Sometimes when we feel the need for a little self-glorification, we run a slogan with our station call-letters. It reads: The Travel-Adventure station.

Seems there are a lot of people, perhaps a couple of million in Southern California, who get a vicarious kick out of seeing far-off places; and the farther the better.

Well, to accommodate this mass hunger for travel, several months ago we cleared a full-hour's strip between 7 and 8 each weekday night, and filled it with no less than 10 different T. & A. programs.

We won't claim every show's a blockbuster, but most are downright fascinating to a great many people, as a bucketful of ratings will verify.

The fellow who supplies us with some of the best of the series is Bill Burrud. Whether it's chasing witch-doctors down the Congo, or searching a fortune in Trinidad treasure, Bill's camera-laden cohorts have captured some pretty exciting, and beautiful, stuff. And Burrud, who in tenderer years was a movie moppet, handles his chores as host and narrator with personable charm.

Now watch out! Here's the pitch. As this is written, Burrud's Wanderlust, on Mondays, which has always been one of KCOP's outstanding programs, is momentarily available. It is uniquely entertaining; attracts a family audience; and delivers a goodly chunk of the Southern California market.

UP FOR GRABS? Will precedent be established by return of valuable VHF facility to FCC? That could happen in case of Ch. 12 WVUE-TV Wilmington-Philadelphia, if Storer Broadcasting Co. does not find acceptable purchaser at equitable price for this facility, which must be disposed of under multiple ownership rule by virtue of Storer's $4.5-plus acquisition of Ch. 6 WITI-TV Milwaukee [AT DEADLINE, Aug. 11].

Pending offers for WVUE-TV are being considered, and others are being sought, it's learned. Storer paid $5.6 million for TV property, plus highly profitable WIBG-AM-FM Philadelphia, which will not be sold. Unless Storer closes with qualified purchaser at worthwhile price, it would be prudent taxwise to turn in license to FCC, taking into account cash write-off of purchase price attributable to WVUE-TV plus accumulated losses, said to exceed $100,000 per month since acquisition in May, 1957.

MILWAUKEE RIDDLE Acquisition by Storer of Ch. 6 WITI-TV Milwaukee has aroused speculation on fate of CBS-owned Ch. 19 WXIX TV in Milwaukee. It's open secret that WXIX hasn't acquired status hoped for any more than Ch. 17 WBUF TV Buffalo did job for its NBC owner, with result that latter facility is being dropped in October in favor of Ch. 2 WGR TV regular affiliation. But CBS, according to highest authority, has no present intention of quitting uhf and, in fact, is now shifting WXIX TV from Ch. 19 to Ch. 18 in accordance with recent FCC authorization. Because of other Storer affiliations with CBS TV, speculation generally is on shift of WITI-TV to that network.

It was also learned authoritatively that at least four companies had varying options to purchase Ch. 6 facility in Milwaukee and, in turn, had consulted CBS-TV brass about affiliation, but was given negative answer. In bidding almost until end was Capital Cities Television Corp. (WTEN-TV Albany -Wenochley - Troy; WVTU Durham - Raleigh) headed by Frank M. Smith. Company terminated bidding at about $4 million, it's understood. Some two years ago, Meredith Publishing Co. reportedly had option to buy facility but dropped it because of no assurance of CBS affiliation.

IKE AND SPECTRUM Now that Potter Resolution to create five-man commission to undertake spectrum analysis is dead for this session, speculation centers around what steps, if any, may be taken during Congressional recess to cope with increasingly acute problem caused by demands of Government (military) for more spectrum space. One prediction is President Eisenhower will appoint his own study group which, of course, would not be binding on Congress, and therefore have no legislative force.

Irrespective of what President may do, its foregone conclusion that at next session Congress again will consider legislation for study, but in more relaxed manner and without pressure of eleventh hour amendments which spelled doom of Potter Resolution in House because it shifted focus of probe from military to radio and TV use and FCC management of allocations. Article is whether probe should be handled by special commission or by joint congressional study committee. (See editorial, page 110).

COMING ATTRACTION Surprise package of NAB Fall Conference series starting Sept. 18 will be specially produced film dramatizing TV code violations (including clevage). Fifteen-minute documentary is based on a clandestine romance in which denouement graphically demonstrates common program and commercial practices outlawed by code.

J. L. (Jack) Van Volkenburg, who resigned as president of CBS Television 20 months ago for family reasons, has moved from Englewood, Fla., to Los Angeles where he will become executive head of new enterprise only indirectly related to broadcast field. Announcement of project may be made this week. Since his resignation, he has continued as consultant with CBS.

ARBIRTON UNKINKED Arbitron, American Research Bureau's new "instant ratings" service whose New York start has been delayed since January by technical problems, reportedly has all kinks out and is set to go commercial literally any day now. In addition, ARB's seven-city Arbitron, compiling network ratings instantaneously and simultaneously from Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Cleveland, Baltimore and Washington, as well as New York, is expected to be operating commercially in very near future.

Published report about imminent sale of Sunpapers plus WMAR TV Baltimore, were branded as "without foundation" by A. S. Abell Co. spokesman. It isn't denied that offers have been received but it's pointed out that properties are doing well and that there's disposition on part of ownership to dispose of properties which have been in same hands for generations.

DETERGENT FEUD Here are ingredients of frantic and fascinating competitive battle in detergents field: Introduction by Procter & Gamble, Lever Bros. and Colgate-Palmolive of all-purpose liquid household detergents. To be introduced market-by-market: P & G's Mr. Clean, C-P's Genie and Lever's Handy Andy. Last-named product Friday (Aug. 15) named Kenyon & Eckhardt, New York, which will test in Chicago and Baltimore. Genie, via McCann-Erickson, at present is testing in radio TV in San Francisco market, while Mr. Clean, via Tatham-Laird, Chicago, is expected to move with broadcast media.

New moves by soap giants in all-purpose liquid detergents come as Lestoil (Adell Chemical Co., Holyoke, Mass.), $9 million per year spent on advertising, continues to open up new markets reaching southward from its original northeast U.S. area (now in Georgia, slated to open Miami next) and westward (now in Detroit and newly in Evansville, Ind.) and expected to enter St. Louis.

Lestoil is Adell's only mass sold product; company forces distribution in given market via spot TV campaign on all stations and with this pattern has become TV's spectacular multi-million-dollar success story.

DAYBREAK EXTENSION Reports place ABC-TV's "Operation Daybreak" close to SRO with advertisers committed to 56 out of 60 available quarter-hours per week. Favorable advertiser response has network officials turning naturally to possible extension of daybreak to total 70 quarter-hours weekly by making 11:30 a.m.-noon period available. Now confirmed: Addition in OD of Armour & Co., through Foote, Cone & Belding, and Reynolds Metal Co., through Buchanan & Co. Reynolds in fact shapes up as one of ABC-TV's heavyweight national advertisers, its buys for fall on network including also "Disneyland" and "All-Star Golf series.

Although pay TV currently is dormant, Veterans of Foreign Wars, which led opposition to toll movement two years ago, is expected to adopt another strongly worded resolution at its convention in New York this week. Convention generally will have broadcasting caste, with one of principal addresses to be delivered by NAB President Harold E. Fellows on "Learn and Live" theme, and with NBC Board Chairman Robert W. Sarnoff to receive top award. (See story, page 81).
"Upstate New York" is a generic phrase that has been troubling Madison Avenue mapmakers ever since Asprin set the original tract record for American digestive systems.

Too many Manhattan cartographers generously think that Upstate begins on the steps of the 205th Street Independent station. But those same soothsayers niggardly limit our WHEN-TV market area to metropolitan Syracuse.

Proof of the true scope of our signal area is that a recent mail count on "One For The Show", seen weekdays from 1 until 1:30, listed response from the following 155 Upstate communities:

Eye-opener for advertisers

To get full results from radio advertising, sales and advertising executives need to understand the complex program elements which, when properly combined, give Spot Radio its tremendous selling-power. These elements are clearly defined in the John Blair Report, LOCAL RADIO PROGRAMMING, recently published. It is termed an "eye-opener for advertisers" because it brings into sharp focus the exacting skill demanded of station-management in creating an overall program-structure that consistently builds maximum audience for the station, and sales for its advertisers. Hence the book contains a wealth of information vital to any executive charged with the responsibility of moving mass-market goods at a profit. For the complete report, write John Blair & Company, 415 Madison Avenue, New York 17, N. Y. Price, one dollar.

Plan by which NBC-TV affiliates in standard time areas would help bear cost of delaying network broadcasts during daylight saving time months has been devised by NBC, which hopes to put it into effect next year, it was learned Friday.

Plan as reported to NBC-TV Board of Delegates, it’s understood, calls for NBC to install equipment necessary to assure delivery of high-quality picture on delayed basis (poor quality has been complained in many areas during past DST periods), with NBC absorbing these costs but standard time stations paying line charges.

Cost to these stations—currently there are 116 NBC-TV affiliates on standard time—estimated at 5½% of their network revenues, but with network planning to rebate appropriately if this proves higher than necessary. Network understood to take position that delivery of high-quality picture easily justifies this move, but that necessary equipment is so expensive that standard time stations—for whose benefit DST delays are run—ought to help pay some of cost. Alternative, if enough standard-time affiliates fail to go along, understood to be less expensive system with less assurance of picture quality.

On another front, NBC-TV said to be getting ready to move formally against triple spotting. Officials reportedly told Board of Delegates they expected shortly to send out affiliation contract amendments in which stations would stipulate they will carry each NBC-TV program complete up to 30th second before start of next program (or before start of next segment, in programs interrupted by station breaks) and also to carry full network identification, network program promotion material, etc. (except promotions for programs not carried by station, in which case promotions for other programs, public service announcements and similar material would be substituted). Plan is similar to one inaugurated by CBS-TV short time ago [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, June 23], except that NBC-TV plan would not require stations’ weekly reporting form to be sworn.

Affiliates Board of Delegates meeting, held Wednesday, also heard network officials outline plans for fall programming and fall program promotion. Board, headed by Walter Damm of WTMJ-TV Milwaukee, also was assured NBC-TV expects its fall schedule to be sold out by start of season.

Business Briefly

Air-Wick Placing • Lever Bros., N. Y., has placed first major tv spot campaign on behalf of Air-Wick household air freshener. Drive starts Sept. 15 in top 30 tv markets of U. S. and will run at least eight weeks. Air-Wick was acquired by Lever from Seeman Bros., N. Y., few months ago; product historically used radio and print. Foote, Cone & Belding, N. Y., is Air-Wick’s agency.

BOWLING NETWORK • National Brewing Co. (National Boh) Baltimore, major sports buyer, to sponsor Strikes ‘n’ Spares live bowling series on nine-station eastern tv network. Bert Claster-produced series signed for 52 weeks through W. B. Doner Co., Baltimore. Five stations to start Sept. 26—WBAL-TV Baltimore; WBOC-TV Salisbury, Md.; WSBA-TV York, Pa.; WTOA (TV) Harrisburg, Pa., and WMAL-TV Washington. Joining Nov. 3 will be WSVA-TV Harrisonburg, Va.; WRVA-TV Richmond, Va.; WULA-TV Lynchburg, Va., and WFTV-FM Norfolk, Va. Matches to be staged in Baltimore Mondays 7:30-8 p.m.

RISE NET PLANS • Carter Products (Rise shaving cream), N. Y., primarily spot advertiser, considering return to network sponsorship on a larger scale than in past. Advertiser, which has sponsored CBS-TV’s Sunday News Special and has participated in ABC-TV’s American Bandstand, reportedly has bought 15-minute pre-football warm-up series on CBS-TV this fall along with General Mills’ Wheaties; may also continue with similar type program into network’s hockey coverage. Agencies: Sullivan, Stauffer, Colwell & Bayles (Carter), N. Y. and Knox-Reeves, Minneapolis (General Mills).

Gulf Looking • Gulf Oil Corp., Pittsburgh, looking for availability in about 70 top U. S. markets for its annual fall-winter-push starting Sept. 22 for 13 weeks. Gulf, via Young & Rubicam, N. Y., basically will follow same station pattern set last spring. Gasoline company takes tv spot hiatus in summer.

Video for Vick • Vick Chemical Co. (cold remedies), N. Y., set to launch six-month spot tv campaign in late September and currently seeking availability in major markets throughout country. Agency: Morse International, N. Y. Vick also has made major buy on NTA Film Network. (See story, page 82.)

WSPD-TV Toledo Joins ABC-TV; New WTOD-TV Names H-R

Storer Broadcasting Co.'s WSPD-TV Toledo, only operating tv outlet there, switches primary affiliation from CBS-TV to ABC-TV effective Oct. 26, it was announced Friday (Aug 15) by Lee B. Wailes, Storer executive vice president, and Alfred R. Beckman, ABC vice president in charge of tv station relations. ABC-TV claims this is first instance in one-station market where it has swung over from primary affiliation with other networks. WSPD-TV continues CBS-TV and NBC-TV affiliations on secondary basis and continues top basic one-hour rate of $1,000.

Mr. Wailes noted 'ABC-TV's rapid emergence to major stature and the broadening of program service available between WSPD-TV and our Detroit station, WBK-TV, both of which are currently primary affiliates of CBS-TV, will result in a greater diversity of programming to the people within the service area of WSPD-TV.' Mr. Beckman said WSPD-TV primary affiliation with ABC-TV "is a landmark in ABC-TV history. It reflects the changing pattern of the industry.'

[EDITOR'S NOTE: Meanwhile, Frazier Reams, president of WTOD Toledo, told Broadcastings Friday new eh. 11 WPD- TV should be on air in November and no later than Dec. 1, weather permitting. He announced appointment of H-K Representatives Inc. as exclusive national rep. Both CBS and NBC, it was learned, are discussing affiliation with new WTOD-TV with likelihood decision will be reached in New York this week.]

FLOWER FIGHT

Fraction split within Florists Telegraph Delivery Assn. is behind-scenes tug over which of four agency contenders might come up with $2.8 million ($2.6 million in tv) account lost by Grant Adv. last month. Contenders: Keyes, Maddon & Jones; Cunningham & Walsh; MacManus, John & Adams, and N. W. Ayer & Son. Decision probably will be made in Detroit this week. One segment of FTDA membership reportedly wants to move headquarters to Chicago. M&J is agency with Detroit headquarters: KM&J headquarters in Chicago while C&W and Ayer both have Chicago offices. Expected: Account will be split between advertising and public relations, both services by Grant in past.

KCBS Announces Rate Cuts

CBS-owned KCBS San Francisco in new card rate effective yesterday (Aug. 17) on overall basis cut announcement rates 10 to 17% and program rates 5% below previous rate card, marking first cut in several years of progressive rate increases. Nighttime announcement and program rates were cut by "slightly higher" percentages. Disclosing move Friday (Aug. 15), CBS said KCBS basic one-hour rate slides from $280 to $265, one-minute from $50 to $42.

GENERAL FOODS TO NAME FOURTH AGENCY

To keep pace with its expanding product lines, General Foods Corp., White Plains, N. Y., top broadcast advertiser, announced Friday it would appoint a fourth advertising agency in "near future."

Bulk of General Foods' products (they total 75) handled by Young & Rubicam and Benton & Bowles with sizable portion also serviced by Foote, Cone & Belding. Food advertiser, which spent $87 million in advertising for fiscal year ended March 31, 1958, with broadcast media tallying substantial part of total, also announced number of product assignments among its present advertising agencies to be effective after first of year and in line with its marketing expansion.

According to E. W. Ebel, vice president in charge of advertising, search for fourth agency narrowed to bases of quality, scope of services, New York area location and "consideration of competitive situation." Mr. Ebel revealed its newly-appointed agency would receive vacuum packed ground coffee in Maxwell House line now handled by Benton & Bowles but gave no other details.

"Cell for greater flexibility in agency assignments," said Mr. Ebel, made necessary of GF having number of new products in development stage. New agency assignments effective after Jan. 1: Y&R turns over to FC&B, Calumet baking powder, D-Zerta, Minute Potatos and Walter Baker (chocolate). It was understood these latter four products alone will represent nearly $3 million additional billing for FC&B. Y&R retains Jello, Birds Eye, Sanka, Swansdown, Postum and 18 other products.

B&B will handle "new coffee assignments" and two new products in Gaines (dog foods, biscuits etc.) line, will give up Maxwell House vacuum packed ground coffee to new agency, retains Instant Maxwell House (now General Foods' largest advertising account, according to Mr. Ebel) and entire Post cereals and Gaines lines as well as GF's institutional products division.

Swarm of Filings at FCC

Opposing Clear-Channel Plan

Opposition to FCC's clear-channel proposals continued to be submitted to Commission Friday as deadline saw flood of last-minute filing (see early study, page 64).

Among last-minute filings: ABC disagreed with proposals to duplicate five of 12 Class I-A frequencies at specified Western areas, including ABC's WABC New York in New Mexico. Network claimed Commission unfair to consider only 770 kc or 1030 kc in working out solution to KOB case, urged that other channels be considered. Network also claimed proceeding at odds with regular procedure, called for evidentiary hearing before any Class I-A stations are forced to accept second outlet on their frequency. It also claimed that FCC proposition is piecemeal approach.

WCCO Minneapolis, 50 kw on 830 kc, supported Commission proposals (which would leave 830 kc unduplicated), but urged FCC to permit Class I-A outlets to boost power above 50 kw maximum. WHO in Moines, Iowa, 50 kw on 800 kc which will remain unduplicated, arrayed itself with CCBS position, asked Commission to approve higher power for unduplicated Class I-A.

WNYC New York, daytimer on 830 kc, which has been operating night hours under special service authorizations for last 15 years, served notice it wanted full-time operation and Commission should consider duplicating 830 kc in East. WCKY Cincinnati, Class I-B on 1530 kc, urged that additional Class I and II stations be permitted on 12 frequencies proposed to be untouched; also called for continuance of 50 kw limitation; suggested that all Class I-A channels be duplicated.

Some minutes after all the passengers had left, the pilot snapped his logbook shut and started down the empty aisle of his big Mainliner.

Empty? Not quite. In one of the seats, forgotten, lay a little rag doll.

He reached down and picked it up. It had the floppy, well-squeezed look dolls get when they're really loved. Any father who has helped a curly-headed snuggle into bed with a favorite doll would know that here was a real tragedy. So the pilot went to work to find its small owner.

United's vast communications system, which speeds weather data, flight and reservations information coast to coast, can also trace a heartbroken little girl. With the help of willing United people thousands of miles apart, she was found. And a grateful mother wrote: "She has other dolls much newer and prettier. But this little rag doll is the only one close to her heart. I cannot tell you how much your returning it means to her, and to us."

