The new power in TV programs...
KCOP is a station apart. In seven-station Los Angeles, an independent must be... and KCOP is! VARIETY calls us "the station with a gambling spirit and a programming conscience." TIME Magazine says, "Los Angeles televiewers have learned to expect the unexpected from KCOP." Both statements are true. We do gamble... but on viewers' good taste and maturity. We do program worthwhile TV and documentaries in prime evening time, not just once a month, but every night. And, if we can believe our viewers, our policy of showing really good and refreshingly different programs does provide unexpected TV treats—oases in the desert of shoot-em-ups and tired reruns. Most important, though, is the cold cash fact that our viewers appreciate the difference... and show it by buying and buying and BUYING! Why aren't you using KCOP, where the difference is exciting and always profitable! Represented nationally by Edward Petry & Co., Inc.

BROADCASTING, July 18, 1960
Bigger house • Last week's Democratic convention's tv audience was 30% bigger than audience in 1956. That's conclusion of NBC researchers. Checking results of American Research Bureau's new national Arbitron ratings (see page 62) against Nielsen ratings of 1956 convention, they compared figures on same events during three days---1960 nominations against 1956 nominations, 1960 keynote session against 1956 keynote, for example—and found three-network rating totals within tenth of point of each other: 35.5 by Nielsen 1956, 35.6 by Arbitron last week. On this same-period basis they estimated average three-network audience at 15,636,000 homes this year against 12,011,000 four years ago. Thirty percent increase was attributed to (1) 6% increase in coverage, via longer network lineups, and (2) 24% increase in tv homes since 1956.

Measuring measures • One reason NBC did fast comparison of 1960 Arbitrons against 1956 Nielsens (see above) was to validate results of new Arbitron service, which NBC and CBS may be using exclusively after this month. Their contracts for Nielsen rating service expire July 31 and renewals thus far have been blocked by several differences including, not surprisingly, one involving money. On this point networks and Nielsen apparently face unusual impasse. CBS and NBC reportedly want their payments reduced to same level as those paid by ABC; yet ABC has contract running to October 1962 which by its own terms provides—for all practical purposes—that ABC will pay less than either of its competitors.

This seemingly irrefutable conflict, according to insiders, is merely extension of long-time formula used to divide Nielsen service's costs among networks. These sources say it works this way: Total cost to networks is pegged at $84,000 per month. Half of this is divided equally among the three, or $42,000 each. Other half is pro-rated according to each network's share of gross billings. Total payments vary according to various discounts and surcharges, but since ABC's gross billings are considerably below other networks, its payments invariably are lower. Whether this situation will block CBS or NBC renewal of Nielsen contracts is another question; word last week was that negotiations were continuing on this and other points.

Unknown quantity • How does Democratic presidential nominee John F. Kennedy stand on broadcast regulation? Answer isn't easily obtainable because his confidantes say he has never been called upon to express himself on subject either publicly or privately. They say he isn't likely to comment until he thoroughly grounds himself on pros and cons, but they insist that he is all-out advocate of free competitive enterprise wherever it will work.

Broadcast campaign activities of Kennedy-Johnson campaign at this stage will be directed by Pierre Salinger, West Coast newspaperman in over-all charge of press activities. But in wings for policy guidance and counsel will be J. Leonard Reinsch, executive director of Cox radio and tv stations, whose performance as directing head of Democratic convention last week won plaudits down line. Mr. Reinsch has served, without pay, as communications advisor to Democratic administrations since third Roosevelt administration and probably will function in similar capacity if Democrats return to White House in November.

Code previewing • NAB's Television Code Review Board will step up its before-the-fact prevention of commercial violations this week by setting up liaison with Station Representatives Assn. at New York luncheon. Stockton Helfrich, ex-NBC copy-cleanup chief joins code board Aug. 1 as head of new office in New York, will make first official appearance at SRA session, interrupting vacation. SRA will be represented at luncheon by its Television Trade Practices Committee; NAB by personal products subcommittee and staff executives. Year ago NAB's code board began series of conferences with agencies and advertisers as step toward pre-broadcast reviews of controversial commercials.

Next problem facing NAB's tv code group will be glamorous antics of five models displaying bras and girdles. Personal products subcommittee of code board meets July 19-20 in New York to review complaints about commercials for these products. Code board is given credit for achievement in another phase of personal products advertising—disappearance from air of revolving Roman statues used by Bristol-Myers' Ban.

Wired toll nucleus? • TelePrompTer is jockeying for position from which it will be able, at least technically, to move deeper into special closed-circuit programming. It's asked AT&T for regular network tv facilities linking eight major cities from New York, Boston and Philadelphia westward to Chicago. Immediate use would be in TelePrompTer's regular business and industrial closed-circuit operation. But President Irving B. Kahn also wants to avoid repetition of problem faced in closed-circuiting Patterson-Johanson fight last month, when lack of lines kept TelePrompTer from adding some key areas to its lineup of 229 theatres in 161 cities, plus 13 community antenna systems. If AT&T approves his order, he figures he can loop at least 14 other important cities onto basic eight and tie in some catv systems for special subscription tv programs, when and if.

Rate dealing • N.W. Ayer & Son seems to mean business about negotiating time directly with stations whenever agency thinks it can't get fair shake through station representative. Pressure is on, both from clients and within agency itself, with some agency branches apparently reporting better deals than Philadelphia can get.

Threat originally was made to bypass reps (although rep's commission still would apply) at luncheon in New York last month hosted by Ayer vice president L.D. Farnath and mediamen of his agency (BROADCASTING, May 30 et seq.). Since then, Mr. Farnath has been collecting reports from reps on station reaction to ultimatum to make rate cards equitable and clearcut. Several of them carried their summaries to Philadelphia. Others have written and some still are researching. Early scattered reports are that although Ayer is pleased with rep cooperation, agency is resigned to necessity of some direct negotiation with stations and probably will put several men on road for that purpose.

Payola bill • Networks will add their opposition to NAB's (page 9) on license suspensions and fines in payola bill at Senate hearing Aug. 10. ABC will file statement opposing both; CBS currently plans to have witness, probably Thomas K. Fisher, CBS-TV vice president-general attorney, giving its opposition to both; NBC will file statement opposing suspensions but is taking no position on forfeitures. It's said Pastore subcommittee is encouraging filing of written statements to shorten hearings.

WEEK IN BRIEF

There's sound selling in a selling sound ■ The right sound in your commercial can draw up a host of favorable associations in the memory of your prospective customer, but it takes creative skill to find the right sound for your product. Some reflections on this important aspect of selling are offered in this week's Monday Memo by Lester J. Sholty Jr., account executive, Kenyon & Eckhardt, Los Angeles. His word of caution: too many commercials today are talking out of the advertiser's mouth instead of into the listener's ear.

Mr. Sholty

Oh, those TV labor contracts! ■ So long, so detailed, so precise and so, so many of them—that's why labor negotiations and contracts in TV are called "the most complicated in the world." Page 27.

FCC plays rough and tough ■ Commission voids Miami and Boston TV grants; disqualifies all but one Miami ch. 10 applicant and grants that channel to L.B. Wilson, Inc., orders WPST-TV off the air by Sept. 15, but permits WHDH-TV to continue under temporary order. Grant to L.B. Wilson contains a snapper; the license will only be for four months. Space allocations under consideration ■ FCC hears views beginning today on need for allocations above 890 mc for space communications. Preliminary filings indicate divergence of opinion as to whether space circuits can share earth allocations. Page 48.

NIXON TASK AGENCY SET UP

Carroll Newton heads special campaign unit

Nixon-for-President headquarters confirmed Friday that special “task force” agency has been set up to handle campaign advertising (CLOSED CIRCUIT, July 11). Agency is Campaign Assoc., headed by Carroll P. Newton, BBDO vice president, and has set up shop at 52 Vanderbilt Ave., New York.

Associated with Mr. Newton as agency principals are Ted Rogers, who operates his own TV production company in Hollywood, and James Bassett, on leave as assistant managing editor of Los Angeles Mirror-News. Rogers and Bassett have been key lieutenants in Nixon-for-President organization.

In memo to Nixon staff Leonard Hall, Nixon campaign manager, said Mr. Newton had already engaged John Steer, vice president of Kudner agency; Bruce Allen, of Lennenn & Newell; and Paul Keye, of Nixon & Jorgensen, to work at Campaign Assoc. They and others recruited for Campaign Assoc. will continue to be paid by their home agencies, so they may retain regular income and other benefits. Home agencies will bill Campaign Assoc. for time executives spend with it.

In his staff memo Mr. Hall said “modern political advertising requires facilities and personnel which no one agency is prepared to release for such a short-term operation . . . . This ‘task force’ agency will facilitate putting together the most efficient and expert team possible by utilizing the special talents, interests and services of professionals in a number of agencies.”

Mr. Hall said Campaign Assoc. would “function in all regards as a full-fledged advertising agency.” It was formed under “Anchor and Loan” plan evolved by American Assn. of Advertising Agencies at its annual meeting last winter.

Earlier it had been reported that Campaign Assoc. would be self-liquidating and, at end of its life, would return to Republican party any money it had earned above expenses. Last week Nixon spokesmen said this was not so, that agency would collect conventional 15% commissions, would keep whatever profit it made. As practical matter, it’s anticipated that expenses of Campaign Assoc. will absorb most if not all of its income, Nixon sources said.

For past several political campaigns BBDO has been GOP agency. New arrangement was undertaken with full knowledge and, reportedly, encouragement of BBDO.

131 million viewed convention pickups

Democratic convention’s first four nights amassed total TV audience of approximately 131,269,600 persons, according to estimate made Friday before final session that evening.

