHK Cleveland (purchase pending before FCC), has had a financial upturn, last year chopped off $243,460 from its tax loss carried forward from 1956 [STATIONS, April 14]. A remaining $1.3 million deficit will be applied against profitable operations in this and in future years.

- After the meeting, Mr. Balaban said he doubted if second-quarter share earnings for Paramount Pictures this year would be less than the same period in 1958 when a net of $1,060,000 or 53 cents a year was reported. (During the meeting, he reviewed the company's continued stock reduction program which has permitted the company to retain a $2 dividend rate annually despite debt retirement and expanding investments. In fact, the stockholders later voted approval for a proposal to retire an additional 126,400 shares of stock.)

Mr. Balaban asserted that the motion picture business has become "volatile and rugged . . . the chips we deal with keep getting bigger all the time and the difficulties and risks grow with the investments." He said the so-called "block buster" motion picture (of the "Ten Commandments" variety) does more business in the world market today than ever before, but that the general level of business in average-budgeted features has declined. Too many of the latter, he said, have made it difficult for the studio to recoup costs and attempt to show a reasonable return on the investment made.

Gross-Krasne Opens S.F. Office

Television film distributor Gross-Krasne Inc. has opened its seventh regional headquarters, this one in San Francisco. Robert H. Hill, vice president in charge of western division sales, has been transferred from the firm's Hollywood home office to direct operations at the new location. Address: 155 Montgomery St.; telephone: Exbrook 7-2682.

Gross-Krasne divisional offices also are in New York, Chicago, Minneapolis, Dallas, Miami and Los Angeles.

Screen Gems Hits New Record For Latin American Film Sales

Screen Gems Inc., New York, has announced that a total of 41 program sales were completed in Latin America during the first quarter of 1958, which it described as "record business." The sales were made to nine Spanish-language countries and to Brazil (Portuguese-speaking).

The largest number of sales, according to William Fineshriber Jr., director of international operations, were made in Cuba where nine programs were bought. The second largest number of sales were made in Puerto Rico, where eight programs were purchased. Other transactions were to stations and advertisers in Argentina, Venezuela, Guatemala, El Salvador, Mexico, Columbia and Brazil.

Mr. Fineshriber revealed that 218 additional half hours of Screen Gems programming will be dubbed into Spanish at studios in Mexico, and said that within six months, the company will have a total of 600 half-hour tv films with Spanish sound tracks. Program series dubbed into Spanish include Rin Tin Tin, All Star Theatre, Circus Boy, The 77th Bengal Lancers, Father Knows Best, Tales of the Texas Rangers, Jet Jackson, Jungle Jim and Suspense.

HOW ARMSTRONG COVERS AMERICA...

Armstrong Cork will start its 31st year in network broadcasting and its ninth in television by concentrating its entire television advertising effort on the CBS Television Network where it has just renewed its notable series of hour-long actuality dramas.

Armstrong Cork's leadership in its field is grounded in a firm conviction about the sales effectiveness of television. This conviction is reflected not only in the character of its programming, but in the expressed attitude of the Company itself:

"People who purchase Armstrong products do so at long intervals, which is why we are primarily concerned with the impact of the program itself as well as its commercials. This means putting quality ahead of quantity —program character and audience composition ahead of audience size— since Armstrong is sure to reach everybody over a span of years. A good program can contribute to the impact that its commercials have on the audience, and thus become allied in the viewer's mind with the sponsor's product. We find the CBS Television Network a particularly effective frame for delivering this impact."

It seems clear that the CBS Television Network is delivering the same kind of impact for other advertisers as well—including General Foods, Westinghouse, U. S. Steel and Prudential.

Like Armstrong, they have announced their renewals on the network that for 68 consecutive Nielsen Reports has been delivering the largest nationwide audiences in advertising. CBS TELEVISION NETWORK

AAP MAKING PROFIT IN FACE OF STRIFE

- April-May gross: $4 million
- Ownership battle unresolved

Associated Artist Productions Corp., now two years old, is navigating a profitable course. A $1 million profit logged in 1957 and $4 million gross reported for April and May this year serve to underline the fact.

The financial sturdiness exists despite past dangers of running aground. An internal dispute last winter nearly ripped the company from stem to stern, while a related controversy on eventual stock ownership of the company threatened to cut AAP adrift (a situation still locked in litigation).

Evidence at hand shows AAP made over $1 million in profit last year. AAP's announcement of a $4 million gross for April and May was unusual for a company normally reticent to drumbeat sales figures.

AAP primarily exists because of and for television. The corporation operates AAP Inc., Associated Artists Enterprises (merchandising) and Dominant Pictures Corp. as wholly-owned subsidiaries. The firm, in business for only two years, receives the bulk of its revenue from distribution of the whole pre-1948 Warner Bros. feature library and cartoons and Popeye cartoons from Paramount pictures (also see new Paramount shorts sale, page 42.)

AAP purchased the Warner Bros. library (features and cartoons) for $21 million, financed by $7 million on hand, a $9 million bank loan and a $5 million deferred payment to Warner Bros. (Later the bank assumed the Warner obligation and consolidated the debt, a loan that AAP has been paying off.) The Popeyes (from Paramount Pictures and King Features) were acquired for $2.25 million, financed by the sale of convertible sinking fund debentures which provided capital.

According to AAP's report for 1957, the company's gross sales since July 1956 hit $35,348,000 last December 31. During the calendar year alone, sales totaled $20,672,000. Net income for last year was reported at $1,191,789. The year before, net income amounted to $360,606 (lower since it reflected only five months of selling after acquisition of product).

The $4 million gross for April and May is attributed in part to one of AAP's largest sales yet concluded (to the Hearst Corp. [WBAL-TV Baltimore and WISN-TV Milwaukee] for Warner Bros. films and cartoons).

Nearly six months ago, AAP's very existence had been threatened. As one official during that period expressed it, "It is difficult to assess which way AAP will go. Each office [at its headquarters on

New York's Madison Ave.] has its own meeting of lawyers."

The trouble arose apparently over failure to reconcile two stockholder and operational groups of the corporation. One faction was represented by Louis Chesler, Maxwell Goldhar and H. Mac Schwebel, then members of AAP's board of directors, sole members of its executive committee and respectively board chairman, vice president-secretary-treasurer and vice president. Mr. Chesler is a wealthy Canadian industrialist with extensive mining and real estate holdings. The others were his associates. This trio reportedly had sought continued profit taking.

The other faction, with AAP's President Elliot Hyman in the driver's seat, purportedly sought a slow corporate build-up and retention of the corporation as a distributor of the valuable Warner Bros. product to tv.

The situation came to a head in November of last year when National Telefilm Assoc., New York, a leading tv film distributor, operator of a tv film network and owner of tv stations, announced it had contracted to acquire "more than 50%" of stock outstanding in AAP and had plans to purchase the balance of the stock. Price of the purchase was estimated then at $7.5 million. Significantly, the shares were those held by Messrs. Chesler and Goldhar.

Just before last Christmas, there was a development at AAP. United Artists Corp. through a subsidiary created for the purpose (Gotham Television Film Corp.) purchased 700,000 shares of AAP's capital at $12 per share, or a total of $8.5 million, half of it in cash (or $6 per share). UA's Board Chairman Robert S. Benjamin indicated then that his company could be expected to purchase additional shares and assume eventual majority control of AAP. (UA financed and distributed independently produced theatrical films for nearly 50 independent producers and now leases post-1948 features to tv.)

Mr. Hyman at once issued a victorious-sounding message, welcoming "the added experience of the executives of United Artists" in furthering AAP's tv and motion picture activities. The Chesler-Goldhar-Mac Schwebel trio resigned from AAP.

This was the AAP story outside of court. But the internal tug-of-war and subsequent actions of NTA and UA landed early in litigation. Soon after NTA's purchase announcement the first action was filed by five minority AAP stockholders asking for a temporary injunction to stop the sale of NTA. Aside from various legal charges, the main contention was that the sale had been made by the Chesler group without regard to minority stockholder rights. NTA then entered court with a cross-complaint against UA and AAP principals. The gist of this action: defendants were charged with "inducement to break a contract and unfair competition."

After the UA purchase announcement, NTA went to the courts again, renewing its claims for damages providing stock be turned over to NTA; otherwise NTA seeks $18 million in damages. In that filing (New York Supreme Court), NTA also asked that UA be enjoined from taking over the assets of AAP until the NTA suit can be tried. A few weeks ago [FILM, May 19] Judge Aron Steuer Jr. granted the NTA petition.

In that action, UA had demanded immediate trial, asking NTA to post a $5 million bond, on NTA's contention that it had a previous contract to buy the majority stock of AAP. The judge denied UA's requests and granted NTA the time to take depositions and set bond at $50,000.

Of AAP's value, the judge stated: "The opportunity of exploiting them by way of television has made the films and hence the stock of the owner valuable." At that point, the first reels in AAP's continuing story were played out. The next episodes are to come.

Universal Retains Sindlinger For Opinion on Film Re-issues

The post '48 films-to-tv controversy is likely to get hotter—or cooler—depending on the findings of Sindlinger & Co., Ridley Park, Pa.

Sindlinger, on long-term retainer by Universal Pictures Co. (Universal-International Films), has been charged with feeling the public's pulse on the prospect of re-issuing theatrical films originally released between 1948-52 and currently residing in U-I's film vaults.

The business analysis firm has already questioned over 2,200 theatrical exhibitors on how they would feel about re-scheduling a list of 53 films (41 in technicolor); it is currently asking its national sample of movie-goers (who, incidentally, all are televiewers) whether they would wish to see these ostensibly "dead" films. U-I General Sales Manager Henry H. Martin last week indicated that exhibitor response has been "most encouraging." He did not say in which way.

But U-I generally admits that its intent in gauging exhibitor and public reaction to so-called played-out films was born of the "post '48" dilemma now facing all major Hollywood studios. "We want to find out for certain," a U-I spokesman declared last week, "whether there's something to the argument that these films still have a box-office potential." But when asked whether U-I might conceivably alter its stand on giving post '48 films to tv should Sindlinger discover that these films are "dead," the company official said, "decidedly not. We are going along with the rest of the studios. . ."

Though it is as yet too soon to determine industry reaction to the Sindlinger reports—scheduled for "final collating within four weeks"—this much is certain: any findings by Sindlinger favorable to re-issues may be expected to stiffen opposition to tv leasing in that it would provide factual ammunition to the contention of such film executives as 20th Century-Fox's Spyros Skouras who asserts that his firm would have accrued "substantial" earnings from theatrical re-issues [FILM, May 26].

Guild, Texas Company Set Up Overseas Unit

Standard Sulphur Co., stockholders, meeting in Houston last week, voted to acquire from Guild Films Inc., all of the foreign residual property and distribution rights to its library of some 2500 programs, and to change the name to Inter-World Tv Films Inc.

The agreement provides that out of a total capitalization of 5 million shares of common stock, Guild will receive for its tv properties and distribution rights, 3,400,000 shares of common stock and $5 million in ten-year 7% debentures, which will be redeemable out of 50% of the company's net income.

In announcing the agreement consummated at the stockholders' meeting, John J. Cole, president of Guild Films Inc., who also became chairman of the board of Inter-World, explained that to start off its international distribution activities, the new company will have a stockpile of 1100 RKO short subjects, the "Minutes of Prayer" library and 20 specially produced tv series, representing in excess of $25 million in production costs. These properties are owned by Guild.

Inter-World, according to Mr. Cole, will immediately establish permanent distribution headquarters in 18 countries, named by local staffs experienced in the requirements of the local market. Facilities will be provided to dub film for independent producers as well as deal with all of the manifold problems of censorship, import, licensing, etc., that arise in the distribution of any product so far away from home.

"What we propose to do is provide a total service," Mr. Cole said, "to the owners of tv properties, but who are without access to the very remunerative foreign field."

CBS-TV Buys Two Official Series; 'Robin Hood' in Syndication

Official Films Inc., New York, announced that CBS-TV has purchased its new half-hour tv film series, The Invisible Man, and a new cycle of the Robin Hood serial for showing on the network, starting in the fall.

Harold Hackett, president of Official, told a news conference in New York that CBS-TV is considering placing the two programs in the 7:30-8 p.m. periods on Monday, Wednesday or Friday or Sunday, 6:30-7 p.m. Mr. Hackett added that CBS-TV bought Robin Hood even though the current sponsors of the series on that network—Johnson & Johnson and the Wildroot Co.—have announced they will not renew the show for the fall.

Mr. Hackett also reported that Official is offering for syndication to tv stations 143 half-hours of Robin Hood. He said this programming already has been bought for a total of $600,000 by four stations—KCOP-TV Hollywood, KRON-TV San Francisco, WNAC-TV Boston and CKLW-TV Detroit-Windsor. It will be marketed under the title of Adventures in Sherwood Forest.

Mr. Hackett said business for Official's first six months for the fiscal year ended Jan. 1, 1958, was "excellent," amounting to about $4.5 million gross. He said business for the first three months of the present fiscal year "was down from last year," but added there has been "a pickup since and we are hopeful that the second half will be at least as good as for the same period last year."

NETWORKS JOINED BY DOERFER IN OPPOSITION TO BRICKER BILL

- No good purpose would be served, hearing critics say
- Witnesses express fear on vagueness of proposed law

Television networks objected strongly last week to the merits of a bill to put them under direct FCC regulation.

Appearing before Sen. John W. Bricker (R-Ohio), who presided at Senate Commerce Committee hearings on his bill (S 376), representatives of all three tv networks urged that no action be taken at this time because (a) no useful purpose would be served, (b) networks are now regulated, albeit indirectly, by the FCC, (c) the bill is vague and general and might put the FCC into the role of regulating tv business practices (such as rates, affiliation policies, programming and advertising), and (d) legislation now is premature since the FCC is still considering the recommendations of the Barrow Report.

Even FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer asked that the bill be held in abeyance at this time since the Commission still has the Barrow recommendations under study. He also said the bill was not specific enough as to what purported evils it is designed to eradicate.

Sen. Bricker's bill, introduced Jan. 9, would amend the Communications Act to put the word "networks" into the description of FCC regulatory jurisdiction. The act now only speaks of radio stations.

The hearings, at which Sen. Bricker presided and at which except for brief moments he was the only senator present, ran two days last week—Tuesday and Wednesday—and heard four witnesses, all in opposition.

They were Mr. Doerfer and CBS Staff Vice President Richard S. Salant, NBC Executive Vice President David C. Adams and ABC Vice President-General Counsel Mortimer Weinbach.

The hearings recessed Wednesday afternoon, to be resumed at the call of the committee. Sen. Bricker told reporters that the record would be discussed in executive session by other members of the committee and that the committee would decide what to do next.

He said, however, that he had no serious intention of seeking Congressional action this year. He added that he thought the hearings served a useful purpose in compiling a record to be used if legislation should be sought at the next session of Congress.

Testimony of the witnesses follows:

WITNESS: John C. Doerfer

FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer declined to commit the FCC on S 376 until completion of all phases of the Barrow Report. During his testimony, however, he took several swipes at provisions of the bill, raising the ire of Sen. Bricker and Committee Counsel Kenneth Cox.

He pointed out the issues of the Barrow Report, including those relating to network regulation, are now before the FCC. "In this circumstance," Comr. Doerfer said, "the Commission considers that it would be premature for it to take a position either in support of or in opposition to S 376 at this time.

"It is clear that the Commission has exercised considerable authority indirectly to prohibit network organizations from engaging in practices in certain areas. . . . Our concern is with maintaining broadcasting, including networking, as a nationwide, competitive industry and with removing such restraints as prevent the attainment of this objective.

"The position which the Commission ultimately takes on this question of direct regulation will depend on its findings (a) whether such additional rules as it may conclude are desirable in the public interest necessitate the grant of additional authority and (b) whether the enforcement of its existing and proposed rules can be effective without such additional authority."

Comr. Doerfer cited difficulties in obtaining programming information relating to the Barrow Report as the reason no firm date could be given for final decision on its recommendations. He said hearings will be concluded in 3-4 weeks, but it will be some time before definite conclusions can be reached. He agreed with Mr. Cox that it would be no later than January 1959.

Comr. Doerfer cited a recommendation in the Barrow Report that FCC ask Congress for legislative authority such as that contained in the Bricker bill.

Also, he pointed out, a large majority of those testifying have been opposed to this recommendation. Mr. Cox asked if there would be any advantage to applying network rules direct rather than through owned stations. Comr. Doerfer again said the FCC had no comment at this time. He said it is clear Sec. 3.658 of Communications Act is intended to govern many network practices, including affiliation, rate influence, program clearances and network ownership of stations.

Comr. Doerfer maintained that the bill, as presently drafted, leaves many questions unanswered and a final bill should "deal more concretely with the purpose of network regulation and the scope of the Commission's authority. . . ." The bill, he said, is silent as to its purpose. "Nowhere does it spell out the specific evils which the bill is designed to correct or the standards to be used in making regulations. . . ."

He said the present language is so broad that a number of interpretations can be drawn, which would lead to controversy. Sen. Bricker retorted: "I don't see the validity of your argument. I don't see what you are driving at." The senator said there is bound to be controversy in an industry such as broadcasting.

Comr. Doerfer also maintained the bill contains "ambiguities" in its provisions and that there is no clear definition of a network. He said "network" could be construed to include film syndicators and non-network advertisers.

Mr. Cox claimed there is a well-defined industry distinction between networks and syndicators, but Comr. Doerfer said he is unaware that such a clear distinction exists.

WITNESS: Richard S. Salant

CBS Vice President Richard Salant said he was appearing to explain why his network is "so deeply troubled" by the Bricker bill. "Let me affirm at the outset that CBS does not oppose all direct regulation of networks," he stated. "As far as our own attitude and conduct are concerned, we assure you that the existing regulations are very effective.

"I would emphasize what is so often overlooked when proposals to bring networks under regulation are made: As a practical matter, we are already rather comprehensively regulated. Two of our most valuable assets are (1) the licenses of the stations which we own, and (2) our affiliates, who are licensed. Without each of these, a network cannot operate. We would, obviously therefore, do nothing to jeopardize our own licenses or those of our affiliates. Hence, the Commission already has—and exercises—very considerable regulatory powers over us as a network.

"The issue presented by S 376, then, is not whether networks should or should not be regulated, since we already are. The question, rather, is whether the scope, degree and nature of regulation should be expanded.

"What troubles us about the bill is that it does not define the areas, scope or extent of potential regulation. We are forced to deal not with specifically defined proposals, but with the broadest kind of authority under which the most pervasive kind of regulation may at some time in the future be adopted by the FCC. . . ."

Mr. Salant, whose testimony was interrupted at frequent intervals by Sen. Bricker and counsel Cox, said the rate situation would be "quite unpredictable" if a federal agency had the final say-so in a review of rates. He cited the possibility of a "big guy" being charged six times more than the "small guy" as an aid to small business.

He took issue with a statement by Sen. Bricker that a network could switch its affiliation, thereby forcing a station off the air and in essence, could put one product before the public to the exclusion of another. Mr. Salant said a grant from the FCC is not a guarantee of economic success and took issue with the contention that network affiliation is tantamount to financial success.

Mr. Salant gave a rundown of proposals made in the Barrow report. "Underlying all these proposals . . . are charges of abuse or of potential abuse by the networks. . . . We are confident that careful examination of the evidence will establish that there is no such abuse as to justify even the specific regulatory proposals," he stated. At the same time, he said, there is no question of government authority to regulate networks and that CBS is not arguing this point.

CBS' basic concern, he said, is that S 376 proposes to "issue a virtual blank check to the administrative agency [FCC]. It is not clear that any general programming decisions, any business practice, any affiliation determination, or any other activity of a network would have immunity from federal review and control under the power suggested." He said the concept of proponents of S 376 is "dangerously close to public utility regulation of networks. Clearly the danger would be present because, as we have seen, the broad power would be there."

Mr. Salant maintained this public utilities concept would not be in the public interest "for public utility regulation is a substitute for, and not a spur to, competition."

He said the network's current objection to the Bricker bill is the same made in the early 1940's on the issue of direct regulation or licensing of networks. Then, as now, he said, CBS preferred specific legislation "rather than the constant threat of indirect attack which might seriously impair our operations."