No company rules told that pilot, and all of those who helped him, that finding the owner of a frayed little doll is important. Their action sprang from something far deeper—a genuine interest in people which, on the ground and aloft, results in "service in the Mainliner® Manner"—the extra care you enjoy at no extra fare when you fly United—the Radar Line.
IN REVIEW

U.S. STEEL HOUR

Chapter 83,402 of that perennial best-seller, "Tales of the Ole West," was deftly dramatized last Wednesday (Aug. 13) on the U. S. Steel Hour. Its title was "Old Marshals Never Die."

An expert, professional group assembled to do it justice. Writer John Vlahos, author of many excellent tv plays, was there. The Theatre Guild was there as producer, replete with guitar background, two real horses and faded dirty denims. William Shatner was there as the Young Marshal who could not forget (as everyone else had) what Cameron Prud'homme (as the Old Marshal) had done for the town in more rip-snortin' days. Kevin Coughlin was there as the Boy Who Wants To Be a Marshal. Each one of them acted capably and competently the classic story of Man Meets Town, Town Forgets Man, Man Saves Town. It ended (as all good Greek and Western tragedies should) in the dusty main street with the boy and the young man kneeling beside the dying old marshal.

There were fleeting impressions throughout the hour that "Old Marshals" was not an original show at all but a repeat. It was a false if inevitable impression because of the preceding 83,401 chapters which made it nearly impossible for this latest chapter to produce any sort of a catharsis. At the show's end, the announcer urged viewers to tune in every other week to U. S. Steel Hour, the "Broadway of TV." It must be said, albeit reluctantly, that last week was more like Dodge City than Broadway.

Production costs: Approximately $60,000. Sponsored by U. S. Steel through BBDO on CBS-TV Wednesday, 10-11 p.m. EDT.

BOOKS

Dr. Perrine, retired AT&T officer and former editor of the Bell System Technical Journal, believes that "the many men who are allied with technical endeavors but who did not get to go to college ... could learn and grasp the principles and doctrines presented in this book by home study." For his treatise on conic section curves, exponentials, alternating current, electrical oscillations and hyperbolic functions, he takes Newton's motto, "Nature seems to be pleased with simple things." Thus reassured at the start, the student is helped along the way by simply-designed illustrations toward mastery of the physical concepts presented and their application to electrical communication.

The Long Island manufacturer of splicing equipment has excerpted editing and splicing instructions from Mr. Haynes' Elements of Magnetic Tape Recording, published last year by Prentice-Hall. Starting from a fascinating example on bird song editing (often they sing symmetrically, the same backward as forward), the manual gives detailed instructions on its subject, complete with illustrations and formulas. It looks like the last word on editing the recorded word.

We suspect that your primary advertising target is not the lollypop crowd but the shopping-bag set. If so, then look to WBBM-TV—the television station that dominates the daytime viewing of Chicago’s housewives.

During the average daytime minute WBBM-TV is viewed by over 130,000 women. That’s 46% more than the next station, 95% more than the third station and 120% more than the fourth station.

Next time a Chicago station offers you a daytime package, don’t be sucker by any slide-rule sleight of hand. Fact is, other Chicago stations cost you 26% to 46% more to reach the same audience.

Today, as always, WBBM-TV reaches more women, more often and more economically than any other Chicago station.

Concurring Opinion

EDITOR:
Since we can't measure creative talent by the gallon as we do gasoline, the practice of price cutting in film production is a dangerous one for all concerned, and I compliment Broadcasting for publishing the MONDAY MEMO (July 14) by Rollo Hunter, in which he correctly labels the practice as "filmicide" and says it "can lead only to disaster." As a producer with 40 years experience in the field, I enjoin a strong "Amen."

As Mr. Hunter points out, the client is the real loser in the price war. The producer, stuck with such a low budget that he must take the cheapest way out, compromises on talent and techniques. Only shoddy and uninspired work can result. The client loses the opportunity to tell his story effectively, the agency producer loses his client's confidence, and the film producer winds up with little or no profit and a damaged reputation.

But while price cutting is shortsighted and harmful in the production of film commercials, it is a ruinous one to follow in producing motion pictures. The more the reels, the greater need for top-quality writing, direction, lensing, editing and overall creative planning if high audience interest is maintained throughout the picture. Creative talent has a price tag; it doesn't come wholesale.

Forty years of producing motion pictures have confirmed my earlier belief that the best and most effective films result largely from two simple factors: (1) Selection by the client of a reputable and experienced producer, and (2) solid client-film producer relationship. The client is the big loser if he goes to another producer in midstream (usually answering the siren call of a newcomer in the field, whose press agent is ballyhooing his supposedly new wares). Price cutting is the wry deceiver, and client, agency and producer should recognize it for the chaotic situation it festers.

The Film Producers Assn. is doing an excellent job in promoting the establishment of high ethical standards among its producer members, but it alone cannot wipe out the evils in the price-cutting practice. The responsibility lies with agencies and their clients. Let's hope Mr. Hunter's article proves to be the opening gun in a joint campaign to end price war in the film industry.

OUR RESPECTS

to Robert Fisher Lewine

"He's got the sense beyond talent—taste."

The words are those of a hard-dealing agency executive distilling in a sentence his 12-year view of Robert Fisher Lewine, NBC-TV vice president in charge of programs.

"He makes sense. You can do business with him."

This is a front-rank television writer's description of the same Mr. Lewine. A businessman with sensitive compassion for talent, Mr. Lewine is at the same time a critical showman with an honest understanding of the client's problems.

"Bob Lewine is an ambassador of television," said Henry Fowines, vice president and manager, MacManus, John & Adams, New York. "He represents the art to the industry and vice versa; and in my opinion few people have ever done it any better. He knows his business. And yours."

A remarkably kind man in his personal dealing ("He's a guy who makes you realize there are two words in gentleman"), he is firm and sophisticated in his working view of programming. In a "welcome aboard" memo recovered from one of his aides, he had counseled: "Dare to be different; consider your writer an indispensable ingredient in any program; go for the finest available creative talent because this is the best insurance against failure; take your time if possible in developing the idea; don't talk down to your audience; make your stories and characters believable and resign yourself to the realities of television programming—you can't hit a home run every time at bat.

Born in New York City on April 16, 1913, Mr. Lewine took his primary education there at The Franklin School for Boys. In 1930 he entered Swarthmore College, Pa., where another student, who was to figure in his later career, was just going into the senior term. His name was Robert Kintner. There is no record they knew each other.

At Swarthmore Mr. Lewine was a member of the junior honor society, KWINK, and its senior equivalent, Book and Key (Mr. Kintner previously had been a member of these two societies). Mr. Lewine was president of the little theatre group, captain of the golf team, manager of the varsity basketball team and vice president of the Athletic Assoc.

He was graduated in 1934 with a B.A. degree and the intention of following a career in advertising or entertainment, but the waning years of the depression dictated otherwise so he entered the family realty firm in New York and remained there until Dec. 7, 1941. The day after Pearl Harbor he applied for a Navy commission, served three years and came out a lieutenant in 1945.

Anticipating the television boom by more than three years, Robert Lewine joined Cine-Tv Inc., a television program research organization, his first professional association with programming. By mid-1946 he had been elected a vice president and remained with the firm until it died of premature birth.

The following four years he worked free lance as a producer and television film consultant to a Hollywood firm; and in May 1950 was asked to head the radio-television department of the Harshon-Garfield Adv. Agency.

Two and a half years later he made the critical turn to network programming, accepting an ABC-TV offer to officiate as eastern program director under Charles Underhill. In 1954 he was named national program director and in January 1956 became vice president in charge of programming and talent for the network.

In the meantime his erstwhile classmate, Mr. Kintner, had joined the network and become its president. It was during their joint service there that ABC-TV introduced the "adult western" concept (Cheyenne, Wyatt Earp, Maverick) as well as Disneyland, Zorro and Mickey Mouse Club (Mr. Kintner, of course, is now president of NBC.)

In December 1956 Mr. Lewine accepted a bid from NBC-TV, joining the network as vice president in charge of nighttime programs. By August 1957, he had assumed daytime too and achieved his present title in February 1958.

Robert Lewine describes his programming "philosophy" as a "continuing effort to create, buy or steal hit shows that will attract a massive audience, conform in every respect to the standards of good entertainment, permit no compromise with quality, be provocatively different without deliberately seeking controversy and, if possible, they should also be inexpensive."

Mr. Lewine is married to the former Lucille Litwin. They have one son, Robert William Lewine, 12. The family lives in Manhattan in their own townhouse.

His hobbies are his career, music, theatre and golf.

He is the brother of Richard Lewine, director of special programs at CBS-TV.

BROADCAST-MINDED 85TH READY TO CALL IT A DAY

Score: Over 150 bills, only 1 law
Debris: Shaken FCC, harassed industry
Outlook: Breather, then around again

The 85th Congress is rapidly rushing toward sine die adjournment, members hope some time this week. It can’t come too soon for the continually-harassed FCC and the broadcasting industry. Even adjournment, however, will not bring complete relief. One committee plans September-October hearings and another has one report still to be released and a second yet to be written.

The 85th left few phases of electronic communications untouched. Over 150 bills affecting radio-tv and/or the Commission have been introduced. Ironically, only one (and that with only a minor relationship) has become law (see Moss bill, page 36). Another, an educational tv appropriation bill, still has a chance.

Most active of the congressional bodies was the Legislative Oversight Subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee. Running a close second was the Senate Commerce Committee. Both bodies have served notice that more hearings are to come, even with adjournment imminent.

The Oversight Subcommittee, headed by parent committee chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.) following a February blow-up, was responsible for the national headlines—and in the process gave the FCC a black eye it will be forced to wear for some time. The committee is conducting an investigation of the Commission, with emphasis to date on its ch. 10 Miami decision.

Comr. Richard A. Mack was forced to resign after his financial dealings were brought to light; Chairman John C. Doerfer in particular, and several other commissioners in general, were accused of official misconduct and malfeasance in office.

A special Broadcasting report on the high cost of congressional investigations showed an estimated $13,475 was spent in one day of the Legislative Oversight hearings (Special Report, March 31). This comprised an estimated $6,000 spent by the industry and $7,475 by the government. While this committee's investigations were the most expensive, the figure represents only one day of one hearing. There were many weeks between January and July in which as many as four or five broadcasting hearings were in progress simultaneously.

Early in the session, subliminal projection got a big play and caused many statements of alarm. A demonstration of the system was given for congressmen in July and a smattering of bills was introduced prohibiting advertising by this new and mysterious method.

Broadcasters, long advocates of uniform standard time throughout the country, will lose a friend when Rep. Joseph P. O'Hara (R-Minn.) retires at the end of his current term. Rep. O'Hara, a member of the House Commerce Committee and its investigating subcommittee, has spent many years of fruitless effort seeking a year-round standard system.

Other members of the House committee who have announced their retirement are Reps. Charles Wolverton (R-N.J.), ranking minority member, John Heselson (R-Mass.) and Martin Dies (D-Tex.), who already has been replaced by fellow Texas Democrat Joe Kilgore.

None of the Senate Commerce Committee members has announced retirement plans. Up for re-election are Sens. Charles Potter (R-Mich.), Frederick Payne (R-Mich.) and Ralph Yarborough (D-Tex.).

A synopsis of major Hill hearings and investigations in radio-tv, arranged by subjects, with several crossings of committee lines, follows:

LEGISLATIVE OVERSIGHT

Chances are Mr. Average American had no conception of the purposes and functions of the FCC prior to the Second Session of the 85th Congress. The House Legislative Oversight Subcommittee, during its scandal-filled, headline-making investigations, placed the FCC squarely before the public.

Much of the publicity definitely was unfavorable. All but two of the commissioners were accused of misconduct and malfeasance in office and one was forced to resign. In addition, four of them had to wait two months to answer, receiving one-tenth the publicity accorded the original charges.

The subcommittee's then chief counsel, Dr. Bernard Schwartz, made the misconduct charges in a secret memorandum "leaked" by him to the New York Times. FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer and Comr. Richard A. Mack were the principal Schwartz targets.

After January "general hearings" on all six agencies under the committee's jurisdiction, Comr. Doerfer the first week of February faced three days of grueling questioning by Dr. Schwartz. The testimony was frequently interrupted by clashes between the chief counsel and members of the subcommittee and by appeals of Comr. Doerfer for the right to cross examine witnesses.

Dr. Schwartz was fired by the subcommittee Feb. 10 following a full day of stormy debate. Three investigators then spent a week trying to obtain all their records from the fired chief counsel, who had trundled them all over Washington in the company of two newspapermen. Following the firing of Dr. Schwartz, as subcommittee chairman and was replaced by Rep. Harris.

Dr. Schwartz was put on the stand, under subpoena, and accused Comr. Mack of selling his vote in the Miami ch. 10 grant to National Airlines for $2,650. There followed seven weeks of hearings on the ch. 10 grant, the subcommittee operating without a chief counsel. The investigating subcommittee chairman, Pro. Mack, remarking his innocence, resigned after Rep. Harris announced plans to start impeachment proceedings.

Comr. Mack claimed the money in question constituted loans from Miami attorney Bernard Whiteside which had either been repaid or forgiven. Mr. Whiteside testified at length and revealed several instances of ex parte contacts with Comr. Mack on ch. 10 and other comparative cases. Many other off-the-record contacts with commissioners by other principals were exposed.

The subcommittee's investigations prompted the Justice Dept., FBI and a federal grand jury to start investigations of their own. Also, as a result, the court of appeals remanded the case to the Commission and new hearings under a retired judge are scheduled to start next month.

Just prior to the Easter recess, the subcommittee completed its Miami hearings and released an interim report criticizing the FCC on several points. As a result, Rep. Harris introduced HR 11886 which would:

(1) Require the FCC to draft a code of ethics;
(2) remove a provision in the Communications Act authorizing honors; and
(3) make all ex parte contacts subject to criminal punishment, and (4) give the President power to remove a commissioner.

The bill has been approved by the subcommittee and is awaiting parent committee action.

The report said further study was needed on these controversial points: (1) Method of selecting chairman (now appointed by President); (2) powers of chairman; (3) powers of Bureau of Budget with respect to regulatory agencies; and (4) terms of office and salaries of commissioners.

As a result of the committee's FCC investigation, countless bills have been introduced covering many varied subjects.

Rep. Morgan Moulder (D-Mo.) resigned among them are these provisions: Prohibit airline ownership of tv stations; code of ethics; public filing of income of federal officials; contacts, both on and off record, with commissioners; attempts to influence; criteria for FCC to consider; conflicts of interest of federal officials; activities after leaving the Commission; term of office; FCC relations with staff, and even the review of FCC rule changes by Congress.

Also, as a result of the House investigations, a bill was drafted by the Senate Commerce Committee which would completely abolish the FCC and replace it with a communications administrator and a three-judge communications court of appeals. A sec

HARRIS, Rep. Oren (D-Ark.): His Oversight Subcommittee exposed numerous ex parte contacts with FCC, forcing resignation of one commissioner and prompting deluge of remedial legislation; conducted running (and so far winning) battle with FCC over pay tv question.

PASTORE, Sen. John (D-R.I.): As chairman of Commerce Communications Subcommittee, he sat through days and days of testimony on Smathers bill; told advocates they were barking up the wrong tree; blasted FCC on two occasions for its failure to solve allocations muddle.

CELLER, Rep. Emanuel (D-N.Y.): Introduced sports antitrust bill, which he bitterly opposed in version passed by House; hit NAB for its liquor ad ban; outspoken critic of pay tv; chairman of Judiciary Committee and its Antitrust Subcommittee, unaccountably inactive in broadcasting during current session.

KEFAUVER, Sen. Estes (D-Tenn.): His Judiciary Subcommittee tabled sports antitrust bill after it had passed House in language which threatened total blackout of professional sports on radio-tv; amended version due in next Congress.

MOSS, Rep. John (D-Calif.): As chairman of Information Subcommittee, outspoken opponent of government secrecy, saw his measure amending 1789 statute become law; as member of Oversight Subcommittee, was strong supporter of fired chief counsel and sometimes critic of FCC.

MAGNUSON, Sen. Warren (D-Wash.): Gave FCC virtual mandate to get busy and solve uhf allocations problem as his Commerce Committee completed four-year tv study with two committee reports still pending; champion of educational tv.

POTTER, Sen. Charles (R-Mich.): Successfully pushed his military allocations study measure through Senate only to see its purpose sidetracked by Executive amendment; member Commerce Committee.

BROADCASTING

PAULIN, Rep. John (D-Tex.): His Oversight Subcommittee exposed numerous ex parte contacts with FCC, forcing resignation of one commissioner and prompting deluge of remedial legislation; conducted running (and so far winning) battle with FCC over pay tv question.

SMATHERS, Sen. George (D-Fla.): Was nowhere to be found when hearings were being held on his bill to divorce broadcasters from BMI; name played prominent role in Oversight hearings; member Commerce Committee.

MONRONEY, Sen. Mike (D-Okla.): Waged one-man campaign against tv rating services; held one-day hearing, plans more; also against airline ownership of tv station; introduced prohibitive bill; member Commerce Committee and its Communications Subcommittee.

said last week that this case is not completed with more evidence yet to be exposed.

This first week in June, the committee shifted its hearing site to Boston in its attempt to secure requested records in and investigation of the ch. 5 grant to the Boston Herald-Traveler, plus records on matters pertaining to agencies other than the FCC.

Since the Boston hearings (except for short testimony by St. Louis principals), the Harris subcommittee has been kept busy with an investigation of Boston industrialist Bernard Goldfine and the FCC has not been involved. The interlude, however, promises to be broken when the committee resumes its activities in September.

No announcement has been made on the subject matter of the adjournment hearings, but the subcommittee has completed its investigations in several other comparative tv cases. Also, Rep. Harris has stated that more is coming on the 14 cases mentioned above.

TELEVISION FREQUENCY ALLOCATIONS

The Senate Commerce Committee was deeply involved in efforts to solve the allocations dilemma during the current session of Congress, while its House counterpart got into the act belatedly the past month.

Resuming overall tv hearings begun four years ago, the Senate committee called the FCC to its chambers several times in May and June. Back to conduct the hearings was special committee counsel Kenneth Cox of Seattle.

During the sessions, Sen. John Pastore (D-R.I.) gave the Commission a verbal blasting for its failure to solve the uhf situation over the past four years. Chairman Warren Magnuson served notice on the military to get together with the Commission on possible frequency swaps (see Potter resolution below).

Small market tv operators marched in force to Capitol Hill to complain about the encroachment upon their audience by cable tv. Chairman Pastore urged federal control of community systems. And, in just as strong numbers, the CATV operators came to defend their operations. At the same time, they said, they were not opposed to some form of regulation.