Estimate was reached by totaling average-audience figures (homes tuned per average minute) as compiled nightly by American Research Bureau’s new national Arbitron service and multiplying by 2.2 (representing, conservatively, average number of viewers per set). Thus cumulative figures for four nights—59,668,000 homes or 131,269,600 viewers—include unaccountable number of homes and people viewing more than one night. Figures are also limited by fact they do not include viewing of convention coverage past 11 p.m. New York time.

ARB’s Arbitron report for Thursday night session showed 16,208,000 homes tuned per average minute. This was second highest evening of convention, 1.1 million behind 17,314,000 average on Wednesday, nominations night. Peak half-hour Thursday night averaged 18,736,000 per minute, exceeded by four half-hours Wednesday evening (earlier details page 62).

Westinghouse income shows 18% increase

Westinghouse Electric Corp., Pittsburgh, reported net income after taxes up 18% for first half of year, to $1.14 per common share, compared with 96 cents for first six months of 1959. Announcement, made Friday (July 15) by President Mark W. Cresap Jr., and Board Chairman Gwilym A. Price, Put net sales for 1960 period at $953,844,000, up 4% over 1959 six months’ report of $914,203,000. Net income was $40,454,000, compared with $34,150,000 last year and before-tax profit margin rose to 7.1% from 6.8%. Second-quarter net income set record at $20,958,000, equal to 59 cents per common share. New orders booked first half of 1960 increased 9% over 1959 period, with all segments of Westinghouse contributing except major appliances, which declined slightly.

NAB will oppose penalty legislation

NAB policy committee Friday announced determination opposed to 10-day license suspension and $1,000-per-day forfeiture provisions of payola bill ($1898) after strategy session to plan association’s testimony on measure at Senate hearing Aug. 10.

Use of such sanctions against communications medium “opens up a whole new concept of governmental regulation,” said Clair R. McCollough, chairman of NAB policy unit and president-general manager of Steinman Stations, Lancaster, Pa., after Friday meeting. Amendments, he said, are matter of “serious concern” to broadcast industry.

Vincent T. Wasilewski, NAB government affairs vice president, will testify for association at hearing starting Aug. 10 before Senate Communications Subcommittee headed by Sen. John O. Pastore (D-R.I.). NAB won’t oppose bill’s other provisions, most worked out in conferences between industry and House Communications & Power Subcommittee headed by Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.) to meet broadcaster objections against original committee proposals they thought too strict, rigid, or restrictive.

Rep. Harris grafted omnibus proposals onto Senate-passed bill before House approval of legislation June 28, but Senate refused to concur without hearings on controversial provisions.

Other NAB policy committee members at Friday meeting were G. Richard Shafto, WIS-AM-TV Columbia, S.C., and Merrill Lindsay, WSOY Decatur, Ill.

Gov. Collins lauds convention coverage

Praise for news media with emphasis on television and radio was voiced by Florida Governor LeRoy Collins, permanent chairman of the Democratic National Convention, at Thursday night’s session.

Presumably designed to offset condemnation of radio and television in party platform adopted previous day
Radio code board will meet Aug. 29

NAB's new Radio Code Review Board will meet in Washington August 29, it was announced Friday, following report to NAB Policy Committee that response to two-week-old code has been "widespread and gratifying" from all broadcasters.

Before July 1, radio code operated strictly on honor system open to NAB members only. New code includes enforcement procedures and established nine-man board. It is open to all radio broadcasters whether or not members of NAB.

Policy committee at meeting Friday also heard reports on: (1) opening of New York TV code office; (2) appointments of broadcasters to fill committee vacancies and schedule of committee meetings; (3) participation in 1960 fall conferences (eight to be held in October and November); (4) status of activities of Assn. for Professional Broadcasting Education.

Policy committee members, who are running affairs of NAB pending selection of new president to succeed late Harold E. Fellows, are Clair R. McCollough, Steinman stations, chairman; G. Richard Shafto, WIS-AM-TV Columbia, S.C., and Merrill Lindsay, WSOY Decatur, Ill.

There's sound selling in a selling sound

The sound of selling is the sound of the sixties. It's the Good Humor man's bells. It's the Helms' Bakery wagon with its Helmsman's whistle.

But the sound of selling isn't new. It goes back—way back. Those who lived in the days of the steam engine surely remember, with a touch of nostalgia, the plaintive tone of the locomotive whistle in the still of the night as the train hurried across the lonely countryside. "Aaaaaaaay... Aaaaaaaay... Come awaaaaay with me," it seemed to say. Railroad men may not have realized it, but they had an exclusive on one of the greatest sounds for selling travel in the history of transportation.

More recently, the sound of selling was Winston Churchill's confident and reassuring voice as he made his famous "blood, toil, tears and sweat" radio speech in World War II to the British people when Hitler's invasion of the British Isles was expected hourly and England was taking the worst pummeling in its long history.

Emotional Impact = There are so many sounds that make a dent in our conscious and emotional structure in one way or another. There's the sound of disaster. Did you ever hear the broadcast of the Hindenburg explosion in 1937? Then there's the sound of life—like the first squall of an infant when brought into the world. And surely, nothing better describes the sound of speed and power like the deep roar of an Atlas missile as it struggles to leave the launching pad. Then there's the sound of sentiment and memories like Jackie Gleason's misty music.

With the enormous improvements in high fidelity reproduction and with radio and recording techniques at their all-time best, an increasing appreciation of the value of sound in selling has evolved. This is evident in an abundance of commercials that weld the sound to sell merchandise.

But there also seems to be a corresponding rise in mediocrity in the application of sound in radio commercials. Too many of them listen alike—talking out of the advertiser's mouth instead of into the listener's ear.

In so many cases the effect of sound on human consciousness appears to be underestimated. This doesn't mean that it should intrude, interrupt, jangle or be rude to make an impression. It should be implemented effectively to compliment the product and to aid the message, but not to detract from or to impede its delivery.

Creative Challenge = Now, not all products immediately associate themselves with a sound—a natural, readily recognized sound. And this is where the creative and production rub comes in. An advertiser that can't use a cash register ring like a finance company or a jet engine for an airline must build the sound of selling another way.

The sound of selling is the sound that captures a slice of the human mind and convinces the listener "This is for you." It need not be bombastic. It must be pleasant. It must be memorable. It must create desire. It can be humorous, if the product lends itself to it. And finally, as David Sarnoff once advised an aspiring but nervous young performer in the early days of radio, "Speak to the microphone as though it were an ear, not a megaphone."

Probably the single most important value in sound is its capacity to convert to practical use the immeasurable quantity of memory material stored in the human mind. But to draw on this accumulation of mental memorabilia—to convert it to the advertiser's best advantage, to impart the sound of selling—ask yourself this question before taking typewriter in hand, hiring talent or engaging studio facilities: "Does it sound like my client's product?" The answer to this question is the key to the sound of selling.

Copy and Ideas = All this doesn't mean that a single sound will ever replace a good selling and copy idea and the right words—the words that snap, crackle and pop, the words that sizzle with consumer benefits and create desire. After all, words were the first, the original sounds.

The name of the game is to sell. And crisp creative concepts, combined with bright, easily understood pictures words and intelligent sounds make for the sound of selling.

People are ear conscious. There are more ears and eyes tuned to air media than ever before. The numbers of radio and TV sets in homes are the highest in history. Sound has bloomed and is an integral part of our everyday life. It represents companionship. Use it effectively. Convert the sound of life to the sound of selling.

But it must 'sound' like your product

St. Louis tv home count

EDITOR: Data shown in our recent release of ARB estimates of television households, pertaining to St. Louis, Mo. (issue of June 20, page 80), should be corrected to read: St. Louis—total households, 465,900; television households, 428,100; percent with tv, 92%.

The corrected figures include both St. Louis County and the independent city of St. Louis. The earlier figures for St. Louis were incorrect due to clerical error.—Maurice Abrams, Manager, Research Planning and Design, American Research Bureau Inc., Beltsville, Md.

Knight Newspapers’ reply

EDITOR: Some statements in your July 4 editorial (page 90) on Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.) are completely erroneous and unfair.

You said Mr. Harris’ anger over the Congressional expense account expose in Knight Newspapers is “understandable” and that the Detroit Free Press stands accused of “highly questionable ethics.” Any such charge is entirely unfounded.

The picture The Free Press used with the story about [Rep. Harris] Hawaiian junket was taken from our files. There was nothing “phony” about it, as you suggest. It was not distorted in cropping. It was taken by a freelance photographer at a Washington party. Our presentation did not imply in any way that it was an on-the-spot photo taken in Hawaii.

Mr. Harris was not given a runaround when he tried to get an explanation. On the contrary, we went to unusual lengths to contact the Washington photographer to get the complete details and send them to Mr. Harris. He also was given every opportunity to tell us what was wrong with the story, and never did.

It is also unfair to say the expensive story accounts “smeared” all members of the House. Our stories and editorials repeatedly pointed out that only a few congressmen were involved. A patient search of over 25,000 vouchers by our reporters turned up the exact amount of abuse. Rep. Harris happened to be among them.

You state it was easy for the “adroit Arkansan” to sell his colleagues on his amendment. It is important that this same adroitness not divert your attention, or the public’s, from the facts. The final fact is that within a month Congress, to its credit, voted to stop the abuses which we disclosed.

The story on page 70 of your June 27 issue on Rep. Harris’ speech also gives an erroneous impression of Knight Newspapers in connection with our
What Do Politicians Do On Their Day Off?

These days, chances are they do exactly what they do on their days on; they talk about politics. And some of their topics might be: "Planning Our Foreign Policy," "The Farmer," "The Middle East," or "Building A Highway." It is no coincidence that these happen to be four of the more than 700 titles in the Encyclopaedia Britannica Film Library—pioneered and presented by Trans-Lux Television Corporation.

Politicians—and just plain people—particularly young people—are alert to the need for more basic knowledge about the world in which we live. stories about House expense abuses...