S 376 appears to grant the Commission broad and undefined power over the networks, Mr. Salant said. "We oppose the grant of any such authority. If the Commission needs more power than it now has, it should be granted only in specific terms, limiting its authority to areas where controls have been determined to be essential to permit operation of the broadcast media in the public interest."

He said the bill appears to give the FCC unlimited and indefinite power over the networks in their relations with advertisers, in their business decisions with affiliated and other stations and in the field of programming. "I would make one final—and we believe overriding—point which is fundamental to this whole idea of network regulation," Mr. Salant emphasized. "The very nature of networking is such that uniquely, it has its own inherent system of checks and balances which, in general, are far more effective than external governmental regulation."

If the history of broadcasting teaches any lesson, he maintained, it is that penalties for abuses are far more effective and expeditious than government regulation could be. "The quick reaction of advertisers and stations to any suspicion of high-handed dealing, the quick response of our viewers to what they like and what they do not like . . . makes crystal clear that advertisers, stations and the public are fully able to take care of themselves," Mr. Salant stated. "The kind of regulation which seems to be contemplated by S 376 is, in the special circumstances of our business, not only harmful but totally superfluous."

WITNESS: David C. Adams

David C. Adams, executive vice president of NBC, told the committee that the Bricker bill to authorize the FCC to regulate networks directly was an "unwise" and "unnecessary" measure.

The bill, he said, was radical and sweeping in its effect. It would, he added, extend government supervision to a whole new area of private enterprise in the fields of entertainment, information and advertising. By this he meant, he said, that the FCC would be authorized to regulate the services, economics and business dealings of networks. This is a dangerous extension of federal control, he said.

Government jurisdiction over radio-tv stations is due to the fact that they use frequencies; networks do not, Mr. Adams said. Federal intervention into the field of entertainment, news and information raises the danger of interference with freedom of expression, he said.

Networks, Mr. Adams emphasized, provide programs to stations. Stations broadcast these programs to the public. But, he continued, networks are not the only sources of programming for stations—there are film syndicators, motion picture distributing firms, program packagers and advertising agencies. Should they too be regulated? he asked.

Mr. Adams expressed the fear that the Commission would involve itself with a network's business practices—advertising rates, affiliations, sales policies, financial arrangements with affiliates.

If networks are subject to regulation, Mr. Adams asked, does not such an argument also indicate the regulation be imposed on newspapers and magazines?

A network, Mr. Adams said, does not charge the public for its service; it holds no government franchise; it uses no broadcast frequencies. "Placing networks under government control would be regulation for the sake of regulation," the NBC executive said.

WITNESS: Mortimer Weinbach

Mortimer Weinbach, vice president and general counsel, ABC, told the committee that the Commission now has ample power to protect the public interest through its indirect control over networks (via its authority to license network owned stations); that consideration of the Bricker bill is premature, since the Commission is still considering the Barrow Report. Mr. Weinbach also stated that if legislation is necessary it should be done by a "comprehensive" law designed specifically for that purpose.

"Allocation, not regulation is the answer," Mr. Weinbach stated in conclusion. He referred to ABC's allocations proposal submitted June 2 to the FCC (see page 56).

The power now exercised by the FCC over stations (network owned or affiliated) is as effective as any which the bill proposes, Mr. Weinbach said.

The ABC executive also questioned the vagueness of the bill. It would merely give the FCC power to regulate networks—and the Commission would be setting forth on an uncharted sea, he said. For one thing, Mr. Weinbach illustrated, the Commission might start off with licensing networks. That would be discrimination, he said, unless the FCC also was empowered to license other program sources (program packagers and film syndicators).

WITNESS: John W. Bricker

In opening the hearing Tuesday morning, Sen. Bricker stated that present FCC chain broadcasting regulations, under which indirect control over the networks is exercised, "seem needlessly involved and awkward." He said previous congressional hearings "demonstrated clearly that a number of practices of the networks adversely affect interests of independent tv stations, independent program producers, local and regional advertisers and the general public."

Sen. Bricker said he did not see how the Commission can ignore the "substantial unanimity on key points" of three recent reports (the Barrow report and House Judiciary and Senate Commerce Committee reports) critical of the networks. To carry out recommendations of these reports, he said, direct regulation of the networks will be necessary.

"I want to make it clear that I recognize fully the tremendous contributions made to our system of television by the networks," Sen. Bricker stated. "However, it seems to me that the record now makes clear that problems have arisen in connection with network operations which can only be handled, in the public interest, if the Commission is given the power of direct regulation over what all must admit are the dominant forces in broadcasting today."

Sen. Bricker several times declared that he would be more sympathetic to the networks' attacks if they had not raised the same cries of danger when the chain broadcasting rules were adopted in 1941.

At other times, Sen. Bricker repeated that networks do use public frequencies, via stations, and that therefore the argument that they should not be regulated does not hold up. "If there was no public frequency," the Ohioan stated at one point, "the networks wouldn't be in business." This was in answer to contentions that since networks did not use frequencies they should not be regulated.

One segment of the industry (stations) is under regulation, Sen. Bricker observed at one point, while the other (networks) is not.

"No one wants to damage the public or the broadcasting industry," Sen. Bricker declared. The industry and the networks have done "a magnificent job," he added. But, he went on, the sincerity of the networks' position is questionable because there is a widespread belief in the industry that the Ohio Senator introduced his bill to permit the FCC to regulate networks out of personal pique. That, he said, was out of whole cloth. The bill was introduced, he stated, in full sincerity and in the public interest—an attempt to permit the FCC to do directly what it now does by indirection.

At another point Sen. Bricker said he understood the tendency of anyone under regulation to anticipate dangers whenever any changes are proposed, but he added, those dangers are really not there, they are all theoretical.

Sen. Bricker listed his reasons for submitting the bill to regulate networks as having come from his observation of the industry; the awkwardness of the FCC having to regulate network practices through rules applying to stations; the fear that such a powerful force as television can be used to propagandize the American public or promote one product to the detriment of another.

The Ohio senator said that he wasn't sure that legislation might be enacted, or that what may be enacted will be exactly what is in his bill. But, he said, the hearings have been worthwhile for the Congress, the public and the industry.

Sen. Bricker said he has been impressed with the arguments that the bill is too vague and "open-ended." He said he does not want to give the FCC carte blanche. Regulation, he continued, must be specific and kept to a minimum.

WITNESS: Kenneth Cox

Kenneth Cox, special counsel to the Senate Commerce Committee, emphasized several times that the bill does not give the FCC any more power over networks than it already exercises over stations. This was in answer to fears expressed that the Commission might get into regulation of rates, Sen. Bricker is senior Republican on the committee. Sen. Wheeler was a member of the Senate from 1923 to 1947; Sen. Johnson from 1936 to 1954. Sen. Bricker was first elected to the Senate in 1946.

programs, business practices, affiliations, and advertising.

He explained that his concept of the bill was that the FCC would intervene in network practices only if there was a complaint filed.

In answer to the ABC approach that many of the abuses allegedly complained of would disappear if there were at least three comparable facilities available in major markets, Mr. Cox disagreed. He said there still would be concentration since other program producers would still be unable to secure favorable time on stations. He agreed that if there were four or more facilities available, the "abuses" might disappear.

Court Hears Dispute by WIBC On Craven Indianapolis Tv Vote

The U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington last week heard WIBC Indianapolis argue that FCC Comr. T.A.M. Craven should not have been allowed to vote in the 1957 Indianapolis ch. 13 decision which gave that vhf channel to Crosley Broadcasting Corp.

WIBC, one of the three unsuccessful applicants, said that Comr. Craven should not have voted in the case because of conflict of interest. It claimed that Mr. Craven's engineering firm was engaged by WIRE Indianapolis in preparing its application for the city's ch. 13 frequency, and that this foreclosed Mr. Craven from voting. The third unsuccessful applicant was Mid-West Tv Corp., composed of local businessmen, which had been recommended for the grant by a hearing examiner.

The grant was made March 8, 1957 on a four to three vote, with Comrs. Rosel H. Hyde, Robert T. Bartley and Robert E. Lee dissenting. Comr. Craven at first abstained, as he has in all cases in which former clients are involved, but the Commission ordered him to break the tie. Mr. Craven received a formal legal opinion by the FCC's general counsel that it was his duty to vote to break the tie.

The argument was heard by Chief Judge Henry W. Edgerton and Circuit Judges Wilbur K. Miller and John A. Danaher. FCC General Counsel Warren E. Baker argued for the Commission; Duke Patrick for Crosley; and Harry Ice, Indianapolis attorney, for WIBC.

Court Hears New Orleans Losers Protest Ch. 4 Grant to Loyola

Two losing applicants for ch. 4 in New Orleans argued last week that the winner, Loyola U. (WWL-AM-TV New Orleans), should not have been granted the tv facility. Their appeal was argued before the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

James A. Noe & Co. (WNOE New Orleans) said Loyola is ineligible because the Communications Act prohibits the grant of a license to "an alien or a representative of an alien." WNOE said the president of Loyola receives his appointment through the head of the Roman Catholic Society of Jesus (Jesuits), who is a Belgian residing in Rome.

The other losing applicant, the Times-Picayune (WTPS New Orleans), did not contend that Loyola is ineligible for a tv license, but thought the FCC reached an incredible conclusion when it held that Loyola is independent from the Society of Jesus for legal and practical purposes.

The FCC granted ch. 4 to Loyola July 11, 1956, primarily on the performance record of WWL (50 kw on 870 kc), which the university has operated since 1922 on a commercial basis, with CBS affiliation. Loyola also was favored in the area of diversification of communications interests [AT DEADLINE, July 16, 1956]. The FCC grant reversed a hearing examiner's initial decision favoring the Times-Picayune, issued a year earlier [GOVERNMENT, July 11, 1955]. WWL-TV has been on the air since Sept. 1, 1957.

EDITORIAL FINE POINTS RAISED

Broadcasters are studying carefully the implications of the latest FCC pronouncement on the fine points of editorializing over the air, following the Commission's discussion of licensees' responsibility when it renewed the licenses of the Newhouse stations in Birmingham, Ala., two weeks ago [AT DEADLINE, June 2].

The Commission renewed the licenses of WAPI, WAFM (FM) and WABT (TV) Birmingham after holding them up while investigating complaints that the station presented a biased editorial against toll tv. This was one of a number of inquiries instituted by the FCC following a formal complaint Feb. 17 by James M. Landis, counsel for Skiatron Television & Electronics Corp. against all three networks and many of their affiliates.

The Birmingham renewals were accompanied by a Commission letter which reviewed the pay tv programs and implied that the licensee had not dealt fairly with the subject. Comr. T. A. M. Craven dissented from the contents of the letter.

WABT presented an anti-pay tv discussion by its news director on Jan. 31, between 6:15 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. Three days later, on Feb. 3, three station employees participated in a 25-minute informal discussion, with two "taking the viewpoint of the protagonists."

The FCC expressed displeasure that the news director's editorial called on those listening to write their congressmen, while no such appeal was made on the Feb. 3 discussion program.

The Commission said that the station failed to offer its facilities to a "known proponent" of subscription tv and that the counter-balancing arguments in favor of pay tv were not offered in the same time period that the anti-pay tv editorial was broadcast—or at approximately the same time on a week day shortly thereafter.

The Commission said, however, that a review of the station's operations over the last license period (three years) does not indicate that there has been anything "otherwise" remiss in the overall operations or that there have been any other instances in which the stations have "deviated" from the standards established for editorializing.

The right of broadcasters to editorialize was directly challenged early this year when Mr. Landis, charged that all three tv networks and their affiliated stations had broadcast unfair, partisan, one-sided programs on the subject of subscription tv.

What hurt most, the Skiatron counsel implied in a Feb. 17 letter to FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer, was that congressmen and senators were inundated with letters opposing virtually unanimously the establishment of toll tv.

The FCC forwarded copies to the tv networks and the stations identified in the letter and asked for comments. The replies came in during April and May.

WJBK-TV Detroit (Storer station) said it presented a question and answer program on pay tv on Jan. 24. No editorial opinion was expressed. On Feb. 2 it presented a kinescope of CBS' Right Now program featuring a debate between Richard S. Salant, CBS vice president, and Robert Hall, Skiatron official.

WBTV (TV) Charlotte, N. C., on Jan. 27, in conjunction with WSOC-TV Charlotte, simultaneously broadcast the 30-minute Now It Can Be Told program opposing pay tv. On Feb. 2 WBTV broadcast the CBS Salant-Hall debate, and on Feb. 7 it devoted 30 minutes to a mass press interview on pay tv between newspaper reporters of six area newspapers and Harold Fellows, NAB president. This program was fed to other area stations (WFBC-TV Greenville, S. C.; WFMY-TV Greensboro, N. C.; WLOS-TV Asheville, N. C.; WSPA-TV Spartanburg, S. C., and WSJS-TV Winston-Salem, N. C.). On Feb. 28, both WBTV and WSOC-TV wired toll tv proponents Skiatron, Zenith and International Telemeter Corp. offering free time to state their side of the controversy. None accepted. Three local congressmen and one senator asked for and received time to speak on the subject.

ABC-TV broadcast only one network program on the subject. That was Jan. 12 when Ted Leitzell, Zenith, and Dr. Dallas Smythe, U. of Illinois communications professor who opposed subscription tv, were interviewed. On Feb. 1, ABC's owned KABC-TV Los Angeles and KGO-TV San Francisco presented a pay tv program on Your Decision, a regional west coast program. The program was moderated by State Senator Jack McCarthy and included three San Franciscans, one in favor, one opposed and the third favoring pay tv if it was regulated. On Nov. 8, 1957, ABC's WBKB (TV) Chicago presented Ted Leitzell, Zenith, in two interviews the same day.

NBC told the FCC that it took no editorial position on pay tv in any of its broadcasts. It pointed to a Feb. 13 broadcast over WRCA-TV New York in which Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-N. Y.) and Robert Hall, Skiatron, were interviewed by Tex McCrary.

CBS said that it had presented the Salant-Hall debate over the network on Feb. 2 and no other. It had presented news reports during the House hearings.

Final Action Closer On Long 770-kc Case

Action in at least one phase in the FCC's tentative proposals in the clear channel case [LEAD STORY, April 21] seemed in the making last week when the agency ordered preparation of documents looking toward affirming an examiner's initial decision in the 17-year-old KOB Albuquerque-WABC New York squabble over the 770 kc frequency.

The initial decision by Hearing Examiner Hugh B. Hutchison, issued four months ago [GOVERNMENT, Feb. 10], recommended that 770 kc be changed from a 1-A to a 1-B frequency, accommodating both KOB and WABC and with both using directional antennas to protect each other. Each would have unlimited time with 50 kw.

The FCC went along with this suggestion in revealing last April its tentative plans to duplicate 660 kc, 770 kc, 880 kc, 1100 kc and 1180 kc. Comments are due in this proceeding by July 15, with replies 45 days later.

The action last week was the latest in an imbroglio which began in March 1941, when KOB, in operation since 1922, was assigned 1030 kc (still its legal assignment) with 10 kw. Later in 1951 the FCC decided KOB's service area would be more extensive and on its own motion modified KOB's special service authorization to specify 770 instead of 1030 kc. The station already had received permission to boost power to 50 kw day, 25 kw night.

Soon afterward WABC New York (then WJZ) began its 17-year-old fight to get KOB off its 770 kc Class 1-A channel.

In 1951 the U. S. Court of Appeals acted on WABC's appeal, upholding FCC authority to issue SSA's for limited periods but holding continuance of the KOB SSA was a "modification" of WABC's license and afforded the New York station no opportunity for a hearing. The FCC in 1955 decided to continue KOB on 770 kc until resolution of the now-12-year-old clear channel proceeding. WABC again appealed and the court ruled that WABC would have to be protected; whereupon, the FCC ordered KOB to directionalize at night. The station has been using a directional antenna since April 26, 1957.

KOB has changed hands twice during the long battle, being sold (both KOB and KOB-TV) by T. M. Pepperday to Time Inc. and the late Wayne Coy in 1952 and resold to KSTP-AM-TV Minneapolis in 1957 for $1.5 million.

KOB, licensed on 1030 kc with 10 kw unlimited, operates under SSA on 770 kc with 50 kw day and 25 kw with directional antenna at night. WABC is licensed on 770 kc with 50 kw unlimited.

WBZ Boston, Class 1-B station assigned 1030 kc with 50 kw and directional antenna, is a party to the case in objecting to KOB's assignment of 1030 kc. KATR Corpus Christi, Tex. (formerly KWBU), is a limited-time secondary station on 1030 kc and also is a party in the case.

Tall Tower Standards Unchanged

Criteria for judging whether tall towers are hazards to air navigation were extended for one year, to June 3, 1959, it was decided last week. The agreement was worked out by FCC Comr. Robert E. Lee and CAA Administrator James T. Pyle, co-chairmen of the Joint Industry-Government Tall Structures Committee, and concurred in by all members of the committee. Standards for determining whether towers are hazardous or not were established in 1957 and were accepted by broadcast and aviation interests for a one year trial. JIGTSC comprises representatives of broadcast and aviation interests, with the following broadcast representatives as members: Robert E. L. Kennedy, Assn. of Federal Communications Engineers; Robert M. Booth Jr., Federal Communications Bar Assn.; A. Prose Walker, NAB, and Cyril M. Braum, Joint Council on Educational Tv.

Best insurance you can buy against long periods of interrupted service. With an elevator, it's possible to get a technician up on the tower fast . . . and in almost any kind of weather . . . to locate and correct trouble. This kind of fast action is just not possible without an elevator, especially at night or during icy winter weather.

Easy to give on-the-spot supervision. When there's work being done way up the tower, an elevator enables you to supervise and inspect the job yourself, get a first hand close-up view of equipment in safety and comfort.

Greatly simplifies routine maintenance. Light bulb changes, fastener and paint checks, periodic inspections all take less time, less effort, cost less money. An elevator puts men on the job fresh and ready to work, not tired after a long climb.

CRAVEN, ABC PLANS BEFORE FCC

The FCC will meet today to discuss vital, long-range tv allocations policy—and high on the agenda is FCC Comr. T. A. M. Craven's plan for a breakthrough of the uhf-vhf muddle through the establishment of a single, contiguous vhf band of 25 channels [LEAD STORY, June 2].

The Commission also will have before it the latest plea by ABC to establish parity in the top, major markets of the country. This was filed by the network last week.

As before, ABC suggests a revision of mileage separation standards, as well as the use of directional antennas to accomplish drop-ins.

ABC said it has completed engineering surveys of 14 two-vhf markets and has found solutions in 12 of them.

They are: Louisville, Ky., add ch. 7; Syracuse, N. Y., delete ch. 8, add chs. 9 and 11; Rochester, N. Y., add ch. 3; Providence, R. I., delete ch. 12, add chs. 8 and 13; Jacksonville, Fla., add ch. 10; Knoxville, Tenn., add ch. 2 or ch. 8; Mobile, Ala.-Pensacola, Fla., add ch. 3; Birmingham, Ala., add ch. 3; Grand Rapids-Kalamazoo, Mich., add ch. 11 or ch. 13; Oklahoma City, Okla., move ch. 5 from Enid; Shreveport, La., delete ch. 3, add chs. 2 and 4, or move ch. 10 from El Dorado, Ark., or ch. 5 from Alexandria, La.; Greensboro-Winston Salem-High Point, N. C., add ch. 8.

Studies are being continued, ABC said, of Wheeling, W. Va.-Stuebenville, Ohio, and Toledo, Ohio, as well as "four other important two-vhf markets.

In three of the 12 cities, ABC said, drop-ins of vhf channels can be accomplished in accordance with present mileage separations. These are Syracuse, Oklahoma City and Greensboro-Winston Salem-High Point.

In six others, the network continued, channels can be allocated in accordance with present mileage separations, but transmitter-transmitter separations will require some reduction in these standards.

These are Louisville, Rochester, Providence, Mobile-Pensacola, Birmingham and Grand Rapids-Kalamazoo.

In the remaining three markets, mileage reductions are required not only to assign the channels to these communities, but also to enable the transmitters to be sited competitively.

These are Jacksonville, Shreveport and Knoxville.

The maximum mileage reduction is the assignment of ch. 7 to Louisville, ABC said. In order to meet present mileage factors, the ch. 7 transmitter would have to be located 40 miles from the center of Louisville and the signal would not be competitive with other stations in Louisville. However, ABC pointed out, through the use of a directional antenna and precision offset, ch. 7 can be situated nearer the city in order that its signal be comparable with other vhf stations there.