While the FCC was testifying in three different sessions the committee focused its attention on cable tv, the abc Plan for 25 contiguous tv channels and the ABC-crash program to add a third vhf to 12 major markets.

Sen. Pastore at one time forced a Commission vote on deintermix, which showed the commissioners were split 4-3. Chairman John C. Doerfer said deintermix was "too little and too late." He said that using only the 12 vhf channels falls far short of an ideal situation but that they could be made adequate as a last resort.

The commissioners admitted they are as far away from a solution to uhf today as four years ago. They repeatedly begged off announcing a definite course of action until Taso submits its allocations report, promised by the end of the year.

At a July 1 session with the Commission, Sen. Magnuson issued a mandate to the agency to give it high priority. The allocations problem top priority. He also told the FCC to intensify its efforts to make a deal with the military. Comr. Rosel Hyde stated that negotiations recently have been renewed and that the Commission has a strong talking point.

During this same hearing, Sen. Magnuson announced that he would like for immediate consideration of S J Res 106, which would establish a special commission to investigate frequency space assigned to the military. It was introduced by Sen. Charles Potter (R-Mich.).

The committee approved the resolution July 9, expanding it from a three-to-five-man commission, and the Senate gave its unanimous approval July 21. The measure then was sent to the House Commerce Committee, which on July 28 received "suggested" White House amendments which completely changed the complexion of the proposed commission.

On Aug. 1 (a Friday), the House body accepted the White House amendments which expanded the proposed commission to embrace an overall study of the entire spectrum, plus an investigation of the FCC's administration of the Communications Act.

The bill was placed on the suspension of rules calendar for full House consideration the following Monday. However, tremendous opposition to the measure arose over the intervening weekend and it was never considered by the House. In fact, many members of the House committee now are not so sure their approval was a good idea and Democratic opposition has been raised in the Senate.

Consequently, the bill has been effectively killed for this session. Its future during the 86th Congress, at least in the present form, is questionable.

When the Senate committee completed its questioning of the FCC last July 1, Sen. Magnuson announced the committee's television study was ating die. Thus, investigations begun late in the Republican-controlled last Congress were brought to a halt. Five commission staff reports (at least two highly controversial) have been released, with two more of them still to come. Over 40 individual days of hearings were held. These were in addition to committee hearings on other matters in the broadcasting industry, such as the Smathers and liquor bill hearings.

SPORTS ANTI TRUST EXEMPTION

Somewhat belatedly, but in time to take positive action, the broadcasting industry awoke to a real and immediate danger in a House-passed bill exempting professional sports from antitrust laws. The bill, many experts claim, would give major league owners the "laydown rule" to completely black out radio-television coverage.

The bill passed the House (after lengthy hearings during the first session) carries the number (HR 1307) of a measure introduced by Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-N. Y.). However, the author was violently opposed to the language of the approved bill.

Passed in late June, it was amended on the floor to give the four sports concerned—football, baseball, basketball and hockey—a blanket exemption. Rep. Celler's language had exempted only those aspects of the sports deemed "reasonable and proper."

A Senate Antitrust Subcommittee headed by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) began hearings on HR 1307 and a companion Senate measure July 7. Several House members crossed the Capitol to testify they were not aware of the radio-tv implications when the House approved the measure.

Sen. Kenneth B. Stennis (R-Ms.), strong advocate of the House-passed language, proposed to the Senate that the bill be amended to include a provision for a 75-mile radio-tv blackout, formerly used by baseball but since outlawed by Justice. Rep. Sidney Yates (D-III.) proposed an amendment to place radio-tv coverage of baseball under antitrust laws "to protect the interests of baseball fans." This move, however, was defeated on the House floor.

Rep. Celler, testifying before the Kefauver subcommittee, hit the lobbying activities of advocates of the bill. "They came on Washington like locusts," he charged. The Justice Dept. prepared a graphic map showing that 90% of U. S. population could be prevented from seeing and/or hearing major league baseball if the bill becomes law.

The Senate hearings continued into the last week of July. On Aug. 1 the subcommittee voted 4-2 to table the controversial measure for this session. The bill, with amendments more acceptable to broadcasting, the Congress and the public, will be reintroduced next session, several members of Congress have indicated.

PAY TELEVISION

Congress ran into—but failed to meet head-on—the issue of subscription tv immediately after it reconvened last January. And, come Jan. 7, 1959, pay tv again will be one of the first issues facing the new Congress.

Rep. Harris has conducted a running battle with the FCC, which claims it has jurisdiction, over pay tv for several months. And, if the number of anti-pay tv bills in both Houses is any indication, he has the backing of a substantial number of Congressmen.

Twenty-one bills are pending in the House to prohibit pay tv while five of a similar nature have been introduced in the Senate. In addition, both Commerce Committees have passed resolutions enjoining the Commission not to authorize a toll test until Congress has had a chance to take action.

Rep. Harris' Commerce Committee held two weeks of pay tv hearings beginning last Jan. 14. During and immediately after the hearings, Congressmen's offices were flooded with letters voicing anti-pay tv sentiments. Much of this correspondence purportedly was brought on by stations editorializing against subscription tv—and the FCC slapped the wrists of several tv outlets for allegedly presenting a one-sided picture.

Both committees adopted their anti-pay resolutions in February. The FCC, which originally had planned to act on pay tv in March, announced that it would take no an unsympathetic, one-man committee to hear Songwriters Protective Assn. (composed of ASCAP members) charges of BMI-broadcaster discrimination. Subject of the hearings, which began in March and ran periodically into July, was S 2834, introduced by Sen. George Smathers (D-Fla.).

The Smathers bill would prevent stations and networks from owning stock in BMI or recording companies, as is now the case. Sen. Smathers attended only the earliest sessions of the hearings with Sen. Pastore, as chairman of the Communications Subcommittee of the Senate Commerce Committee, alone sitting for nine-tenths of the testimony.

Crux of the arguments of proponents of the bill was that broadcasters and BMI have formed a conspiracy to play BMI tunes to the suppression of ASCAP songs. A long list of songwriters, publishers, performers, educators, recording firms and politicians vigorously denied the charges. ASCAP, they maintained, actually was attempting to pre-try a pending $50 million court suit.

Sen. Pastore repeatedly questioned statements made by the bill's proponents. At one point he said the bill had no chance because it would hurt "4,000 little fellows [independent stations]." He also told proponents he knew their problem and what they were getting at "but this bill that is here is not doing it... You are trying to get after NBC and CBS and the stations they own."

A transcript of the hearings was sent to the Justice Dept. and FCC for comments before the measure is presented to the full committee. This means the bill will have to be reintroduced in January to get any further consideration at all.

A House Small Business Subcommittee sampling-performance formula operated by unqualified personnel"; that those responsible for distributing fees choose formulas giving them the largest percentage.

In May, the subcommittee issued a report questioning several ASCAP methods and procedures. Among those fired upon were the society's voting system for directors; compliance—or lack of—with a 1950 consent decree; grievance procedures for members, which the committee said, are constructed in such a way as to militate against a complaining member.

The record was sent to the Justice Dept. with a recommendation that antitrust proceedings be considered against ASCAP.

FALSE AND MISLEADING ADVERTISING

The Legal & Monetary Affairs Subcommittee of the House Government Operations Committee conducted a series of hearings on alleged false and misleading advertising, embracing all media. Principal targets were weight reducers, cigarette and dentifrice ads.

Hearings were held last month on claims made by toothpaste and cigarette manufacturers, labeled "bunk and junk" by Subcommittee Chairman John Blatnik (D-Minn.). He and Rep. Martha Griffiths (D-Mich.) urged immediate federal crackdown on misleading advertising.

Debate was lengthy in the series held by the subcommittee on the effectiveness of federal enforcement against false and misleading advertising. Three weeks ago Rep. Blatnik submitted a bill to require public listing of tars and nicotine content of cigarettes in advertising copy; and if the word "filter" is used, the requirement that no more than 11 milligrams per each regular size may be allowed [At Deadline, Aug. 4].

The report resulted from hearings held in the summer of 1957.

FCC REGULATION OF NETWORKS

A tune often heard on Capitol Hill the past four years was given a short play early in the month. Hearings were held by the Senate Commerce Committee on Sen. John W. Bricker's (R-Ohio) bill (S 376) placing the networks under direct regulation and licensing of the FCC.

The witnesses, too, were familiar—the FCC and executives of the three networks. Sen. Bricker first plumped for direct regulation of the networks during the 83rd Congress and in 1956 he released a staff report calling for total reorganization of the FCC.

As early as last February, Sen. Bricker began pushing for the new round of hearings, postponed until June because of the heavy — broadcast and otherwise — committee schedule. During the latest airing, the bill's author (who also acted as chairman) said he did not entertain hopes of passage this session, believing direct control and regulation is mandatory.

Currently, the Commission exercises indirect control over the network through its chain broadcasting rules and licensing of network-owned stations. Chairman Doerfer, as did the three networks, expressed strong opposition to the bill.

ANTI-INFLUENCE AND AGENCY LEAKS

A Senate Judiciary Subcommittee held a one-day hearing in March on S 2461 and S 2462, which would make it a crime to attempt to influence the FCC and other regulatory agencies or to prematurely release their decisions. The bills were introduced during the first session following several executive sessions and public hearings on a leaked Civil Aeronautics Board decision.

During the March hearing—at a time when the Legislative Oversight FCC investigation was getting the headlines—Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.) hit the FCC for stagnating, at the time the bills were drafted, that leaks and influence were not problems at the Commission. In a later letter, the Commission claimed this was all a mistake and was not its position. The Commission was invited to testify at the Senate hearings but did not put in a personal appearance.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin (D-N.C.), subcommittee chairman, tabled the measures pending further study. He pointed out, as now drafted, S 2462 prevents Congressional contacts with the FCC and this may not be desirable. Following the Harris investigations, a raft of anti-influence bills varying degrees were introduced in both Houses of Congress. No action has been taken on any of them, but several proponents promised to reintroduce the legislation in the 86th Congress.

EDUCATIONAL TELEVISION

S 219, which would allocate up to $1 million to each state for educational TV, passed the Senate May 29 and was okayed by the House Commerce Committee last Wednesday (Aug. 13). It was scheduled to be reported to the full House last Friday or today (Aug. 18) and proponents are trying to get House action before adjournment.

Approval is not assured, however, as seven of 20 committee members voting last week were against reporting the measure. The bill was introduced in the spring of 1957 by Sen. Magnuson and received co-sponsorship from Sen. Bricker.

Senate Commerce hearings were held on the proposed 4 TV appropriation in April while the House committee held two days of hearings in mid-July. Five measures similar to the Magnuson bill were introduced in the House.

Proponents have announced plans to push for House passage of the bill prior to congressional adjournment, expected this week.

SECRETERY IN GOVERNMENT

The one bill passed into law affecting the industry in any way (and only slightly) concerned secrecy in government departments and agencies. The bill, HR 2767, amends a 1949 "housekeeping" statute to prevent its use as the basis for withholding information.

Introduced by Rep. John Moss (D-Calif.), the bill was okayed by his Information Subcommittee of the Government Operations Committee in March, following lengthy hearings during the first session. House approval came without serious opposition.

Also in March, the Senate Constitutional Rights Subcommittee held hearings on a companion bill (S 921) introduced by its chairman, Sen. Thomas Hennings (D-Mo.). The chairman took a verbal swipe at Attorney General William Rogers for alleged contradictions in his statements on the bill. (Mr. Rogers described the measure as needlessly.)

The Senate passed the Moss version July 31 and it was signed into law Aug. 12 by the President. News-gathering media were strong in their support of the one-sentence measure, but its effect on government secrecy is somewhat dubious. There still are some withholding statutes in effect which authorize secrecy of one kind or another.

The Moss bill was the first measure approved by the House Information Subcommittee in its three-year history. Messrs. Moss and Hennings, in pushing the bill, claimed government "bureaucrats" had cited the 1978 statute as authority for withholding information which should be released.

News media felt the new law was a step against unjustified secrecy on the part of government officials. NAB President Harold E. Fellows said in a telegram to President Eisenhower that the law was "a major contribution toward promoting a free flow of information between the government and the people."

TV RATING SERVICES

A one-man campaign against TV rating services was launched by Sen. A. S. (Mike) Monroney (D-Okla.). Under the aegis of the Senate Commerce Committee, Sen. Monroney held a one-day hearing on the subject in June with testimony from heads of six rating services.

And more still is to come. The Senator wants to question the network heads and others about what effect a rating has on a program's future and has received a go-ahead from Chairperson Magnuson. No date has been set because, it is understood, one important prospective witness cannot be reached by the committee. That date may be set this week, however.

Sen. Monroney maintains networks are offering poor, inferior programming because of rating results which, he said, hold a "life and death" clutch on the success or failure of a tv show. He also has been critical of the sample size and how taken.

ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGE ADVERTISING

As has been the case for the past 10 years, the 85th Congress listened to pleas of proponents of a bill which would ban alcoholic beverage advertisements from interstate commerce. Vehicle for the latest round was S 582, introduced by Sen. William Langer (R-N. D.).

Over 40 church leaders testified in favor of the bill during April Senate Commerce hearings while a large contingent of distillers, labor and communication media spokesmen were opposed. Just last Monday (Aug. 11), the Senate Commerce Committee turned down a motion to consider the bill and tabled it.

House Commerce Committee Chairman Harris, whose committee has held several hearings on liquor advertising in the past, declined this year on the grounds proponents had nothing new not already heard in Senate hearings. He was backed on this stand by an informal poll of the committee, which was faced with a tremendous workload in addition to investigations of the Oversight Subcommittee. HR 4835 (similar to the Langer measure), introduced by Rep. Eugene Siler (R-Ky.), is pending in the House Committee.

Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-N. Y.), outspoken in many ways on many things, took a verbal swipe at the NAB code ban on hard liquor advertising. He called broadcasters' refusal to accept liquor commercials "timid, pusillanimous and myopic."

The measure, however, is almost sure to be reintroduced next January.

BUICK, FORD, OLDSMOBILE FIRST TO UNVEIL PLANS FOR RADIO-TV

- First word released about promotion for new models
- Lincoln to carry N. Y. Philharmonic by videotape

Auto agencies and the broadcast media these past weeks have been eyeing Detroit nervously. Objects of the uncertainty: Automakers' delay in buying radio-TV support for the introduction of 1959 models.

Last week there were rumbles from Detroit. Initials were pointed to Buick, Lincoln-Continental and Oldsmobile among the first to be rolling out broadcast blueprints and schedules for their new models. Also developing was a further crystallization of Ford Div. plans.

LINCOLN-CONTINENTAL
Kenyon & Eckhardt

What is considered the prestige buy of the season—and obviously a daring pioneer venture for an auto maker in a soft market—was last week's order by Kenyon & Eckhardt on behalf of Ford's Lincoln Div. K&E bought Robert Saudek & Assoc.'s one-hour videotape package of the New York Philharmonic.

Featuring the new Thursday night Preview concerts at Carnegie Hall in New York by the Philharmonic's new musical director, Leonard Bernstein, the concert series is scheduled for Sunday afternoons starting in November and will be in the style of Mr. Bernstein's presentations on the Saudek-produced Omnibus on NBC-TV this season.

K&E has not selected a network for the new venture but all three networks admitted Thursday they are interested in the series and will have Sunday afternoon time available.

Both the Lincoln and Continental cars are to be advertised on the new series. Lincoln formerly shared billing with Ford's Mercury on the CBS-TV Ed Sullivan Show but has withdrawn. Mercury now is co-sponsor with Eastman Kodak Co.

Mr. Bernstein is recognized as one of the foremost exponents of music on television. The 65th major award given Omnibus was for Mr. Bernstein's contribution to serious music on tv via that program.

The new Thursday night Carnegie Hall Preview will have a usual concert subscription audience, but will be informal in program format in that Mr. Bernstein may interrupt the program extemporaneously to comment. The "preview" connotation comes from the plan to feature all or some of the concert stars who are scheduled for appearance on the regular Friday and Saturday night concerts.

Since the Thursday night concert will run more than an hour, Saudek Assoc. will either videotape a consecutive one-hour segment or edit portions of the full concert into the one-hour program. Cameras and tape facilities will be provided by the network obtaining the series, Mr. Saudek explained. Production technique is expected to pattern Mr. Saudek's live pickup of the Metropolitan Opera last fall on Omnibus, also a milestone for that institution.

Nothing was definite last week on spot activity for Lincoln or Mercury during the fall introduction period, but Kenyon & Eckhardt pointed out that it would be at least as heavy a campaign this year as last. Only radio spot is used. With introductions to come in early November, plans are not expected to be set until mid-September. The campaign last year ran 13 weeks in about 75 markets.

OLDSMOBILE
D. P. Brother

Oldsmobile, through D. P. Brother & Co., Detroit, is busy adding non-ABC-TV stations to bolster the full ABC-TV lineup it has ordered Oct. 1 for the Bing Crosby one-hour special, announced earlier. Its total broadcast budget this year is up "substantially." The plan is to saturate every dealer area where possible.

The General Motors car is switching Patti Page to ABC-TV Sept. 24, in the Wednesday 9:30-10 p.m. period, having sponsored the singer on CBS-TV this past year, partly on an alternate-week basis, on The Big Record. The ABC-TV live vehicle is styled The Patti Page Show. An extended station lineup also is planned for this series, to run through next summer with film repeats.

Oldsmobile is continuing its current daily five-minute radio show featuring Miss Page on 200 CBS Radio stations and, during the one-month new-model introduction period this fall on CBS Radio, is adding a daily five-minute newscast featuring Douglas Edwards.

Oldsmobile is using about the same spot schedule as last fall, buying four weeks of radio spot in top markets around the early October introduction date and placing a heavy tv campaign in top markets during introduction week.

BUICK
McCann-Erickson

Buick Div. of General Motors and its agency, McCann-Erickson, New York and Detroit, which has pushed back its introduction date from last year's Oct. 29 to mid-September (around Sept. 19), is one of the earliest among the automakers to unveil its new car.

The wraps on Buick's broadcast support also are tightly drawn. But much was learned about Buick, in addition to a formidable placement already announced for network tv, will support its new model with a spot radio splurge that is larger than last year. An agency spokesman spoke in terms of radio spot being double to three times the budget allocated last fall with the number of markets and stations increased appreciably. Orders already have gone through with the campaign set to kick off the middle of next month.

Buick last year did not use network radio. Plans this year include the medium. While no details were given, it was understood NBC Radio was to receive Buick business, reportedly five-minute programs to feature commercials by Bob Hope as a tie-in with Buick's schedule of spectaculars to be on NBC-TV in the fall.