The second paragraph reads: "Cheering congressmen, who gave Rep. Harris a standing ovation from both the Democratic and Republican sides of the aisle when he got through, found it impossible to ignore—even if they had so chosen—the angry Arkansan's charge that two of the payola bill's opponents are none other than Knight Newspapers and Time; and that their stories about congressional spending of public money were attempts to intimidate his Legislative Oversight Subcommittee into laying off the two companies' tv and radio properties."

While it says this was a "charge," the use of the words, "found it impossible to ignore—even if they had so chosen," clearly leaves the impression the charge is true or that Broadcasting believes it to be.

Nothing could be further from the truth. . . . Jack Knight wrote his "Editor's Notebook" on this last Nov. 22, 1959, and [our] editorials and cartoons . . . show that the Free Press had editorially demanded, not opposed, cleanup of the payola situation. Similar editorials appeared in other Knight Newspapers.—Lee Hills, Executive Editor, Detroit Free Press.

TV'S COMPLEX LABOR CONTRACTS
An ever-thickening paper jungle threatens to stifle the medium

Closed doors in Washington's Sheraton-Park Hotel this week will shield the latest strategy moves in what has become one of the most complicated labor-management mazes in any industry.

Delegates to the annual convention of the American Federation of Television & Radio Artists will frame their demands to be incorporated into a new union contract for presentation to the networks later this summer. The resultant AFTRA pact will be typical of the perplexing myriad of agreements negotiated in the television industry, and undoubtedly will reinforce a conviction expressed by a tv executive last week that "tv labor negotiations and contracts are the most complex in the world."

Union officials and labor relations directors at the networks and at film producers' associations interviewed by Broadcasting accept this description as an industry fact-of-life. They concede, too, that contracts likely will become more complex, as both unions and management insist upon provisions that are detailed and precise to protect their respective rights in a fluid industry. They confess, too, that the utopia of protection has yet to be attained.

This summer and fall promise to provide one continuous round of headaches to the contract negotiators. The four major contracts at the networks expire either late this fall or before the end of the year. The unions involved, in addition to AFTRA, are Local 7 of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, covering stagehands; the Directors Guild of America; the National Assn. of Broadcast Employees & Technicians at ABC and NBC and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers at CBS. NABET and IBEW represent technicians at their respective networks.

More of Same "Networks and unions are reluctant to discuss the direction of negotiations, but it is reasonable to assume that a new wave of wage increases, improvement in re-issue fees, and a strengthening of job security provisions will be sought by labor. One certainty: the contracts will be detailed, precise and voluminous.

The weightiness of network contracts is exemplified by the present AFTRA code with the networks, which expires Nov. 15. It runs 40 full-sized pages and ranges over these topics:

- Fees for principal performers, announcers (off camera and on camera), dramatic shows, commercial performers, news shows, extra rehearsal, chorus dancers, chorus singers, specialty acts, sportscasters, walk-ons and extras, sustaining programs, live repeat programs, programs in excess of two hours, takes, previews and warm-ups.

- Also: after-shows, models, stand-ins, understudies, hazardous performances, remote, compensation for traveling, program auditions, talent auditions, doubling, definition of a line ('not more than ten words'), definition of walk-ons and extras, and cast credits.

- Also: rehearsal day and overtime, minimum call, incidental rehearsal, extension of rehearsals span, overtime beyond 40 hours, rest periods, meal periods, wardrobes, wigs and appurtenances ('performers are not required to furnish special wardrobe, special wigs or appurtenances') wardrobe hygiene, dressing rooms, over-scale contracts, additional services, cancelled programs, postponed programs, payment schedule, disability insurance, non-waiver of rights, individual contracts, deduction of social security and withholding contracts.

The complexity of labor relations in broadcasting can be gauged by these signposts:

- The awesome number of contracts signed. The tv networks hold pacts with approximately 80 different unions and locals, and tv film producers in New York, Hollywood and other cities are under contract to more than 25 different unions.

- The classifications within a single union or local often are numerous and provisions have to be signed for each group. For example, the Directors Guild of America (formerly the Radio & Television Directors Guild) signed 23 different contracts with the networks for various categories of directors in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and Washington. Another example: a film producers' contract with a New York local of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes covered wages and working conditions for 17 different types of workers.

- Contracts are lengthy, precise and detailed. These characteristics are said to result from the nature of the broadcasting industry, since it utilizes such a vast variety of talent and employees, each with peculiarly unique working condi-
How many unions are in this picture?

On this NBC-TV special, the color cameras, the camera dollies and the dolly pushers are manned by NABET men, who also handle the cameras and the boom mikes. The stage manager is a member of the Directors Guild of America. The busy men who move the props are with Local 1 of IATSE, but the props were created and put together by members of Local 829 of the Scenic Designers, Scenic Artists and Costumer Designers Union. The chandeliers, fireplaces and furniture were fashioned by scenic designers, transported to the front of the studios by truckmen belonging to the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, and carried into the premises by Local 1 of IA workers. The dancers and extras belong to AFTRA; their costumes were altered and fitted by employees belonging to IATSE Local 764, wardrobe attendants union and their coiffures were handled by members of IATSE Local 798, make-up artists and hair stylists. The music was performed by musicians belonging to the AFM. The script was by writers belonging to the Writers Guild of America East. The visible wiring comes under the jurisdiction of IBEW Local 3 since it concerns maintenance electricity (if wires are attached to a camera or other broadcasting device, that's NABET's territory). Behind the scenes the flip cards and other visual cues were created by artists of IATSE Local 841. And to be certain the set was properly air conditioned, NBC used NABET members.

Statistics. Precision is needed to forestall, if possible, problems involving property rights and union jurisdictional disputes.

Number of Members - Television's complicated labor contract structure exists even though broadcasting is not regarded as highly unionized. Latest figures issued by the NAB show that at networks and stations, approximately 16,000 (19%) of about 85,000 employees are unionized. This figure may be deceptive in that it does not reflect the substantial number of radio-tv workers who are administrative, executive and clerical personnel. Statistics for workers employed in tv film are difficult to compute, since these workers are engaged, to varying degrees, in theatrical films, documentary films, industrial films, as well as tv films.

Technicians holding cards in NABET and IBEW form the hard core of staff union membership, estimated by NAB to total approximately 8,500 workers at networks and stations. Other unions with large memberships are AFTRA, 3,000 workers (not including the substantial number of free-lance performers who work on a casual basis); Local 1, IATSE, approximately 1,200 stagehands and associated employees; Directors Guild of America, more than 1,000 directors and stage managers.

Statistics are not always meaningful because many of the unions involved in tv consist of employees who are not staff and earn part of their livelihood in other communications and entertainment areas, such as the theatre, the motion pictures, publishing. This is particularly true of members of the American Federation of Musicians, the Writers Guild of America, Directors Guild of America, IATSE, and Screen Actors Guild.

Adding to the complexity of contract negotiation is the multiplicity of locals within a union, for which the networks and film producers must negotiate separate contracts. This is particularly true of the AFM, WGA, DGA, IATSE, NABET and IBEW. But there are many smaller unions on the contract scene, including United Scenic Artists (scenic designers and artists); International Brotherhood of Teamsters (parking lot attendants and truck drivers); Affiliated Property Craftsmen (prop maker, furniture handler, draper); American Federation of Guards (policemen and firemen); Screen Extras Guild (extras and stand-ins); Screen Story Analysts (script readers) and others.

How did it all happen?
Management and union officials agree that their headaches mounted with the evolution of television. They point out that tv inherited the amalgamated labor pains of radio, motion pictures and the millinery maker and licensed powder-

man.

Contracts often contain clauses ap-icable only to a specific craft operating under certain conditions. The AFTRA pact, recognizing the geographical expanse of Los Angeles and the expense of transportation, has this provision:

“Each extra shall be paid $1.50 as transportation expense whenever called for a second audition or interview within Los Angeles County.”

AFTRA also insists, for example, that dancers have a wooden floor upon which to rehearse. In New York,

because of a lack of facilities, dancers

in the past often had to use marble floors in halls. This group rose up in arms and persuaded AFTRA to press for the wooden floors. This is now standard in the union’s contracts.

An IATSE contract takes note of hazardous work that its members have to perform and covers it this way:

“In the event that any soundman,

electrician, propertyman, grip or shop

craftsman is assigned work involving aerial flights, submarine diving or artificial air helmet diving, he shall be covered by a personal accident insurance policy, insuring against death and/or dismemberment in the amount of $20,000 and providing for weekly indemnity of $100 in the event of total disability, as such term is commonly understood in the insurance field, for a period of 52 weeks.”

The possibility of pay tv hovers over some of the industry contracts. The recently-negotiated contract covering film writers at studios and networks contains a clause under which producer agrees to negotiate an agreement for pay tv before releasing films made for free tv to pay tv. If no agreement is reached, the Writers Guild of America may cancel its free tv contract.

Union and management officials agree that as conditions shift in the industry, provisions will be inserted in pacts to reflect the changes. Thus, rash of o-uses origination, for example, is prompted some of the unions to insist upon insurance to safeguard members travelling to foreign countries.

And so it goes. Detail upon detail upon detail.

Postscript — But despite the complexity and meticulous attention paid to contracts, one group apparently has been overlooked: cats and dogs. The teamsters have not yet insisted upon transporting a cat or a dog to a studio and talent unions have shown scant inclination to cover any kind of animal under their contracts. The owners of animals to date have been negotiating as skillfully as they can to obtain a square deal for cats, dogs and other animal performers.

But a spokesman for Animal Talent

Scouts Inc., New York, which supplies

a wide assortment of animal performers to New York and Hollywood tv, motion picture and theatrical organizations, is miffed by the lack of protection given

to his charges and adds:

“We’ve been trying for several years to get AFTRA, SAG and Equity to cover animals under their contracts.