Where there are one-vhf markets ABC suggested that no second vhf channel be allocated, but that the FCC consider deintermixing the community to all uhf, or to authorize simultaneous uhf-vhf operation in order to prepare the way for later transition to all-uhf.

Comr. Craven's proposal is a long range goal, and would be dependent on the cooperation of the Office of Defense Mobilization. It's basic premise is that a contiguous 25-channel band would enable manufacturers to make all channel receivers as cheaply if not more cheaply than present vhf-only sets.

As envisaged by Comr. Craven, an acknowledged allocations expert, the present chs. 2 through 6 would be dropped and the single band would begin at what is now ch. 7 (174 mc) and extend in an unbroken band to 324 mc. This would accommodate 25 six-mc tv channels.

Given ODM approval—and the Commission is planning to sit down with defense officials for a "long look" at allocations in the near future—the transition to the all-vhf band would be accomplished over a seven- to ten-year period.

Also part of Mr. Craven's proposal are two earlier steps: The first is an immediate move to create at least three comparable facilities in the top markets; and the second is a short range extension of this to provide competitive facilities in at least the first 150 markets. This second move, however, would not begin until the report of the Television Allocations Study Organization has been submitted, expected the end of the year.

FCC Puts Stations on Carpet For Not Identifying NAM Films

The FCC has asked—or is getting ready to ask—27 television stations to explain why they carried kinescopes of hearings several weeks ago by the Senate Labor-Management Committee on the Kohler strike without disclosing that the films were paid for by the National Assn. of Manufacturers [GOVERNMENT, April 21].

Involved is Sec. 3.654 of the FCC Rules requiring (a) that when a station carries a program in return for "money, services or other valuable consideration," the station must announce that the program is "sponsored, paid for, or furnished" with identification of the source; and that (b) when films, records, transcriptions and other material are furnished involving a political program or discussion of "controversial issues," the station must identify by announcement the person furnishing them.

NAM has furnished the FCC with a list of the 27 tv outlets which carried films of the hearings made by Metropolitan Broadcasting Corp. (formerly DuMont Broadcasting Corp.). In a letter to the FCC dated May 26, NAM said, "In the interest of public service and specifically offered as such by representatives of NAM's regional offices throughout the country, prints of one-hour kinescopes, exactly as prepared, edited and telecast" by Metropolitan's WTTG (TV) Washington, were shipped, one print to each of the 27 stations.

The FCC on May 15 had asked NAM for a complete list after requesting it from Metropolitan and receiving only a partial list. At that time the FCC said it had received information that the kinescopes "may have been used by said stations without complying with the Commission's Rules."

The Commission began the investigation after a complaint by AFL-CIO that NAM underwrote the cost of the films. The films covered the Senate group's March hearings on the United Auto Workers strike against the Kohler Co. in Sheboygan, Wis.

WFLB-TV Withdraws Protest Of WTVD (TV) Antenna Change

WFLB-TV Fayetteville, North Carolina's only operating uhf outlet, withdrew its protest against a proposed antenna height increase and move of transmitter by WTVD (TV) Durham—one week after WFLB-TV won its request for a hearing on the grant and a matter of hours after the FCC had set a date for the hearing. The FCC subsequently granted WFLB-TV's petition to withdraw and made final WTVD's grant to make the antenna-transmitter changes.

The FCC on April 2 granted WTVD (ch. 11) permission without a hearing to increase antenna height and move its transmitter nearer Raleigh and Fayetteville. But WFLB-TV protested and the Commission on May 28 stayed the effective date of the grant and ordered a hearing, last Wednesday setting the hearing for July 3.

Then later Wednesday, the FCC taking immediate action on WFLB-TV's request, asked preparation of documents looking toward dismissal of the protest, clearing the way for WTVD to go ahead with its former plans. WFLB-TV gave no official reason for withdrawing its protest.

In ordering the hearing the FCC had denied WFLB-TV's request to make "premature construction" (at the proposed new transmitter site) an issue and had placed the burden of proof on WFLB-TV for the following issues:

(1) the effect of the WTVD grant upon WFLB-TV; (2) areas and populations which would gain or lose the WTVD signals and programs, the other tv service available to such areas and their need for WTVD signals to be gained or lost; (3) whether the move would tend to make WTVD a Raleigh-Durham station rather than a Durham outlet and if this would better serve the public than at present; (4) whether the grant is in the public interest in the light of facts to be developed from the foregoing issues.

It was brought out in WFLB-TV's original protest that that station "picks up" four hours weekly of CBS-TV programs from WTVD.

OATH OF OFFICE for Comr. Robert T. Bartley (r) was administered Wednesday by Chairman John C. Doerfer for a new seven-year term beginning July 1. Present for ceremonies were the Texas Democrat's wife, Ruth; sons Robert T. Jr. (Buck), 19, Tom, 10, and daughter Jane, 17. Comr. Bartley was nominated to his first term March 6, 1952, by President Truman to succeed the late Wayne Coy, who had resigned as chairman to join Time Inc. as a partner in that firm's first radio-tv ownership venture.

Court Denies WITV (TV) Appeal Pleading Miami Ch. 10 Injury

The FCC's allocation of and authority to grant ch. 10 in Miami have been upheld in a unanimous decision by the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. The court denied an appeal by WITV (TV) Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 25 miles away, claiming economic injury. WITV's license, the court said, "contained no express or implied terms insuring financial success or freedom from hurtful competition." The court said the FCC already has considered in other related proceedings the WITV contention that if it were forced off the air by competition from ch. 10 the Communications Act's provision for equitable distribution of facilities among states and communities would be compromised thereby.

The FCC in a 4-3 vote on Thursday denied WITV's petition asking reconsideration of the Commission's dismissal of the station's request for experimental operation on ch. 6 in Miami to compare simultaneous uhf and vhf operation.

Court Rules Against WLDB

Judgment for copyright infringement against Leroy and Dorothy Bremmer, owners of WLDB Atlantic City, has been obtained by members of ASCAP. The plaintiffs alleged that copyrighted songs were performed by the station without authorization. Plaintiffs were Frank Loesser, Matt Dubey, Harold Karr, New World Music Corp., and Mayfair Music Corp. The U. S. district court for New Jersey restrained the defendant from publicly performing the songs in the future, and awarded damages of $250 for each unauthorized performance together with court costs and attorney's fees.

OVERSIGHT SUBCOMMITTEE DIGS DEEPER INTO FCC 'PRESSURES'

Purported influences in the Miami, St. Louis and Boston tv cases continued to occupy the spotlight of House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee hearings held last week in Washington and Boston.

Chairman Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.) opened the Monday morning hearing in Washington with the announcement the subcommittee hopes to complete its FCC investigations by the end of this month. This will be followed by legislation designed to cure the "ills" discovered by the subcommittee in FCC operations. The chairman expressed hope Congress would act on the legislation before adjournment, probably sometime in August [GOVERNMENT, June 2].

Following the committee's interim report last April [LEAD STORY, April 7], Rep. Harris introduced HR 11886, which would: (1) require the FCC to adopt a code of ethics; (2) prevent the payment of honorariums to commissioners; (3) strengthen the law regarding ex parte contacts, and (4) give the President power to remove a commissioner from office. Rep. Harris also has announced plans to sponsor legislation requiring the seller of a station to pay a transfer fee to the government.

Subcommittee attorney Stephen J. Angland last week presented testimony purporting to show several instances of ex parte contacts in different comparative cases. Of the four applicants for Miami ch. 7, Mr. Angland claimed, all except Sunbeam TV Corp. brought pressures to bear against the Commission. The winning applicant was Biscayne Tv Corp. (Cox and Knight newspapers and former NBC President Niles Trammell). The two losing applicants were East Coast Tv Corp. and South Florida Tv Corp.

Mr. Knight was quoted as saying Biscayne had cause to be concerned because Thurman A. Whiteside, Miami attorney who figured prominently in the Miami ch. 10 investigations, was working actively for South Florida. When asked what commissioners he had talked to, Mr. Trammell was quoted as replying: "I guess I made the rounds." None of the principals testified in person last week and all statements were those Mr. Angland said had been given him.

Mr. Knight told Mr. Angland, according to the attorney's report of an interview with the publisher in Chicago, that Ben Fuqua, vice president of the Florida Power & Light Co., was asked to help in the ch. 7 case with the knowledge that he (Fuqua) was a close personal friend of then Comr. Richard A. Mack. Like Mr. Whiteside, Mr. Fuqua also participated ex parte in the ch. 10 case.

Mr. Fuqua was quoted by Mr. Angland as saying he visited Comr. Mack at least twice while the ch. 7 case was active—once before the final decision and once after the court had remanded the decision to the Commission. Mr. Fuqua was quoted as saying Comr. Mack indicated Biscayne had nothing to worry about. Mr. Angland introduced into the record 24 written, personal and telephone contacts between Mr. Fuqua and Comr. Mack while the ch. 7 decision was pending.

Mr. Angland further quoted Mr. Knight as stating he asked Sen. John W. Bricker (R-Ohio) to check with then FCC Chairman George C. McConnaughey as to when a final decision would be issued by the FCC. Mr. Knight said he understood Sen. Bricker did talk to Comr. McConnaughey but he does not know the outcome.

In a telephone interview with Mr. Angland, South Florida principal Jack C. Stein was quoted as saying he considered that applicant's chances "dead" when Frieda Hennock left the Commission in June 1955. Miss Hennock was replaced by Comr. Mack.

Mr. Stein said that Sen. George Smathers (D-Fla.) advised him to be on the lookout for "pressures" from the White House and that he hired Mr. Whiteside to find out where the alleged pressures were coming from. "We were just trying to get information, not a vote," Mr. Stein stated.

Contacts also were made by John D. Pennekamp, associate editor of Knight's Miami Herald, Mr. Knight and Leonard Reinsch executive director of the Cox stations, according to Mr. Stein's telephone interview. He specifically charged that Mr. Reinsch "used every source at his command to bring pressures on the FCC."

Mr. Stein said South Florida was unable to establish any actual White House pressures but that he still is "suspicious." He said Mr. Whiteside told him before the Commission vote that the grant was "going to the newspapers" and that Comr. Mack called Mr. Pennekamp for instructions on how to vote.

South Florida considered bringing Roy Cohn, New York attorney and controversial Senate counsel during the Army-McCarthy hearings, into the case, Mr. Stein stated to Mr. Angland. This arrangement was to be made through William O'Neil, owner of WKSP Miami and brother of Thomas F. O'Neil, head of General Teleradio, who was going to buy an interest in South Florida if Mr. Cohn came in, Mr. Stein stated. Mr. O'Neil assured South Florida, Mr. Stein said in the Angland interview, that Mr. Cohn could get the grant but it was decided not to bring him in because "we were naive enough to believe the case would be decided on its merits."

Working ex parte for East Coast, according to Mr. Angland's testimony, was Tampa, Fla., attorney Miles H. Draper. Mr. Draper was quoted as saying he "did a little missionary work for a couple of applicants before the FCC." He was paid a $5,000 fee by Scharfeld, Jones & Baron, Washington law firm representing East Coast.

A prominent Florida Republican, Mr. Draper said he was asked to help because "I might have some Republican interest somewhere. I traveled quite a bit and I was just asked to move around and find out what the situation was with respect to these Three little future accountants seem to be amazed at the figures their father is showing them in the family budget. Their father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Baer, through long experience, appear able to take the budget more in stride. Mr. Baer is an accountant in the General Office of Standard Oil Company where Standard's annual budget is prepared.

Where does the money go?

REVIEWING FAMILY BUDGETS, pleasant or not, is a task every family has to face at some time. And every business, too. In a way, company finances are a lot like personal financial problems.

Companies, too, must watch the pennies. Like you, Standard Oil and its subsidiary companies took in a certain amount of money last year. And here's what happened to it.

You are welcome to a copy of our 32-page 1957 Annual Report. Just write to Standard Oil Company, 910 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago 80, Ill.

1. Things we bought and used... 59.5%

Most of the money we took in went for things we had to buy, such as crude oil, materials and services, plus charges made for wear and tear. These costs are roughly comparable to your living expenses. We buy everything from paper clips to structural steel from more than 32,000 independent companies in hundreds of American communities. While our costs have skyrocketed in the past few years, prices of oil products have gone up only slightly in the same period!

2. Taxes paid... 18.7%

Our next biggest item—even bigger than our payroll—was for taxes, including our own taxes, and those we collect from our customers for national, state and local governments. All together this totaled $447,048,487. And that figure does not include the many "hidden" taxes everyone pays!

3. Wages, salaries, benefits... 15.5%

Then there were wages, salaries and benefits for our 49,680 employees. Standard Oil employees enjoy one of the most progressive benefit programs in any industry. Back in 1903, when retirement plans were virtually unheard of in industry, Standard Oil started its retirement plan. It was among the first industrial companies in America to do this.

4. Profits used for improvement... 4.0%

After all costs of doing business were taken care of, 6.3% was left. This is profit. We used part of this, or 4.0% of our total income, to expand facilities and to improve our products and services for the millions of people who depend on us for petroleum products.

5. Profits paid to owners... 2.3%

The balance, or 2.3%, went as dividends to our 148,400 shareholder-owners. Standard Oil has paid dividends for 64 consecutive years. The value of dividends paid in 1957, including a special fourth quarter dividend, was $2.11 per share. We try to pay share owners a dividend equal in value to approximately half of earnings each year, reinvesting the remainder for future growth in the interest of shareholders, employees and the public.

6. And that's where our money went!

All the money we took in has been accounted for. At our service stations, our plans and investments face the final test, for our millions of customers are the bosses. Through our subsidiaries, we serve all America. Our products are sold in 48 states.

What makes a company a good citizen? To be a good citizen a business must be frank and open—with employees, stockholders, customers, the public. In advertisements like this during the year, we at Standard Oil publish reports to our neighbors so you will know how we work, something about our Standard Oil family, where our money goes, and the part we play in the prosperity of the communities in which we live and work.

cases." (He also received a $5,000 fee in the ch. 12 Jacksonville case.)

In an August 1955 letter to Comr. Mack, read into the record, Mr. Draper stated: "I hope that you will not be unmindful of the fact that you received this appointment [to the FCC] through the cooperation of the Republican organization in Florida and Washington and that you would not knowingly take part adversely to the friends who were helpful to you." The letter further declared "surprise" that Comr. Mack had participated in preliminary phases of the ch. 7 vote and expressed fears that if the newspapers got the grant, Republicans would be unable to "get favorable hearing time for what broadcasts we might wish to make . . ."

Mr. Draper also stated in the letter that he had told friends in East Coast Television that "because this is a Miami station which was initiated before your appointment, that you [Comr. Mack] would undoubtedly abstain from participation therein."

Mr. Angland testified East Coast attorney Arthur W. Scharfeld said Mr. Draper was hired to get publicity and not to do anything at the FCC. "Mr. Scharfeld would not pinpoint the type of publicity wanted of Mr. Draper," Mr. Angland stated.

Mr. Angland also testified on non-record contacts with the FCC in several other tv cases. Mr. Lishman termed them a "sufficient number of cases" to show a pattern of ex parte pressures in every major comparative tv case. Rep. Harris said this definitely proved the ch. 10 Miami situation was not an "isolated case," and that witnesses would be called to further develop the cases, especially Miami ch. 7. Other ex parte contracts brought out by Mr. Angland:

Jacksonville Calls

In the Jacksonville, Fla., ch. 12 contest among five applicants, Comr. Mack on two different occasions telephoned a Jacksonville attorney asking an opinion on the merits of the individual applicants, Mr. Angland said. Also, according to the witness, Comr. Mack visited in the home of Mitchell Wolfson, stockholder in winning applicant Florida-Georgia Tv Co., while the Commission was considering the case. Several letters and telephone calls to commissioners on behalf of various Jacksonville applicants were cited.

In the Miami ch. 6 case, still pending before the Commission, Mr. Angland cited a memorandum from White House assistant Gerald Morgan to Comr. Doerfer inquiring about the current status. Enclosed with the memorandum was a letter to President Eisenhower from Leslie B. Bain, described by Mr. Angland as an applicant for the channel. Mr. Lishman said this contact raises a question about the independence of the Commission and that the Bain letter, coming from the White House, has much more effect than if it had been sent direct to the FCC.

Also cited was an April 11, 1958, memorandum from Robert Weston, engineering assistant to Comr. Robert E. Lee, to the commissioner. Mr. Weston stated that Mr.

Bain had been in the commissioner's office and made what he considered "most inappropriate" representations. Mr. Angland stated that Mr. Weston called Mr. Bain's attorney following the visit telling the lawyer to keep the applicant away from the commissioners.

Mr. Angland read a statement of legal fees paid by ch. 2 KTVI (TV) St. Louis which showed the station had paid out $107,000 and still owes $84,000. The statement, filed by attorney Clark M. Clifford, also showed that a $55,000 fee had been paid former FCC Comr. Robert Jones. Roberts & McInnis, Washington counsel for KTVI, according to Mr. Angland, did not know Mr. Jones had been retained by KTVI. Also, Mr. Angland said, Mr. Jones was not an attorney of record at the Commission.

Mr. Angland told about the activities of radio-tv personality Tex McCrary in the ch. 11 St. Louis grant to CBS. Testimony alleged that Mr. McCrary, after talking to William S. Paley, CBS Inc. board chairman, and CBS President Frank Stanton, personally talked to Comrs. Doerfer, McConnaughey and T. A. M. Craven. Mr. McCrary also attempted unsuccessfully to see Comr. Lee.

Had on Reporter Hat

Mr. McCrary said, according to Mr. Angland, that he was acting as a reporter and not on behalf of CBS and asked the commissioners why it was taking so long to decide the ch. 11 case. Mr. McCrary said Comrs. Doerfer and McConnaughey were very "guarded" during the individual discussions. Comr. Craven was "ice" during the interview and said at the outset it was improper to talk about the case, according to Mr. McCrary's version as told by Mr. Angland.

Mr. Paley was quoted as telling Mr. Angland that Mr. McCrary was not representing CBS and was paid no fee, although he did report back to Dr. Stanton on the meetings. Mr. Angland said he was told by Mr. Paley that relationships with commissioners had always been informal.

Other ex parte contacts mentioned by Mr. Angland included letters written regarding contests for ch. 7 Buffalo, N. Y., ch. 10 Parma, Mich., ch. 7 Denver, ch. 5 Cheboygan, Mich., and ch. 9 Orlando, Fla.

Under a special resolution passed Wednesday by the parent House Commerce Committee only two members of the Legislative Oversight Subcommittee were present for the Boston hearings. Ordinarily, six members of the 11-man subcommittee would be necessary to constitute a quorum. Rep. John Bell Williams (D-Miss.), as acting chairman, and Rep. Charles Wolverton (R-N. J.) conducted the Boston sessions.

In an opening statement Thursday, Rep. Williams also said:

"We are here today to define by the testimony of witnesses subpoenaed and otherwise the areas of relevancy within which the subcommittee may obtain pertinent documentary evidence from the files of both the Boston Herald-Traveler Corp. and WHDH Inc. and the records and writings of their officers, directors, employes or representatives which pertain to ch. 5. The subcommittee's investigation of the tv ch. 5 award involves the ascertainment of what factors influenced the decisions and whether there was any corruption, maladministration or inefficiency in carrying out the FCC's statutory duties. . . .

"It [the subcommittee] has information about the Boston Herald-Traveler Corp., its directors, officers, counsel and employes and other persons working with them which indicate, they have brought such outside influence to bear on the FCC so as to induce it to award tv ch. 5 in Boston to a subsidiary of the Boston Herald-Traveler Corp. It has information that since Jan. 1, 1955, directors, officers, counsel and employes of the Boston Herald-Traveler Corp., have made trips to Washington, D. C., in furtherance of its plans to exert such outside influence in the FCC. It also has information that since Jan. 1, 1955, the directors, officers, counsel and employes of the Boston Herald-Traveler Corp. made telephone calls to persons in Washington, D. C.; St. Louis, Mo.; Columbus, Ohio, and Manchester, N. H., in furtherance of the same plan."