Buick did not use spot tv last year and won't this year, though the agency points out that if the advertiser changes it mind, a "reserve" has been set aside. The Buick network tv schedule next season includes three specials set for NBC-TV (starring Bob Hope) in the fall with options for additional special shows, and half-hour Action Theatre for eight weeks on ABC-TV starting Aug. 22, and alternate weeks of Wells Fargo on NBC-TV (Mondays, 8-8:30 p.m.).

FORD
J. Walter Thompson

It was learned last week that Ford Div. of Ford Motor Co. is increasing its weekend segments of the Ford Roadshow on CBS Radio from the current six to about 10. Radio spot plans to coincide with the Ford car's introduction (end of October this year compared to early November last year) have not yet been cleared. Spot tv is "up in the air," reports J. Walter Thompson, Ford's agency.

Anticipated was Ford's plan to salvage a portion of its CBS Radio package [CLOSED CIRCUIT, July 28] by retaining the weekend segments, but there had been no indications that Ford would increase the number of segments. CBS Radio reportedly has advertisers ready to fill the weekday gaps left open. Ford has slimmed its network tv lineup [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, July 28].

Attention: Mr. Lyell Bremser

So many people have called me to tell me of your forthright editorials, and the informative approach you make in your editorials, that I simply had to write to you to say "Thank You"!

My experience in City Government has taught me that "communication" is one of our most urgent problems. To get our story across to the people—to get the facts instead of opinions (many not based on facts) before our citizens—is a tremendous job.

If I could sit down with each of our 300,000 citizens and tell them what our new Government has done in the brief space of a little over one year, Omaha would have 300,000 boosters! This being impossible, I am especially grateful for any news medium that helps us get the facts before our people. This you are doing as evidenced by the many, many people who have called or visited with me. Hence this letter.

You are rendering a real service—my sincere thanks!

A. V. S.

P.S. If you personally would listen to me some day, I would surely appreciate it. Our story is one of which I am tremendously proud. Our new Government is doing everything good our new Charter promised!

TIDE TOPS NETWORK TV SPENDERS

- P&G detergent takes honors for June, second quarter
- Three P&G brands place in quarter's top 25 sponsors

The top money brand in network tv time charges in June and in the year's second quarter was Procter & Gamble's Tide detergent. P&G allocated $740,175 in June and more than $2 million over the second quarter on behalf of Tide.

Network advertiser spending estimates in television were released last week by the Television Bureau of Advertising based on a report by Leading National Advertisers and Broadcast Advertising Reports. Included in the data were network tv gross time billings by day parts for June and January-June; estimated expenditures of the top 15 network tv advertisers in June and of the top 25 in the second quarter, of the top 15 by brand in June and of 25 for the second quarter, and of network advertisers by product classification for June, January-June and the second quarter.

The next four brand leaders in the second quarter were R. J. Reynolds Tobacco's Winston cigarettes, Whitehall's Anacin, General Motors' Chevrolet automobile and Brown & Williamson's Viceroy cigarettes, in that order. The same brands were tops for June ranking in this order (after Tide): Chevrolet, Winston, Anacin and Viceroy.

Analyzing the 25 leading network tv brands in the second quarter, seven advertisers had two or more products among the brand leaders. P&G with three brands, led other advertisers. P&G products were detergents Tide and Cheer and toothpaste Gleem. Out of the other six advertisers, four are tobacco firms—R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. (Winston and Camel); Liggett & Myres Tobacco Co. (L&M filter tips and Chesterfield); P. Lorillard Co. (Kent and Old Gold), and American Tobacco Co. (Pall Mall and Hit Parade)—and the other two are auto companies—General Motors (Chevrolet and Oldsmobile) and Chrysler (Dodge and Plymouth). P&G also walked away with spending leadership in the categories of top network advertiser for June and for the second quarter. The Cincinnati-based advertiser came in with more than $4.3 million in June, the nearest contender, General Foods, that month hit a little over $1.8 million; and a little more than $13 million for the second quarter, or about 2 1/2 times the expenditure of runner-up General Motors.

The lineup of the top 15 network tv advertisers for both May and June was similar, with these exceptions: Brown & Williamson and Liggett & Myers, which appeared in May, did not show in June, and Sterling Drug and General Mills, two advertisers in the top 15 for June, did not appear in May.

In the breakdown into day parts of network tv billing: nighttime gross time charges went up 13.1% in June and 14.8% for January-June, while daytime gross continued an increase for the Monday-Friday segment in June but dipped 15.2% that month Saturdays and Sundays (though cumulatively the daytime weekend gross was up 7.2% for the six months).

In product categories, foods and food products have already passed well over the $50 million mark at mid-year, and in fact, toiletries and toilet goods, runner-up to foods, at the midpoint of the year were just a shade under the foods pace.

Other heavyweight product categories: smoking materials, soaps and cleansers, medicines-proprietary remedies and automobiles-automotive accessories-equipment.

BROADCASTING
Season ticket on the bench

They say Chic Harley started it. From the day Ohio State's first All-American shattered the Michigan jinx, Central Ohioans have shared an insatiable, almost ferocious, sports appetite. It isn't really true that our natives request burial out near Ohio Stadium, but nowhere else are sports paths so heavily traveled.

That's why WBNS-TV provides reserved seats for major league baseball, football, hockey, racing and a string of special events. That's why "Coach of the Year" Woody Hayes is in his eighth season with us and Don Mack, a crusty, individualistic hunter and fisherman is now in his tenth year "Outdoors" on Channel 10.

The roof nearly blew off the weekend of the state high school basketball finals. 200,000 fans wanted 13,500 seats. WBNS-TV, as a matter of course, cancelled a clutch of prime network time and spot billing to carry the games. When our underdog North High kids broke Middletown’s 76-game victory string, we were delirious. When they lost the finals in double overtime, we just didn’t feel like talking about it.

Sometime remind us to show you all those nice letters from folks who appreciated our part in the affair. Response such as this is warmer than coin to a station that enjoys perfect rapport with its Central Ohio neighbors. It also motivates Madison Avenue to say with authority, "If you want to be seen in Central Ohio—WBNS-TV.”

Excise Tax Proposal Brings AFA Protest

The advertising Federation of America last week called on all members and manufacturers to protest the contemplated Internal Revenue Service ruling which it claimed, endangers the annual $2 billion cooperative advertising budget.

The appeal was made in the Aug. 12 Legislative Report of AFA, signed by Jim Proud, president and general manager.

The IRS proposal—which would reverse a 20-year policy—would require any manufacturer to figure his excise tax on the cost of making an article, including any allowances for co-op advertising. Up to now, co-op advertising allowances have been exempted from this figuring.

Not only would this change cost manufacturers $15-$20 million extra in excise taxes yearly, the AFA bulletin stated, but manufacturers would probably reduce co-op allowances, abandon them altogether or pass the increased costs along to the consumer in the form of higher prices.

Co-op advertising accounts for 20% of all advertising expenditures, AFA said. Leading manufacturers in the automobile, appliance, food and clothing fields use co-op advertising extensively, AFA stated, citing these examples: Philco, in 1956, allotted $10 million of its $25 million ad budget to co-op; GE spent $9 million for co-op and $6 million for national advertising in 1956; Norge spent $10 million out of a total $13 million ad budget for co-op in 1957.

Last May industry witnesses objected to the proposed re-interpretation of the co-op advertising policy in a hearing held by IRS [GOVERNMENT, June 2].

The Senate last week passed an excise tax bill which made no change in the 10% excise tax on tv receivers, notwithstanding several bills calling for deletion of the excise tax on uhf or all-brand tv receivers in order to help uhf broadcasting. The Senate turned down a bid to lower the cabaret tax from 20% to 10%, but it exempted the first $1 in movie admission tax.

National Spot Over Top
For First Six Months '58

Radio's national spot billing for the first six months of this year rose 7.8% above the same period a year ago, reaching an estimated $93,574,000, Lawrence Webb, managing director of Station Representatives Assn., reported last week.

He said it was the highest first-half total ever recorded in national spot radio. (The figure for the first half of 1957 was $86,770,000.) Mr. Webb saw "strong indications" that the second half of this year would exceed the first-half total and raise the year's overall gain past the 10% mark. A 10% boost on top of last year's record $183,987,000 would bring the 1958 total to more than $202 million.

The SRA estimates are based on reports by SRA member firms as audited by Price Waterhouse & Co., accounting firm. Mr. Webb noted that these estimates in the past have come "within a fractional percentage" of actual figures subsequently released by FCC.

SRA figures placed national spot radio billings for the first quarter of 1958 at $46,171,000, up 4% from the comparable period of 1957. For the second quarter the estimate was $47,407,000, an 11% increase over the second quarter of last year.

Special Lestoil Promotion Gets Results in Evansville

Adell Chemical Co., Holyoke, Mass., a $5 million spot tv advertiser responsible for the Lestoil detergent tv success story was, delighted last week on two counts:

* A uhf station—WEHT (TV) Evansville, Ind.—showed the advertiser what a promotion-merchandising campaign can do to boost Lestoil, whose business already is booming.

* A promotion-convention—Young Television Corp.—had set forth a hard sell concept via tv and pre-conditioning of distribution arteries before the tv campaign for an advertiser that believes in placing its television first and then forcing distribution.

Adell's management visited Evansville Monday (Aug. 11), the day WEHT was to carry out a marketing concept it had created with the help of Young Television. Adell's president, J. L. Barowsky, Mrs. Barowsky and other Lestoil management were guests of the station. As part of the marketing plan, a Monday promotion featured a telecast of special events set up specially for the Lestoil people with on-air interviews of Mr. and Mrs. Barowsky and others. Leading local distributors (chain stores, supermarkets, drug store chains etc.) who would handle Lestoil also attended. Evansville's mayor proclaimed Monday "Lestoil Day" and was an active participant.

Lestoil agreed to place its spots on the one station for one month exclusively before its campaigns started on the other stations in Evansville. It traditionally buys 2 to week spot runs on all stations in a tv market. During the month, WEHT is running its special promotion. Included are a two-week trip of the campaign with radio and tv mentions, newspapers and billboard etc.; a "Lestoil Day," a "Lestoil Week" and a "Lestoil Month." Along with this, a contest was run among dealers offering an all-expense trip to Florida as a prize for the one with the best Lestoil display.

An original budget of about $600 weekly had been set for the Evansville area but the budget for WEHT alone went to $474. Adding purchases on the other stations the Lestoil weekly budget for Evansville exceeds $1,000 for the market.

ANA to Take Up International Ads

A special one-day session taking up problems of international advertising has been scheduled for Sept. 25 in New York by the Asso. of National Advertisers. William H. Collins, advertising and sales promotion manager of Standard Vacuum Oil Co., a committee chairman, explained to members that the session is being called to examine the subject of international advertising "in depth" since so many ANA members have expressed concern about a lack of knowledgge on international ad strategy. The session will be held at the Sheraton-East (Ambassodor) Hotel in Manhattan.

Cyanamid Back Again For TV Farm Newsreel

A national advertiser that gave tv a tumble for the first time last winter is coming back for more starting next month.

The advertiser is Farm & Home Div. of American Cyanamid Co., New York, and among the largest chemical companies in the U. S. The program: a 15-minute newsreel show, Cyanamid Farm Newsreel, which the division sponsored on some 60 stations covering a major part of the market area for Cyanamid's Aureomycin, an antibiotic used on the farm as a feed supplement to promote growth and health in animals and as a medicant to prevent and control diseases in livestock and poultry.

The program ran initially for 13 weeks starting Feb. 14 [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, Jan. 20]. As described then by the company and its agency, Cunningham & Walsh, New York, the series was "the first nationally syndicated television newsreel designed for a farm audience."

The renewal for mid-September calling for approximately the same number of stations represents an outlay of approximately $250,000 in time and talent for the 13 weeks.

Major source of the film used is Hearst Metronome News' Telenews. The shows, which make use of spot news coverage, Agriculture Dept. news reports on livestock and various features, this fall will also stress tie-ins with universities and agricultural schools. The series is co-produced (Telenews and Cunningham & Walsh); executive producer is Tom DeHuff, tv account executive, Cunningham & Walsh.

Most of the shows last spring were shown on Friday, Saturday or Sunday in time periods falling generally between noon and 1 p.m., or between 6 and 7 p.m., and covered rural areas of the U. S.

Bayuk Buys NBC-TV Package; Cigars to Get Year-Round Exposure

Bayuk Cigars Inc. Philadelphia, has bought a year-round sports package for Phillies and other brands on approximately 128 NBC-TV-affiliated stations, E. Archie Mishkin, Bayuk president, has announced.

The package, reportedly the largest network tv buy by a cigar manufacturer, includes co-sponsorship of the complete NBC-TV major league baseball schedule, the Sugar Bowl, Senior Bowl and nine National Collegiate Athletic Assn.-football games, 22 National Basketball Assn. games and the National Invitational College basketball tournaments. The package kicks off Sept. 20 with the Missouri vs. Vanderbilt football game. The NBA games will be on 22 Sunday and Monday evenings beginning Oct. 11.

The NBC-TV sports package is in addition to Bayuk's annual radio-tv co-sponsorship of several major league baseball con-

Soule Devises Rating Format For Local or National Data

Frank Soule, motion picture veteran formerly with National Telefilm Assoc., said last week he had devised a new rating service which would operate on assignment only and could be national, regional or local in scope, according to the client's needs.

He said he had made arrangements with Certified Reports Inc. whereby that company's 3,000 staff people in the field would conduct telephone interviews to get ratings on any program a client might select. The Certified Reports field personnel are located in cities throughout the country and ratings will be made in one or more markets as well as nationally.

The individual reports would be submitted to Mr. Soule on special cards which he has copyrighted, for quick processing by electronic computer machines. He estimated he would be able to deliver national ratings in seven days and local ratings within 48 hours. Prices remain to be worked out, but he said they would be on a cost plus basis. Mr. Soule said he may be reached at Certified Reports Inc., 1501 Broadway, New York.

KTLA (TV) Telecopter to Star In $15,000 L. A. Movie Campaign

This first Telecopter coverage of a movie premiere will be the highlight of a $15,000 week-long radio-tv campaign for the premiere by United Artists through Marty Weiser Co., Beverly Hills agency.

More than 1,000 spot announcements will run on eight Los Angeles radio stations—KABC, KDAL (Santa Monica), KJH,

Cracking the bear market

As a means of introducing its new 18-ounce, family-size package of Wheat Chex, the Ralston-Purina Co., St. Louis, will utilize an "offbeat" commercial featuring a Northwest Mounted policeman who likes the cereal and a bear, who, fortunately, is also a fan.

The commercial, which will be carried on Ralston's sponsorship of ABC-TV's Bold Journey (Monday, 8:30-9 p.m., NYT), starting Sept. 22, was created by the company's agency, Guild, Bascom & Bonfigli, San Francisco, and filmed by Wayne Steffner Productions, Hollywood. Dan Lindquist was the agency producer and Courtenay Moon, creative chief of GB&B, was script supervisor. Fred Gaddette was director for Steffner. The commercial opens with the Royal Mountie (enacted by announcer Lee Marvin) praising Wheat Chex in verse and song. Suddenly his exultation is broken by a growl and a large bear strolls out of a cave behind the Mountie.

"The Mountie: "Well here! Have some more!" (Hands bear lots of Wheat Chex and the animal grins.)

...seeking the hidden ingredient

We have never been content to provide buyers with only the obvious facts and figures about our stations and the markets in which they operate. From the day H-R was started by a group of Working Partners, we have sought for the “hidden ingredient” that distinguishes each station and makes it a more logical selection for important schedules.

The value of this persistent research and continuing market study takes on added significance at H-R, because all of the Working Partners and the men on our staff, have the experience and ability to interpret these findings into extra service for time buyers and into extra sales for our stations.

NEW D'ARCY ACCOUNT: NEHI CORP. BUSINESS

- Old billing peak regained
- Nehi likely to stay in spot

D'Arcy Adv., St. Louis, which suffered a sharp reversal in early 1956 when it lost the $15 million Coca-Cola account, has moved steadily ahead since that date. Last week, D'Arcy acquired the $3 million account of the Nehi Corp. (soft drinks), Columbus, Ga., to bring its billing even with the approximate $57 million peak attained in 1955.

The broadcast-conscious Nehi account was resigned by Compton Adv., New York, several weeks ago [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, Aug. 4] in a disagreement over "basic policy decisions." Nehi products include Royal Crown Cola, Nehi Flavor and Par-T-Pak beverages.

Media plans for Nehi have not been set although radio and tv are expected to play a major role. During the three years the account was at Compton, an approximate $25,000,000 annual budget (billings go up $500,000 this year) was spent this way: 80% in radio-tv spot and 20% in newspapers. This formula is expected to continue since Nehi is reported to have "a fairly satisfactory sales picture." Though the company is nationwide, its distribution is centered mainly in the Midwest, the South, and, to a slighter extent, on the Pacific Coast. It has fewer outlets in the Northeast.

The account will be handled out of D'Arcy's New York and Atlanta offices. Frank Weber of New York will be account supervisor and M. L. Boyd of Atlanta will be account executive.

Nehi has received presentations from several agencies over an eight-week period. The account selection was conducted by W. H. Glenn, Nehi president, and Samuel Harned, an advertising consultant.

D'Arcy will service the parent franchiser and its 460 bottlers in the U. S. and abroad.

It was understood that a strong contributing factor in the selection of D'Arcy was its long association with the soft drink industry. D'Arcy handled Coca-Cola 49 years until the account transferred to McCann-Erickson in March 1956.

D'Arcy is regarded as one of "the hot-test" agencies in new business acquisitions. The agency obtained the $5 million Studebaker-Packard account several weeks ago [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, Aug. 4] although no official announcement was made and last January it acquired the $2 million Hallo account. In the past 18 months it has gained a string of medium-sized accounts which has enabled the agency to recover from the $15 million Coca-Cola defection. These include Bigelow-Sanford carpets, portions of General Dynamics activities, Doyle Inc. (dog food), Ralston-Purina Latin American advertising, and Reddi-Wip in Canada.

Stripe Free Time Bid Claims Good Response

The Pepsi-Ad Div. of Lever Bros. claims it is getting favorable response to its request of select radio (and tv) stations for an "open spot" to talk about its Stripe toothpaste.

The Pepsi-Ad solicitation for free time was revealed in a letter sent to stations by John M. Williams, brand publicity manager for Spre [Closed Circuit, Aug. 11]. Mr. Williams, noting that Spre is being introduced in the market writes, "The thought occurs that you might have an open spot to discuss this colorful new weapon against tooth decay on one of your shows" in a specified weekly period in August.

Contacted at the Lever House in New York, Mr. Williams acknowledged Spre's practice of asking for time on broadcast stations and space in newspapers in introductory markets. But, he added, Lever buys time and, moreover, finds that where Lever has been permitted to tell its story for the product on unpaid time, the impact has been great—a credit for the broadcast media.