After all, many of them have become stars or distinct personalities and have helped many productions. Aren’t they

to be entitled to minimum rates and to the protection given to other talented performers?”

Another entry in a crowded field

Still another union is moving in on broadcasting. It’s the Communications Workers of America and it has just signed a contract with WFMY-

TV Greensboro, N.C., its first in the field.

The electronics communication union, with 300,000 members, is understood to be active in both the North and South. Its southern strength of 100,000 members includes Southern Bell and Southwestern Bell, according to union sources.

In announcing the Greensboro contract the union said it had negotiated a 13.9e hourly basic wage increase, or $5 a week for eight of nine technicians and $10 for a new employee. Another $5 is provided in a year. The contract was effective the first week in July. Progression schedules were cut from 8 to 3½ years, according to the union. Starting pay was said to be up from $65 to $80 a week, top pay from $107 to $112.

Other provisions described by the union were three-week vacations at the end of nine years’ service and double time for the first five hours on holidays plus 2½ time.

Gaines Kelley, general manager of WFMY-TV, said the long-standing company operating manual specifies the same overtime and vacation features in the CWA contract for all station employees. “This union contract is not an outgrowth of discrimination,” Mr. Kelley said. “Many provisions of the contract have been in effect for all employees over a period of many years.” He said

WFMY-TV had begun development of new working conditions for the entire staff last Feb. 4, a month before it heard of the technicians’ organi-

RAB's new sales ammunition tells statistical story of growth

Need to convince yourself—or advertisers and agencies, if you're a salesman—that radio is a good buy?

The Radio Advertising Bureau thinks you'll find most of the basic answers you need in a pocket-size it's releasing today (July 18). The booklet packs into 34 pages, statistics on such basic elements as radio's size and reach, its growth, the composition of its audiences and their tuning habits, and its cost and how this compares with that of other media.

For the most part, the material represents a recapitulation and updating of existing basic research rather than strictly new data. One exception is an hour-by-hour delineation of audience composition (see chart), a type of breakdown seen much more frequently for television than for radio in recent years. But the biggest overall value of the booklet Radio 1960, it was felt, is in its concentration of such a mass of radio statistics in one place. Among them—aside from the fundamental that there were almost 156.4 million radio sets in working order in the U.S. on Jan. 1, 1960, as against

How a tv station broke the department store barrier

WHNB-TV New Britain-Hartford, Conn., cracked the department store trade with a Christmas promotion that turned into a year-around boon. On the books to date: two department store accounts in a market where this business previously had been a virtual newspaper monopoly.

The pioneer department store was E.J. Korvette, eastern discount chain based in New York. Results were so satisfactory that Korvette came back after the holiday for successive campaigns, varying the approach.

Results must have been obvious in the marketplace as well. Another department store, Sage Allen of Hartford, took 13-week sponsorship of a five-minute news commentary twice weekly on WHNB-TV.

When station account executive Robert H. Gruskay approached Korvette last December, he took a presentation inspired by a store campaign conducted on New York TV some years back. (He used to be a Ted Bates timebuyer in New York.) The plan calls for a battery of ID's throughout the day on one or two items of merchandise. The concentrated barrage is designed to produce immediate sales impact the next day.

Store manager Earl Perlov and Mrs. Eve Nelson, promotion manager for the chain, bought the idea for the Christmas season. They took about 25 ID's Wednesdays and Fridays, starting at 8 a.m. and riding through the day, winding up past midnight with Jack Paar Show adjacencies on the NBC-TV affiliate. Wednesday spots alternated between two items marked as Thursday sale specials and the Friday flight promoted two more for Saturday. Mr. Perlov and Mr. Gruskay personally set up each day's campaign, using a one-two slide sequence, showing the store title-address and individual merchandise featured. Sale immediacy and price were stressed both in copy and art.

Point of Sale *The tv specials were marked in the store with Korvette's symbol, "Mr. E.J." (see picture) and a television set. Traffic at these counters persuaded the client to extend the tv campaign into 1960. T

Tv merchandise has included frying pans, electric mixers, pajamas, steam irons, raincoats, men's suits, dishes, games, ladies' sweaters, coats and dresses.

The store found that much of the tv advertised goods would sell out by the end of the sale day and sometimes would all go by noon. While some items sold better than others, the tv schedule produced a sustained response in every case. With the new year, Korvette converted the ID idea to boost traffic in entire departments of the store.

Schedules of both stores have expired now, but WHNB-TV looks for their return in the fall. Meanwhile, Korvette is riding out the hiatus by participating in the third annual "Miss Channel 30 Contest," which offers participating sponsors a combination card of commercials, shared promotional announcements and contest activities over a 10-week period. The package is available for a fee plus donated prizes. Korvette is contributing a half dozen cameras to a jackpot that includes an automobile, fur stole, clothes, television sets, watches and trophies.

146.2 million a year before—are such diverse measurements as:
98% growth in set ownership since 1949;
More than 18 million sets sold in 1959, or almost twice the total for 1949, with portable-set sales quadrupling and auto-set sales tripling in that period;
7% gain in radio's daily reach in the last two years, rising from 68.9 million persons a day to almost 73.7 million;
U.S. sales of Japanese transistor sets up from 641,000 in 1957 to 4 million last year.

"The most significant figures emerging from our analysis," RAB President Kevin B. Sweeney said, "are those pinpointing the accelerating growth of radio during the 50's despite the fact that this was television's initial decade of fast growth and development."

According to RAB's booklet, all indications point to an even more profitable future for radio in the 1960's, dispelling any thoughts that it is a waning media.

The information was compiled from various research sources, including independent studies as well as a number commissioned by RAB.

RAB officials said that by the end of this month 15,000 copies will have been distributed to RAB members-stations, networks and stations representatives—and advertising agencies. Copies also all will be furnished to advertisers on request.

Manischewitz account added by Grant Adv.

Grant Adv., New York, last week added the million-dollar Monarch Wine Co. (Manischewitz) account. Current Manischewitz billings, through its former agency, Lawrence C. Gumbinner Adv., New York, are estimated from "more than $1 million" to $1.85 million. Television Bureau of Advertising reports $869,000 spent in spot tv last year for the brand.

The transfer, official the first of next month, is the latest development in an aggressive new-business-expansion program Grant has conducted since losing $17 million in national Dodge billings early this year. Since then the agency has hired new executive talent under President Elliott Plowe, moved headquarters from Chicago to New York (international headquarters remains in Chicago under founder-chairman Will C. Grant), merged with Robinson, Fenwick & Haynes in Los Angeles and added new business billing around $11 million, including an automotive client, Fiat cars.

In Broadcasting's report last week of the Grant-Robinson, Fenwick & Haynes merger, pictures inadvertently were mis-captioned. Identifications should have read, left to right, Mr. Grant, Mr. Robinson and Mr. Plowe.

HOW TO WIN VOTES?
ANPA tells politicians to use print media

The American Newspaper Publishers Assn. Bureau of Advertising is using 1956 tv ratings in Detroit to help sell politicians on newspaper advertising this campaign season. The research appears in a sales brochure, "How To Win Votes and Influence People."

Campaign funds are hard to come by, and "it's important to try to determine which medium gives you the most value for your money," prospects are reminded. The booklet then gives television and radio four pages, supporting a thesis that these are entertainment media, and "in the area of entertainment, political telecasts generally fare poorly." These sample ratings, identified as ARB reports, are included:

Not only do political telecasts pull small audiences, but in many instances they stir resentment by pre-empting popular shows, the ANPA bureau claims. Tv ratings from the following October are offered with an added note

Buy big

Radio Advertising Bureau, New York, has published a new pocket presentation on soft drinks, titled "To Top Any Sales Quota, Buy Radio Big." Prospects are reminded that radio's audience soars in summer months when a third of all soft drink sales are made, that radio is a prime medium with teen agers who influence more than 70% of soft drink sales, that radio blankets the country with an average three sets per household, that radio reaches housewives who are the biggest buyers of soft drinks consumed at home and that radio "offers the biggest advertising buy for the money." Points are all documented in the latest addition to RAB's pocket series covering bread, tire, beer, gasoline and airline advertising.
Coke and the 'Copter
give a cheerful lift to Atlanta motorists

A sure formula for community acceptance is at work when a responsible station and a civic-minded sponsor join hands to perform an urgently needed public service. The Atlanta Coca-Cola Bottling Company and WSB Radio do this by providing helicopter traffic reports for motorists and the Atlanta Police Department.

A uniformed police officer flies beside our reporter as the 'copter cruises above rush-hour traffic arteries . . . and thousands of car radios hold firm on 750 for reports on bottlenecks ahead, possible hazards, and guidance to more open routes. Helicopter service plus WSB's auto traffic patrol rounds out one of the best radio good-will builders anywhere.

No Better — In radio, it’s worse, according to “How To Win Votes.” There are more stations to divide the audience and the radio audience is smaller anyway, the booklet says. In both media, it concludes, people tune in candidates on whom they’ve already decided, so “in tv and radio a political party talks mainly to itself.”

In the case for newspapers, documentation includes findings of a bureau-financed study by Leonard J. Bischen of Milwaukee during the 1960 primaries. Comparing newspapers, television, magazines and radio, 62% said papers give the most information about what candidates stand for, with 17% citing television and 2% radio. Asked which is best to help a voter make up his mind, 43% said newspapers, 30% television and 2% radio. (Magazines scored 8% on the first question and 2% on the second and “don’t know” 11% and 23% respectively.)

The ANPA also quotes a book by the U. of Michigan Survey Research Center, The American Voter, stating that print media project a much stronger image of a candidate than radio or television.

Success capsules are given on campaigns of Republican Gov. Mark Hatfield of Oregon, Democratic Gov. Abe Ribicoff of Connecticut and testimonial quotations from various state and local officials and such national officeholders as Sen. A.S. (Mike) Monroney (D-Oka.).