Rep. Williams also said that House Legislative Oversight subcommittee records show that firms owned by Boston industrialists Bernard Goldfine paid a hotel bill for Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams, two senators, members of the House and other high government officials "which indicate the possibilities political pressures were used to gain favoritism before regulatory agencies."

Rep. Williams made this latter statement when relevancy of information sought by the subcommittee was challenged last Thursday in Boston during the hearings. The subcommittee shifted its hearing site from Washington to Boston last week when it ran into difficulty securing subpoenaed information relating to the FCC's grant of Boston ch. 5 to the Herald-Traveler and related matters before the Federal Trade Commission and Securities & Exchange Commission.

File Contents Guarded

The subcommittee was careful to divulge only the bare necessities of what is contained in its Boston files as further hearings on alleged political pressures will be held later in Washington. However, it was learned the files definitely tie Mr. Goldfine's activities into the ch. 5 grant to the Herald-Traveler and also that case with matters under the jurisdiction of the FCC and FTC.

Thursday's testimony concerned the financial dealings of Mr. Goldfine. Relevancy of the subcommittee's requests were challenged by Washington attorney Roger Robb who was representing witness Mildred Paperman, a bookkeeper for several firms owned by Mr. Goldfine. Mr. Robb pointed out that Mr. Goldfine long had been a personal friend of Mr. Adams and that one of the senators formerly was the industrialist's counsel. Mr. Robb challenged the subcommittee to prove any instances of political pressure against the FCC and other agencies had been instigated by Mr. Goldfine.

The subcommittee resumes its hearings in Washington today (Monday) on the Springfield, Ill.-St. Louis tv situation [GOVERNMENT, June 2]. Scheduled to testify are Harry Tenenbaum and Paul E. Peltason, top KTVI executives, and Lee Ruwitch, executive manager of WTVJ (TV) Miami and also a stockholder in WMAY-TV Springfield.

No hearings are scheduled this week beyond two days because of executive meetings on other matters of the parent House Commerce Committee.

Attending the Boston hearings as FCC observers were Joe Sitrick, administrative assistant to the chairman, and Nathan A. Hallenstein, engineer in charge of the Boston division of the Commission.

Justice Serves Notice Of Ch. 10 Hearing Role

The Justice Dept.—not unexpectedly—made known last week its intention to take part as amicus curiae in the Miami ch. 10 case [GOVERNMENT, June 2]. Justice made public its letter of Wednesday to FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer replying in the affirmative to the FCC chairman's query as to whether Justice "deems it advisable" to participate.

The Justice Dept. letter, signed by Attorney General William P. Rogers, said the department's Antitrust Div. has been designated to represent Justice. Mr. Rogers noted that the Antitrust Div. "has not and will not" participate in presentation of evidence to the grand jury investigating the ch. 10 case and that the amicus staff has been instructed not to make use of or have access to proceedings before the grand jury, such functions belonging to Justice's Criminal Div.

Although Mr. Rogers did not name the Justice representative for the ch. 10 hearing it was learned that the task will go to Robert A. Bicks, first assistant to the chief of the Antitrust Division.

Mr. Rogers noted that the U. S. Appeals Court for the District of Columbia, in remanding the case to the FCC, had "apparently concluded that to insure the facts are fully developed this Department, without prior connection with, or stake in, this proceeding, should appear as amicus."

The Antitrust Div.'s amicus role, Mr. Rogers said, would help Justice in drawing attention to any instance in the FCC hearing where use of compulsory process may "thwart criminal justice." On the other hand, Mr. Rogers said, "fairness requires that grand jury processes not be employed to gather data for our use in the Commission hearing."

Meanwhile, North Dade Video Inc., one of the four applicants for ch. 10 in the reopened case, has urged the FCC not to let the hearing be turned into a "Roman holiday," requesting that no one except the original parties in the case (the four applicants) be allowed the right of cross-examination.

to be a court mandate, reopened the ch. 10 proceedings and in so doing announced that anyone about "whom evidence may be received in the said hearing shall be permitted to cross-examine and to submit rebuttal testimony" if he asks [GOVERNMENT, June 2].

North Dade felt the court didn't intend this interpretation and said admission of such a lengthy list of parties would extend the proceedings to "a point beyond the stamina and financial endurance of other participants." It asked deletion of the words "cross-examine" from the order.

Public Service Tv Inc., subsidiary of National Airlines and one of the four applicants, filed opposition last week to a request by rival Eastern Airlines to be permitted to intervene in the case [GOVERNMENT, June 2]. Eastern lost its chance to intervene by not acting "three years" before the grant in 1957, Public Service said.

The FCC awarded ch. 10 to Public Service Tv Inc. over three other applicants in February 1957. The U. S. Appeals Court for the District of Columbia remanded the case to the FCC [GOVERNMENT, April 21] after an appeal by WKAT Miami, one of the applicants. The ch. 10 grant was the subject of hearings by the House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee resulting in the resignation of former Comr. Richard A. Mack.

U. S.-Canadian Tv Setup Modified

The FCC has announced the assignment of ch. 8 to Oliver, British Columbia, and Cornwall, Ontario, by the Canadian government following an exchange of correspondence with Canada revising the Canadian-U. S. A. television agreement. The new assignments caused revision of ch. 13 offset-carrier listings in Edmunston, N.B.; Pembroke, Ont.; La Sarre and Three Rivers, Que. In assigning ch. 8 to Cornwall, the Canadian government agreed that the transmitter site there will be at least 170 miles from the transmitter site of U. S. ch. 8 stations WHEN-TV Syracuse, N. Y., and WMTW (TV) Poland Spring, Me. (Mt. Washington) and that the Cornwall station's power will not exceed the equivalent of 50 kw from an antenna 500 ft. above average terrain over a sector comprising the northern and southern limits of Lake Champlain.

Tv Satellite, New Am Granted

The Nebraska firm Bi-States Co. was granted a construction permit for ch. 3 Sterling, Colo., by the FCC last week. Bi-States intends to operate its channel 3 outlet as a satellite of ch. 13 KHOL-TV Kearney, Neb. Bi-States is currently operating ch. 6 KHPL-TV Hayes City, Neb., as a KHOL-TV satellite.

The Commission also last week granted The Rough River Broadcasting Co., Leitchfield, Ky., a construction permit for a new am outlet on 1580 kc with 250 w, day. At the same time the FCC finalized two initial decisions and granted Century Radio Corp., Baldwinville, N. Y., a new am station to operate on 1050 kc with 250 w, day, and Radio Blakely, Blakely, Ga., an am on 1260 kc with 1 kw, day.

KENIN ELECTED AFM HEAD

- West coast candidate wins post with Petrillo blessing
- Former lawyer expected to adopt conciliatory attitude

With the blessings of retiring president James C. Petrillo, Herman D. Kenin, west coast representative of the American Federation of Musicians, last week was elected president of the union at the 61st AFM convention in Philadelphia.

Mr. Kenin won by a two-to-one majority over his opponent, Alfred Manuti, president of New York Local 802 of the AFM. Mr. Petrillo had declined renomination for his 19th consecutive term [PERSONNEL RELATIONS, May 19].

Observers believe Mr. Kenin will adopt a more conciliatory attitude than Mr. Petrillo in labor-management relationships. Mr. Kenin was a practicing lawyer in Portland, Ore., before he accepted his post with the AFM in Los Angeles in 1956, and also served on the union's international executive board for 14 years. He had been president of the Portland local for 20 years until he went to Los Angeles.

Other officers re-elected are Charles L. Bagley, Los Angeles, vice president; Leo Cluesmann, Newark, secretary, and George V. Clancy, Detroit, treasurer. E. E. Stokes, Houston, was elected to fill the vacancy on the executive board created by Mr. Kenin's assumption of the presidency.

Mr. Kenin, in his acceptance speech, expressed determination to restore unity within the strife-torn AFM, which is faced with high unemployment lawsuits and a secession movement among its Los Angeles members. Both Mr. Manuti and Eliot Daniel, president of Los Angeles Local 47, pledged to cooperate with Mr. Kenin in his effort toward unity.

Two of the dramatic interludes at the convention involved Mr. Petrillo. On Tuesday, a movement to nominate him despite his announced decision not to run again swept through the convention hall. Placards bearing such pleas as "Stay, Jimmy," and "Jimmy, You're the Most," were waved in the throng. Mr. Petrillo, tears in his eyes, could not be shaken from his position and recommended Mr. Kenin as his successor. On Wednesday, a resolution was introduced to extend his $20,000-a-year salary as AFM president and $3,000 yearly expense allowance for life but Mr. Petrillo, again, with tears in his eyes persuaded the delegation to withdraw the resolution at least until he retires as president of the Chicago local. Mr. Petrillo will continue in that post at $26,000 a year.

AFM'S KENIN: Man with bow bows in

ANOTHER EX-BANDSMAN AT HELM

Like his predecessor, who stopped tooting a trumpet more than 40 years ago, Herman David Kenin, the new president of the American Federation of Musicians, stopped playing the fiddle in 1930.

That was the year he was admitted to the Oregon bar. But Mr. Kenin kept his card in the union and from 1936 until 1956, he served as president of the Portland local of the AFM. He was named west coast representative of the union in 1956 at an annual salary of $15,600. The presidency of the AFM has paid Mr. Petrillo $20,000 yearly, but there is sentiment within the union to raise the salary to $35,000.

Mr. Kenin is regarded as sharply different from Mr. Petrillo in personality.

Whereas the retiring president is colorful, explosive, unyielding at times, Mr. Kenin is pictured as a subdued individual who uses reason and conciliation to achieve results.

A slim man of middle height, Mr. Kenin is 56 years old. He was born in Vine-land, N. J., but was raised in Portland. He was a jazz violinist while attending Reed College and Northwestern College of Law, and also led his own band. In 1936 he married Maxine Bennett, who had been a Rockette at the Radio City Music Hall. They have two boys. For the past two years the family has lived in Los Angeles but now will move to New York, where the AFM has its headquarters.

The big questions about atomic-electric power

Most people agree that electric power from the atom will play an important role in America's future. But few are aware of the big questions involved in its development. One of these questions is the amount of government assistance that may be necessary for this expensive job. In this column from Newsweek, Raymond Moley provides facts that may help with answers.

Reprinted with permission from Newsweek

The vast future needs of the world and the United States for electrical energy . . . will greatly exceed the available fuel sources in the foreseeable future. Fuel-poor countries like Britain already feel the pinch. The United States has a maximum of 25 years and a minimum of 15. But in the United States we shall be consuming twice the electrical energy now used, although that has been increased enormously since 1946.

Thus the development of nuclear power, for which the sources of fuel seem illimitable, is of profound concern to American power producers. To meet that future, private companies have done, are doing and will do a great deal at a large cost, without financial profits, in research, in experimentation with pilot plants, and in real power-producing units. For a reactor is just another means of producing heat, which makes steam that drives conventional machinery to produce electricity.

The big goal is to reach the cost level which will be comparable with conventional sources—coal, oil, gas and falling water. From what I have learned, the cost of power from the atom is eight or ten times—perhaps somewhat more—than that to be obtained from fossil fuels: coal, oil and gas. The cost of the installation is more than doubled, that of fuel is very high.

Against this differential there must be calculated the rising and future costs of the present sources. Even water power will be much, much higher because of materials, labor and the diminution of good dam sites even in the Pacific Northwest. An offset of some size can be made in the case of coal because of greater efficiency in its use. Inflation will hit both atomic and other sources, to be sure, and that is indeterminate. But the best estimate of the coming of comparable—not necessarily equal or competitive—costs is somewhere between 12 and 20 years. There will be variations among regions according to the availability of sources. New England is less fortunate than the Pacific Northwest, the Mountain states and the states near coal in the Appalachians.

The privately owned electric industry spent $35 million in 1957 on nuclear plants and $5 million in research. This per-year expenditure will rise rapidly in years to come.

Five atomic reactors are now producing electricity, in three of which considerable private money was invested: the AEC-Westinghouse-Duquesne Light Company plant at Shippingport near Pittsburgh with 68,000-kilowatt capacity; a General Electric-Pacific Gas and Electric plant at Vallejos, California, with 5000; an AEC-Southern California Edison plant with 6500; the AEC's plant at Argonne Laboratory near Chicago; an Army package plant at Fort Belvoir, Virginia. There are several prototypes in AEC installations.

The following are under construction at present: The Power Reactor Development Company's plant at Monroe, Michigan, 100,000 kilowatts; Commonwealth Edison of Illinois, 180,000; Consolidated Edison of N. Y., 275,000; and the Yankee Atomic Electric Co. plant with New England companies participating, 134,000. These are scheduled for production in 1960. By then the United States will have more than 650,000 kilowatts from these plants alone. In addition there will be the several government plants.

There can be no argument about the necessity for considerable government help. The bill is just too much for private investors to bear. The character and amount of that help is a subject of some controversy. Certainly it should be clear to all except zealots for Federal public power that no Federal crash program would be tolerable in a free economy. It would be monopolistic, excessively costly and technically foolish. For we simply do not know what reactor type, what form of fuel and what other components are the best answer.

No SDG Strike Anticipated

Although no agreement has been reached between the producers of films for theatres and tv and the Screen Directors Guild and the guild's June 2 deadline has passed, the general feeling in Hollywood late last week was that there would be no strike of directors.

Following an extended negotiating session on Monday, the SDG board met Tuesday evening and issued this statement: "Unable to reach agreement after hearing the negotiating committee report on the producers' latest proposal, the board has authorized the committee to seek further and final clarification of unresolved points."

Film Guild Re-elects Magwood

The re-election of Howard T. Magwood as president of the Screen Directors International Guild was announced last week by the union. Others elected to serve until May 1959: Charles H. Wasserman, first vice president; Joseph R. Kohn, second vice president; Jack Glenn, secretary, and Jean H. Lenauer, treasurer.

SDIG is composed of more than 300 directors of tv film commercials and industrial and educational films in the New York area and other eastern cities. The union is seeking to set up negotiations with the Film Producers Assn. of New York for a contract covering directors.

WTVJ (TV) Gets NLRB Order

An examiner's finding that WTVJ Inc., Miami, had engaged in unfair labor practices but had not refused to bargain collectively was upheld Monday by National Labor Relations Board. WTVJ (TV) was ordered to cease discouraging membership in IBEW Local 349; quizzing employes about their union activities "in a manner constituting interference, restraint or coercion" and threatening "reprisals" for union activities. WTVJ was directed to offer full reinstatement to five employes—Joseph DeSimone, George H. Schwartz, D. N. Alexander, Wilson Griffith and Lloyd Gaynes and make good any loss of pay they may have suffered.

WGAW Considers CBS Strike

LAST BLATANT NOTE

Retiring President James C. Petrillo of the American Federation of Musicians [see story, page 74] last week was charged with trying to "crush" the National Music Camp at Interlochen, Mich., by the camp's president and founder, Dr. Joseph E. Maddy, music professor at the U. of Michigan. He testified before a House labor-management relations subcommittee that Mr. Petrillo has placed the camp on AFM's "unfair list" for the past 13 years. Dr. Maddy, who was kicked out of AFM and has feuded with the AFM president for 30 years, said AFM forced cancellation of an invitation to the camp's high school band to play at the dedication of the Mackinac Straits Bridge June 27.

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

Lang-Worth, Davis Productions Get Together on Mobilux Deal

Affiliation of Robert Davis Productions Inc. with Lang-Worth Feature Programs Inc. was announced formally last week, putting the 23-year old radio transcription firm in the television business.

The Davis organization processes "Mobilux," a tv film system that provides an animated tv mat service for local and national advertisers as well as tv stations. Lang-Worth, while not engaging in actual "Mobiluxing," will provide the Davis group with a permanent sales organization and traffic network. Robert Davis Productions will quit its New York offices at 21 E. 63rd St. to move into Lang-Worth headquarters at 1755 Broadway, and will seek larger studio space elsewhere in Manhattan. While it does not now envision installation of video tape recording apparatus—VTR being an integral part of the Mobilux process—it was learned that Davis seeks an alliance with "several tv networks" whereby the networks would grant Davis use of VTR facilities in exchange for Mobilux service.

Mobilux essentially is a new process embodying the principles of light reflection via a specially patented flexible mirror that is said to enable advertisers to get animation in tv film commercials at 1/3 less than the cost of a regular animated film. Mobilux does not require frame-by-frame art work, can be shot in live-action and thus cuts production costs considerably.

To date, it has been used by Chevrolet Div. of General Motors Corp. (Campbell-Ewald Co.) in its "teaser" campaign on NBC-TV's Dinah Shore Chevy Show last fall. Other advertisers—national and regional—who have used or are now readying Mobilux commercials include Kellogg (Leo Burnett), Lever Bros. (J. Walter Thompson), Union Carbide (William Esty), Olympia Brewing (Botsford, Constantine & Gardner), and Standard Oil of Indiana (D'Arcy Adv.).

Mr. Davis last week announced that Gene Deitch, former executive producer at UPA Pictures Inc., New York, and CBS-Terrytoons Div., New Rochelle, had joined his firm as consulting art director.

No Break in Telenews Service, Hearst Metrotone Tells Clients

Telenews newsfilm will continue to be supplied stations with no interruption, William Randolph Hearst Jr., president of Hearst Metrotone News Inc., New York, formally assured tv station clients last week.

The operation was not involved in the merger of International News Service with United Press Assns. that formed the new United Press International [PROGRAM SERVICES, June 2; AT DEADLINE, May 26].

One change is being made, however. INS, before it was dissolved, had been exclusive sales agent for Telenews programs for tv. Now distribution will be handled by the Hearst Corp. Hearst Metrotone News also produces "News of the Day," a theatrical newsreel distributed by MGM which partly owns Hearst Metrotone (50% by MGM, 50% by Hearst Corp.).

Tv stations using the various Telenews newsfilm services were told by Mr. Hearst that the newsfilm producer is "in no way involved in the INS-UP merger and it will continue production and service uninterrupted to its many clients."

NO RECESSION FOR STATIONS—NAB

- Survey shows typical radio increase of 2% for this year
- Tv station gain put at 3.5%; both off 1% from '57 increase

There's no recession in the broadcasting business, judging by time sales at a majority of radio and tv stations.

The typical radio station expects total broadcast revenue in 1958 to run 2.0% ahead of 1957, which is below the estimated 3% 1957 gain over 1956, according to a survey conducted by NAB.

The typical tv station anticipates a 3.5% increase in 1958 but the figure is below the estimated 4.5% 1957 gain over 1956.

The survey shows that 54.6% of radio stations expect their total broadcast revenue to increase in 1958, with 22.2% expecting a decline and 23.2% figuring there will be no change compared to 1957.

Two out of three tv stations—66.8%—expect 1958 revenue to exceed that in 1957, with 19.4% expecting a decline and 13.8% no change.

NAB's survey, conducted by the employer-employee relations department, indicates radio stations are making the best showings in markets over 2.5 million population. In television the best showing is apparent in markets under 25,000 and the least increase is expected in markets over 1 million.

The NAB 1958 comparisons are based on stations' first-quarter business.

The 1958-57 and 1957-56 comparisons for radio and television stations (total broadcast revenue) follow:

Comedian Buys In With Sinatra

Dena Pictures, owned by Danny Kaye and wife Sylvia Fine, has purchased 49% of Frank Sinatra's recently acquired KJR Seattle, KNEW Spokane, both Washington, and KXL Portland, Ore. The cost of these stations to Mr. Sinatra's Essex Productions firm had been in the neighborhood of $2 million. The FCC last week approved the Dena buy-in.

A new corporation is to be formed between Mr. Sinatra and the Kayes which will split the ownership of the stations on an even 50-50 basis. This is the first venture of these entertainment personalities into broadcast ownership. Mr. Sinatra originally purchased the three stations from Lester M. Smith and Lincoln Dellar [CHANGING HANDS, March 24]. Mr. Smith will remain as general manager of the outlets.

Long Term Contract with Blair Arranged by Triangle Radio-Tv

New long-term contracts for representation of radio-tv properties of Triangle Publications with Blair have been signed, Roger Clipp, vice president and general manager for Triangle's broadcasting operation, and John Blair, president, John Blair & Co., announced last week.