Though Lever's Spre Div. ostensibly is not holding a club over anybody's head, the advertiser is very active in the broadcast media. But, as one peeved station official wrote Mr. Williams: "In view of the fact that following an eminently successful radio campaign, your company abandoned radio in favor of tv . . . it seems to me that your request for free time to extol the merits of Spre is destined to use your own word . . . colorful." The official pointed out that certain competitive toothpastes are consistent users of the station and that it would be a "bit awkward" for the station to donate time to a non-user.

The station was referring to the Spre switch of its multi-million-dollar radio spot schedule for Spre toothpaste to spot tv [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, March 3]. In that changeover Spre suddenly cancelled its radio spots which ran in as many as 200 markets and moved rapidly to install tonnage use of spot tv (largely ID's).

The turnabout aroused a segment of the radio industry including several station representatives and the Radio Advertising Bureau.

Spre, a new Spre toothpaste that actually is striped pink and white, has a spearmint flavor and contains hexachlorophene (claimed as a bacteria killer), was introduced late last fall. By winter, the toothpaste was receiving a tv test in two unidentified cities. [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, Jan. 29] Late in the spring after six months of print media-only introduction, Stripe fanned out to about half the country's selling areas. At this time, spot tv—a "substantial" schedule—was brought in to augment the Stripe drive [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, June 16]. Stripe does not use spot radio.

The two toothpastes are handled by different agencies: Stripe by J. Walter Thompson Co., New York, and Pepsodent by Foote, Cone & Belding, also New York.

Asked about Pepsodent's bid for free plugs, a J. Walter Thompson spokesman expressed ignorance but observed that many companies do this through public relations or publicity channels.

According to Mr. Williams' request, the Stripe brand manager was putting together an itinerary of open spots on station schedules. Idea: he would talk about Stripe—a dentifrice with a bacteria destroyer; about tooth care—Stripe makes it more fun for youngsters; and "even reveal how the stripes are put on Stripe.'

EWR&R Publishes Newsletter

As a means of improving communications both within the agency and among its clients, Erwin Wasey, Ruthrauff & Ryan Inc. last week issued the first edition of EWR&R News, a newsletter summarizing developments at the agency over the past few months. The agency plans to issue the newsletter every four to six weeks and distribute it both internally and to a selected list of clients and to prospective clients. The first issue included information on the 11 new accounts at EWR&R since mid-April, an article on economic trends and their effects on various media and an essay on the application of social science to marketing and advertising.

PERCENTAGE IN COOK BOOK SPOT?

A major print-media combine plans to take a new and heavier plunge into spot television this fall. But once again it will not be at rates even through it is spending $100,000 on production of the filmed "commercials." Instead it proposes to reimburse "cooperating" stations on a modified per-inquiry basis.

The "sponsor" is Consolidated Book Publishers, a subsidiary of a sprawling midwest printing empire, Book Production Industries Inc., Chicago. By arrangement with Hearst Corp., Consolidated is acting as sales and distribution agent for a series of 20 paper-bound cook books sold through supermarkets, chain and independent grocery stores at 29 cents each. The books are edited by the staff of Good Housekeeping magazine and bear that publication's well-known "seal of approval." Though Consolidated claims ownership of the books, Hearst maintains full copyright.

Hearst uses the printing and production facilities of Consolidated-affiliated Cuneo Press (John F. Cuneo Co.) for its numerous magazines and American Weekly Sunday newspaper supplement. Hearst only recently sold its GH booklets to Consolidated.

 Consolidated also will use newspapers on a percentage basis to move its newly-acquired cook books.

This is how the plan will work. Representatives pf Consolidated—probably the field sales staff of Family Weekly Sunday newspaper supplement, another sister division—will approach station managers (or newspaper executives, as the case may be) with this proposition: Advertise the Good Housekeeping booklets and thereby win additional grocery store advertising revenue. Should the station be willing, its salesmen will talk to local or regional store managers, seek their cooperation and perhaps persuade them to buy time (cooperative with food distributors) on the premise that "people just don't go to your store to pick up the booklets we advertise; they'll surely buy food stuffs, etc."

With the groceries stocking and displaying the booklets, the station need not be concerned with mailing out the booklets from its premises; but it will keep tabs on the number sold. In return for its efforts (and time), stations are to receive an estimated 6% of the total retail sales on the books—of roughly, 1½ to 2 cents per book. The grocers will be paid with 20-25% of guaranteed sales and the publisher agrees to take back all unsold issues at the close of each promotion. (There being 20 books, it is expected there will be 20 individual promotions.)

To head off what could be an "unfair scramble" (and to properly gauge media impact), Consolidated is understood to be using only one media outlet per market—tv or newspaper—but will, "in certain instances," use multi-media facilities "where it's been fully worked out to mutual satisfaction of all parties concerned."

Hearst officials maintained that they are not contributing toward media payments and said that their only interest in the booklets is limited to "copyright and editorial matters." Fred Lewis, vice president and general manager of Hearst Magazine Div., declined to specify the working arrangement between his firm and Consolidated, nor would he disclose purchase price. Consolidated officials, contacted in Chicago last week, said they saw "nothing unusual" in this type of promotion and claimed they have been doing it "for a long time." But they noted that any discussion of the newest campaign at this time would be "decidedly premature."

Consolidated sales vice president Walter C. Dreyfus said his firm had been using tv stations in "similar promotions" since 1947. Prior to taking over the 20 Good Housekeeping books, Consolidated had been promoting two of its own publications, also dealing with culinary skills and also retailing in grocery emporiums for 29 cents.

Consolidated is "not ready" to talk of duration, but it was learned that initially the campaign is set for 23 weeks in about 100 markets, with kick-off date planned for this fall about the end of September or early October.

Asked whether Consolidated had run into station resistance or had been told by stations to purchase the time at card rate, Mr. Dreyfus said not yet.

A Consolidated official in New York expressed surprise that such thought should even arise. He said, “I don’t see why there should be any complaints—after all, the end result is not actually what a station earns today but what it earns tomorrow.”

Explaining, this executive asserted, “This is a great talking point for station management; they can offer clear-cut and concise proof that it was their message and theirs only that moved the books. A prospective local advertiser, I would think, would be much more impressed with this kind of statistical fact than by promises of audience delivery. Our promotion is a tool with which to pry out additional advertising business.”

Consolidated—its parent firm and subsidiaries—uses no radio-tv. Two other divisions of the Midwest printing combine—Family Weekly (featured in 179 newspapers claiming a total readership of 4.5 million) and Suburbia Today (a new color tabloid insert for daily and Sunday newspapers, scheduled to bow this fall)—use newspaper-oriented trade magazines for their advertising programs. Unlike Hearst’s Good Housekeeping magazine, they employ neither air medium as a means of promoting themselves. Good Housekeeping, via Grey Adv., New York, is understood to be the only Hearst publication to make consistent use of radio-tv as a circulation builder.

Commercial production on the filmed tv commercials was by Wylde Studios Inc., New York. The commercials are filmed to be adapted to local cut-ins and come in 248 different storyboards. Star of the commercial is model-actress Lou Prentis; the producer is Fred Levinson, co-owner of Wylde, and script is by Frank Macauley, a freelance radio and television promotion specialist.

SUMMER PUNCH • Pacific Hawaiian RANGER IDENTIFIED

The most familiar phrase in America today is the Lone Ranger’s “Hi- Yo, Silver,” George Gallup, director, American Institute of Public Opinion, reports. The fact comes from a poll by the institute that asked Americans if they could identify individuals out of past and present “history” from the phrases they had uttered. Pollsters found that the next best-known phrases are Mae West’s “Come up and see me sometime” and Gen. Douglas MacArthur’s “Old Soldiers never die—they just fade away.” The Lone Ranger is celebrating its 25th anniversary on radio-tv this year. The tv program is aired by 158 ABC-TV or CBS-TV stations weekly.

BIG ECONOMY LINEUP Cuts Costs—NBC-TV

• New Nielsen study cited
• Case made for reduced C-P-M

The more stations an advertiser buys, the less he pays—per thousand homes reached. That's the thesis of a special research study by NBC-TV. The idea: To get NBC advertisers to increase their station lineups.

"Study after study has established the fact that as an NBC advertiser increases his program lineup to the maximum number of stations," the report asserts, "he has an advantage not only in reaching more homes but also in a decreasing cost-per-thousand. An investigation of Nielsen data demonstrated this and showed in practically all cases a 2-1 advantage of the increased delivered audience over the increased cost."

As one example, the study cited Sandura's 60-station lineup on the daytime Price Is Right: "By expanding the lineup to include the 135 NBC stations carrying the program, the audience increased 64% and the cost increased only 37%. The additional 75 stations lowered the cost-per-thousand per commercial minute to $1.19 from Sandura's cost-per-thousand per commercial minute of $1.42. These additional Monday, April 6, 1959, has been set as the date of the 31st annual Academy Awards ceremonies of the Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences, Academy President George Stevens announced. The Monday date was set, he said, in deference to theatre operators who complained that the traditional Wednesday evening cut into their midweek ticket sales.

The motion picture industry will again sponsor the awards telecast on NBC-TV, picking up the costs of more than $500,000 in order to keep the event centered on motion pictures throughout, without interruption by commercials of an outside advertiser.

stations were bought at a cost-per-thousand per commercial minute of $0.83." Using ratings data compiled by the Nielson company for the full complement of NBC-TV stations, the network research department prepared figures on cost-per-thousand per commercial minute (C-M-CM) for the average daytime quarter-hour and the average nighttime half-hour.

The C-M-CM for the average daytime quarter-hour program was $1.68 if the station lineup was limited to the 59 basic stations; it dropped to $1.54 if 20 other stations were added, to $1.48 if the total were raised to 99 stations, to $1.43 for 119 stations, to $1.41 for 137, and to $1.38 for 189 stations. At the same time the Nielsen average audience went from 2,719,000 homes with the 59-station lineup to 4,408,000 homes with 189 stations.

For the average nighttime half-hour the C-M-CM ranged from $4.41 for the 59-station basic group down to $3.53 with the full network of 189 stations. The average audience meanwhile increased from 6,015,000 homes to 9,229,000 homes through expansion to the full network.

In a specific example, the study showed that Sterling Drug, whose C-M-CM on a 100-station Price Is Right daytime lineup was $0.87, could get this figure down to $0.85 by increasing to 137 stations (9% gain in audience for 7% gain in cost, with C-M-CM for the 37 additional stations totaling $0.65). (Sterling Drug not only was impressed by these figures but went even further and expanded its lineup for fall to include the full network, according to NBC authorities.)

The research study cited a number of other specific programs to show that their advertisers, by increasing station lineups, could add substantially to the number of homes reached—with the cost-per-thousand for these additional homes in all cases running well below the C-P-M for the existing lineup. The study used audience data for last fall and winter, in anticipation of this fall's selling season.

CBS PROFITS RUN AHEAD OF RCA

• Midyear report shows CBS net of $27.3 million

• RCA leads, however, after allowing for federal taxes

For the first time, CBS Inc. in the first half of 1958 surpassed RCA in net profits (before federal income tax).

The CBS midyear report (see below) shows a pre-income-tax net of $27,287,556 on total sales and revenues (after discounts) of $201,433,378. RCA's report, issued in July, showed a net of $27,088,000 (before federal income taxes) on a total of $542,554,000 [MANUFACTURING, July 28].

After provision for federal income taxes, RCA's net profits are still ahead of CBS Inc. by a little more than $1 million. RCA allocated half its pre-tax net to federal income tax ($13,544,000), so its net profit also came out to that figure. CBS allocated $14,766,000, leaving $12,521,556 as net profit.

Both companies pointed out in their statements that the figures are subject to year-end adjustments and audit. In addition, RCA noted specifically that its net profits figures "are necessarily based in part on approximations." It also noted that starting last Jan. it figured depreciation of "certain standard manufacturing facilities" on the straight-line rather than an accelerated basis and that this results in a reduction of depreciation charges by $500,000 per quarter after income tax in 1958.

The consolidated net income of CBS Inc. for the first half of 1958 totaled $12,521,556, up $2.3 million from the $10,199,193 recorded in the same period of 1957, board chairman William S. Paley announced at a board meeting last Wednesday.

The total was described as a record six-months figure.

Net revenues and sales, also said to represent a six-month record, were pegged at $201,433,378 as compared to $186,798,814 in the first half of 1958.

First-half earnings were equivalent to $1.59 per share, as against $1.33 per share for the same period of 1957. Per share earnings, it was explained, were calculated on the average number of shares outstanding during the respective six-month periods

'Rowhide' Bites Dust at CBS-TV When Sponsor Fails to Turn Up

There'll be one less western on tv next season—at least for the first 13 weeks. Scratched at CBS-TV: Charles Marquis Warren's Rowhide, originally scheduled for Mondays, 7:30-8:30 p.m. effective Sept. 29. The hour-long "adult western" reportedly had been close to finding a buyer—Reynolds Metals Co.—but at the last minute, Reynolds bought full sponsorship of ABC-TV's Walt Disney Presents on an alternate-week basis [ADVERTISERS & AGENCIES, Aug. 4]. Finding no new takers, CBS-TV last week confirmed it would be dropping Rowhide, but indicated it would once again make it available to advertisers after the first of the year.

In its place, CBS-TV will schedule two half-hour programs, Name That Tune, a perennial musical quiz that has had no difficulty in past seasons finding interested bankrollers; the 8-8:30 p.m. slot as of Thursday (Aug. 14) was still unfilled.

While reasoning that on Mondays two half-hour programs should have less trouble finding advertisers than an hour series, CBS-TV is adopting a different philosophy towards Wednesdays. There, it has withdrawn two-hour film entries—Official Films' The Invisible Man (8-8:30 p.m.) and Ziv's World of Giants (8:30-9 p.m.)—and will instead attempt to lure sponsors with a live, hour-long series titled Pursuit.

ABC-TV Regional Meets Open: Affiliates Learn of Promotion

The first of a series of two-day regional meetings is being held by ABC-TV in New York's Hotel Warwick beginning today (Aug. 18). The schedule continues with meetings at Chicago's Hotel Sheraton-Blackstone (Aug. 21, 22); Statler-Hilton, Dallas (Aug. 25, 26); Sheraton Palace, San Francisco (Aug. 28, 29). It is expected that representatives of more than 70 ABC-TV affiliates will attend the sessions on exploitation-publicity-promotion advertising.

"During the past season, ABC-TV affiliates staged some of the most successful promotion, publicity and exploitation campaigns in the history of the industry," Michael J. Foster, vice president in charge of press information for the network, said, adding, "we believe that these sessions will help provide an exchange of ideas as well as fresh ideas for the stations and the network, which can be translated into even more successful promotion for the 1958-59 season." Mr. Foster will attend the New York and Chicago meetings; Ernest Stern, director of press information for the network, will attend the western division, which takes part in the Dallas and San Francisco meetings. Sid Mesibov, network director of exploitation, and Dean Linger, director of advertising and promotion, will attend all four sessions.
Civil War Spectaculars Discussed by ABC, WB

One hundred years after the Civil War, that noted conflict will be fought again—only this time, on television.

It was understood that there was no connection between the American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres board of directors and the Civil War. But they did not know that the networks were interested in televising the Civil War.

CLEAR OPPOSE FCC Duplication, WANT Power Hike on 20 Stations

- Clear Channel Bstg. Service repeats 750 kw request
- CBS, Westinghouse, WGN, KSL, others file comments

Early comments last week in the FCC's proposed rule-making to duplicate 12 Class I-A am clear channels were preponderantly against the FCC proposal. Deadline was last Friday (Aug. 15). For other comments see Aug. Deadline.

Making a strong case for higher power—up to 750 kw—for clear channel stations were Clear Channel Broadcasting Service, CBS, Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. and WGN Chicago. These opposed the FCC proposed rule-making, along with NBC, KSL Salt Lake City, the National Grange and American Farm Bureau Federation. WCH (Campaign Hill) favored the proposal with reservations. The National Assn. of Educational Broadcasters didn't think educational needs were considered by the FCC, and Ralph J. Bitzer, consulting engineer, had some ideas of his own.

The FCC's rule-making plan—issued last April [L & D Stories, April 21, 1958]—proposed (1) that five of the 12 Class I-A channels would have a second 50 kw station assigned—in specified western areas; and (2) that all 12 of the Class I-A frequencies would be opened for fulltime Class II stations. The FCC postponed a decision on whether the remaining 12 Class I-A channels should be allowed to boost power above the present 50 kw limitation.

CCBS COMMENTS

Clear Channel Broadcasting Service reiterated its "20-station plan" calling for removal of the present 50 kw power limitation and authorization of similar power increase on 12 Class I-A clear-channel stations and on at least four I-B clear-channel stations; namely, those used by WBZ Boston and KOA Denver and KNBC and KGO San Francisco (or any other two I-B stations on the Pacific Coast). It asked for power increases to at least 750 kw for the dominant stations on these channels.

CCBS also asked removal of the 50 kw limitation and authorization of similar power increases on the remaining Class I-A channels and on other I-B channels to the extent permitted by international, engineering and economic factors.

Skywave service from the latter group of stations would be protected and used to serve areas not served adequately under the 20-station plan or for other service where needed, CCBS said.

CCBS also asked for boosts of maximum power for stations on regional and local channels to expand groundwave service—particularly in the daytime—within international, engineering and economic limitations.

The FCC should consider changing the four I-B stations suggested in the CCBS plan to I-A outlets or else establish two subclasses of I-Bs, one with 750 kw maximum and the other 50 kw maximum, or a combination thereof, CCBS said.

CCBS said the advantages of the plan are that:

(1) it can be put into effect in the immediate future with minimum upset in the present allocations structure and offers no untrodden or long-range expedients of difficult outcome, plus being technically and economically feasible.

(2) while not perfect, it goes a "long way" toward remedying the inadequacy of broadcast service in the U. S. It would extend primary service into large areas presently underserved and would greatly improve primary service for vast areas day and night, both in signal strength and choice of signals. At night the entire country would benefit from a choice of four program services of good or satisfactory grade.

(3) it will protect American broadcasting against demands and interests threatened by other North American countries.

CCBS submitted exhibits to show that while the number of am stations increased from 1,339 to 1,875 from 1947 to 1957 this had no significant effect on the extent of white areas. Another exhibit indicated that when channels were reduced, the population in the remaining areas increased from 23,252,200 to 25,631,259. Other exhibits showed the extent of listenership to clear channel stations from audiences in remote areas.