Political sales

Mutual has reported that substantial number of its affiliates have made local sales on MBS special coverage programming of conventions and election. Under MBS’ pattern the network sold 20% of programming to Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. (Oasis) (AT DEADLINE, July 4), and affiliates are making 80% of the package available for local sale.

Frank Erwin, assistant to MBS president, announced that of 347 affiliates replying to MBS survey, 61% have sold all their availabilities; 34% have sold more than 50% and 5% have sold half or less.

Pepsi-Cola leads Nielsen Radio Index

A general rise in both total home broadcasts delivered and total commercial minutes delivered is noted in the National Nielsen Radio Index of network radio’s leading advertisers, based on the four weeks ending June 5. The ranking of the top five advertisers in terms of home broadcasts is the same as on May 8, with only Electric Auto- lite and Renault, in second and third place respectively, showing a slight drop in the number of broadcasts. Pepsi-Cola, in the number one spot since February, increased its total home broadcasts delivered by more than 71 million over the total a month ago. Metropolitan Life, which was out of the rankings completely last time, landed high up in both categories in the most recent Nielsen Index.

Nothing is quite like the sound of a healthy human heartbeat. To describe it they had to coin a word—“lub dub.”

We haven't found the proper single phrase to describe the sounds of the healthy, pulsating Greater Oklahoma City Market.

Maybe it's the “clinking” of coins dropping into cash registers.

Maybe it's the crisp rustling of paper money being invested in industrial expansion.

Or maybe it's the sounds of WKY RADIO AND TELEVISION, in the role of prime communicators to the people of the market, aiding in the profitable sale and distribution of the products you have to sell.

Whatever it is, it's a profitable sound, measured in dollars rather than decibels. That is the basis of this part of the story of the industrial and economic growth of the Greater Oklahoma City market... a story of how WKY RADIO AND TELEVISION are selling more things to more people.

This chapter is...
Economic expansion in Greater Oklahoma City...

As sound as it is bright!

The growth and vitality of the market is shown in the volume of bank clearings as well as in the savings of its people. One shows the money in circulation. The other shows individual surplus available to spend.

The expansion of Greater Oklahoma City is supported by a chain of dollars with no weak links. It starts with venturesome investors who have faith in the market creating business and industrial expansion. This leads to ever-increasing payrolls to people with the desire to spend and improve their family life. Through all of this there is the safety valve of diversification, so that no one industry setback can cause cash register cobwebs.

Money-circulated and money-saved make Oklahoma City a good place in which to do more business.

Reaching the people with money to spend is the first step in increasing your business. Some of the reasons WKY RADIO AND TELEVISION do this so effectively are told on page 4.
Our Business Is "HEARTBEATS AND FINANCE," too.

We stay close to the hearts of our audience with fine local programming, public service, and genuine pride in our market.

Because of this, WKY RADIO AND TELEVISION have a certain "authority" that furnishes sales power to sponsor's messages.

The result is that dollar for dollar, WKY-TV and/or WKY RADIO will outsell any other tv or radio station in the market. We're experts in the nicest kind of "finance" ... making money for our advertisers. Which, in turn, makes money for us (last year, we enjoyed our biggest volume on both stations in history).

It all adds up this way: The Greater Oklahoma City market is vitally prosperous...making, saving, spending money. WKY RADIO AND TELEVISION have more influence on the people who live in this market than any other media. That's why...OKLAHOMA CITY IS A GOOD MARKET IN WHICH TO DO MORE BUSINESS.

Good Stations ON which to do More Business!

MOVIE MAN Warns NEWSPAPERS

Print may lose movie ad money to radio-tv

Unless newspapers can provide motion pictures with the promotional cooperation that is extended by radio and television, newspaper advertising schedules are going to suffer, while the air media stand to gain an increasing share of the movie advertising dollar:

This warning was issued by Paul N. Lazarus Jr., vice president of Columbia Pictures, who declared before the Newspaper Advertising Executive Assn. in San Francisco Tuesday (July 12) that "the assured budget is a thing of the past. Certain pictures cry for radio and television coverage . . . and based on our experience of recent years—they're going to get it even if the newspaper schedules have to suffer."

Mr. Lazarus represented member companies of the Motion Picture Assn. of America.

The movie executive's topics included national and local amusement rate structures, the content of the amusement page, tv and what the newspapers are doing to and for tv, and censorship of movie ads in newspapers. He defined a sound motion picture page as "one which is well-balanced between motion picture advertising, editorial comment, illustrations, Hollywood columns, reviews, drawings or art and no outside ads." He stated that a survey of 160 newspapers representing every major market showed that "more than one out of every five newspapers adopts a definitely uncooperative attitude towards motion pictures," while "33% of the papers checked do not even review new movies for their readers."

"Made Whipping Boy," Mr. Lazarus told the advertising executives that they can do something about the situation: "There are areas of promotion of contests, of tie-ups which will indicate the good will of the papers toward the motion picture industry. Radio and tv find no moral problem in cooperation; why should the daily press?" He added that the rate structure could use correction and the national-local rate structure could "bear a bit of soul searching. As a matter of fact, we're damned tired of being a whipping boy of both the editorial and business departments of the press," he asserted.

Pointing out that Columbia Pictures' share of cooperative newspaper advertising was $2 million for the first nine months of the current fiscal year, Mr. Lazarus put his company in perspective by comparing this figure with the total of $2,127,000 spent nationally last year by radio and television for newspaper space.

Spend $35 million. He estimated that the eight major movie companies will spend close to $22 million in this fiscal year on co-op newspaper advertising expenditures. "Add to this some $500,000 in national newspaper advertising and an estimated $12 million of theatre advertising expenditures and the total hits a tremendous $35 million," he said. July 12.

Mr. Lazarus said he realizes that editorial space is not awarded on the basis of advertising volume and that public interest is the primary criterion, "but, given two entertainment media of equal public appeal, does it seem right that the lesser advertiser should receive the greater attention? Particularly when it is an advertising medium competing fiercely with you for the motion picture dollar."

Business briefly

Daytime shoppers. New ABC-TV daytime program sponsorships include: Peter Paul (Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample Inc.), Curtis Publishing for Saturday Evening Post (BBDO), Dow Corning (Anderson & Cairns), Miles Labs (Wade Adv.) and Ex-Lax (Warwick & Legler), for a combined purchase of 134 quarter hours.

New Advertiser. Crown Colorfilm Service, Brooklyn, N.Y. (film developing) is test marketing in spot radio in Utica, N.Y. agency, Philip J. Perlman, N.Y., plans more testing in upstate New York markets, Columbus, Ohio, and areas in Pennsylvania. If tests are successful, advertiser will go national.

Back to school and after. Paper Mate Co. (Div. of The Gillette Co.) plans an extensive network spot tv advertising campaign keyed to price reductions on its pens and a back-to-school theme within the framework of a three-month sales drive. Client will push promotion through seven network properties (ABC-TV’s American Bandstand and Game of the Week; CBS-TV’s Verdict Is Yours, Voice of Life, Clear Horizon, and Full Circle; and NBC-TV’s Loretta Young Show, around Labor Day, and follow up with participation in Gillette’s World Series and NCAA football telecasts later. Additionally, Paper Mate is buying saturation availabilities in about 100 top markets for two or three weeks after holiday. Agency: Foote, Cone & Belding, Chicago.

Rocky’s road. General Mills has renewed the animated cartoon series Rocky and His Friends for 26 weeks beginning in September. Some new characters for the Navy

The usual procedure in developing an animated commercial campaign for television is to create a character, identify him with the product or service being advertised, and use him over and over in a series of more or less varied situations. Each situation presents a problem which he solves through use of the product or service. Continuity is the key to this technique, whose motto is the tried and true advertising saw: repetition means recognition.

The new series of recruiting spots which Playhouse Pictures has produced for the Navy Dept. represents a complete break with that traditional technique. Each of this series of five 60-second and five 20-second animated films concerns distinctly individual characters. None appears in any of the other nine spots. Each has his own particular problem, his own peculiar worry. What links the 10 individual spots into a series is that the solution to all 10 problems is the same: Join the Navy, young man. Well, that’s virtually true but not exactly so. In one or two of the films the answer is: Join the Navy, young woman.

The films, shipped to all tv stations in the country for use as public service material, were aimed specifically at the young men and women of Navy enlistment age. To reach that group, they must “combine salesmanship with entertainment, fusing solid facts with elements of whimsy, humor, striking artwork and modern musical backgrounds,” says Commander J. “B” Stewart, Bureau of Navy Personnel, who coordinated the project for the Navy.

Commander Stewart also appreciates that there are other realities of tv life which must be considered. “We realized that there is a great deal of public service film competing for free television time,” he states, “and wanted our spots to be original and interesting enough to capture the attention of television station program directors. Once accepted and scheduled . . . (they) must then compete for attention with the steady flow of commercial spot announcements and must therefore be of equal or superior quality to the best of these.”

The presentation is done in a variety of ways. There’s the cat and dog, gazing at their absent master, agreeing “it’s kind of lonesome” but they’re “awfully glad he did enroll in Navy Officer Candidate School.” There’s the graduate, wondering which branch of the service offers him the best opportunities and singing his problem with a chorus of professors in an operetta spot which gives the Navy man the chance to sing: “Oh, see what the Navy offers you. Travel and adventure, yes, and good pay, too. We have many jobs that you might do.” And so on to the chorused conclusion that “He will join the NA-AA-VEE.”

There’s the excitement hunter, with his head in the lion’s mouth; the kid who’s given up his “idle childish dream” of being a cowboy and “after considerable deliberation—decided to join the Navy”; the man who has devoted his youth to inventing a machine to crack a nut, then realizes he is the nut and it’s time he joined the Naval Reserve and learned a trade. And so on.