WFIL-AM-FM-TV Philadelphia in December 1954 were the first Triangle stations to be represented by Blair. They were followed by WBNF-AM-TV Binghamton, N. Y., in August 1955; WFBG-TV Altoona-Johnstown in November 1956 and WNHC-TV Hartford-New Haven, last May. The am stations are represented by John Blair & Co., the tv by Blair-Tv. Another Triangle station, WLBR-TV Lebanon, Pa., has been represented by the third Blair unit—Blair Television Assoc.—since May 1957.

Mr. Clipp pointed up the Triangle-Blair association as having been "most profitable and pleasant," noting operational advantages in concentrating Triangle's major facilities with one representative for national sales.

FINAL DETAILS of new contract are set by (l to r) John Blair, president of the representative firms bearing his name; Roger Clipp, vice president and general manager of Triangle's broadcast properties, and Edward P. Shurick, Blair-Tv executive vice president.

KFXM and Glenn D. Lockhart, assistant general manager of KFAV, has been advanced to general manager of that station.

The two 1 kw independent stations are owned by Mr. Paschall, Howard Tullis, president of the Tullis Co., Hollywood agency, and John Hearne, Hollywood attorney. The changes were made so that Mr. Paschall can concentrate on the operation as general manager of KFXM as well as take on the additional duties of handling national business of both stations in cooperation with the stations' national representative, McGavren-Quinn.

Stations Take Load From Phila. Newspapers

Radio and tv stations in Philadelphia expanded their news service and provided advertising facilities for business firms during the strikes that crippled two major newspapers—Inquirer and Bulletin.

A feature of the week was the vocal reading of the papers by the broadcast stations affiliated with the struck journals—WFIL-AM-TV for the Inquirer; WCAU-AM-TV for the Bulletin. The stations carried detailed descriptions of the contents of the advertising-less newspapers, with both radio and tv outlets covering news, features and comics.

The strikes started the night of May 30 when the teamsters union failed to deliver the May 31 morning edition of the Inquirer. Members of the American Newspaper Guild refused to cross picket lines. Their Inquirer contract expired at midnight May 31. Both unions were still out last Friday, with executive personnel and editors handling the news. The Inquirer has carried no advertising and its editions have been sold only at the newspaper's plant.

The Bulletin was struck Saturday by teamsters. Its editions, also without advertising, have been sold only at the plant. The Bulletin had a full editorial complement since the news staff does not have a guild contract.

The Camden (N. J.) Courier-Post, across the Delaware River from Philadelphia, also was hit by the strike. The Philadelphia Daily News, tabloid, published as usual.

A man-on-the-street survey conducted by Research Inc., Philadelphia, showed that 54% of those interviewed were listening to radio more and watching tv more because of the newspaper strikes.

WFIL-AM-TV augmented its news staff when the strike started, adding frequent news reports. A Sunday feature was "a trip through the Sunday Inquirer." Similar "trips" have been carried each evening. Programs were revamped to accommodate the requests of department stores, special stores, food, entertainment, automobile, real estate and other advertisers deprived of their print media. Lit Brothers, Snellenburg's, John Wanamaker's and Strawbridge & Clothier head the list of department store sponsors who bought extensive broadcast time.

WFIL-AM-TV sent out three news cruiser units that provided beep reports.

WCAU-AM-TV read the Sunday Bulletin, using both station and newspaper personnel on the air. Charles Shaw, news editor, was anchor man for the reports. Sales of the Bulletin have been heavy despite the fact that it is available at only one place. The stations have carried numerous spots promoting the availability of the Bulletin. Radio service included shopping guides, short newscasts and half-hour round-ups of Bulletin features.

WRCV and WRCV-TV quickly revamped their schedules to offer emergency news schedules. News headlines were superimposed on the bottom of the tv screen in a "crawl" effect during local and network entertainment programs. Breaks into local and network programming were made when news justified. A United Press International photo facsimile machine was installed. As with other stations, heavy emphasis was placed on local news, sports, business items, features and traffic conditions.

WPEN augmented its news staff and went on a 24-hour alert schedule. All five-minute newscasts were expanded to eight minutes, and the half-hourly newscasts from one to two minutes. Stock market reports and a theatrical directory were broadcast. A 120 sq. ft. show window in front of WPEN was equipped as a giant bulletin board. Thousands of "Newsgrams" were distributed through hotels and restaurants.

While all the city's radio stations were joining the citywide expansion of news service, commercial staffs met the demand for time as quickly as possible. Shopping guide programs helped fill the needs of advertisers, and announcements were fitted into schedules. Heaviest time purchases went to radio because of the medium's greater flexibility.

Efforts to settle the strikes were begun during the week. A federal mediator entered the scene and was expected to continue conferences Friday.

KMOX-TV to Air Editorials On Occasion Basis, Wilkey Says

CBS o&o KMOX-TV St. Louis probably will join the growing ranks of stations airing broadcast editorials, Gene Wilkey, its general manager, indicated last week.

Addressing the St. Louis Advertising Club Tuesday, Mr. Wilkey said he favored tv editorials and that KMOX-TV would occasionally editorialize on "important, local, state or national matters but stick pretty closely to local or regional issues". Editorial views of the station at the national news level may be aired only "insofar as they affect our local community", he told BROADCASTING.

Mr. Wilkey has no definite plans for immediate launching of broadcast editorials, he said, but they will be carried "on occasion," reflecting middle ground between the "extremes" of the "vituperative" and the "Casper Milquetoast" variety. Views of KMOX-TV will be determined by an editorial board consisting of the general manager, news directors and other representatives, he added.

Mr. Wilkey's announcement followed the tack of the parent CBS network, which has favored station editorializing over a period of recent years. It was presumed the plan also would be extended to KMOX Radio.

He stressed in his talk tv's role at the community level, noting that tv advertising is making important advances because of this realization: "Our educational systems, our great newspapers, magazines and broadcasting media, our mobility as individuals—all have produced an average American who is intelligent, wide awake and interested in self-improvement, interested in economic and social advantages for his children, interested in news events and their interpretation, interested in new leisure time activities, and, of course, interested in good, wholesome, worthwhile entertainment."

KSAY Names Wassenberg

KSAY San Francisco has named Roman W. Wassenberg general manager in line with the independent station's plans for program revamping. Mr. Wassenberg was previously executive vice president and general manager of KSFO, and program manager for KPIX (TV), both San Francisco.

You get better pictures with Du Pont film

KGW-TV counts on 930 and 931

to get the news on the air fast!

Richard Ross, News Director of KGW-TV, Portland, Oregon, says that his station has used Du Pont film for newsreels since it started operations in December, 1956. "Despite some rough assignments, it has never let us down," says Mr. Ross about Du Pont Rapid Reversal Film. "It was certainly a powerful factor in our news programs having been listed by the American Research Bureau as the top multi-weekly news program in several consecutive rating periods.

"One of the reasons we get our news on the air so fast is the rapid drying time of Du Pont 930 and 931. They dry at least five minutes sooner and those five minutes mean smoother editing, more professional treatment of the coverage."

Portland has frequent rains during the winter and spring, with dull skies, early darkness and very poor lighting conditions. "We find that 931 film has the necessary speed, resolution and contrast to make good, usable pictures under extreme conditions. With the added bonus of fast processing, you can see why Du Pont is one of the vital tools in our operation," concludes Mr. Ross.

Kluge Stations Set Disc Policy At Three-Day Organization Meet

The five outlets in the Kluge Radio Stations group will set up a top-management liaison with the record industry, Kluge managers decided at a May 30-June 1 meeting at the Sheraton Park Hotel, Washington.

This policy is based on the premise that "radio is show business" and the record industry is radio's "major entertainment source." It is designed to solve many of the problems involving the two industries.

In formally organizing as a group, the station resolved that each is to become "the nerve-center of the community." John W. Kluge, of Washington, head of the group, and the managers took the position that public service provides a challenge to sell goodwill and increase audiences. A people-to-people policy was adopted by which "people in community activities will personally sell their public service in the same manner commercial products and services are sold by radio."

Kluge stations are WGAY Silver Spring, Md.; WEEP Pittsburgh; WKDA Nashville; WINE Buffalo and KNOK Fort Worth. Leonard H. Marks, radio attorney for the group, discussed legal and regulatory problems at the meeting. Jack Hardesty, vice president of Radio Advertising Bureau, gave a sales presentation. Bernard Howard, president of Stars National, representative, reviewed national sales developments.

Freed Contests Validity of Law Governing Massachusetts Charge

Disc-jockey Alan Freed Wednesday contested the validity of the Massachusetts "anti-anarchy law" under which the commonwealth hopes to throw the book at him as a result of a May 3 "rock and roll" riot in Boston. His attorney, Paul Smith, asked dismissal of two indictments based on two ancient Massachusetts statutes charging Mr. Freed, formerly of WINS New York and now with WABC New York, with inciting an assembly to riot, property destruction and other violence.

Mr. Smith, cognizant of reports that 15 "bystanders" reported being assaulted, knifed and robbed, asked for a bill of particulars, including naming the victims and those alleged to have perpetrated the disorders. He stated that the anti-anarchy act was unconstitutional as applied to his client for the law specifically covered intent to overthrow the government.

Meanwhile, in New York, WABC General Manager Ben Hoberman announced that the station this weekend inaugurated "the first phase of a new six-day-a-week programming concept" by giving Mr. Freed a Saturday program in addition to a Monday-Friday Series at 7:15-11 p.m.

Weed Asks Colleges to Improve Radio-Tv Courses, Award Degree

U. S. college courses in radio-tv were termed "second-rate" Friday by station representative Joseph Weed. The president of Weed Radio and Tv Corps., New York, speaking before 100 students, faculty and staff members of Iowa State College and its owned and operated WOI-AM-TV Ames, called upon universities to improve their broadcast curricula to the point where degrees would be offered. He went on:

"I would like to see you take leadership in creating here curricula for training young people in all of the facets of this great profession: programming, selling, management, in order that here and elsewhere we may look to the time when degrees can be offered in this field of professional endeavor."

"In viewing the future potential of television we must bear in mind not only the program content," Mr. Weed said, "but also the commercial effort that makes that program content possible. It means that our young people who show talent for selling must be given as much attention and as much encouragement as our young people who show talent for producing and creating."

Vice-President/Marketing and Media
Norman, Craig & Kummel, Inc.

"Advertising Age is definitely must reading for me. I have it sent home, so I'll have time to read it thoroughly and not miss something I otherwise might. It's page-by-page for me—from beginning to end."

Whether it's Monday morning at the office, Monday evening at home—or later in the week, it's a safe bet that most of the executives of importance to you rely on Advertising Age's unique editorial eye to keep the marketing world in focus for them. More than a news journal, its sharp analyses of current trends and developments make Ad Age "must" reading for those who influence as well as those who activate today's market and media decisions.

Norman, Craig & Kummel is just one example from AA's nationwide audience. Ranking among the top agencies in broadcast, N.C. & K. placed about $10,300,000 in radio-tv billings in 1957.* Included in its accounts are such broadcast-minded advertisers as Colgate-Palmolive Co., Pabst Brewing Co., Ronson Corp. and Speidel Corp.

Every week, 28 paid-subscription copies of Ad Age keep Norman, Craig & Kummel executives up with the news and developments affecting them. Further, 89 paid-subscription copies get a going-over at the offices and homes of advertising and marketing professionals at the companies mentioned.

Add to this AA's more than 40,000 paid circulation, its tremendous penetration of advertising with a weekly paid circulation currently reaching over 12,000 agency people alone, its intense readership by top executives in national advertising companies—and you'll recognize in Advertising Age a most influential medium for swinging broadcast decisions your way.

A graduate of Harvard College, where he was versatile enough to make Phi Beta Kappa and the varsity basketball team, Mr. Morris has seen marketing from both sides of the advertiser-agency fence. From 1933 until he became an Air Corps officer in 1942, he progressed from a junior sales executive to acting sales manager of the Eagle Pencil Company. On his return from military service in 1946, he accepted the position of general sales manager of the Helbras Watch Company.

In 1950, Mr. Morris joined Norman, Craig & Kummel, Inc. to head up the marketing department. Subsequently, he was assigned additional responsibilities in merchandising, media and research. DATELINES Newsworthy News Coverage by Radio and Tv

WASHINGTON—WMAL-TV Washington, originating station for the ABC-TV coverage of the Memorial Day services at Arlington Cemetery, reports it is the only tv outlet in the country to carry the event live. Other network affiliates broadcast videotape versions. For the 3-4:15 p.m. EST WMAL-TV pick-up, Richard Stratton directed six cameras and Jim Christenat was production supervisor.

MONTREAL—CJMS here, although thwarted in attempts to make telephonic contact with Gen. Charles DeGaulle and Algerian supporters, found plenty of local reaction to the French government crisis. Frenchy Jarraud, CJMS' morning man, contacted DeGaullists in and around Montreal conducting a series of interviews on developments in Paris. In all, several dozen of the general's Canadian fans were interviewed by CJMS.

MINNEAPOLIS—Listeners to WCCO's daily Foshay Tower Weather News (5:55-6 p.m.) last Wednesday here were among the first to have knowledge of the tornadoes that killed approximately 30 and injured more than 100 in eastern Minnesota-western Wisconsin. The program is originated from a tower in the city by staffer Dean Montgomery. He announced that forming over the area were "the biggest thunderheads I have ever seen." At 6 o'clock the station got orders to begin Conelrad tornado warnings. This was followed by WCCO's own system of reporting approaching twisters: sounding a klaxon horn and announcing the official alert.

News staffers Jim Borman, Jerry Rusholt, Hugh Smith and Bill Carlson fed WCCO and eight other outlets with beeper reports from the station's mobile unit while touring the area.

WICHITA FALLS—An eyewitness account of the May 22 students' riot in Panama City, Panama, was broadcast by KWFT Wichita Falls, Tex., when its news director, Dave Dary, contacted Reece Smith of the Panama American for a beeper report. The station carried the account just 20 minutes after the first bulletin, it was reported. The sound of gunfire served as a background to the story as Mr. Smith described activities of the rioters.

SAVANNAH—WSAV-TV here spent three hours covering one of the biggest downtown fires in the Georgia city's history. From a vantage point across the street from a burning department store WSAV-TV cameras trained on the blaze 15 minutes after it was discovered. The coverage was mentioned on local radio stations throughout the area as the fire progressed, WSAV-TV reports.

NEAR BRUNSWICK, MD.—Among stations covering the airplane collision near Brunswick, KDKA Pittsburgh dispatched a newsmen to the scene by air. KDKA newscaster Mike Levine flew by private plane to the crash site and provided direct telephone reports on the Capital Airlines-military jet disaster throughout the afternoon of May 20.

ORLANDO—A bulletin that a gunman had shot the driver of an automobile to death was soon aired by WHOO here, for the car crashed through a store window just four doors from the station's studios. Red Weiss, sales manager, heard three shots and dashed out to get the story. He reported it on the air five minutes after the event occurred. Bill Clark, news director, that evening interviewed an injured passenger in the victim's car at a local hospital.

LINCOLN—A filmed interview with convicted-murderer Charles Starkweather was obtained by KOLN-TV here—through a jail cell window. One of KOLN-TV's four-man team covering the court proceedings, cameraman-reporter Don Wright managed to talk to Mr. Starkweather (until chased away by a jailer) during a noon trial recess. The station's staff artist, Bob Regler, contributed courtroom sketches to illustrate the trial for KOLN-TV viewers.

KWFT Wichita Falls, Tex., got its coverage of the trial via beeper reports from KFOR Lincoln. The Texas station carried direct reports at the time of the murders and of the fugitive's capture.

BENDIX "WEATHERMAN"

lets TV viewers see weather record itself!

The Bendix "Weatherman*" will give your audience greater accuracy in weather reporting and a clearer picture of weather happenings, to make an important public service even better. Weather conditions can be read instantly from large and easy-to-read dials, showing outdoor temperatures, relative humidity, rainfall, atmospheric pressure, wind speed, and wind direction.

Such stations as WFIL-TV, Philadelphia; KHQA-TV, Hannibal, Mo. and Quincy, Ill. and KWTV-TV in Oklahoma City, have found that this new presentation of the weather by the "Weatherman" is more interesting than relayed information. And with the Bendix "Weatherman" every installation is unique because the dials can be arranged in so many different positions.

With the exception of the barometric pressure unit, each indicator is actuated by a remote (roof top) transmitter and is connected to the transmitter by electrical cable. "Weatherman" indicators and transmitters can be obtained as individual units.

The "Weatherman" is made by Bendix Friez, makers of weather-data instruments for eighty-two years. For further information, write direct to this division, 1324 Taylor Avenue, Baltimore 4, Maryland, or telephone Valley 3-4040.

TV NETWORKS UP 14% FOR YEAR

- April's 15% lead caps four-month gain over 1957
- January-April network gross exceeds $191.4 million

Network tv gross time billing increased $23.7 million or 14.1% the first four months of this year as compared to the January-April period in 1957.

Each of the tv networks chalked up gains in April and for the first four months, according to latest figures released by Television Bureau of Advertising. The network figures are compiled for TvB by leading national advertisers and Broadcast Advertisers Report.

Total gross for all networks for the four-month period was a little over $191.4 million this year. ABC-TV is up 35.3% for the four months; CBS-TV is ahead 6.8% and NBC-TV is showing a 14.3% increase. In April time charges, ABC-TV was 30.8% above that month last year, its total for April at the $8.7 million level. CBS-TV, 6.9% ahead in April, had a gross billing in the $20.7 millions, and NBC-TV, with a hefty 20.6% increase for April, was at the $18.2 million monthly level.

The monthly billing figures for the January-April period shows two months—January and March—close to the $50 million level, the other months of February and April at $44.6 million and $47.7 million respectively.

Mutual Simplifies Clearances

Mutual has placed into effect a new system for clearing affiliated stations for network advertisers, which is designed to cut costs and simplify procedures.

Under the plan, MBS stations are required to file with the network a semi-annual affidavit on the network programs it takes and wire MBS at times it will deviate from this schedule. Under the old system, the affiliates had to report at the end of each month the deviations from the schedule. According to Armand Hammer, MBS president and board chairman, the new system "precludes the time, effort and costs incumbent on the station each time Mutual secures a national client and seeks to determine station clearances for that client."

Vogel Bowing Out Of MBS Exec. V.P.

Resignation of George Vogel as executive vice president of MBS is being announced today (Monday) by Armand Hammer, Mutual board chairman. Mr. Vogel will return to his own merchandising-promotion company, Ethos Organization, New York, which has been retained as consultant to Mutual, with Mr. Vogel as account executive. A successor to Mr. Vogel at the network has not yet been announced.

Mr. Vogel was brought in at Mutual by Mr. Hammer during a shakeup in February—said to be at the request of stockholders—when Paul Roberts and Bertram J. Hauser were dropped as MBS president and executive vice president respectively [AT DEADLINE, March 3]. Mr. Vogel then also was elected to the board. At the time, Mr. Hammer stressed that more emphasis at Mutual would be put on basic programming of music, news, special events and increased attention on merchandising and promotion for clients and stations, a field in which Mr. Vogel is a veteran.

Since that time, Mr. Vogel has been acting in merchandising-promotion as well as working very closely with Mr. Hammer. But health conditions and medical advice, it was said, have forced Mr. Vogel to leave an active post at Mutual and seek to ease his workload. His future association with Mutual will be in merchandising-promotion only via his own firm, with Charles Godwin, MBS' director of station special projects, acting as Mr. Hammer's administrative assistant.

Mr. Vogel started in radio in Manila, managing KZRM and KZRF during World War II and later returned to commercial broadcasting, producing and directing of radio and tv programs. He formed and owns Ethos with his wife and has served as merchandising consultant on tv for William Esty, and for six years consulted in the merchandising and promotion activity of Household Products Div. of Colgate-Palmolive Co.

CBS to Carry Giants' Schedule

CBS Radio announced last week it will broadcast the entire schedule of the New York Giants during the 1958 football season, according to William MacPhail, director of CBS sports. The contract is for one year. Arrangements were negotiated by the network and John Vincent Mara, president of the team. Approval of the agreement was made by Bert Bell, president of the National Football League. Last year the Giants' games were carried on WINS New York and on a regional network.

CROSBY, ABC-TV SET $2.5 MILLION PACT

- Live specials in plans
- Question on CBS option

Bing Crosby, one of the entertainment world's top holdouts from tv, will jump into television with both feet next fall under an exclusive, long-term contract announced last week by ABC.