CCBS said the question of duplication of channels can be considered only after the high-powered frequencies are reserved and given the first number the localities of high-powered stations so as to provide a distribution of at least four program services. After this, it can be determined to what extent channels might be duplicated, day and night, to fill in daytime white areas with groundwave service and provide nighttime groundwave service to as many people as possible. CCBS said not one Class I-A channel should be duplicated until the dominant stations have been authorized to increase to 750 kw.

CBS RADIO COMMENTS

CBS Radio agreed with FCC that service improvements can be attained best by duplicating some clear channels and by increasing the power of clear channel stations. But it questioned the Commission's proposed method, wondered about the effect of clear-channel breakdown on international broadcasting agreements and held that breakdown cannot be considered apart from the higher-power question.

Specifically, CBS Radio proposed that six eastern clear stations be duplicated by 250 kw stations in specific western states; that two other clear stations be allocated for duplication by lower-powered stations where needed; that the eight clear channel stations being duplicated be allowed to operate with 250 kw and the remaining clears with powers up to 750 kw.

The six clear stations nominated for duplication in the West; its own WCBS New York (880 kc), NBC's WRCA New York (660 kc), ABC's WABC New York (770 kc), Westinghouse's WBZ Boston (1030 kc) and KYW Cleveland (1100 kc), and WHAM Rochester (1180 kc). The two it would mark for duplication where needed were Westinghouse's KDKA Pittsburgh (1020 kc) and its own WCAU Philadelphia (1210 kc).

President Arthur Hull Hayes said, "CBS Radio is in complete agreement with the Commission that all areas must be explored to the end that maximum radio service be delivered to all U. S. families. We agree . . . that duplication on clear channel frequencies and increased power for clear channel stations seem to present the best opportunity for achieving this. However, our engineers, in analyzing the available data, have concluded that the plan which we have submitted would not only provide more service in the West, but also in eastern areas where additional service is needed. Furthermore, our plan permits existing clear channel stations to keep at a minimum the losses in their service areas which would result from direction-alization."

Nbc Comments

Nbc told FCC the clear channel case was outdated and, unless it holds further hearings, the Commission should terminate the proceeding.

The network argued that the 10-year-old record cannot justify the proposed breakdown of 12 Class I-A frequencies. Moreover, the brief contended, FCC cannot determine how the proposed breakdown would affect public interest without also considering the desirability and effect of power increases for the 24 Class I-A stations.

The proposed breakdown of NBC-owned WRCA New York's 660 kc frequency, instead of substantially reducing the number of people living in white areas, is more apt to reduce "white" areas in certain sparsely populated rural areas but create white areas in more densely populated rural areas, NBC contended.

Supported by an engineering affidavit by William S. Duttera, manager of allocations engineering for NBC, the brief argued that "if WRCA were required to direction-alize its signal and protect station X, 211- 645 people in the Pennsylvania-New Jersey-New York area would be deprived of WRCA's service. Of these 31,407 would be deprived of their only service and 111,577 would be deprived of their only two services."

". . . station X in Montana [location of station FCC proposed to put on WRCA's frequency] would furnish a first or second service to 148,446 people while 142,984 people would be reduced to no service or vice from WRCA.

"Similarly, if the transmission of all three rectialized and required to protect new Class I stations on their frequencies, 90,519 people would be deprived of all service and 125,331 people would be reduced from two,

Nor can FCC conclude, from the present record, that its proposed breakdown of clear channels would provide more program choices to substantially more people than at present, or that the areas thus served are in part of need of service than other areas, the brief continued.

In addition, NBC contended, breaking down 12 I-A frequencies "may dilute the value of the class I-A priorities now held by the U.S." Under ARBA and the U.S.- Mexico agreements, and "at any future re-negotiation of these agreements it may not be possible to maintain Class I-A priority for the U.S. on these frequencies.

WBC COMMENTS

Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. said the most important question the FCC must de-term is the part clear channels will play in national defense communications in case of sudden attack by a foreign power. WBC said more than 50% of the land area of the U.S. containing 12% of the population is dependent on skywave service, available only through clear. In an attack, the 40 million auto radios and 11.5 million portables would be an asset of unlimited value
if skywave service remains available, WBC
said.

WBC said its stations have proved themselves in times of disaster and that the FCC should study the importance and function of clears in a disaster communications service before trying to determine whether their value in day-to-day living now is of such reduced importance that they can be broken down.

Westinghouse said some announced aims and implementation of these aims in the FCC's Further Notice of Proposed Rule
Making must be eliminated by Commission decision before it makes a finding of what is best for the public interest; that such material can be obtained and WBC believes cooperative industry response will be equal to that demonstrated in the original procedings in 1945, 1946 and 1947. WBC believes the record should be "modernized" by due process and will cooperate with an appropriate industry-government committee if a group is set up to make such a study, the statement said.

WBC observed that while the FCC discussed an optimum "judicious combination" of higher power and duplication of Class
I-A clear, the Commission withheld action on higher powers. This leaves WBC to astume that the 12 Class I-A's will continue for the foreseeable future with only the existing 50 kw grade of skywave service.
Westinghouse didn't believe that the FCC can proceed to break down 12 of the clear channels while deferring action on whether to

WBC said the FCC is wrong in saying assignment of a co-channel unlimited time station is permissible on 1030 kc (WBZ Boston) without reclassification. FCC classification of this frequency as a Class I-B channel is subject to an outstanding protest by WBC which has never been granted a hearing as required by statute and, therefore, is not finalized, Westinghouse said.

WGN COMMENTS

WGN Chicago (I-A on 720 kc) felt the FCC proposal would make WGN a 50-kw
Class I-B station operating non-directional and that it would be forever barred from increasing power; that millions of people in remote rural areas now receiving no ground-wave service and depending entirely on skywave service would be barred from receiving an improved signal from WGN.
This would stop WGN progress and kill all hopes of any future progress, WGN
said.

The Chicago station thought the FCC's promise that the Class I-A stations affected are in the northern or eastern sections of the country is in error because Chicago is located in the "middle" of the country.
This follows that the FCC conclusion is likewise in error, WGN added.

WGN felt it should receive top priority
both because of its geographical coverage and its "outstanding" program service. The station attached a list of its present program service.

The station requested it be authorized to operate on 720 kc with power up to 750 kw and that all other stations on Class
I-A frequencies be given similar power; that Class I-B frequencies as needed to implement the CBBS 20-station plan be authorized to operate with power up to 750 kw as Class I-A's; and that duplications on Class I-A frequencies be prohibited except where this would not be an obstacle to higher power for I-A frequencies.

KSL COMMENTS

KSL Salt Lake City (I-A on 1160 kc) said the FCC's proposed rulemaking substitutes "conjecture" and "theorizing" for facts. KSL had no quarrel with the en-ingineering features of the proposal, but ratted as "unconvincing" the FCC's manner of declaring that some aspects of the original proceedings and record are now inadequate. This is especially so when the FCC tries to make up for inadequacies by the use of such phrases as "changed conditions" or "vast changes" as though the record made clear what these changes are,
KSL said.

The statement said the FCC implies there is general agreement about the impact on clear channel service is as the advent of tv, different radio program-
ing concepts, changes in network programming, changes in listening habits, changes in sources of revenue, a rise in spot radio and an increase in the number of am stations from 900 to 3,500. This argument, KSL said, is "untenable," and puts the FCC in the position of updating the record with "suggestive phrases," etc.
KSL asked deferral of action on the Proposal until (1) there has been a study of the economic impact of duplication of clear channels and proposed increase in power of clear channels on broadcasting and on service to the public; and (2) FCC Standards of Good Engineering Practice are modernized.

NATIONAL GRANGE COMMENTS

National Grange urged a combination of duplicating the 12 clear channels and higher power for the remaining Class I-A's at the same time. It felt that this shouldn't be a piecemeal process (FCC had proposed to duplicate the 12 Class I-A's first, then later take up question of higher power for the remaining 12 Class I-A's).

BITZER COMMENTS

Ralph J. Bitzer, consulting engineer, St. Louis, Mo., claimed the key is more local facilities, not to play around with clear channels. He recommended that the Commission delete the 10% rule and also process Class II applications for following frequencies without waiting for a solution to the daytime skywave case: 670, 720, 780, 890, 1020, 1120 and 1210 kc. The 10% rule says that the Commission will not grant an application if interference from an existing station involves more than 10% of the population that the new station would cover if there was no interference. The daytime skywave case is a 10-year-old proceeding involving the question of whether skywave interference starts up to two hours before local sunset and continues for about two hours after local sunrise.

FARM BUREAU COMMENTS

The American Farm Bureau Federation opposed duplication of any Class I-A's. It felt that clear channel operation is only way to get signals to rural areas.

NAEB COMMENTS

National Assn. of Educational Broadcasters thought it "unfortunate" that the FCC proposal gives no consideration to the special problems of educational broadcasters.

NAEB said it is clear the public interest requires that at least two of the 11 clear channels for which unlimited assignments are contemplated should be set aside for noncommercial aural educational broadcasting. It was noted that the FCC has fostered the growth of educational fm by reserving 20 fm channels and NAEB felt this is precedent for reserving am.

The association felt it would be desirable to set aside one am clear channel in the East and one in the West for education.

WCIL COMMENTS

WCIL, Carbondale, Ill., said it endorses and supports the FCC proposal but feels it is "unduly restrictive" to confine the proposed new nighttime services to "white areas." WCIL felt that the FCC should encourage and give equal consideration to local nighttime service.

FCC All Shook Up, Radio Station Claims

The FCC is letting its consternation show, WMBO-AM-FM Auburn, N. Y., is scheduled to say in a petition to be filed today (Aug. 18).

WMBO-AM-FM, in a petition for reconsideration of the FCC's order to the station to submit the two station licenses for renewal, pictures the Commission as being so disappointed at a court decision last month [LEAD STORY, July 14], that it is trying to circumvent the court's intent by forcing the Auburn outlet to risk its license.

WMBO-AM-FM encountered trouble it didn't expect when it asked for reconsideration of the FCC's grant of a new am station at Auburn to Herbert P. Michels, expressing the belief that Auburn couldn't support both stations economically. The FCC ordered a hearing on the new grant (WAUB, 1590 kc, 500 w), but said WMBO-AM-FM will be required to submit its licenses for renewal in a comparative hearing with the new grantee. If serious economic injury to WMBO-AM-FM would result from the grant, the FCC said, then the Carroll Broadcasting Co. decision by the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia requires that the Commission decide whether the existing licensee or the new one is best qualified to operate in the public interest.

The WMBO-AM-FM petition to be filed today charges that the FCC does not need to call WMBO-AM-FM up for renewal proceedings to get the facts about the issues.

The idea of setting down an existing station for renewal is an "astonning suggestion," WMBO-AM-FM said, and penalizes an existing licensee unnecessarily. The petition notes that three commissioners dissented (the vote was 4-3) and said the FCC must consider the "human touch" as well as the law. The petition added that the FCC order was "vaguely stated and in conflict."

The FCC has indicated it intends to appeal the court decision in the Carroll Broad-casting Co. case.

Milton, Pa., Grant Issued; Two Florida Outlets Favored

WARC Milton, Pa., moved a step closer to non-disputed status last week when FCC Hearing Examiner Elizabeth C. Smith issued a modified initial decision which would reinstate and affirm a nearly three-year-old Commission grant to the station.

The initial decision would support the 1955 FCC grant to Williamsport Radio Broadcasting Assc. for a new am outlet on 1380 kc with 1 kw, day. It would also provide for a modification of the original WARC construction permit to authorize use of the present studio, transmitter site and equipment of WMLP Milton. At the same time Examiner Smith's decision denied the protest of WLYG-Williamsport, Pa., as to the WARC grant.

In another am initial decision last week, Hearing Examiner Charles J. Frederick declared himself in favor of Pompeano Broadcasting Corp. for a new outlet on 980 kc with 1 kw, directional antenna, day, in Pompano Beach, Fla.; and Louis G. Jacobs to operate on 990 kc, with 5 kw, directional antenna in Miami-South Miami, Fla. Engineering conditions were involved in these two prospective grants, which had originally been contested by competing applicants since dismissed.

WKTV (TV) Beset By FCC Order Plus Airspace Refusal to Help

If the mountain won't come to Mohammed,... This is the attitude of ch. 13 WKTV (TV) Utica-Rome, N. Y., which is under an FCC order to change to ch. 2, but which can't get Airspace Panel approval for a new site with the antenna height it deems necessary to cover its service area.

WKTV has a wonderful site for a ch. 2 transmitter which Airspace Panel would approve, but it's short of the 60-mile separation requirement with adjacent ch. 3 WSYR-TV Syracuse. The Commission has set for hearing beginning Sept. 3 a show cause order which will require WKTV to switch frequencies to an alternative site with an antenna height which WKTV says will penalize viewers in its area.

Last week, WKTV went to the mountain.

It filed a petition with the FCC suggesting that ch. 3 WSYR-TV Syracuse move its transmitter to a site southwest of Syracuse with 749-ft. above ground antenna height. This would permit WKTV to use the most desirable site for its ch. 2 operation, the Utica station said, and still meet the 60-mile adjacent channel separation.

The change in frequencies was occasioned a year ago when the Commission moved ch. 13 from Utica-Rome to Albany, and ch. 2 into Utica-Rome as a replacement. At that time, the FCC told ch. 35 WTRI (TV) Albany that it could use ch. 13 pending the outcome of any comparative hearing for that newly assigned channel. However, WTRI cannot use ch. 13 until WKTV vacates it, and WKTV does not wish to vacate it until it can find a proper site for its new ch. 2 operation.

At week's end, the Broadcast Bureau filed an official objection to the new proposal. WSYR-TV had not filed a response, but, it was understood, had indicated its opposition to being forced to move when approached by WKTV earlier this year.

Ch. 12 Grant for Beaumont

Brown Telecasters Inc. came out on top of an FCC initial decision last week favoring the firm for ch. 12 in Beaumont, Tex. The decision, delivered by Hearing Examiner Charles J. Frederick, also denied the competing applications of KPBX Broadcasting Co. and Television Broadcasters Inc. for the same channel. Television Broadcasters had requested a modification of its construction permit for ch. 31 Beaumont, which it once had operated as KBMT (TV). KPBX Broadcasting operates KJET Beaumont. The two on-air vhf outlets in the Texas city are ch. 6 KFDM-TV and ch. 4 KPAC-TV.

NAB MAPS FALL MEETING SERIES

- Eight conferences listed, opening Sept. 18 at Biloxi
- Management and economic problems will top agenda

NAB's annual series of eight regional conventions, opening Sept. 18 at Biloxi, Miss., will use a fast 1½-day format based on management and economic problems. The meetings have been labeled "Fall Conferences" to de-emphasize the regional aspect, since any NAB member can attend any one of the eight meetings (see Upcoming, page 76, for complete schedule).

This autumn the conferences will concentrate on efficient station operation, salesmanship and programming plus a review of government problems. Panels and discussions will be emphasized, with a minimum of speeches.

A new feature, scheduled for the opening morning of the meetings, will be a frank discussion of station editorializing. Broadcasters will review their experiences and problems, including advantages of editorializing from a community prestige standpoint and the hazards of taking a stand on public issues.

While the first meeting, to be held at the Buena Vista Hotel, Biloxi, Miss., will set the format for the series, the programming will be varied at each meeting to meet regional needs.

Registration and hotel forms for the meetings are ready for mailing. Only NAB members are eligible to attend, a departure from last year's policy. Registration fee will be $25, including the luncheons and banquet.

NAB's 10-man crew being sent around the annual "flea-circus circuit" is the smallest in years. In the troupe for all meetings are President Harold E. Fellows; John F. Meagher, radio vice president; Thad H. Brown Jr., tv vice president; Donald N. Martin, public relations assistant to the president; Vincent T. Wasielowski, management relations manager; Charles H. Tower, manager of broadcast personnel and economics; William Carlisle, station relations manager; Frederick H. Garrigus, organizational services manager; Edward H. Bronson, tv code director, and William L. Walker, assistant treasurer. Other staff executives may take part in some of the individual meetings.

Two speeches are scheduled—President Fellows' report to the delegates on industry and association developments, at the opening day's luncheon, and an advertiser or agency speaker at the windup luncheon the second day. The 1½-day program closes with the second luncheon.

Using the theme "Dollars and Sense," NAB will open the conferences with a joint radio-tv assembly. Mr. Martin will describe NAB's public relations program, centered around the "Learn and Live" publicity relations project adopted by the association's board last winter. His topic will be, "Why Public Relations Are Profitable," with emphasis on development of public goodwill. The association will send out spot films and on-the-air material for station use in the near future.

Mr. Wasielowski will review the Washington situation. The panel on editorializing and a discussion of administration problems will wind up the first morning.

After President Fellows' luncheon address the meetings will break up into separate radio and tv sessions. Mr. Meagher will direct a radio agenda that will go into problems of management and sales compensation. Programming trends will be covered in detail. The tentative agenda includes the first showing of a new NAB radio public relations film, "Hear and Now." The film is currently in production at UP Movietone. It will tell the story of radio public service and news through the years. Narration is by Mr. Fellows.

The tv afternoon program will include discussions on station cost control, impact of technological changes, equipment-buying decisions, labor relations, employee training and other management topics. Mr. Tower will lead the discussion, with Mr. Brown presiding.

The evening banquet will not include a formal speech, according to present NAB headquarters planning. Separate radio and tv meetings will be held the second morning. The radio program will be based on administrative problems, following a pattern similar to Mr. Tower's first afternoon tv discussion.

The tv discussion on the second day, under tentative programming, will go into the development and use of videotape in station operations and the possibility of using tape for inter-station program exchange and syndication. Live programming will be discussed as well as promotion techniques.

Mr. Bronson will direct a tv code discussion centering on what to do and what not to do under the program and advertising provisions of the code. Television Bureau of Advertising will show its "E-Motion" film, a study designed to show why the consumer uses a particular product. Principal media are analyzed and ranked according to their influence on the public.

Radio Advertising Bureau has not participated in NAB's autumn meetings for several years, holding its own regional sessions for management starting Sept. 4 at Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla. (see Upcoming). NAB members can attend any one of the eight Fall Conferences. The name of the series was changed to remove any feeling that members could attend only the meeting in their region.

Candidates to Be at Iowa Event

A political workshop to be sponsored by the UPI Broadcasters of Iowa Sept. 26 in Cedar Rapids will have both Democratic Gov. Herschel C. Loveless and Republican candidate William G. Murray in attendance, according to Bob Frank, WOC-AM-TV...
Davenport news director and president of UPIBOI.

It is expected that various candidates for political office will attend the meeting, being held all day at the Hotel Roosevelt. Besides interviews with the candidates and panel discussions, a cocktail hour, banquet, and a brief business meeting are planned.