The new spots will shortly make their tv debut.

Indiana) under company’s proposed reorganization plan effective next Jan. 1. - Gaylord Products Inc. (pins, nets, other hair accessories), Chicago, appoints R. Jack Scott, that city, to handle advertising for all its divisions. Account has used tv.

- Sullivan, Stauffer, Colwell & Bayles, New York, which has handled recent test market advertising for Lever Brothers’ new detergent, Hum Laundry Liquid, has lost the account to J. Walter Thompson, N.Y. The loss was counteracted by Lever’s re-assignment of Rinso Blue detergent and Rinso Soap, formerly with JWT, to SSC&B, which also handles Breeze, Silver Dust and Lifebuoy soap for Lever.

- Sterling Silver and Stainless Steel Flatware Divs. of Oneida Ltd. silver-smiths to BBDO, N.Y., which has handled the firm’s Community silverplate account since 1936. Oneida said the Sterling and stainless divisions were being moved from J. Walter Thompson to BBDO, effective Jan. 1, in order to consolidate within one agency.

TvB in new quarters

Television Bureau of Advertising today (July 18) opens its new headquarters at 1 Rockefeller Plaza, the General Dynamics Building in New York. The organization has increased its space to 6,600 square feet and added elaborate television tape, projection and library facilities, which it was unable to accommodate at its old address, 444 Madison Ave. Phone: Plaza 7-9420.
Music? Make mine Cha-Cha-Cha ... TCHAIKOVSKY!

As long as people are human they will continue to change their minds, their interests, their needs and tastes. And from this gem of wisdom we've arrived at the conclusion that the radio station that stays in tune with the times is bound to get the lion's share of the listeners' time. Right now there is a keen desire for enlightenment. In keeping pace with this trend, WJR emphasizes enlightening programs. The audience response has been overwhelming.

For example: a large group of housewives formed the "Don't Call Between 10 A.M. and 11 A.M." Club. That's when WJR's "Adventures in Good Music" is on the air. Cha-Cha-Cha-inclined listeners have not been abandoned, but good music and its equivalent in informative programs are receiving more and more time. Our listeners demand a finer grade of entertainment and they get it. We never could buy that ridiculous "12-year-old mentality" bit. If you don't either, call your Henry I. Christal representative and see what WJR ... the station that's in tune with the times ... can do for you in this enlightened area.

FCC MOVES ON INFLUENCE CASES

Takes Miami from National Airlines, will re-examine Boston ch. 5

The FCC last week showed its muscle in the toughest action yet under the new regime of FCC Chairman Frederick W. Ford. It took these actions in the first decisions in the ex parte cases:

- Gave National Airlines 60 days to go off the air and authorized Miami ch. 10 to L.B. Wilson Inc., the only one of the four applicants it said was untarred by the influence brush.
- Vacated the ch. 5 Boston grant to the Boston Herald-Traveler (WHDH), but told the newspaper it could continue WHDH-TV on the air under temporary authority pending the outcome of reconsideration of the comparative hearing.

In both instances the commission went beyond the recommendations of its special hearing examiner, retired Pennsylvania Supreme Court Chief Justice Horace Stern.

Judge Stern had recommended that the 1957 Miami grant to National Airlines be withdrawn and that the comparative hearing be reopened to determine the eventual winner. In the Boston case, Judge Stern held that no behind-the-scenes representations had in substance been made and had recommended that no penalties be exacted. The Boston grant was also made in 1957.

The commission apparently accepted the position taken by its own staff, and that of the Dept. of Justice, which urged these courses of action in both instances.

In giving Miami ch. 10 to L.B. Wilson (which owns WCKY Cincinnati) the commission added a cryptic proviso. This was that the first license term for the ch. 10 facility would run only for four months. Normally, licenses run for three years.

Up for Grabs? Although speculation on this condition in the grant ran the gamut of considerations, it was believed that what the commission had in mind was that the short-term license might encourage other applications for the facility.

The commission, it is understood, used this stratagem to come as close as possible to its general inclination to throw open the Miami channel to all comers.

Since the case had been remanded by the federal court of appeals—a situation which protected the original four contestants from new applicants—the commission took this way to partially gain this objective.

Both FCC decisions must be submitted to the circuit court in Washington. The court retained jurisdiction in both instances.

The Miami action was taken by Chairman Ford and Commissioners Rosel H. Hyde and John S. Cross. Commissioner Robert E. Lee disagreed; he wanted to vacate the grant but permit WSPT-TV to continue under temporary authority while the commission reconsidered the entire case.

The Boston decision was taken by Messrs. Ford, Hyde, Lee and Cross, and Commissioner Robert T. Bartley. Commissioner Bartley did not participate in the Miami decision.

Commissioner T.A.M. Craven did not participate in either decision.

Washington attorneys for the various applicants reserved comment. It was presumed they needed time to study the documents and confer with their clients before making public their next moves.

It is an accepted belief that both of the stations losing their grants would petition the federal court to reverse the FCC action.

More Stringent Attitude: In disqualifying "absolutely" three of the four Miami ch. 10 applicants, the commission went one step beyond the examiner's recommendations.

Judge Stern had suggested that in a new hearing adverse points be placed against National Airlines and WKAT Miami, and that North Dade's activities were "imprudent" but not disqualifying.

"The Commission, after careful evaluation of the facts," the FCC said, "is of the opinion that the misconduct of WKAT Inc., North Dade Video Inc. and Public Service Television Inc. [National Airlines subsidiary] reflects so adversely upon their character as to demonstrate that they lack the qualifications to operate the station sought in the application . . . . each of them sought to influence the results by factors unrelated to the merits of the case and not a part of the hearing record. Willingness thus to pervert the process of administrative adjudication is convincing proof that the requisite character qualifications are lacking . . . ."

Both National Airlines and WKAT were accused of attempting to influence the vote of former FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack. Mr. Mack resigned after allegations were made before the House Legislative Oversight Committee that he had been swayed by Miami attorney Thurman A. Whiteside. Both men were tried on a conspiracy charge, but the first trial resulted in a hung jury. The second trial is scheduled to begin in federal court in Washington on Oct. 4.

North Dade was found to have hired former FCC member and former Ohio Republican Congressman Robert F. Jones to try to persuade Congress to pass legislation prohibiting an airline from owning a tv station. This Judge Stern termed imprudent, but not disqualifying.

With this the commission did not agree. It stated it felt that Mr. Jones was retained to assist North Dade by some form of political and extra-adjudicatory pressure. The FCC then said:

"When to this is added the extra-judicial approach to the commission . . . by the principals of North Dade, an approach which, although apparently non-productive, reflects no credit on North Dade, we believe that the conclusions regarding the misconduct of North Dade . . . are amply justified."

The commission found that since all the applicants except L.B. Wilson Inc. were unfit to become licensees, the grant should go to that applicant.

It added, however, that it is "aware and has considered that the peculiar circumstances of this matter have resulted in a type of award by default. Consequently the license period contemplated herein will be for four months subsequent to construction, rather than for the three-year period

No newfanging

A committee of communications lawyers has recommended that the FCC become more precedent-conscious. If the commission were to rely more on established criteria in comparative hearing cases, all elements of the hearing process could be speeded up by the elimination of extraneous and irrelevant material.

This, among other suggestions, was made by a special committee of the Federal Communications Bar Assn. studying pre-hearing procedures. It was chairmanned by Vincent B. Welch. It is one of a series of FCBA studies aimed at tightening up pre-hearing, hearing and post-hearing procedures (Broadcasting, July 11).

The case of the spying husband

If you want to spy on your wife, FCC field engineers strongly recommend that you do not use radio to monitor her conversations.

Tracing strange chatter heard over radio receivers in the Long Beach, Calif., area, FCC field engineers were led to a private home and a red-faced husband. He confided that he had installed a listening device in his living room in order to overhear his wife's "private" chats. He had no idea that his secret spy network had actually become a sort of community broadcast radiating on several AM broadcast frequencies.

He removed the eavesdropping device.

The latest roundup of the experiences of the commission's field engineer and monitoring bureau mentions this incident and several others to illustrate the varied routine of these staffs. A few typical incidents:

- An irate TV viewer in Rochester, N.Y., was so positive that a neighborhood ham operation was the cause of interference that he drew up a petition, got his friends to sign it, and appealed to his congressman to take action. The FCC's Buffalo field office went to work to track down the cause of the interference and finally, after 100 hours of search, traced the interference to a refrigerator in the Rochester man's own home, and another red face.

- Police in Florida apprehended a man transmitting race information from Tropical Park by a radio in his car. The FCC Miami office investigated and discovered that this was the same man that Boston engineers had been forced to release a short time before. The Boston office had discovered the transmitting equipment but, since it was not being used, had no choice except to release the suspect.

- In Norfolk, Va., a young man rigged up a teen-age circuit in the citizens band as a means of talking with his best girl. Their parents did not know of this "romance of the airways," but the station went off the air when field men talked about the consequences of operating unlicensed transmitting equipment.

Even shrimp boats come under the scrutiny of the monitoring bureau. The operator of one such boat used the international distress frequency for gossip and chatter. When conditions became difficult his language, too, measured up to the situation. Warned by the FCC, the salty shrimper promised to guard his tongue and his transmitter. However, within two months he was back at it and this time at the cost of $200 and a transfer to more remote fishing areas.

which has been customary."

National Airlines' WSPT-TV which began operating August 1957, was told to cease operating by Sept. 15.

Commissioner Lee, in dissenting to the majority's action in the Miami ch. 10 case, said he would prefer to accept the examiner's recommendations, and call for a comparative re-evaluation of the applicants on the basis of the original record and of the ex parte proceeding. In that way, the commission should make a final decision. In the meantime, he said, he would permit National Airlines to continue operating on ch. 10 under temporary authorization.