Thomas W. Moore, ABC-TV programming vice president credited with making the deal, said Mr. Crosby will do at least two 90-minute specials each season, starting next October or November, and in addition will produce in partnership with ABC the pilots for 10 new tv series over five years.

The specials will be live—the format in which Mr. Crosby has had most success in his relatively few television appearances. The series he develops may be done either live or on film or tape, and according to officials may be musicals, comedies, dramas or of some other type, the agreement specifying only that they be "entertainment" in half-hour or hour lengths. The announcement said Mr. Crosby "will take an active role in the production of these new shows and will be available to star in them."

Financial details were not made public, but informed sources said the contract would mean "from $2.5 million up" to Mr. Crosby, depending upon various factors including the degree to which the shows he develops are sold, as well as the extent, if any, to which he performs in them, etc.

The contract was described as retaining the singer's services in both radio and television, but there was no indication of ABC Radio's plans for him. Authorities said this will depend upon the plans of the ABC Radio Network, whose programming at present has been cut back substantially.

There may be another complication regarding his ABC Radio appearances. Mr. Crosby currently is under contract to CBS Radio for daily segment of the Ford Road Show package on that network, and officials there said the contract—which expires in September—contains a clause giving CBS Radio the right to renew for another 52 weeks. CBS Radio officials also have plans for another "Sing With Bing" special production next Christmas.

In announcing the signing, Mr. Moore said ABC-TV's "greatly increased" lineup of stations for live clearances justified the "large expenditures" involved in the Crosby contract. He said ABC-TV now is clearing live on stations covering 90% of the U. S.

The singer's signing with ABC occasioned some surprise, because in the past he has been more closely identified with CBS. After the announcement, reports circulated that he had gone to CBS with a proposal and, when it was turned down, had then taken it to NBC before going into the negotiations which led to ABC's signing. These reports, not officially confirmed, said some of his offered terms included a $150,000 fee to him for each of the specials in which he stars; a per-show budget in an amount to be negotiated, and investment by the network in the series to be developed by him.

Prodelin Pioneers an All-American!

AND Spir-O-line FOR

Transmission Line Assembly with 90% Less Work • Consistent, Low VSWR

Here's Prodelin's revolutionary design approach to coaxial transmission line connectors . . . Spir-O-lok! Its unique construction makes assembly with the Prodelin combination many times faster than with any other line and connector assembly in the industry . . . while providing consistently reliable VSWR.

See how easy a Spir-O-lok installation is:

CUT — With a common tubing cutter, cut the outer conductor of the Spir-O-line. Remove. The soft aluminum tubing cuts cleanly and easily.

TRIM — With an ordinary jack knife, trim the six dielectric tubes flush to the outer conductor. This is Prodelin's unique construction that simplifies connector assembly while affording best broadband performance, highest power handling, lowest attenuation and VSWR. The 6 tubes keep the Spir-O-line inner conductor perfectly centered on bends.

ASSEMBLE — So simple, one man can do it in a few minutes. Slide the nut assembly on cable, hold body while tightening nut with wrench. This forms a pressure-tight joint that cannot distort outer aluminum sheath. The connection can be re-made repeatedly without redressing cable or affecting VSWR. Insert inner conductor connector.

WEAVER FIRES ON NETWORK LINES

Sylvester L. (Pat) Weaver Jr., who used to be one of them, has charged members of network managements with "degrading" television. He did it on a network tv program.

MR. WEAVER

(day) on ABC-TV.

He warned that if television managements do not change their ways, other forces—perhaps including pay tv—may make them do so.

He said he is "disappointed in what's been happening in the last couple of years," which he described thus:

"I think it is going from open forums to closed forums. It is lacking in balance. It is really reducing its overall mission to doing nothing but being largely a story-telling medium. That is, all the shows are really either game shows or story-telling shows."

Mr. Weaver, noted for his imaginative programming at NBC, said television should reflect "the whole richness and pluralism of our society. . . . We should have all the magic of live performances in the New York theatre, the great issues in documentaries and telementaries. . . . We should have all of the people passing across our sets.

"It is a porthole through which you can look out on the entire world, but if you aim it only at a film projector and show the cans out of Hollywood, together with some game shows that can be presented cheaply and get pretty good audiences on a commercial value, you are degrading a service and I'm afraid that's what's happening."

Asked to pin the blame, he said:

"No matter which group I discuss I'll be speaking of my closest personal friends so I guess I can just start making enemies from the top. But I am afraid, as a former advertiser, a former agency head of the radio and television department twice and a network man twice, both in early radio and television, I know the needs of different units and I am afraid that I must point the finger at the managements of the television networks."

He said the advertiser-agency job is to sell goods and that "the only force that can balance programming and give us what we should have in the home and be responsible for the influence the set has is the management."

It has been proved, Mr. Weaver said, that "you can get advertising support for fine things and for information programs and for controversial things."

He said "a retreat" is occurring in television, asserting that NBC-TV alone had 11 live hour dramas when he left the network in late 1956 but that these will all be gone by summer.

Back in 1949, he said, advertisers "wanted game shows and cheap shows" and "didn't want to spend any real money."

"But management," he continued, "is supposed to overcome those things and get what they think is the right thing as far as television is concerned."

He noted that Ed Murrow was on CBS-TV on Tuesday nights under sponsorship for "a couple of years" but is no longer in that spot. "I just can't believe that there wasn't a solution, a more intelligent solution than putting him on Sunday afternoon once a month," he declared.

Mr. Weaver suggested that in the public affairs field "we should have a great important report to the nation at least once a month by each of the networks, at night in premium time. . . . We should have a news service that really spends a lot of money in developing coverage of this country and everything that happens in it, live and with tape. That is far beyond what we are presently doing. I think that beyond the information programs—there should be all sorts of informational telementaries—we should be going into the cultural field and showing all the good things that we know people when they have a chance . . . will be become interested in . . . their tastes upgraded and their standards elevated."

He commended CBS-TV for its interview with Russian Premier Khrushchev and said "they should do it much more often."

He did not feel that there is enough editorial comment on television, but said that "just to use the right to editorialize, to let somebody write an editorial who may not have the stature of most of the major reporters or commentators is less important, it seems to me, than to use the mechanism of television to bring into every home in the country the product of the best minds on the situation as they see it."

"Frankly," he said, "I would rather hear what Walter Lippmann has to say than most television commentators."

He rejected a suggestion that Congress should require stations to devote certain prime periods to political discussion. "I am usually against the law stepping in to try to solve all problems," he said.

Mr. Wallace wondered at one point whether Mr. Weaver wasn't "saddling" television with "too much social responsibility." Mr. Weaver replied:

"The record is very clear as far as I am concerned. We made an awful lot of money at NBC-TV starting back in 1951 . . . and I started running it in 1949. I am sure they would love to have the profits that I made, today. I think that a business must be an upward-thinking, going business and when you try to not only program down but try to solve everything on a business basis you are liable to get into some rather difficult things . . ."

Television's businessmen, he said, don't really understand their medium as well as they might.

To another question he said he did not see "very many" instances of "restrictions on freedom"—influence of pressure groups, censorship, etc.—during his tv career. He acknowledged that "all kinds of kicks are made" and that special-interest groups are active but that "I think the networks are and have and will continue to resist those pressures."

Network management, he continued, "is the only group really that has the central position" to fight off censorship pressures.

Any management that "locks up the television set" will in time be changed, he felt. "But in the meantime the competition, the pressure on the networks will come from other ways of distributing [programs]. Pay television is one way. Another way is through the theatres themselves. . . ." In short he thought that "some new enterprise will move in and take over" what he called "the vacuum created as the networks abdicate certain areas of culture and information . . ."

ABC Slide-Film Pitch Equates Summer Season With Radio Sales

ABC Radio is optimistic about its prospects for 1958 and is selling hard this summer with a new slide-film presentation to advertisers and agencies to prove that "Summer Means Sales on the American Air"—the title of the film.

The network Thursday said "the outlook, as evidenced by increased billing since the first of April, is good for 1958." More than $2 million in new billings have been sold in the past month alone, it was noted.

The slide film presentation buries the old ghost about a summer slump in business generally and radio specifically by pointing out that during the summer quarter (June-July-August) grocery sales and retail sales actually increase, with drug sales only slightly off. Sales of tires, batteries and accessories are well up, as are gas station sales and the business of eating and drinking places. With people on the move, the total radio audience actually gains through more use of portables and car radios, the presentation details.

The ABC Radio slide film also shows how tv advertisers can gain economical additional and unduplicated audiences through radio campaigns during the summer period.

Skelton in New 5-Year Pact

The signing of Red Skelton to a new, five-year exclusive contract with CBS-TV was announced last week by Louis G. Cowan, president of CBS-TV network division. Mr. Skelton will continue his present Tuesday night series next season (9:30-10 p.m.) under the same sponsorship—Pet Milk Co. and S. C. Johnson & Son.

WTAO Becomes ABC Affiliate

WTAO Cambridge, Mass., has joined ABC Radio as a primary affiliate, effective immediately, it was announced last week by the network. The station is owned and operated by the Middlesex Broadcasting Corp. and broadcasts with 250 w on 740 kc. Wallace Dunlap is general manager. The network now has 296 affiliates.

STEREO GEAR TAKES INDUSTRY SPOTLIGHT

- RCA unveils full line
- Admiral shows portables

Stereophonic gear for radio, discs, tape—and even tv—is taking a prominent place in the electronic display window. Manufacturers opening new dimensions in sound and sight the past two weeks include RCA in the East, Admiral Corp. and Zenith Radio Corp. in Chicago and Ampex Corp. in California.

RCA launched a major effort in the stereophonic market. Its full stereo line, unveiled at a news conference in New York, includes 55 discs, 15 Victrola phonographs (which play both stereo discs and single soundtrack records), 32 stereo tape cartridges, two tape playback-stereo recording instruments and seven auxiliary speaker systems.

Robert A. Seidel, executive vice president, RCA consumer products, said the new line represents "the key to providing stereophonic music for the American home, for it puts stereo at last within the price range of the average music lover." George R. Marek, vice president-general manager, RCA Victor Record Div., predicted that stereo disc sales alone might add 20% to record sale volume for the entire industry in another year.

Prices for the Victrola stereo record player start at $129.95. Stereo discs are $5.95 and tape cartridges about a dollar more. Auxiliary speaker systems range from $9.95 to $125.

The new Admiral line of stereo phonographs includes a portable unit and one- and two-unit consoles. Dealers were shown these and new radio-television lines last week. A tv-stereo phonograph combination was billed as a "dual channel stereophonic theatre" at a suggested retail price of $399.95. With inclusion of 100-degree deflection tubes in all tv receivers this year, Admiral President Ross D. Siragusa noted, the company is able to combine "hi-fi tv" and a stereo record player in a cabinet. A special dual channel amplifier is integrated in the chassis, giving 5 w tv power and 10 w for the phonograph.

Mr. Siragusa predicts a 25% sales increase for the hi-fi industry this year over the estimated $200 million in 1957. By 1963 total sales will reach $750 million, he forecasts. Only 4% of all U. S. homes are now equipped with hi-fi, which offers an almost unlimited sales potential, he said.

Zenith Radio Corp. at its 40th anniversary convention for distributors last week exhibited 119 new tv, radio and phonograph units, including 31 new tv models. Zenith hi-fi record players are designed for monaural records in four speeds—33½, 45, 78 and 16⅔ rpm.

A basic difference in Zenith and Admiral tv sets is circuitry. Zenith last week stressed hand-wired chassis units, claiming ease of part replacement, servicing and economy. Admiral adhered to printed circuitry in which it pioneered. Neither manufacturer brought out new color tv models.

Ampex has incorporated three-way stereo

DUMONT TO PUT OUT COLOR TUBE IN '58

- Report comes from Paramount
- DuMont hopes to cut losses

Allen B. DuMont Labs will have color sets utilizing the single-gun Lawrence tube on the market by the end of 1958.

This was the official estimate of Paramount Pictures President Barney Balaban at his stockholders meeting in New York last week (see story, page 42). Paramount is presumed to be knowledgeable on DuMont's color planning by virtue of Paramount's 26% interest in DuMont's manufacturing operation and its full ownership of Paramount subsidiary Chromatic Labs, research and development unit that has an agreement with DuMont to design a commercial color set for mass manufacture of the sets.

Unofficial estimates on the suggested price for the color set are in the $350-400 bracket.

He said the receiver would be of the same size and "conformation" as a black-and-white set "with a similar sized 21-inch picture." The viewer would have only one additional control knob on his set for controlling the intensity of color, it was explained.

DuMont's job has been to reduce the laboratory models of the Lawrence tube (developed by Chromatic) to a mass production prototype. According to Paramount officials, DuMont engineers report they see "no problems to such mass production which were not normally incident to mass tube and electronic equipment production." Said Mr. Balaban: "We believe the solution of the production problem is close at hand."

Asked when a prototype of the set could be demonstrated, Mr. Balaban predicted perhaps within the next month, but then amended his statement reminding that attempts in the past to set such targets later had to be revised.

Mr. Balaban also had a few things to say about Allen B. DuMont Labs' future. The company's revenue has slumped anew with the arrival of the recession and this year again is operating in the red.

Noting that for the last six months of 1957, DuMont's operation was in the black, Mr. Balaban pointed out that "during 1958 [DuMont] has been hit extremely hard." DuMont lost $943,000 in the first quarter of this year and sales were off slightly, prompting DuMont President David T. Schultz to label this as a reversal of an upward trend. He blamed the national economy and a slowdown in defense contracts [MANUFACTURING, May 12].

Three things "can happen to improve the situation," said Mr. Balaban: "(1) that an improvement in general conditions will favorably affect DuMont; (2) that the production and marketing of new color sets incorporating the Lawrence tube will be a real stimulus to DuMont's business, and (3) that a constructive merger or consolidation can be worked out." Mr. Balaban did not amplify what he meant by the third possibility.

Allen B. DuMont Labs, once the owner of a tv network that it gave up a few years ago, also dropped its station ownership by spinning off its broadcast interests in September 1955. Created was an independently-owned new corporation, DuMont Broadcasting Co. (now called Metropolitan Broadcasting Corp.).

DuMont Labs has been living grimly with deficits for some years now. Last year DuMont lost $535,000. In 1956, after reduction by a tax carryback, the deficit was $3,887,000 for the year. This year's first quarter loss of $943,000 was on sales of $9,806,000 compared to a 1957 first quarter loss of $353,000 on sales of $10,059,000.

NETWORKS AT FAULT ON COLOR—ADMIRAL

The three major networks—primarily ABC-TV and CBS-TV and to a lesser degree, NBC-TV—were lashed last week by a top electronics executive as the big obstacle to public acceptance of color tv.

In a surprise statement to the company's distributors and salesmen, Ross D. Siragusa, president of Admiral Corp., blamed the whole thing on the "selfish attitude—the public-be-damned attitude—of the . . . money-hungry, profit-hungry television networks." He claimed manufacturers—primarily RCA and Admiral—have spent "huge sums" on sets and made "serious marketing efforts" to put tint tv across. Networks, however, are not doing their part in programming, he contends.

As a result Admiral will not bring out new models this year but hopes to unveil a new tv chassis and merchandising techniques around June 1959. "We hope by then," Mr. Siragusa added, "the networks will go hand in hand with the manufacturers to make color really take off. We are going to spend more money on color research than ever before, and we have invested heavily to date." Mr. Siragusa's statement:

"The American people can thank the networks for the lack of imagination and guts that it will take to bring beautiful color into their home.

"The most important reason for the lack of color television sales is the selfish attitude—the public-be-damned attitude—of the TV networks. The manufacturers of television receivers, and I particularly point to Admiral and one other manufacturer, have been spending huge sums to bring the wonder of color television to the American people.

"The manufacturers have time and time again made serious marketing efforts. However, the money-hungry, profit-hungry television networks have refused to make any really serious effort toward heavy color programming. NBC stands almost alone, and its color programming shows up more in publicity than it does in actuality; CBS has done nothing worth mentioning; ABC nothing at all.

"We dare not bring out new color television sets with our technological advances while the networks filter out the rainbow."

ORRadio Reports 10% Increase

A 10% increase in net earnings for the 1957-58 fiscal year has been announced by ORRadio Industries Inc., Opelika, Ala. President J. Herbert Orr, of the firm that manufactures Irish brand magnetic recording tape, presented the report for the year ending Feb. 28, 1958, and which showed net earnings after taxes amounted to $113,836 with sales totaling $2,284,400. Previous year figures were $103,118 and $1,528,931, respectively. Mr. Orr pointed out that ORRadio's new plant went into production only one month before the end of the fiscal year and the increased production load on the old plant raised manufacturing costs. Construction of new plant and other equipment additions has increased ORRadio's net investment in fixed properties from $220,948 to $724,153, he said.

FULL AGENDA FACES NAB BOARDS

NAB's Combined Boards of Directors will seek solutions to pressing industry problems next week in the probe-saturated surroundings of the nation's capital.

The semi-annual session finds Washington teeming with investigations, hearings and assorted conferences that involve the economic and engineering future of stations and networks.

Against this backdrop the boards will review a wide range of association and industry developments that include such matters as tv allocations, pay tv network regulation, station transfers, technical developments, community antenna systems, news broadcasting and labor legislation.

The directors will take up internal association operations such as election of chairmen and vice chairmen of the radio and tv boards; budget items and plans for the fall regional conferences as well as the 1959 industry convention.

There isn't much the boards can do about many of the legislative and regulatory crises that haunt the industry, other than to take policy stands, but they will have full authority to shape the association's operations in the light of developments at the FCC, Dept. of Justice and on Capitol Hill.

The weeklong series of board events will open with a June 16 briefing session for new directors elected during the spring. The board's convention, tv finance and general fund committees will meet the next day. Scheduled June 18 is an all-day meeting of the Tv Board, followed the next day by a Radio Board meeting. Combined boards will meet Friday. Sessions will be held at the Mayflower Hotel.

NAB's convention situation will be carefully scanned. Last January the directors decided to reduce the size of NAB's annual convention by limiting attendance to ownership-management delegates and limiting the exhibition to broadcast equipment displays. Program and film service groups were to be excluded from conventions, starting in 1959, but given the right to participate in fall conferences.

Later the board's action was found to have doubtful standing under the by-laws. An amendment giving the board the right to determine the rights of associate members was adopted by an overwhelming industry vote (947 to 59). The board now has authority to exclude associate members in the program and film fields from exhibiting at industry conventions.

A survey of delegates, conducted at the recent NAB convention in Los Angeles, showed that a majority (57.8%) approved the board's plan to cut down the size of conventions but a larger ratio (63.1%) want the exhibition to continue including program and film displays as well as broadcast equipment [BROADCASTING, May 12, 5]. The survey was conducted for BROADCASTING by The Pulse Inc.

The separate radio and tv boards and the combined directors will discuss 1959 convention plans as well as programming of the eight fall regional conferences, which open Sept. 18 at Biloxi, Miss.

Indication that NAB is now taking the community antenna (CATV) problem seriously came with the calling of a meeting of the NAB Community Antenna Committee, headed by Howard Lane, KOIN-TV Portland, Ore. The meeting will be held in Washington June 16. Committee members are Thomas E. Bostic, KIMA Yakima, Wash.; William C. Grove, KFBC-TV Cheyenne, Wyo.; Henry W. Slavick, WMCT (TV) Memphis; George B. Storer Jr., Storer Broadcasting Co.; Omar Elder, ABC, and Harry Olsson, NBC.

While committee members will be alerted to the potential of the community antenna industry as a basis for an easy-to-start pay-tv system, the top problem is expected to be the matter of broadcast property rights in programs and signals.

NAB has been looking into CATV operations to find a test case by which the courts can determine what rights broadcasters have in programs they originate and which CATV systems resell to the public for monthly fees.

The association feels CATV offers a threat to the tv allocations of the FCC and to small-market tv broadcasting. It holds FCC should take jurisdiction over common-carrier microwave facilities carrying broadcast tv signals to CATV systems.

The committee will report to the NAB Board. Messrs. Lane, Grove and Bostic, of the committee, are board members.

The NAB Tv Code Review Board's stern warning to violators of the code's advertising provisions will come before the Tv Board. The code group opens a three-day Washington session today (Monday) at which decisions will be reached on a number of cases.