The next day, UPi and the U. of Iowa School of Journalism will co-sponsor a Good Government Symposium at Iowa City. Candidates Loveless and Murray will also appear at this gathering. Leslie G. Moeller, director of the U. of Iowa School of Journalism, will be moderator of the meeting.

Pellegrin Named President In Broadcast Pioneers Ballot

The election of Frank E. Pellegrin, vice president and partner of H-R Television Inc. and of H-R Representatives Inc., New York, as national president of Broadcast Pioneers was announced last week by the industry organization. The election was conducted through a nationwide mail-balloting of members. Merle S. Jones, president, CBS TV stations division, was elected first vice president. Chosen as vice presidents were Sol Taishoff, editor-publisher, BROADCASTING; Gordon Gray, executive vice president-general manager, WOR-TV New York; Charles Godwin, assistant to the president, MBS; Frank Silvestri, radio-television consultant. Raymond F. Guy, senior staff engineer, NBC, was elected secretary, and Charles A. Wall, vice president, Broadcast Music Inc., treasurer.

Retiring officers include former President John F. Patt, president of WJR Detroit, and Vice President Victor C. Diehm, president of WAZL Hazelton, Pa., and William H. Fineshriber Jr., director of international operations, Screen Gems Inc.

Projects that the Broadcast Pioneers hope to undertake this year, Mr. Pellegrin said, are the establishment of a permanent museum-archives-hall of fame repository for all forms of broadcast memorabilia and of the Quarter Century Club to be composed of stations licensed 25 years or more.

National D.J. List Available

Overwhelmed by requests for its one-and-only up-to-date list of 4,000 U. The list is broken down into general, rock and roll, country and western and "big name" categories. Previously the council did not give out the list. Council president is Murray Kaufman, WINS New York.

Ad Week Scheduled Feb. 8-15, Motley Is National Chairman

The 1959 observance of Advertising Week, co-sponsored by Advertising Federation of America and the Advertising Association of the West, has been scheduled for Feb. 8-15, it was announced last week by Robert M. Feenster, AFA board chairman. An Advertising Week national committee is currently being formed for the purpose of selecting the "Week's" slogan and to blueprint the all-media campaign, Mr. Feenster said.

Appointed national chairman of Advertising Week was Arthur H. Motley, publisher of Parade Publications, which was recently purchased by J. H. Whitney & Co., owner of Corinthian group of radio-television stations [STATIONS, Aug. 11]. The purpose of the annual celebration, Mr. Motley said, is to salute advertising and to portray its vital role in America's economy. The 1958 campaign, conducted last February, dealt mainly with the fourth of July holiday, the wealth of free time and space and an estimated impact of 500-million consumer impressions, he said.

Chicagoans Elect New Officers, Presidency Goes to ABC's Beach

James W. Beach, vice president and director of ABC-TV Central Div., has been elected president of the Chicago Broadcast Ad. Club for the 1958-59 season, succeeding Ward L. Quaal, vice president and general manager of Chicago ABC.

Other new officers chosen by membership ballot were Holly Shively, vice president and chief buyer, Erwin Wasse, Ruthrauff & Ryan, secretary, and Marilyn Bielefeldt Duff, timebuyer at Earle Ludwig & Co., treasurer. Results of balloting on a first vice president were still undetermined Thursday.

New directors on the BAC board are Roland Blair, CBS-TV sales department; Arthur Bagge, Midwest radio manager, Peters-Griffin-Woodward Inc., E. P. H. Janes, vice president, A. C. Nielsen Co.; James G. Hanlon, public relations manager, WGN-TV and Miss Shively. George Diefenderfer, head of Chicago NBC network radio sales, replaces Howard W. Coleman, on the board. The latter has resigned as station manager of WMAQ Chicago.

Radio Is War News Authority, RAB Says in Crisis Promotion

Radio is the authority to which most people would turn to check on a "rumor of war." This was proved again, according to Radio Advertising Bureau, in a special survey conducted for RAB "on the heels of the July flare-up in the Mideast." RAB commissioned the study in order to supply member stations with a timely new sales tool, linked with the United Nations deliberations in the middle eastern problems.

Releasing the results last week, RAB said the study showed 40% of the respondents said they would rely on radio newscasts more—an average of 51.9% more—during the crisis-filled week preceding the survey than they normally do.

The study was conducted in Philadelphia by Fact Finders Assoc., New York. Six hundred persons were asked (1) what they would do to check the report if, at home, they heard a rumor that war had broken out; (2) how their radio newscast listening during the interview week compared with their usual listening and (3) if they had listened more, how much more.

RAB said 84.5% reported they would turn to radio, tv or newspapers (the rest would rely on police, fire departments, civil defense, etc.). Of those who would depend on one of the three advertising media, RAB said, 55.8% named radio as the source to which they would turn; 23.3% named newspapers and 20.9% named television.

The "rumor of war" question has been used a number of times over the past several years, by RAB and others, to demonstrate public reliance on radio as a source of information. RAB noted that in a national study by Alfred Politz Research Inc. in 1957, 68.7 million adults said they "would turn on radio" to verify the rumor; 13.2 million would turn on tv; "a handful of 1.8 million would pick up a newspaper" and even fewer (1.1 million) would "buy or wait for a paper."

RAB spelled out the findings in a brochure—titled Crisis—which it distributed to member stations in advance with a suggestion that they order additional copies and then time their campaigns with local broadcasts of the RAB and Philadelphia opening of the United Nations general assembly meeting on the Middle East crisis.

Bureau officials estimated 5,000 copies were in use by members throughout the country.

"We now have one more timely form of documentation for the fact that radio is America's primary news medium," said RAB president Karl W. Hardesty. Radio's news role is growing bigger every day at a rate proportionate to the pace of world events. But whether there's a world crisis taking place or not, radio's news role and news audience is huge. What happens during a crisis only dramatizes the radio news role which is sometimes taken for granted in periods of relative calm internationally.

Piggly-Wiggly Co. Counseled By RAB's Hardesty at Meeting

Piggly-Wiggly Co. executives were told last week that most of your advertising looks and sounds like a page out of the past," Speaking Tuesday (Aug. 12) at the company's annual convention in New Orleans, John F. Hardesty, vice president and general manager of Radio Advertising Bureau, cited Tetley tea and Butter Nut soda as two commercials that emphasize creativity and yet containing "more sell" than many cluttered, claim-ridden commercials so common among grocery store advertising today." He commended the food retailers on skillful buying of large amounts of radio time, but urged them to modernize their advertising. He cited radio's advertising potential under "the unsuspected" of less than effective use of the medium.
Western Electric's Richard Siney tests and adjusts a component in the new TJ Microwave Radio Relay System. Here at our Merrimack Valley Works, we also produce carrier equipment, which makes it possible to send hundreds of calls simultaneously over a single telephone cable.
THE MERRIMACK VALLEY

About 30 miles north of Boston, the trim New England countryside has a new neighbor...Western Electric's Merrimack Valley Works. Here the Valley's people help us with our telephone work for the Bell System — which has helped restore the Valley's well-being.

Long known throughout the world for textiles and shoes, the Merrimack Valley area today is the home of widely diversified industry. The Merrimack Valley people proved themselves skilled, capable, and versatile as new, modern industries began sprouting up all over the Valley. Among the first to come were Western Electric plants in Haverhill and Lawrence...recently followed by our new plant at North Andover, one of the largest in the area.

Here in the Merrimack Valley, we turn out telephone equipment for use in the out-of-sight world behind Bell telephone service. It's part of our job as manufacturing and supply unit of the Bell System.

Up and down the Valley, the benefits of our telephone work come to life: in the taxes paid to local governments...in our nearly 6,000 jobs this work has created...in over $7,000,000 worth of business last year for 228 local suppliers (just a fraction of 1,566 W. E. suppliers in Massachusetts).

In the Merrimack Valley, we feel these social and economic benefits are as important as the products we make.

Besides Merrimack Valley, Western Electric has plants in 22 other cities where we also make telephone equipment for the Bell System. Last year we purchased 1/4 billion dollars worth of raw materials, products and services from over 33,000 suppliers located in every state. Of these, 90% are "small businesses." The things we make and buy are distributed to the Bell telephone companies through Western Electric distribution centers in 22 different cities.

CULTURAL HERITAGE of New England is part of Merrimack Valley tradition. Here Western Electric employees—Gerry Hendry, Irene Sheehan and Maureen Smith—visit the birthplace of famed poet John Greenleaf Whittier in Haverhill, Mass. It was in this historic house that he penned the immortal "Snowbound."

EDITOR'S OPINION. Irving Rogers, Editor and Publisher of the Lawrence, Mass., Daily Eagle and Evening Tribune, says, "It's hard to overestimate the contribution Western Electric has made to the economic recovery of the Valley. Besides providing jobs and payrolls, they've helped spark confidence in the Valley's future."

SCHOOL BOARD members David Rockwell (right) and Kingston Hamilton (center), both of Western Electric, compare notes with Principal Charles Yeaton of the Atkinson (N. H.) Academy, second oldest coeducational school in the nation. Many W. E. people participate voluntarily in worthwhile community activities like this.

Effective today (Aug. 18) the Young representation firms will maintain offices at 2940 Book Bldg., Detroit 26. Telephone: Woodward 3-6919.

Named office manager was R. John Stella, who moves from Chicago where he was a Young radio salesman. His successor will be announced shortly in addition to other new personnel.

At the same time, Young is filling a post that has been vacant since the first of the year. James F. O'Grady, midwest sales manager, will be reassigned to New York to become vice president of tv sales. The tv sales vice presidency was vacated last December with the promotion of vice president—radio-tv sales manager Stephen A. Machcinski to executive vice president of Young's radio representation company.

McLendon Stations Up 43.2%

McLendon stations had a 43.2% increase in gross revenue the first half of 1958 over the same period last year, Gordon McLendon, president, McLendon Corp., reports. He said that WAKY Louisville would break even financially in August—it's second full month of operation. The group comprises KILT Houston; KEEL Shreveport, La.; KLIF Dallas; KISA San Antonio, and WAKY. The corporation plans acquisition of two more am outlets.

"There is no doubt," Mr. McLendon said, "that our stations, and others, are beginning to slice sharply into revenue once considered the exclusive property of newspapers. During the first half of 1958 our radio stations reported...11 new big-budget advertisers who had heretofore been exclusively in newspapers."

WDRC Listens For Improvement

The announcers at WDRC Hartford, Conn., are taking advantage of a built-in mechanical critic, which enables them to catch and later correct otherwise unknown on-air mistakes or irregularities, according to a report from the station.

A tape recorder, with special thin tape, runs 24 hours a day, picking up all live spot announcements, news and program comments. The tape is attached to the studio signal light, starts and stops automatically, and does not record any music with the exception of starts and stops. Supervisory personnel as well as the announcers themselves then listen and utilize the mechanical critic's advice. Before this system was begun, states WDRC, the idea was explained to the entire announcing staff. "All approved," according to the station.

The station is located near Vandenberg Air Force Base which is undergoing a $125 million development program. KNEZ, owned and operated by Tom Friedman, is on 960 kc with 500 w. Thomas J. Mae West Signed by KCOP (TV) For New Local-Syndicated Show

Mae West, whose sexy portrayal made her a great box office attraction on stage and screen but on radio secured for NBC a severe rebuke, from the FCC, has been signed for a Monday-Friday 8:45-9 p.m. advice-to-the-lovelorn series on KCOP (TV) Los Angeles. The program, to start the second week in September, is Miss West's first regular tv series. She will appear live, answering letters from viewers on everything from love and beauty to family problems.

It was on Dec. 12, 1937, that Miss West made radio history with an appearance on the Sunday evening Chase & Sanborn Hour. Her handling of the dialogue in an "Adam and Eve" skit with Edgar Bergen's brush dummy, Charlie McCarthy, evoked a deluge of mail from disapproving listeners that led to an official investigation by the FCC with threats of drastic action. NBC finally was subjected to a stiff scolding from the Commission, whose chairman called the broadcast "a very serious offense against the proprieties," but was let off without further punishment. The new tv series on KCOP will be recorded on videotape and offered for syndication.

NEWPORT—The oil-tanker collision in Newport (R.I.) Harbor between the S. S. Gulfbird and S.S. Graham Aug. 7 was given extensive coverage by WBZ-TV Boston and WADK Newport. The former dispatched camera man Bill Quinn and newsman Andy Sherrard immediately on receiving news of the crash before 8 a.m. The WBZ-TV staffers hired a helicopter and shot rescue work and firefighters while hovering over the ships. The footage was processed and rushed to Boston in time for WBZ-TV's 2:25 p.m. newscast.

WADK General Manager Milton E. Miller and news director Gerry Nevins report they gave the first bulletin to UPI and followed it up with quicker calls to some 60 stations as far away as Portland, Ore.; Port Arthur, Tex., and Baton Rouge, La. Mr. Nevins taped interviews with naval personnel who were participating in rescue work.

MINOT—An upstairs window opposite a house where an armed man was threatening to shoot anybody in sight, was used by Kмот-AM-TV Minot, N. D., newsmen to obtain live telephone and filmed coverage Aug. 11. For five hours, with police standing by with tear gas, blocking off the street and keeping neighbors in their homes, the stations covered the incident for local audiences and other Meyer Broadcasting Co. stations, KUMY-TV Williston and KFYR-AM-TV Bismarck, both North Dakota. The armed man's niece eventually persuaded him to surrender.

PORT HURON—Jim Whipkey, newsman of WTHH Port Huron, Mich., reports he was first to break the news that Michigan authorities were holding a secret witness in connection with the Frank Kierdorf "human torch" incident. Mr. Whipkey says he told 7 a.m. newscast listeners Aug. 7 that a bystander had witnessed three men set off a bomb in a dry cleaning establishment and that one, "presumably Kierdorf," had been trapped inside the burning building. WTHH's account was used by UPI, according to Mr. Whipkey, and the station was flooded with calls from radio-tv stations and newspapers. A report was released two hours later that a witness was being held.

LOS ANGELES—California State Sen. Edwin J. Regan announced Aug. 12 that he would subpoena KNXT (TV) Los Angeles' facts and findings in its exposé of a local bookie racket. Mr. Regan, who is chairman of a legislative subcommittee on criminal law enforcement, told the station: "My action is a direct result of myself and my investigations, having watched the KNXT nighttime news program all of last week." KNXT exposed the estimated $150,000,000 book-making racket on its 10 O'Clock Report.

NATIONAL THEATRES BIDS FOR NTA

The board of directors of National Telefilm Assoc., New York, will meet this week in New York to vote on an offer by National Theatres Inc. to acquire controlling stock of NTA.

The companies have been holding discussions since the transaction since last May (FILM, May 12) and National Theatres two weeks ago decided on a firm offer. A spokesman for NTA declined to reveal details but indicated an announcement would be made after the board meeting.

The proposal may encompass an exchange of NTA stock for National Theatres stock, with National Theatres, at the outset, acquiring stock primarily of NTA principals. The offer would leave NTA's present management team intact, with Ely A. Landau, board chairman, and Oliver A. Unger, president, assuming executive duties at National Theatres. Ultimately, National Theatres plans to obtain stock held by minority stockholders.

NTA is regarded as one of the fastest-growing organizations in the television field but its debt position is reported to be top-heavy. Its alignment with National Theatres would provide a source of financing from a large theatre chain that has embarked on a diversification program in the last few years. NTA is one of the leading distributors of TV film programs, largely feature films. In association with Desilu Productions and 20th Century-Fox Corp., NTA is involved in an ambitious co-production program of half-hour TV film series. Together with Fox, the company owns NTA Film Network. It also owns and operates WNTA-AM-FM-TV Newark and KMSV-TV Minneapolis-St. Paul.

National Theatres is considered the second-largest theatre chain in the U.S., consisting of about 300 theatres principally on the Pacific Coast, in the Midwest and in the Rocky Mountain areas. Recently the company developed Cinemiracle, a new three-dimensional motion picture process and several months ago bought WDAF-AM-TV Kansas City (CHANGING HANDS, April 28).

National Theatres' revenues are reported to have declined about 33% since 1947-49 and this situation apparently prompted its diversification program.

One obstacle before a transaction could be effected would be a go-ahead signal from the Justice Dept., according to a source close to both companies. It is pointed out that National Theatres is the circuit split from 20th Century-Fox under the latter company's consent decree. Fox now is owner with NTA of the film network and additionally, Fox has an agreement with NTA on the studio's feature film library. Acquisition of NTA by National, according to a source close to both companies, might require a Justice Dept. ruling.

Guild Hearing Recessed

National Labor Relations Board hearings on the petition of Musicians Guild of America for election of a bargaining agent for musicians employed by independent motion picture producers resumed Tuesday (Aug. 12) in Los Angeles but was recessed until Sept. 17 when illness kept AFM attorney Robert Rissman from attending Wednesday's hearing session. A request of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers to withdraw from the hearing because it is no longer active as an employers representative was referred to NLRB headquarters in Washington by hearing officer Kenneth Schwartz. Meanwhile, MGA is continuing negotiations with the Assn. of Motion Picture Producers for an agreement to replace the AFM pact that expired last year.

'Marsh' Sold for 80 Markets

Purchase of National Telefilm Assoc.'s U.S. Marshall series for showing in approximately 80 markets by next spring was announced Tuesday by Anheuser-Busch Inc. for its Budweiser beer.

The brewery plans to introduce the half-hour film western in Birmingham, Ala. and Chicago in late September and schedule additional markets in January, February and March. The Desilu-produced package, comprising 39 episodes, was purchased through D'Arcy Adv. Co., St. Louis, agency for Budweiser. The series stars actor John Bromfield.

Cinemark Offers Film Stock

Cinemark II Productions Inc., Santa Fe, N. M., has notified the Securities & Exchange Commission of plans to offer for sale to the public 300,000 shares of its common stock at $1 each. Cinemarx was formed last April with a capitalization of $100,000 (1 million shares at 10¢ each) to produce TV film programs, animated and industrial films and feature length motion pictures.

John S. Candelario, director of "The Way of the Navajo" (featured on CBS-TV's Adventure), is president of Cinemark. Vice president is Arthur Gould, former director in charge of Tele-Cine Productions, Albuquerque, and also a former Hollywood writer-director. Watson & Co., Santa Fe, is underwriting the stock offering.

Vick Chemical to Sponsor Three NTA Film Net Segments

Purchase by Vick Chemical Co., New York, of segments of three programs on the NTA Film Network, starting Oct. 6, is being announced today (Aug. 18) by Ely A. Landau, board chairman of NTA. The 26-week contract was placed by Morse International Inc., New York. Vick Chemical has ordered three participations per day on the five-time-a-week Tv Hour of Stars dramatic programs, plus weekly participations in Man Without a Gun and This Is Alice half-hour series, according to Mr. Landau.