Boston Move Tough Too ■ The FCC decision in the Boston ch. 5 case was based predominantly on its determination that the conversations of Robert B. Choate, Herald-Traveler publisher and president of WHDH Inc., with then FCC Chairman George C. McConnaughey; and of Forrester A. Clark, vice president of Massachusetts Bay Telecasters Inc., and others with prominent political figures and also with Chairman McConnaughey were attempts to influence the outcome of the Boston Channel 5 decision. Although these were not considered absolutely disqualifying, the commission decided that it should have another look at all the applicants, and acknowledged that both the Herald-Traveler and Massachusetts Bay would have a black mark against them because of this.

The FCC held that Mr. Choate "demonstrated an attempted pattern of influence." Mr. Choate indicated that his reason for meeting with Mr. McConnaughey was to "size up" the new chairman, but the commission declared that "in the normal course of events its contacts with the commission would be conducted through its professional representatives and its appraisal of the individual commissioners would be formulated from the opinions of these gentlemen."

"The record contains no persuasive explanation of why Choate felt it necessary to seek a personal relationship with McConnaughey, and we conclude that his reason was to afford the chairman an opportunity to 'size him up', that is to demonstrate by his demeanor and presence that he was a responsible man representing responsible interests who merited favorable consideration of their application. . . ."

The FCC found that Mr. Choate's attempt to present to Mr. McConnaughey a brief on pending legislation concerning newspaper ownership of broadcast outlets at a second luncheon was an attempt to influence the chairman. Mr. McConnaughey refused to accept the document.

"That McConnaughey did not accept and, therefore, could not have been influenced by the brief is irrelevant to the fact that Choate attempted, in effect, to influence the outcome of the case by presenting argument on a portion thereof to a member of the commission ex parte," the FCC said.

"The very attempt to establish such a pattern of influence does violence to the integrity of the Commission's processes. Such an attack on the integrity of the processes of any adjudicatory body brings into play its inherent right to protect such processes, and one of the remedial measures available is its discretion in the voiding of any previous action that may have been tainted by such an attempt . . . ."

Briefs in 60 Days ■ The commission instructed the parties in the Boston ch. 5 case to file briefs on or before 60 days from the release of the decision re-evaluating their comparative merits on the basis of the record in the original hearing and in the remanded hearing. It said that oral argument would be held before the commission en banc.

The FCC discussed the role of the Boston Globe in the case, but did not make any finding. This was on the ground that it would be dangerous to open up the possibility that any interested person not a party to an FCC proceeding could, by talking about the case on commission's air, affect a disqualification. The Globe had claimed that the Herald-Traveler intended to use its prospective tv station to injure the other newspaper.

Other applicants in the Boston ch. 5 case are Greater Boston Television Corp. and Allen B. DuMont Labs. Inc.

Jury hearing continues

The New York district attorney last week continued to present evidence to a grand jury that will decide whether criminal charges can be lodged against witnesses believed to have testified falsely during the district attorney's investigation into tv quiz programs in the fall of 1958 (BROADCASTING, July 11). A spokesman reported that several witnesses have volunteered to testify before the grand jury, and he said that they may appear this week.

FCC GETS SEVENTH MEMBER
Eisenhower, in recess appointment, names Charles King for unexpired Doerfer term

The FCC will muster a full complement of seven commissioners this week—for the first time since former FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer dramatically resigned last March—when Detroit College of Law Dean Charles Henry King takes an oath of office to fill the remaining year of Mr. Doerfer’s unexpired term until June 30, 1961.

President Eisenhower named Dean King to the FCC as a recess appointee last Wednesday. The announcement was made from the President’s vacation White House in Newport, R.I.

Mr. King told Broadcasting last week he planned to motor to Washington over the weekend and report to FCC Chairman Frederick W. Ford Monday morning. At that time, he said, he will make arrangements to take his oath.

The name of the Detroit College of Law dean was submitted to the Senate by President Eisenhower on June 27 (Broadcasting, July 4). Congress recessed for the political conventions on July 9, but plans to reassemble August 15.

No Senate Action — The Senate has no plans to act on the nomination this session, a committee spokesman said earlier this month when Mr. King’s name was first submitted. There has been no indication of a change in this attitude when Congress resumes in August.

Mr. King will serve, it is presumed, as a recess appointee until the end of the first session of the 87th Congress. The 87th Congress assembles in January 1961.

In any event, Mr. King may not serve longer than June 30, 1961—unless he is confirmed by the Senate. This is due to a law which was passed in the closing days of Congress earlier this month and which was signed by the President last Wednesday (July 13).

This provides that an FCC commissioner may continue in his post after his term expires until his successor has been nominated and confirmed. It specifically precludes from this provision commissioners who are serving out the unexpired terms of predecessors. They must leave the commission at the end of this period. Mr. King falls in this category if he is neither confirmed nor rejected before June 30 next year.

Second Nominee — Mr. King actually was the second nominee to fill Mr. Doerfer’s unexpired term. The first, last May, was when the President nominated Edward K. Mills Jr. Mr. Mills had his name withdrawn, however, when he revealed a conflict of interest which could not be resolved (Broadcasting, May 23).

The new FCC commissioner was born in Gulfport, Miss., in 1906. He was educated in Bradford, Pa., and Detroit, and is a 1933 graduate of the school he now heads. He joined the College of Law faculty in 1935 as a part-time instructor and in 1937 as a full-time professor. In 1946 he was named dean of the school. In 1940 he received his master’s degree in law from the U. of Michigan. He has engaged in appellate practice in Michigan, and is the author of numerous articles in law reviews.

Dean King headed the Michigan Taft for President Club in 1952. He ran for the state supreme court in that same year, but was defeated.

He is taking leave of absence from his academic endeavors to sit on the FCC, but plans to return to the college when his term expires next year.

Theatre owners ask pay TV hearing

Two organizations, composed mainly of theatre owners, have asked the FCC to hold a full evidentiary hearing before an examiner in the case of the Hartford Phonevision Company’s application for pay tv over WHCT (TV) Hartford, Conn. The Hartford group submitted its application to the commission on June 22 (Broadcasting, June 27).

The Joint Committee Against Toll TV, a national organization, and the Connecticut Committee Against Pay TV have jointly written to the commission to state that the application should follow the normal established procedures. It is further contended that a hearing before an examiner would afford interested parties a more adequate opportunity to participate in the proceeding. The letter suggested that the commission do everything within its power to encourage the widest possible participation of interested parties in the hearing.

In its original application, the Hartford firm appended a letter requesting that its application be designated for a hearing before the commission en banc. It requested such a move, it said, to avoid “delaying procedures.” RKO General, which owns the Hartford group, felt that if the FCC itself heard the case there would be no “bog down” in the process of submitting evidence, offering proposed findings, waiting for the examiner’s report and waiting for the commission’s final judgment, a procedure which could, conceivably, take years.

The theatre owners state, in their letter to the FCC, that no matter what the forum is, “it would appear obvious that . . . the submission of testimony is mandatory and that proposed findings would aid the commission in acting upon the application.”

Fresno groups differ on deintermixture

The Fresno City Council last week asked the FCC to reconsider its action deintermixing that California city and making it all uhf (At Deadline, July 11). At the same time, opposing proponents talked the Fresno County Board of Supervisors into doing nothing—or at least taking no action now.

The council telegram to the commission urged that the FCC’s decision two weeks ago be rescinded and that KFRE-TV be permitted to continue on ch. 12 or that more uhf channels be assigned to the city. The council said that fringe area viewers would lose service if all stations became uhf.

The supervisors at first voted to voice their objections to the FCC, but later rescinded this action. The first move came after the supervisors heard Paul R. Bartlett former majority owner of KFRE-TV. Also read was a letter from a local businessman, seconding Mr. Bartlett’s views. The turnabout came after the supervisors heard Leslie H. Pear Jr., KFRE-TV, and Joe C. Drilling, ch. 47 KJEO (TV), argue against such action.

Fresno’s dual uhf outlets also includes ch. 24 KMJ-TV.

Capital Cities finally gets up for ch. 10

The FCC made it official last week by granting a construction permit to Capital Cities Broadcasting Corp. for a tv on ch. 10 in Vail Mills, N.Y. An earlier initial decision and staff instructions in May of this year had looked toward this final action.

At the same time, the commission denied the competing application of Veterans Broadcasting Co. The U.S. District Court denied a request by Veterans for a stay against Capital’s special temporary authorization on July 7 (Broadcasting, July 11).

Capital, which was authorized the STA in 1957, shifted the ch. 10 operation of WTEN (TV) Albany to Vail Mills in that year. The station has been operating under temporary authority since that time.

STUDY SPECTRUM FOR SPACE

FCC to hear seven witnesses give space communications allocation views

Views on the allocations of spectrum space for space communications at frequencies above 890 mc starts today before the FCC. The commission has scheduled seven major witnesses, representing the gamut of U.S. communications and electronics companies.

They are: AT&T, Electronic Industries Assn., General Telephone & Electronics Corp.; National Assn. of Manufacturers' Committee on Manufacturers' Radio Use and American Trucking Assn.; Lockheed Aircraft Corp.; RCA and RCAC and American Rocket Society. AT&T has four witnesses scheduled; EIA, two; the other one each.

In statements submitted to the FCC two weeks ago, RCA suggested that a special allocation be made for transoceanic space relaying of television programs.

AT&T presented a voluminous statement proposing a $170 million world-wide system of space communications, utilizing active relay satellites, to provide 600 telephone circuits and tv circuits.

A key divergence among those filing was apparent on the question of whether space allocations should be separate from other allocations or whether space circuits could use the same frequencies now used for microwave relays on Earth.

AT&T and the American Rocket Society maintained that space allocations must be separate. EIA, Motorola, Collins Radio and others held that space transmissions and reception could utilize the same wavelengths as other relay circuits without great problems of interference.