Code violations center around multiple-spotting, excessive commercial time in programs and personal product advertising. The code board announced April 29 that code privileges will be withdrawn from some violators unless they correct practices. Roger W. Clipp, WFIL-TV Philadelphia, is code board chairman.

The editorializing problem will come before the board as NAB's Freedom of Information Committee reports on its proposed news manual (see page 92). The manual will serve as a guide to operation of radio-tv station news departments. It contains a chapter on editorializing, including a list of examples of station editorial procedures. The editorializing problem was complicated by a May 28 FCC letter calling on broadcasters to use reasonable fairness in presenting "the other side" of controversies [AT DEADLINE, June 2].

Besides the top-interest tv allocation situation, the directors will hear technical reports on the status of remote control and automatic operation of stations. Another technical topic is the request of Television Allocations Study Organization (TASO) for additional funds. TASO needs funds for studies of circular polarization and directional antennas. A report will be given on the revised NAB Engineering Handbook, scheduled for release late this year. Copy for the first section has been sent to the printer. The handbook is a standard reference work for broadcast engineers.

The Radio Board will hear a report on progress of the All-Industry Music Licensing Committee project. Steps to negotiate new ASCAP contracts to replace the present contracts, which expire Dec. 31, 1958, will be reviewed. The all-industry project was set in motion May 1 at the NAB Los Angeles convention. A similar negotiation formula was used last year in negotiating new ASCAP television contracts.

A review of National Radio Month, first month-long promotion, will be given. Results of the May campaign indicate the new month-long formula was highly successful. Plans for radio participation in the annual NAB Fall Conferences will be outlined.

Fm can be expected to draw more Radio Board attention in line with the medium's evidence of growth and the increased public interest in stereo and hi-fi. Monthly factory figures showing production of receivers with fm tuning facilities will be published by Electronic Industries Assn., starting with July output, at the request of NAB. The fm multiplexing situation will be reviewed.

The Standards of Good Practice for radio broadcasters, now being promoted by visual and audio devices, will be on the board's agenda. Several hundred stations have pledged adherence to the standards and have ordered the association's promotion kit.

NAB Manual Issued On Coverage Conduct

A news manual for radio and tv stations, including codes of conduct covering public proceedings and court trials, was completed last week by the NAB Freedom of Information Committee, which met Wednesday in New York.

John S. Hayes, WTOP-AM-TV Washington, chairman of a subcommittee that developed the manual, submitted the document to the full committee which approved the provisions. Robert D. Swezey, WDSU-AM-TV New Orleans, committee chairman, said the manual will be submitted to the NAB Combined Boards June 20.

The manual states the high ideals of broadcast news presentation and describes in detail the operation of a news department. A preface describes the responsibility of informing the public as "the highest duty of broadcasters." Chapters cover the history of broadcast news, organization of a news department, editorializing and the right to cover public proceedings. An appendix includes news provisions of the NAB Tv Code and Standards of Good Practice for Radio Broadcasters.

Chairman Swezey reviewed NAB's fight to obtain access to court trials. American Bar Assn. will review the subject at its Aug. 25-29 meeting to be held in Los Angeles.

In addition to Messrs. Swezey and Hayes, committee members attending the session were Edward F. Baughn, WPAG Ann Arbor, Mich.; Joseph L. Brechner, WLOF Orlando, Fla.; Carl J. Burkland, WAVY-TV Norfolk, Va.; Richard O. Dunning, KHQ Spokane, Wash.; Harold Essex, WSJS-TV Winston-Salem, N. C.; Henry H. Fletcher, KSEI Pocatello, Idaho; Frank P. Fogarty, WOW Omaha, Neb.; Joseph Herold, KBTU (TV) Denver; Daniel W. Kops, WAVZ New Haven, Conn.; H. William Koster, WEAN Providence, R. I.; Robert T. Mason, WMRN Marion, Ohio; Robert L. Pratt, KGGF Coffeyville, Kan.; Lawrence H. Rogers II, WSAZ-AM-TV Huntington, W. Va.; John Daly, ABC, Sig Mickelson, CBS; William R. McAndrew, NBC; and Theodore F. Koop, CBS, representing the Radio-Television News Directors Assn.

Attending from the NAB staff were Harold E. Fellows, president; John F. Meagher, radio vice president; Thad H. Brown Jr., tv vice president for television; Howard H. Bell, assistant to the president for joint affairs; Vincent T. Wasilewski, manager of government relations; Douglas A. Anello, chief attorney, and Donald N. Martin, assistant to the president for public relations.

BPA Adds 16 Members to Group Following May Membership Drive

Broadcasters' Promotion Assn. added 16 members during May, raising its list of station and affiliated organization subscribers to 28 during the current year, it was announced last week.

BPA reported these new members: Morris Wattenberg, WABC-AM-TV New York; John G. Chapman, KTRK-TV Houston, Texas; Hughes Drum, WWL-TV New Orleans, La.; Robert Edell, WJBK-TV Detroit; Louis O. Hertz, WAGA-TV Atlanta, Ga.; Edward J. Hirschberg, WEDO McKeesport, Pa.; Clarence S. Mugge, WMBD-AM-TV Peoria, Ill.; Arthur R. Garland, WGY Schenectady, N. Y.; James G. Hanlon, WGN Chicago; David W. Colvin, Television Bureau of Advertising, New York, and WSRU Cleveland, Ohio (person not identified).

Elliott W. Henry of ABC Chicago, and BPA president, attributed recent memberships to the organization's May drive. The campaign will be reviewed at the BPA board meeting at the Chase Hotel in St. Louis June 14, along with plans for its third annual seminar there Nov. 16-19.

SCBA PANEL ROASTS MISUSE OF RATINGS

- Over 100 crowd Radio Clinic
- On agenda: sales, promotion

Ratings, always a hot topic when broadcasters get together, more than lived up to their controversial reputation Thursday at the second annual sales clinic of Southern California Broadcasters Assn. Rating users were more blamed than the rating makers for the sorry state into which audience research has fallen.

"There are only five really qualified time-buyers in Los Angeles," Richard Hasbrook, manager of the Los Angeles office of The Katz Agency, told the more than 100 broadcasters and guests at the clinic. The rest of the city's timebuyers, he asserted, are caught in "the numbers racket." They consider ratings to be absolute figures rather than indicators, he said, and will buy a rating of 5.0 because it's better than a 4.9, regardless of any other considerations. Representatives, accused of not selling creatively, can't do so because "we're stymied at the agency level," he stated.

Charles Helfrich, media director of Donahue & Coe, Los Angeles, agreed with this condemnation and blamed it on the fact that media buying is considered clerical work in Los Angeles. Jess M. Johns, partner in Eisaman-Johns Adv., Los Angeles, said that broadcasters had set their own rating trap by selling too exclusively on ratings and overlooking other approaches. Robert Anderson, head of his own agency, called for a "cash register rating service" for local accounts. "That's the way a local agency is rated by its clients," he said. "Our ads either produce sales or we're through."

Broadcasters whose sole research thinking is of audience research are out of date, Kenneth Harwood, chairman of U. of Southern California's telecommunications department, said. Many types of research developed in the past decade might prove more relevant to station problems, he noted. Ratings began as a confidential service for program directors, he recalled, adding that perhaps they should have stayed that way.

Radio selling methods could stand a lot of improvement, broadcasters were told by a trio of agency executives comprising a panel on "The Agency Looks at Radio." Wally Seidler, radio-tv director of Edward S. Kellogg Co., noted that the usual call from a station salesman begins with, "How about lunch?" "Take away their Diners Club cards and they'd lose their greatest sales tool," he declared.

Jon Ross, partner in Ross-Reisman Co., said that every radio time salesman he sees has the same plea, "Give us a chance and we'll do a job for you" but in too many cases the job seems to begin and end with selling him a schedule and no consideration whether it meets the need of the advertiser. "Sell creatively," he urged. "I want to buy because I can't make any money by not buying. When I don't buy it's because I'm not convinced that what is offered will work for my client."

Mr. Anderson urged stations to cut down on direct mail and to increase their trade paper advertising. Too much of their mail promotion has "too many smiling faces, too many graphs but very little to say and results in too much wasted time for agencies," he said. In contrast, he said, the better business papers get agency attention because they contain the kind of information the agencies want and need.

Trade paper promotion for stations was also strongly advocated by Daren McGavren, of McGavren-Quinn Co., station representative firm. Stations that consistently use this type of promotion are thought of as "eager, ambitious stations," he said. Citing WITH Baltimore, he said that because of its heavy use of trade paper advertising (between $50,000 and $75,000 a year) this 250 w station is generally thought of as a 50 kw operation and its annual billings are more than $1 million.

Another critic of radio sales techniques was the luncheon speaker, George Irwin, vice president of Heintz & Co., Los Angeles. Mr. Irwin cited his agency's successful use of radio and tv to sell tickets to Ice Capades [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, June 2] and urged broadcasters to widen their perspective and look for other new sources of advertising revenue for radio. He mentioned community centers and the distributing business (western distribution of products manufactured in the East) as good prospects largely ignored by radio. "Radio is way behind in getting in on institutional advertising," he added.

Los Angeles and Chicago metropolitan areas are comparable in population and in number of radio stations but not in station rates, Bruce Robertson, West Coast editor of BROADCASTING, told the clinic. Los Angeles broadcasters have not kept their rates in line with the area's increase in population, he noted, citing this as a major cause for Los Angeles to lag behind Chicago in spot revenue, although well ahead of the mid-western metropolitan area in local time sales.

Semantics might explain some of the difference, he said, and Los Angeles broadcasters report as local business but some accounted like breweries, which are regarded as spot advertising in the East. A third reason for Los Angeles not to get its fair share of spot advertising is the failure of its broadcasters to adequately promote to eastern buyers. Southern California's outdoor life and the universal use of autos for commuting and shopping which result in more time spent with radio than in other parts of the country.

More detailed Southern California listening statistics were given during the concluding panel session of the all-day clinic. Terry Mann, KHJ Los Angeles, presented the SCBA analysis of the radio audience. Felix Adams, KLAC Los Angeles, pointed out that staggered factory hours produce large audiences for radio at any hour of the day and night. Between midnight and 3 a.m. Los Angeles County has 150,000 out-of-home listeners, he reported, and the figure is 190,000 for 3-6 a.m. Vertical saturation campaigns, with spots distributed over the whole 24 hours, are good buys for advertisers in Southern California, he declared, as well as good sales for stations.

Morrie Webster, commercial manager of KNX Los Angeles and CRPN, said that too few buyers appreciate how good nighttime radio is although 46% of the audience of Los Angeles stations is at night. More homes have their radios on in any quarter-hour at night than the metropolitan circulation of any Los Angeles newspaper, he reported.

Radio is the best way to reach Southern California's Spanish-American residents who have average family incomes of $5,000 a year, George Allison, media director of Young & Rubicam, Los Angeles, reported. Many of the 500,000-600,000 Spanish-speaking residents of the Los Angeles area are unable to read either Spanish or English and more than 95% of them depend on radio for their news and entertainment, he reported.

Two Speakers See Future Threat Of Florida Advertising Tax

Florida may be faced with an advertising tax next year unless state legislators are convinced that it is undesirable, Henry Quednau, chairman of the board and president of Henry Quednau Inc., Tampa, told members of the Florida Newspaper Adv. Executives Assn. at their spring meeting at Winter Park.

"We must return to our home towns and start laying the groundwork now to oppose such legislation [in 1959]," he stated. Mr. Quednau did not say who the sponsor of the ad tax would be, but he added, "I don't think that the members of legislature would be in favor of such a tax if they were given the whole picture."

In addition to Mr. Quednau's stand against the tax, Charles Rovetta, dean of Florida State U.'s School of Business, last week told a group of motel operators meeting in Tallahassee that "such a levy would be detrimental to the basic interests of Florida." He added that advertising is a strong stimulant upon which the state is depending "to accelerate the economy and an ad tax would slow the rate of recovery in basic areas."

Film Group to Open Tv Showcase

The Film Producers Assn. of New York will hold its second "Television Commercial Showcase," a presentation of outstanding tv film commercials produced during the past year, on Thursday at the Avon Preview Theatre in New York. Approximately 500 advertising executives have been invited to attend. A special feature will be a panel discussion on "The Practical Application of Videotape to Tv Commercials." Speakers will include a tv film commercial producer, FPA's labor relations committee head, two network representatives, an agency production executive and an FPA affiliate member, representing the laboratory, recording and processing industries.

EIA Reinstates Fm In Production Report

Monthly figures showing factory production of broadcast receivers with tuners for the fm band will be collected by Electronic Industries Assn., James D. Secrest, executive vice president, announced Tuesday. First figures, scheduled to appear in August, will show factory fm output in July.

Mr. Secrest said best industry estimates indicate 11.8 million fm receivers are in the hands of American consumers. The EIA data, he said, "will help to keep this figure up-to-date by providing the yardstick upon which the growth and prosperity of this industry can be measured."

EIA had collected and published monthly fm figures for many years but discontinued the service several years ago on the ground interest in fm didn't warrant the expense.

NAB has been seeking a revival of the information on fm sets for some time. Recently Vice President John F. Meagher met with EIA officials to discuss the problem.

In announcing EIA's action, Mr. Secrest said manufacturers realize there are 72 fm construction permits outstanding compared to 23 station projects a year ago, with 540 commercial and 145 non-commercial fm stations now on the air.

"These stations are being built because it is felt the public wants the service fm broadcasting can provide," Mr. Secrest said. "Fm receiver manufacturers and EIA know that accurate statistics on production of this segment of the consumer products industry are important to its continued growth."

The collection of monthly fm set data will be conducted by William F. E. Long, manager of EIA's marketing data department.

Alexander Re-Elected RTRA Head; Gobel Cited for Fund Drive

Actor Ben Alexander was re-elected president of Hollywood's Radio-Television Recording-Advertising Charities for the year May 1958-May 1959 at the group's annual meeting last month. Other officers for the coming year include John K. West, vice president in charge of NBC's Pacific Div., executive vice president; Emmett C. McLaughy, executive vice president, Erwin Wasey, Ruthrauff & Ryan, vice president; Dan Bonbright, vice president, Capitol Records, secretary, and Cy Pearson, vice president, California Bank, and Hollywood manager, treasurer.

Directors of RTRA, in addition to the officers, are H. Bruce Baumeister, counsel for KTTV (TV) Los Angeles; Sanford Cummings, manager, ABC-TV Program Dept., Hollywood; Guy della Cioppa, vice president and program director, CBS-TV, Hollywood; Lou Edelman, executive producer, Martero Productions; Frank Nelson, AFTRA board member, and Loyd Sigmon, vice president, KMPC Los Angeles.

George Gobel, chairman of the 1957-58

fund raising drive, was cited for a most successful campaign, which raised $255,000 compared to $243,000 for the previous year. RTRA certificates of appreciation were given to others, who helped the organization raise funds for distribution to eight charities from members of the broadcasting, advertising and recording industries. RTRA's one drive a year relieves its members from continuing demands for contributions from individual charities.

Florida Station Men to Discuss Network Hurricane Service Plan

A Florida hurricane warning service connecting every radio and tv station in the state is projected by Florida Assn. of Broadcasters. Details will be developed at the FAB's spring meeting, to be held June 20 at St. Petersburg, according to James L. Howe, WIRA Fort Pierce, association president.

Under the plan, network lines would be taken over throughout the state by the Miami Weather Bureau—12 hours before until 12 hours after a hurricane. The forecast would go on the air regularly with storm warnings. Gordon Dunn, chief forecaster at Miami, called the project "the most progressive step yet taken to alert people in case of hurricane."

Media Play $10 Million Part In Council 'Confidence' Drive

The nation's media contributed more than $10 million worth of time and space to the Advertising Council's anti-recession campaign up to June 1 and the total is expected to reach $40 million by mid-August when the project ends, Robert M. Gray, Esso executive and volunteer coordinator on the drive, has announced.

Mr. Gray termed the campaign "one of the largest public service efforts ever undertaken by the council." The project, formally called "Confidence in a Growing America" began in mid-April [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, April 14].

Forty national advertisers, according to Mr. Gray, have offered network tv time on their shows to reach an estimated 878 million viewers during coming weeks. During the first two weeks of May, he added, more than 150 independent radio stations pledged "wholehearted" support for the drive.

Virginia Assn. to Meet June 18

Virginia Assn. of Broadcasters will meet June 18-20 at The Tides Inn, Irvington. The VAB board meets on the opening day, with social events also on the schedule. A business session the morning of June 20 will wind up the meeting. Speakers to be heard June 19 include Charles H. Tower, NAB employer-employee relations manager; C. Wallace Martin, WMSC Columbia, S. C., discussing sales; Robert A. Wilson, of Cargill & Wilson Adv. Agency, Richmond, speaking on programming, and Lt. Gov. A. E. S. Stephens, of Virginia. Carl L. Lindberg, WPK Alexandria, is president.

CATV NOT ABOVE LAW, COLORADANS ADVISED

- McKenna cites present law
- Walker states NAB's stand

The FCC can regulate community antenna television systems (CATV) under existing authority and the Constitution itself, James A. McKenna, Washington communications attorney, suggested in a panel talk scheduled Friday at the weekend meeting of Colorado Broadcasters & Telecasters Assn.

Mr. McKenna told the association at its Colorado Springs session that if the FCC has any doubt about its powers to regulate CATV, it should ask Congress to provide the necessary authority.

A. Prose Walker, NAB engineering manager, agreed with Mr. McKenna that uncontrolled development of CATV can offer a threat to the FCC's tv allocations plan. He described CATV as a hazard to survival of small-market tv broadcasting. NAB has taken the position that FCC should assert jurisdiction over applications for common-carrier microwave facilities bringing big-city tv signals to small-town CATV systems, Mr. Walker said, basing this on the effect on the allocations systems and the public interest.

Mr. Walker reviewed broadcast technical developments, including the proposal of Comr. T. A. M. Craven that the vhf-uhf bands be consolidated into a single band of 25 channels between 174 and 324 mc [LEAD STORY, June 2]. He said such an allocation would simplify tv receiver problems. On the international front he discussed the NARBA and U. S.-Mexico agreements and allocations problems to be reviewed in the summer of 1959 at the international telecommunications conference to be held at Geneva, Switzerland.

Mr. McKenna said the question of FCC jurisdiction over community antenna systems hasn't been fully explored. He contended the "supremacy clause" of the Constitution (Article VI) raises the contention that Congress "has occupied the field, leaving no room for parallel state or conflicting state legislation." He cited also the argument that Congress pre-empted the broadcasting field by enacting the communications laws of 1927 and 1934.

"The impact of CATV operations on our television broadcasting is so immediate and direct that in my opinion they should be subject to regulation," Mr. McKenna said, adding this regulation should be federal rather than state.

FCC can regulate CATV through its authority over the tv stations whose signals are carried on CATV, he suggested, contending "the Commission is not required to accept the theory that a broadcaster can be a party to frustrating and perhaps even nullifying the normal expansion of television in other areas by permitting his signal to be used by community antenna systems in areas where local television might otherwise develop and prosper."

Mr. McKenna said FCC can in all probability attach conditions to tv licenses recognizing the property right in the use of their signals and program material, thus requiring licensees to use these rights in a manner that would avoid "frustrating the Commission's over-all objectives." He said the Supreme Court has stated that Congress conferred regulatory powers on the FCC "in a broad and not a niggardly fashion."

Contending the FCC has broad powers to regulate "to a substantial degree many phases of CATV operations," Mr. McKenna added, "If experience shows that those powers are inadequate to insure local live free television stations in small communities, the Commission should at that point seek additional legislation from Congress."

W. D. Rogers Jr., KDUB-AM-TV Lubbock, Texas, told CBTA delegates there is a tendency to over-emphasize the growth of facilities and to under-emphasize "the contribution made by the people."

He justified the position this way, "If a tube is worth $5,000 and it wears out after a given number of hours of service, what is a person worth? What are you worth, as a manager, and can you be replaced? If you cannot be, and if you have not given serious thought to the identity (at least in a philosophical sense) of your replacement, then perhaps you are not fulfilling the most necessary function in television station management today."