Several weeks ago NTA announced it had secured several national advertisers for the film network but to date has not identified the sponsors, except for Vick.

Warner to Leave Few in N. Y.

Warner Bros. Pictures Co. (theatrical, TV films, records), slated to close its New York office Oct. 1, has decided to retain a skeleton staff in the East, it was learned last week. It is still uncertain whether WB will stay at its new office, 666 Fifth Ave. The staff will work principally in areas of sales and administration and will aid Rodney Erickson, recently appointed TV sales head, former radio-TV vice president at Young & Rubicam.

Flamingo President Herman Rush has said that his company would sell The Country Show as an across-the-board feature.

"I'd give up my slide rule before I'd give up my Ad Age"

says JOSEPH P. BRAUN
Vice-President and Media Director
Kenyon & Eckhardt Inc.

"My subscription goes to my home, where each Monday evening I read Advertising Age from cover to cover. Issue after issue provides not only the news, but the highlights and stories of the many new developments in this fascinating business that never stands still. I'd give up my slide rule before I'd give up my Ad Age."

Let's talk turkey! Advertising Age isn't a "sometime thing" to most of the executives of importance to you. They read it regularly and thoroughly. It follows, of course, that your sales message in Ad Age can get the same careful attention that AA's up-to-date authoritative editorial content receives week in, week out from the admen who influence as well as those who activate today's broadcasting decisions.

At Kenyon & Eckhardt Inc., for example, where $31,500,000* of its 1957 billings were placed in radio and television, planning broadcast schedules is a vital part of the agency's operation. Among its accounts are such major broadcast advertisers as Ford Motor Co., Lever Bros. Co., National Biscuit Co., and Radio Corp. of America.

Every week, 134 paid-subscription copies of Ad Age help keep Kenyon & Eckhardt executives posted on the news and trends affecting them. Further, every Monday, 137 paid-subscription copies reach the offices and homes of advertising and marketing professionals of the companies mentioned.

Add to this AA's more than 40,000 paid circulation, its tremendous penetration of advertising with a weekly paid circulation currently reaching over 12,000 agency people alone, its intense readership by top executives in national advertising companies—and you'll recognize in Advertising Age a most influential medium for swinging broadcast decisions your way.

JOSEPH P. BRAUN
A twenty-five year veteran of advertising, Mr. Braun also is a fine example of achievement and growth all within one agency. Starting as a trainee in Kenyon & Eckhardt's mail room in 1933, he held such "up the ladder" jobs as media clerk, research reporter, statistician and space buyer, before being appointed media director in 1942.

By 1947, Mr. Braun was elected a vice-president and, within the same year, became a K & E director. Active in all media areas within the agency, he has contributed to such pace-setting K & E broadcasting activities as the Ford 50th Anniversary Show.

Mr. Braun is a member of the 4A's media committee, and serves the National Outdoor Advertising Bureau as a director and member of the executive committee.
RCA Develops Portable Color Tv With Battery, Transistor Power

RCA scientists have experimentally developed a fully transistorized portable color television system "using so little power that it can be operated from automobile-type storage batteries," according to Dr. V. K. Zworykin, honorary vice president of RCA. The laboratory system, contained in two compact units which weigh a total of 65 pounds, and use 75 w less power than the sealed-beam headlights of an automobile, can be run either with batteries or a fixed power supply, Dr. Zworykin said.

The system is designed for closed-circuit applications in industry defense, education and research, he said, adding, "It promises ultimately to extend the application of color television into new fields where compactness, portability and operating economy are essential." The laboratory equipment, however, contains a number of components which are not yet commercially available, Dr. Zworykin said.

Admiral Shows Sales Increase Over Same Quarter of Last Year

Admiral Corp. Tuesday reported consolidated net sales of $38,619,849 for itself and subsidiaries for three months ending June 30, 1958.

An increase in sales over $37,638,878 for the same period last year was accomplished, according to Ross D. Siragusa, Admiral president, despite "depressed conditions in the nation's business and in the appliance and television industry in particular." He also reported liquidation of the firm's molded products division involving plastics.

During the second quarter Admiral suffered a loss before taxes of $34,147, compared with $297,087 during that period in 1957. Net loss after taxes amounted to $315,203 for the quarter as against $343,774 the previous year.

Leitzell Reassures Service Men Pay Tv System Won't Cut Them Out

Independent tv service dealers have a stake in toll tv and Zenith Radio Corp. favors their participation in local pay video installations "when it is authorized," Ted Leitzell, the company's public relations director, told the Texas Electronics Assn. earlier this month.

He released a Zenith policy statement designed to refute allegations that pay-as-you-see tv would prove harmful to the servicing industry, claiming Zenith's Phonevision system "will not in any way hurt the independent service dealers' normal operation of servicing television receivers."

Zenith feels it "desirable," Mr. Leitzell stated, that local service organizations assist in the installation of Phonevision decoders on subscribers' tv sets, once pay tv is authorized and independent companies are franchised. Decoder connections would not "alter a receiver or affect its operation or servicing by independent service dealers," he maintained.

Mr. Leitzell charged the "false rumors" had been circulated "through channels of service organizations" and asserted his company has cooperated fully with independent service men over the years as a matter of policy.

Pay Tv to Get Trial in Canada In Ontario, Quebec Communities

Pay tv is expected to have a trial in eastern Canada this fall when Electronic Theatres Ltd., Toronto, Canadian subsidiary of Selectovision, will operate test campaigns in two small communities in Ontario and two in Quebec. One small town in western Canada also may be used as a test.

The company plans to offer a 60-day free trial. The system will operate in conjunction with community antenna systems in areas where tv reception is not good and in apartment houses using one antenna. An electronic device costing about $20 is to be affixed to the tv receiver and a punch card, will be used to operate the attachment. Subscribers will pay for the service in monthly instalments.

Richard Rosenberg, Telfilms of Canada Ltd., Toronto, who will operate the service for Electronic Theatres, states that pay tv will not replace regular tv, but may prove valuable to a percentage of the population.

TelePrompTer in Court Over WOR Fight Plans

The TelePrompTer Corp., New York, filed for an injunction in New York State Supreme Court last Wednesday (Aug. 13) that would restrain WOR New York from broadcasting a summary at the end of each three rounds of the Floyd Patterson-Roy Harris heavyweight championship bout in Los Angeles tonight (Aug. 15).

The station, which has announced its intention to present summaries of the fight as provided by the wire services, was directed by Justice Frederick Backer to show cause on Friday morning (Aug. 15) why it should not be restrained from presenting the broadcast. TelePrompTer, which owns the radio, television and motion picture rights to the bout, is telecasting the event over a closed circuit into theatres throughout the country, and several weeks ago declined to sell the radio rights.

Robert J. Leder, general manager of WOR, issued a statement on Thursday (Aug. 14), asserting that the station planned to proceed with plans for broadcasting the fight, despite the legal action started by TelePrompTer. Mr. Leder declared:

"We believe it is our duty in the interest of the entire broadcasting industry to bring a news report of the Floyd Patterson-Roy Harris championship fight to our listeners as soon as possible. As a station which concentrates on news gathering and reporting, we have an obligation to our audience to report all major news happenings. This fight is news and we intend to disseminate this news to our listeners as soon as possible.

"We at WOR believe a broadcaster has the same privileges of freedom of the press accorded other media. Apart from the news interest in the bout itself, we are further prompted to proceed with our plans because of the overall implication that any restraint of this type might have for the entire broadcasting field."

TelePrompTer is basing its case on a contention that it paid a fee for the rights to the bout and its "property rights" would be invaded by an unauthorized broadcast. A spokesman for the company last Thursday declined to reveal the amount of the fee.

A similar dispute cropped up in 1953 when the International Boxing Club, promoter of the Rocky Marciano-Roland Las tarza heavyweight championship bout, sought an injunction to prevent WOV New York from broadcasting round-by-round summaries of the event and a planned recreation of the bout [STATIONS, Sept. 21, 1953]. This match also was carried only on closed-circuit tv to theatres. At that time Justice Irving L. Levey ruled that any radio or tv station might broadcast the wire services' news reports at the end of each round, but were prohibited from presenting a blow-by-blow description or phrasing in the present tense [GOVERNMENT, Sept. 28, 1953]. WOV regarded the decision as a victory for the broadcast media in its battle for "equal access to the news."

Asked to comment on the fight broadcast problem, NAB President Harold E. Fellows said:

"We had thought that the question involving property rights and conditions that can be placed on broadcast news coverage of action that has transpired was settled by litigation in 1953. A broadcasting station relying on an established news service and bringing information as quickly as possible to the public, we believe, performs a valuable public service.

"The public has learned to rely upon broadcasting for quick, spontaneous reports of events such as championship boxing matches. To attempt to prevent broadcast news coverage of a round-by-round account when the round has become history, discriminates against the electronic media and implies upon the public's right to expect a free, rapid flow of information."

With 15-minute rest periods every few hours, Mr. Wells rode mainly in a special corral built at a Richland, Wash., furniture store. This is the kind of hold our station has on people

There are two sides to figures—"how many?" and "how much?" Their relationship depends on viewer loyalty.

Well, what is loyalty—the impulse, for example, that keeps sets tuned to Channel 7 in the 747,640 TV homes of 41 flourishing counties in 3 states? Its cause is allegiance to the station image projected by our thoughtful programming—by our many, valued service features—by little things of big import, like no triple-spot aggravations. Its evidence lies in our steady predominance in mail counts, ratings and constant communication. Here, that loyalty can transfer itself to you.

Harness writers, producers together to turn out front-running commercials

I'd like to imagine an episode that might have happened in your agency this morning. (I hope it didn't, but it might have.)

Scene: Second floor projection room.

Cast: O'Reilly, tv commercial producer back from 10 days shooting on the coast. Has four one-minute commercials in the can, all written by Hennessy, tv copywriter, who has spent the last 10 days writing the next four commercials O'Reilly will shoot after the current package is cleared by McNamara, an account supervisor and his four assistants all named Pat. (The fact that I'm called Murphy and all these characters have Irish names is purely coincidental.)

Action: Four minutes of sound and picture bounce across the screen. The lights go on and McNamara says: "The client will love 'em! Hennessy, you and O'Reilly are to be congratulated—you're the best damned writer-producer team in the business!" All the Pats concur.

So McNamara is very happy. All the Pats are very happy. In all probability, the client will be very happy. Strange, that the only unhappy people left in the room are the fabulously successful team of writer Hennessy and producer O'Reilly.

And though they may not realize it, they're not happy because they're not really a team.

At the screening, writer Hennessy saw several pieces of business that were played somewhat differently from the way he had written them. Not that producer O'Reilly's interpretation was bad. In every way the commercials rated the raves given them by the account group. In fact, they were almost great. But it's the "almost" that's eating Hennessy now. And he knows it wouldn't exist if he and O'Reilly had worked more closely together.

Producer O'Reilly, too, has cause for anxiety. But of a different kind. Out on location, he had a few ideas of his own. Ideas that might have substantially improved the commercial concept. If only Hennessy had been around and they could have talked them out. The commercials would have been great—instead of "almost great."

The moral of this little epic is quite simple: Where outstanding commercial ideas are your goal, no arbitrary line of responsibility can be drawn between the writing and production function. It doesn't, for instance, shift to the producer the moment he receives client-approved scripts from the writer's hot hands. These two highly skilled creative birds—the writer and the producer—must take off simultaneously and land the same way. They've got to start a job together and finish it together—the way good teams have always done, from Hubbell and Mancuso to Rodgers and Hammerstein.

Now, don't misunderstand me. I must warn you that a writer-producer marriage isn't all white cottage and rosebuds. It requires a high degree of maturity from both people involved. There's no captain on this two-man canoe. It's a straight-split, down-the-middle, 50-50 deal. There has to be give and take. There are sure to be arguments. Maybe even a few hot ones. But if an occasional flare of temper breeds a continual flair of creativity—it's well worth the strain in my book.

The writer-producer team also requires enlightened agency management. The work flow may course more slowly, because it will be done more thoughtfully. It may be that the account man will have to bargain for extra time, parry a few tight deadlines. But the extra time will be well spent. It will pay in exciting commercials, as saleworthy as they are artistically sound.

Furthermore, and this is important: the commercials will be done within the existing budget. The best writers I work with can dream up a cast-of-thousands spectacular on a moment's notice. They do it every time, and I don't blame them. It's a lot more fun to think big. But once I whisper the cold, hard budget numbers into the ears of these Selznicks, they turn handsprings to put a fresh twist to the man-in-front-of-traveler-holding-product. And they do it with just as much zest. That's why they're good writers.

By the way, I should point out that there are working exceptions to my team philosophy. I know of one or two Orson Welles types who combine the writer-producer function for smaller agencies and do both jobs brilliantly. But they are few and far between. And frankly, over the long pull I'll still bet on two creative heads versus one on any given problem.

Here at Kenyon & Eckhardt we believe in the writer-producer team. We started making commercials way back when the boom mike was a faint penny whistle amidst the sound and fury of Madison Avenue. As the years passed, we found ourselves flying New York writers to West Coast locations for filming expeditions. We discovered that the more writers learned about bringing a commercial to life before the camera, the fresher their commercials became. We discovered, too, that as our producers became more keenly aware of the copy aims, their visual thinking grew sharper and more inventive. I can assure you our writer-producer teams will continue to work side by side on the upcoming challenge of videotape.

Try it some time. Get your producers and writers together. Have them shake hands and come out fighting. And don't be at all surprised if you wind up after the final bell with a few award-winning and sales-winning commercials.

RAB Rouser

The breakthrough engineered by the Radio Advertising Bureau in bringing to light details on the users and uses of spot radio ([LEAD STORY, Aug. 11]) should funnel new money into this sprawling, largely uncharted but obviously effective medium.

In the past, virtually the only things known for sure about spot radio were that it is big and getting bigger—and that it does a job for advertisers.

The information which RAB so laboriously compiled to show who spot radio's clients are, what they're buying and the size of their campaigns represents more than a whole new set of statistics. It is a powerful tool for radio salesmen and an equally valuable competitive buying guide for radio users. As RAB President Kevin Sweeney said, "The urge to counter the opposition has meant more business over the years than many a more discussed factor."

The importance of the spot figures should not be allowed to overshadow the value of the network data which RAB also pulled together. Network is a more cohesive unit than spot and much of the network data has been available before in one form or another. Nor should the magnitude of the overall medium—spot and network together—get lost amid the details of spot and network individually. More than 1,300 different brands buying two million announcements and 90,000 programs in a three-month span: What better testimonial to the reach and sweep of the entire radio medium, whether network, spot or local? Dissatisfied customers don't run up that sort of score.

Let Congress Do It

The death of the Potter Resolution at this session of Congress contributes nothing to solution of the dilemma over frequency allocations and the imminent danger both to existing television and fm allocations through threatened government (military) invasion of their domain.

The Potter Bill was killed because broadcasters felt, in their battle for self-preservation, that they had no alternative. The White House-OCMD amendments entailed too great a risk in the waning days of the session. More had to be known about the reason for the shift in emphasis from military to broadcast use of the spectrum.

If there had been time prior to the rush for adjournment, the Potter measure might have been re-amended to satisfy all sides. But even the Congressional leadership itself got delayed misgivings after it discovered that the proposed five-man commission would probably be dominated by the executive branch, whereas the licensing responsibility belongs to Congress.

The spot for fine-detail spectrum analysis is urgent. It has existed for decades—before tv or fm became factors and before the widespread industrial demands for frequencies. The President assigns space to the government, without regard to or action by the FCC. And the FCC assigns what's left to non-government users. This is an untenable situation perhaps without parallel in any other regulatory field. There is need for unified control of the spectrum. That can come about only through well-reasoned legislation.

The original Potter intent was to have the high-level commission his resolution would create undertake an analysis of government use of the spectrum. To be proved or disproved are persistent charges that the military is not effectively using the substantial space allotted to it.

Are frequencies being kept in the deep freeze against the day they might be needed? If so, couldn't they be used commercially, except for certain tests or exercises? Do new combat techniques require the preemption of additional vhf space, including that occupied by lower band tv and by fm? Is it essential to cloak in secrecy all military allocations, even to the extent of barring the information officials having top security clearance?

In a national emergency no one can challenge the right of the military to preempt any resource needed in the defense of the nation. Today, despite tensions, no such emergency exists. But the allocations problem cannot be swept under the rug. Broadcasters should not have to live in dire fear of military usurpation of their assignments. Maximum utilization, in the interests of conservation and efficiency, must be made of the spectrum. Some 58% of existing vhf tv assignments are on chs. 2-6. One network has 41% of its affiliations in this band. All of the 550 fm assignments are in the vhf area upon which the military is said to have designs. The FCC's hands are tied as long as there's divided authority, with the military refusing to show its hand.

Congress, in the first and last instance, is the arbiter. It has the licensing authority which it delegates to the FCC—except for government use. It wrote the law dividing the authority more than 30 years ago. Then only the long and medium waves were usable—an infinitesimal portion of the existing usable spectrum.

Congress must consider the problem anew at the next session. It must know exactly where it is going. Congress has established joint committees to handle important problems; atomic energy and defense production are recent examples. Why not a joint committee on spectrum utilization and allocations? It would be bi-partisan. It could have an expert staff to evaluate uses now being made, appraise new techniques and determine whether in fact vast expansion of service would not be possible.

The spectrum is one of the nation's great natural resources. It cannot be used to maximum efficiency for the benefit of all the people if a substantial part of it is concealed in military security. The responsibility, both as to military and non-military use, belongs to Congress. We believe the logical answer, in the national public interest, is in the activation of a Joint Committee on Spectrum Utilization and Allocations at the next session of Congress.

The Not So Free Ride

Airline due bills are in for an airing by the Civil Aeronautics Board. And properly so, we believe.

The first complaint instituted by CAB is against a foreign carrier—KLM—which has exchanged air transportation for "advertising and publicity" involving transportation for contest winners. Domestically, however, the practice is widespread, with most of the major carriers getting air credits and, on tv, a shot of their airplanes in flight at the tail end of the program.

Heretofore, our notion was that these due bill deals were not illegal or even unethical; that they were simply bad business. Airlines have transportation to sell and the networks have time to sell. Both have going rates. These should be adhered to. Moreover, when a network gives air credit to an airline, it is giving away the affiliated stations' substance—time that could be sold on a spot basis.

Now the CAB compliance staff contends that such barter due bill deals run counter to CAB regulations which require all air travel to be paid at established tariffs, except for limited and specified exemptions.

The legal issue ultimately will be resolved. Irrespective of that, however, there is involved a variation of that time-honored sales tenet that you can't sell it if you swap it or give it away.