Sen. Gordon Allott (R-Colo.), in an address scheduled Saturday, described broadcasters as "the most influential and most powerful set of lungs in Colorado. . . . News and special events comprise the greatest measure of public service for which radio and television receive their basic rights to operate in the first place. The good news editor and news analyst must have a broad background plus a keen knowledge of public affairs."

Television promises a means of upgrading our education system, according to Sen. Allott. Visualizing the tv school of tomorrow, he said televised lessons will originate from remote studios and be carried into classrooms all over the school or the entire city or the state. The top educators will be "everybody's teacher," he said, and help will be given in solving the teaching shortage. "It is no secret that the know-how for research and development will come from commercial television," he said.

McLendon Backs Editorializing; Three Win Ky. News Awards

Competent news coverage brings prestige and believability, with listeners feeling more confidence in the radio station and its advertisers, Gordon McLendon, head of the McLendon station group, told Kentucky Broadcasters Assn. at Louisville May 30 [TRADE ASSNS., June 2]. He reminded that the news job must be done by trained personnel, not by disc jockeys.

Mr. McLendon said editorials are powerful weapons, with his stations taking a position "only when there is something to editorialize about" in contrast to newspapers' need to fill the same space every day. "Don't mince words," he advised, advocating one-minute editorials as a general rule.

First annual broadcast news awards of U. of Kentucky and Associated Press went to WHAS-AM-TV Louisville for "distinguished leadership in one of the most significant services of broadcasting, local news coverage and the comprehensive presentation of public issues"; to WVLC Lexington for overall news coverage, and to WSAC Radcliff for coverage of a single story. Presentations were made by Oliver Gramling, AP assistant general manager.

Canadian Survey Shows 3,074,000 Tv Homes

There are 3,074,000 television households in Canada out of a total 4,102,000 households, the Bureau of Broadcast Measurement, Toronto, estimates in its spring population and households study, released last month. The estimates, as of March 1958, show Canada with a population of 16,799,900, not including the population of the Yukon and Northwest Territories, where there are no tv stations or receivers. The survey shows that 75% of the households in Canada's 10 provinces have tv receivers.

By provinces the estimates show Ontario leading with 1,247,000 tv households representing 85% of all households in the province. Radio-Tv Revenue Up Overseas, New Figures From INS Show

The growth of both television and radio advertising in foreign countries is highlighted in a memorandum circulated by INS to its foreign representatives. (INS has merged with UP since the report.)

In Europe, total advertising in Britain in 1957 was placed at $1.04 billion, up 12.5% from 1956. Television advertising was estimated at $98 million, jumping by 133% over the 1956 volume. Total advertising in Italy in 1957 was fixed at $122.5 million, up 12.5% over 1956, with tv recording $5.3 million as against nothing in 1956, while radio edged up to $10.6 million from $9.3 million in 1956. A total of $714 million was reported for West Germany for all forms of advertising in 1957, with only $2.1 million allocated to tv, a reflection of official government restrictions on tv advertising.

Total advertising in Japan increased by 25% in 1957 to $261 million. Television's share tripled to $16.6 million, although there are only five tv stations and about one million sets in operation. Radio advertising revenues increased 15% over those of 1956. In Australia, tv and radio figures are combined, accounting for 20% of an estimated total of $110 million in 1957.

Venezuela Tries Teaching by Tv

Programs feature well-known Venezuelan teachers on biology, chemistry, physics, mathematics and teacher training from 11:15 a.m.-12:15 p.m. every day during the demonstration period. The experimental series is part of a study of the possible use of radio-tv for education in Venezuela. It was initiated by $30,000 grant from the Creole Foundation (Creole Petroleum Corp.) to the Broadcasting Foundation of America, an organization set up to facilitate international program exchange.

Canadian Tv May Debut on ABC

Canadian television dramas may debut on the American Broadcasting Co. tv network next fall, according to H. G. Walker, Canadian Broadcasting Corp. assistant director of Ontario and English networks. An agreement has been reached by CBC and ABC to use CBC one-hour live dramas on the ABC network, providing a reasonable amount of sponsorship can be found for the series in the United States. Both ABC and Showcase Productions are interested in the series, Mr. Walker stated. If plans materialize, it would be the first time that a live Canadian tv series appeared regularly on a U. S. network.

Radio and television are "duty bound" to promote peace among the nations of the world, according to an announcement from the 16th session of the General Assembly of the International Broadcasting Organization (OIR), held in Moscow May 12-22. Ralph Steetle, executive director of the Joint Council on Educational Television, attended the Communist bloc meeting as an American observer. Films were shown during the session by JCET.

OIR decided at its meeting to hold an international competition next year for the best musical broadcast entitled "Peace and Friendship." A future contest for the best television film also was mentioned. An appeal to UNESCO to promote a conference of representatives of the existing associations and unions of broadcasting was adopted.

Vasily Ivanov of Bulgarian broadcasting was elected chairman of the administrative council for the current year. The Egyptian radio arm of the United Arab Republic was accepted unanimously as a member of the organization.

WKRC-TV Puts 20 on Star Train

WKRC-TV Cincinnati ran a "CBS Star Train" to carry 200 viewers from its home area to New York a fortnight ago for three days of tv sight-seeing to promote CBS-TV and WKRC-TV's local programs. For a month preceding the trip the station conducted contests in connection with five programs, each show offering a free trip as first prize each week. In addition, some 180 other viewers paid $87.50 for the round-trip junket, which included a reception at which the Cincinnati tv fans met CBS-TV personalities. En route home the "Star Train" stopped in Washington for five-hour sight-seeing tour of the capital.

WMGM New York today (Monday) began programming a series of short religious messages by clergymen representing all religious faiths during the course of regular daily programming, as a public service. The feature, called "Take A Break" will be integrated a number of times throughout the day and night and will consist of one minute messages of inspirational content by clergymen from the five boroughs—Westchester, Long Island, upstate New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. The songs of Gene Austin, the Dorsey brothers, Paul Whiteman, Bix Beiderbecke, John McCormack, the Casa Loma orchestra, Hal Kemp and the voices of Woodrow Wilson, Babe Ruth, Charles Lindbergh, Amos 'n' Andy, Rudy Vallee and Will Rogers entertained listeners of WJOT Lake City, S. The station announced that programming was exactly as it was in the 20s and 30s and that an old type car was used as a mobile unit to go after events surrounding the return to the past.

J., is offering to New Jersey stations a five-minute weekly news program featuring "straight" news stories of activities in the various colleges and branches of Rutgers. Rutgers Dateline is designed especially for stations using the "music and news" format to meet the demand of broadcasters for "short items" which can be easily tailored to that programming style.

WCCO Selects Centennial Baby

WCCO Minneapolis honored Minnesota Statehood Day May 11 by giving the title of "WCCO Centennial Baby" to the son of a Bloomington, Minn., couple, born at 3:17 p.m. that day.

The station's desire to name the baby born nearest to the time of day that President Buchanan signed the act officially making Minnesota a state was complicated by the discovery that the exact time was never recorded. Accordingly, the judges put 121 capsules containing the minutes between 2 and 4 p.m. (the hours when President Buchanan usually signed bills) in a baby bottle. The first capsule to be poured out set 3:17 as the lucky minute. The station awarded the baby with a $100 savings bond, a 100-piece layette and 100-day supply of baby foods. The following week the family was escorted to the capitol where Governor Freeman designated the Centennial Baby as the first citizen of the second century of the state.

WCKT-TV Flies Script To Hotel

WCKT-TV Miami used a helicopter to rise above the traffic problem in originating newscasts from the 50th Annual National Governors' Conference at the Americana Hotel, May 19-20.

Use of the "chopper" permitted the news staff to prepare a complete late-edition and locally-angled program.

Numerals, not necessarily in proper sequence, were broadcast several times each morning on WRCA's Pulse program (Mon.-Fri. 6-10 a.m.).

CARD SELL

Facts and figures can look attractive. Radio Advertising Bureau shows how in its latest series of "16 Reasons for Using Radio," now in distribution to its member stations.

Colorful design and personalized copy are combined on a series of jumbo size cards (11 x 8½ in.) to stimulate sales through direct mail campaigns this summer. For a more local touch stations apply their own messages on the back side of the cards.

Each "Cue" card tips off potential advertisers and agencies of the power of radio to find the audiences they wish to reach. The reasons are backed up with recognized source findings.

Expecting increased sales via the bright post card route, stations oversubscribed the initial press-run of 5,000 sets. RAB doubled the order, but by last week was down to the last 2,000.

Planning a Radio Station?

Plan "A" incorporates many programming features and permits operation with a minimum of personnel. While ideal for most small stations, it is just one of three basic floor plans that can be modified to suit your needs.

Routine Roundup

Commission amended its am broadcast rules, effective July 7, to permit, under specified conditions, use of daytime power of 500 w or 1 kw by Class IV (local) stations.

North American Regional Broadcasting Agreement, to which United States is signatory, places 250 w ceiling on power of Class IV stations. Recently signed agreement between United States and Mexico concerning am broadcasting permits use of daytime power up to 1 kw in all areas of United States more than 62 miles from Mexican border. Neither of these agreements has formally entered into effect but, in accordance with note appended to Sec. 3.28 (b) of Commission's rules; no assignments will be made which would be inconsistent with these agreements.

Accordingly, although applications contemplating use of 500 w or 1 kw power for daytime operation of Class IV stations will be accepted, they will be held without action until appropriate coordination of rule change can be effected with other North American countries. When this is accomplished, Commission will consider amending rules note with respect to understanding reached. Announced May 29.

By order, Commission postponed for another year—to June 1, 1959—effective date of rules requiring tv stations to have type-approved frequency and modulation monitors at station whenever trans. is in operation. Accordingly, Secs. 3.680 (a) and 3.691 (a) of rules were amended to reflect new date. In view of continued development of more stable frequency control circuits in am, fm and tv trans., Commission is considering review of its requirements regarding continuously operating frequency monitors to ascertain whether such apparatus is still needed or is adequate to ensure that operating frequencies of broadcast stations are maintained within prescribed frequency tolerances. If it appears that rules relating to such monitors should be amended, rule-making proceeding will be initiated. Announced May 29.

A SERVICE OF THE BUFFALO EVENING NEWS

from COLIN CAMPBELL, executive vice president, Campbell-Ewald, Detroit

Should the star give the commercial?

These days of super stars, spectacular shows and stupendous costs have brought a new concern to agencies, networks and clients. Can the star of a program be used profitably, and fittingly, to deliver the sponsor's selling message? Can he do commercials without losing the luster that sets him apart, and still be effective in terms of moving those goods or services that make the whole thing possible anyway?

"Yes he can," answers one school of thought, and points with pride to super-salesmen entertainers. Hardly a network day goes by that one of these personalities doesn't speak up for any one of a dozen different products, and does it with dignity and that additional effectiveness generated by his own prestige as a star.

"It doesn't usually work that well," retorts an equally influential body of counter opinion. The more the average star becomes a salesman, the more he loses as an entertainer. The larger investment in the star himself is jeopardized by short term, and rather indefinite, commercial gain.

Well, just what is the answer?

Over the years our client, Chevrolet, has pioneered in the broadcast media. The company has been a consistently large and important user of air time. It was the first automotive sponsor of a commercial program on tv in 1946. It is natural that we have developed a philosophy to handle the problem, a philosophy tested in operation with some of the top talent in the country. The philosophy is simply that each case is different, because each depends on the answer to these three points:

1. Who is the star?
2. What type of program is the vehicle?
3. What is the product?

Perhaps the last question is of greatest importance for in a sense it determines the type of show and the personality—and, of course, you can't sell cars the same way you sell toothpaste.

Chevrolet sells cars, so naturally we have done a lot of searching for the reasons why people buy cars. We find that in America today the automobile has a sociological meaning far beyond its actual ability to perform on the road. A man's car not only represents his second largest lifetime purchase (his house is first), it also expresses his stature in the community and reflects his personality. Naturally, since the buyer knows all this, his car must, as far as it is able, project those images which he wants associated with him. These desired images naturally vary with individuals. Some wish to assume prestige and position. Others to project a picture of the buyer as an astute shopper who succeeds in getting more performance and more styling at a price that is less than his neighbor paid.

Knowing this about its product and its sales situation, Chevrolet is ready to choose talent for television and radio, and to decide whether they should even be asked to deliver commercial messages.

THE SHORE, BOONE CASES

Let's consider Miss Dinah Shore, perhaps Chevrolet's single most valuable television and radio force over the years. Dinah is warm, friendly, intelligent and sincere. She is perfect to represent Chevrolet to the listening and viewing public. We were delighted with her long before ratings put her Chevy Show in the top classification. Probably more than any other entertainer, Dinah Shore is identified with her sponsor's product. Her singing of "See the USA in Your Chevrolet" is more familiar to millions than many a pop tune. Yet we're still to get our first complaint that Dinah lowers herself by pitching our product.

The reason is simple. We said that Dinah represents Chevrolet. She does just that. She often states her enthusiasm for Chevrolet both on and off the air. She frequently does musical leads into the actual commercials. On occasion she will perform special singing commercial material (her "Fugue for Tin Horns" musical talk about Chevy was repeated by viewer demand). But never is Dinah asked to deliver the kind of "nuts and bolts" sell, the kind of hard factual talk about performance that forms the real core of today's commercial automobile selling. Were she to do so we are convinced Dinah would rapidly lose effectiveness both as a woman and an entertainer, and something very valuable to Chevrolet would be destroyed.

Now let's consider Pat Boone, a brand new and increasingly valuable Chevrolet star. Pat almost extraordinarily typifies the young American male. He has loved automobiles since boyhood. He talks confidently and knowledgeably about them, their features, their performance, their "nuts and bolts." It is natural to Pat Boone's personality that he talk easily and well about the Chevrolet automobile. His youth and enthusiasm reflect the excitement and vitality of the car he is selling.

So we have the same product, sold on two similar-type programs, by two different stars. Both contribute importantly to the selling of the product, each in the manner best suited to preserving the star personality and still providing maximum advertising effect.

But Chevrolet uses other types of broadcast personalities. Currently and since July 1954 we have sponsored some of the top names in news broadcasting. The news programs of Robert Trout and Allan Jackson are now doing an excellent selling job for Chevrolet, yet we have never asked one of these men to deliver a commercial. We recognize that this would be a breach of good taste. It would reflect on the impartiality of their newscasts, which is precisely the property Chevrolet buys.

So, in brief, this is how we handle the problem of star versus sell. Together with our clients, we believe that careful study of the personalities of both star and product can develop satisfactory individual solutions.

Colin Campbell, b. July 24, 1908, Walkerville, Ont. Michigan U. graduate. Joined Campbell-Ewald in 1926. Assigned to Chevrolet account in 1933, made account executive in 1945. At present is executive vice president, member of executive committee and review board and member of board of directors in addition to being supervisor on Chevrolet. Serves as chairman of Michigan Council of American Assn. of Advertising Agencies and member of its board of governors. Also vice chairman and on board of governors of Direct Mail Advertising Assn. Mr. Campbell lives in Detroit suburbs with his wife Rosemary, daughters Cynthia and Heather and son Colin.

Meaning of 'Modern'

SOME of our readers have misinterpreted our motives in presenting stories quoting critics of rock and roll music.

These readers assume that we ourselves are doing the criticizing and that the object of the criticism is independent radio, or "modern radio" as some of them now call it.

It is wrong, we think, to connect rock and roll (or criticism of it) with all of modern radio (or criticism of it). The problem resides in the definition of the term, "modern radio," itself.

Used as some use it, to describe specific stations which have broken from established programming forms, "modern radio" is an unfortunate term. It connotes the presence also of "old-fashioned radio."

In America "old-fashioned" has an unattractive meaning. It suggests something which is obsolete. Not all the established programming forms of radio are obsolete by any means. Do the advocates of "modern radio" suggest there is no longer any place for the radio news broadcast with live pickups around the world?

To us modern radio means 3,247 am and 542 fm stations, the total on the air. Among this number there are many variations of character and equally numerous variations in audience appeal.

If modern radio is to flourish, it cannot become a regimented mass of stations all having the same sound. It must consist, as it does, of thousands of individual stations with individual characters. It must serve many different kinds of audiences. And the station serving one kind of audience well is performing as significant a service as its neighbor which serves another kind.

If rock and roll is enjoyed by a certain kind of audience, the station aiming at that audience has the absolute right to program rock and roll, just as another station aiming at a different audience may choose to program other kinds of music. The only obligation which both stations have in common is that of programming in good taste and keeping their audiences informed as well as entertained.

Sense in the Census

THE Census Bureau's restoration of the radio question in the 1960 decennial census provided a dramatic conclusion to National Radio Month. Thanks to Chairman Holland (D-Fla.), of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee, and to NAB's diligence, a serious media oversight has been averted. Accurate comparisons of both radio and tv saturation with 1950 census figures are now assured.

Unfortunately the bureau has decided it cannot enumerate radio or tv homes to show am-fm and vhf-uhf breakdowns, ascribing this ruling to the cost of collecting such data and the difficulty of obtaining accurate information from respondents when the census enumerator calls. Similarly the bureau will not collect information on portables or phonographs.

Director Robert W. Burgess, of the Census Bureau, heeded the argument of broadcasters and Sen. Holland that radio set data from the 1950 census is obsolete and that the medium's importance in the nation's communications requires a periodical tabulation of radio saturation. Both Director Burgess and Sen. Holland were influenced by the demonstration of interest as shown by letters and telegrams from the public, civic groups, the business world and broadcasters themselves.

The bureau has wisely decided to add a new and important element to the broadcasting portion of the 1960 census—multiple radio and tv homes. In the past the information has been confined to a mere listing of radio-tv and non-radio-tv homes. By the simple technique of putting this phrase in the census question—"0, 1, 2, or more sets"—the bureau will provide the entire advertising world with important marketing information.

While this realistic approach to the needs of commerce is helpful, there still remains the expressed need of census information showing the number of battery portables, auto sets, fm receiving facilities, uhf-vhf tuners and color tv receivers. The Census Bureau shudders at the thought of making enumerators search out all this information, citing the cost of collecting data, the training problem and the living-room complications at interview time.

However, the bureau would do well to heed the official request of FCC Comr. Robert E. Lee, defense commissioner, for a census report that will show where people can be reached when the power is off during emergencies. This need can be supplied by a count of battery portables and auto receivers. Then, too, there is a need for official circulation data covering the fast-growing fm medium, now entering the stereo stage. Those who believe fm, portables, uhf-vhf and color receivers should be tabulated should let their legislators know why the figures are important.

Where Justice Is Due

IT WAS officially confirmed last week that the Justice Dept. has told the FCC that network option time violates the antitrust laws.

FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer testified before the Senate Commerce Committee that the Justice Dept. opinion was conveyed by Asst. Atty. Gen. Victor Hansen in a meeting with the FCC April 24. Mr. Hansen was quoted as saying that Justice would defer action, however, until the FCC completes its network study.

Now that the news is official (it was reported in this magazine's CLOSED CIRCUIT, May 12), it is appropriate to comment on the strange way that the Justice Dept. is trying to use the FCC as a substitute for the federal courts.

The inference to be drawn from Mr. Hansen's visit with the FCC is that Justice hopes the FCC will revise its own rules to wash out option time and thus relieve Justice of the job of testing its opinion.

If the FCC followed that procedure, it would be making life easier for the Justice Dept., but justice—in the broader sense—would be dealt a hard blow.

There is no shadier area of the law than the antitrust area. It is seldom simple to decide whether a practice is or is not an antitrust violation.

The option time practice is no exception. Attorneys of equal competence have vigorously testified on both sides. Indeed the findings of the FCC's own Network Study Group and the testimony of expert witnesses have been in basic disagreement on the legality of option time.

Can it be assumed that the FCC is more capable than a federal court to make a wise decision in so subtle a problem of law?

For more than a year and a half, the Justice Dept. has been muttering about allegedly illegal network practices. It started in September 1956 when Mr. Hansen told the House Antitrust Subcommittee the networks were under investigation. At intervals since then Justice Dept. officials have let it be known that they felt option time and other practices were probable violations of the antitrust laws.

If the Justice Dept. really believes that networks are acting illegally, it is time for Justice to quit making the charge and start trying to prove it.

And the place to prove—or disprove—a delicate charge of that kind is in formal proceedings before the courts.

If Justice does not wish to test its case in the appropriate location, it should have the grace to get off the networks' necks.