Most all those filing recommended that space allocations must be established in bands running from about 1,000 mc to 10,000 mc.

There also were a number of comments which suggested that the commission hold in abeyance any action at this time until the requirement of a space communications system become more definite.

The most exciting filing was that by AT&T. Charles M. Mapes, AT&T assistant chief engineer, said a system of 50 active satellites in 3,000-mile high random polar orbits could provide communications between the U.S. and all other areas of the world.

Such a system, he said, would require 26 transmitter-receiver pairs of ground stations, sited around the world.

The cost of establishing such a system, Mr. Mapes said, would be $115 million—$50 million for the satellites and $65 million for the ground stations.

Provision for world-wide tv, he said, could be provided for $55 million more.

Government briefs

To hearing = Seattle, Wash., stations KOL-AM-FM have been advised by the FCC of the necessity of a hearing on their applications for license renewal and sale. The commission noted that a variance between planned programming and actual programming was sufficient to indicate the hearing procedure. Seattle Broadcasting Co., owner of the station, has proposed selling the am facility and the fm cp to KOL Inc. (Archie Taft Jr., principal stockholder).

Payola denial = Apollo Records, New York, last week categorically denied the Federal Trade Commission charge, made in June, that the firm had taken part in payola. Denying "each and every allegation," Apollo and a company official also charged, Melvin Albert, requested that the FTC dismiss the complaint. All told, 96 firms have been charged with payola by the trade commission.

3M charged = The Federal Trade Commission last week charged the Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. with violation of the anti-trust laws because its purchase of two competing distributors of electrical insulation products. The FTC charged that the acquisition of Prehler Electrical Insulation Co., Chicago, and Insulation and Wires Inc., Fort Wayne, Ind., in 1956 tended to create a monopoly in the manufacture, distribution and sale of electrical insulation products. 3M recently acquired the Mutual Broadcasting System (Broadcasting, April 25).

Ike okays bill

President Eisenhower last week signed into law S 1965, which provides for members of the FCC and two other federal agencies whose terms have expired to continue in office until their successors have been appointed and qualified. But the law provides that such agency members may not serve longer than the end of the next session of Congress following the expiration of their terms. It also prohibits an agency member from serving beyond the end of a term to which he is appointed to fill a vacancy.

Programming control sought by ACLU

The American Civil Liberties Union has come out four-square for FCC requirement that broadcasters present a gamut of viewpoints on political, social, economic, religious and cultural subjects. The statement was made in a letter to FCC Commissioner T.A.M. Craig as a rebuttal to his June 22 letter to Sen. Warren Magnuson (D-Wash.) which was in answer to an ACLU statement in support of the bill for free tv time for presidential candidates (Broadcasting, July 4). The letter from ACLU was signed by Patrick Murphy Malin, the Union's executive secretary.

The ACLU stated that it "becomes an imperative necessity that every station owner, who ... holds a public trust," offer a balanced programming schedule. It was further reiterated that the commission should require broadcasters to give concrete proof that their programming is geared to the public's "more urgent needs." A copy of the letter was sent to Sen. Magnuson, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee.

SPECIAL REPORT

TOO MUCH LOS ANGELES COVERAGE?

Politicians, network brass pleased, but their audience strayed

Television and radio packed the most facilities and reporters ever assembled for one story into the Los Angeles Sports Arena for last week's Democratic convention. They will repeat the performance July 25 at the Chicago GOP convention.

At the weekend the major networks and many stations were asking this question: "Was it worth the effort and expense?"

The major parties, getting a free broadcast ride, indicated the coverage is worthwhile and they'd be distraught without it.

The public wasn't so certain, judging by early survey reports of tune-in. Non-network programs often had better tune-in than the network convention pickups. About 14.5 million homes were tuned to the convention at any given moment (see story page 55).

The three tv networks, widely praised for their efficient and dramatic coverage, used better equipment and politically-wise personnel. They're dedicated to the responsibility posed by these outstanding quadrennial events.

Ideal Formula - News vice presidents of the tv networks believe they have reached close to ideal formulas for convention coverage—so long as conventions continue to be conducted in the traditional, flamboyant manner (see box page 56).

Individual stations and the major group-owned properties far eclipsed any past convention coverage (see roundup story page 57). Some 2,000 radio-tv credentials were issued, according to Robert M. Menaugh, superintendent of the House Radio & Television Gallery. He said about 1,000 passes went to the networks, which had them for their executive teams as well as working personnel, and a similar number went to individual stations and groups.

Interest in last week's coverage reached a peak Wednesday evening as delegates went through the ritual of nominating a Democratic presidential candidate—a task not completed until post-midnight hours in the eastern time zone.

Many broadcasters were irked at the Thursday political jockeying, when John F. Kennedy, presidential nominee, announced during the afternoon that he had picked Lyndon B. Johnson, defeated candidate, as his vice presidential running mate. This pulled the plug from the Thursday night convention coverage, some broadcasters complained, since an aware public was likely to be less inclined to sit out another evening when no suspense was involved.

Executive Suite - All network brass were on hand for the five-day coverage. William S. Paley and Dr. Frank Stanton for CBS; Robert W. Sarnoff and Robert E. Kintner for NBC; Leonard Goldenson for ABC. They were backed—several echelons deep—by their vice presidential brass in both news and administration.

For the first time in his life, J. Leonard Reinsch (Cox Stations), executive director of the convention in Los Angeles, was dogged by a bodyguard. F. L. Brittell, plain-clothesman, said his toughest job was to keep pace with "the body I'm supposed to protect." Mr. Brittell also doubled as chauffeur in the frequent trips to and from headquarters at the Biltmore and the sports arena.

"Reinsch's Fortress" was the name given the elaborate platform located in center of convention hall. This two-story housing project was the nerve center of the convention—an electronic house of magic. Everything was controlled from the platform which was surrounded by a "moat"—a wide corridor that prevented newsmen and photographers from vaulting to the platform from operations areas.

Production Costs

Production costs for the three TV networks for coverage of both conventions were estimated at $9 million to 10.5 million, about equally divided among the three, but the final tally cannot be known until the Republican session is over and all the costs are tabulated.

There was a general reluctance to estimate the other costs, but CBS-TV said that, assuming the Democratic convention was over at 11 p.m. Friday, the week's work in Los Angeles would mean for CBS-TV a loss of $300,000 in net sales (after discounts) plus $250,000 in reimbursement of client program expenses.

Against this sort of production and other outlays the three networks have about $11 million coming in, according to their reports on sales to sponsors. This figure also covers both conventions, and in CBS-TV's case further includes eight special half-hour programs between conventions and elections.

Officials hesitated to segregate radio expense-and-income figures which in some cases seemed inextricably woven into the television figures.

Westinghouse is picking up the tab, estimated at about $6 million, for the CBS package on both radio and television. NBC reportedly is getting $3 million to $3.5 million for its television package, split among seven advertisers (Lipton Tea, Brown & Williamson, Goodrich, Cowles Magazines, Bristol-Myers, Field Enterprises and RCA), and sold half of its radio coverage to Mennen and S. C. Johnson, turning the other half over to affiliates for local sale. ABC-TV sold about 40% of its coverage to Mutual of Omaha and about the same amount to 20th Century-Fox, Aveo Mfg. and duPont, for a total estimated at $2 million, while Mennen added half of the ABC Radio schedule to its NBC Radio buy and ABC turned the rest over to affiliates. Mutual sold about 20% of its coverage to Liggett & Myers (Oasis cigarettes) and let affiliates sell the rest.

Problems & Praise

Minor flubs and trampled toes were inevitable in the confusion but the complaints didn't add up to much when evaluated from a post-convention perspective.

An unhappy sponsor enlivened the opening day's proceedings. Bart Lytton, head of the sponsoring Lytton Savings & Loan of Los Angeles, walked on the KHJ-TV Los Angeles set of The Future Lies Ahead, protesting he didn't agree with some of the convention comments on the program. Mort Sahli, series conductor, was talking to Dore Schary, movie producer, and Gov. Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey about Adlai Stevenson's qualifications as a candidate. Mr. Lytton protested the program was being turned into a Stevenson rally. Later in the program he apologized for the outburst.

Two days later, Drew Pearson, in a full-page ad in the Los Angeles Mirror-News which carries his syndicated column, charged Mr. Lytton and his firm with cancelling a contract for daily teletcasts of his comments on the convention only a few minutes before air time Monday. Mr. Pearson filed a $250,000 damage suit in Los Angeles Superior Court.

Gov. Leroy Collins of Florida, permanent chairman, told UPI he would have stopped delivering the last half of his speech had it not been for the TV audience. "A convention speaker is discouraged simply because so many people on the convention floor do not listen to what is going on," he said. "They are involved in news interviews and in hob-nobbing with acquaintances. The almost unlimited right granted to news media people to go where they please on the floor is at the base of a large part of the confusion."

NBC affiliates were delighted with the network's coverage, according to a message sent William R. McAndrew, NBC news vice president, by Jack Harris of KPRC-AM-TV Houston, chairman of the board of delegates, NBC Affiliated Stations. He described coverage as "unparalleled from Huntley and Brinkley all the way." He said that the NBC stations "are proud to be a part of this great service to the American people."

Audience Migration

The biggest beneficiaries of the networks' Democratic convention coverage—in audience terms—were the independents.

Their regular entertainment drew audiences that together often rivaled—and sometimes surpassed—those of all three networks combined. The only evidence available last week—a one-market, one-time-period analysis—indicated that the network outlets almost invariably suffered losses in share of audience, sometimes by big margins.

No networks-vs.-independents—or convention-vs.-regular entertainment—figures were immediately available on a national basis. But American Research Bureau's multi-city Arbitron measurements in seven major markets showed that in these cities, as a group, the convention's share of audience reached 70% for only one half-hour period during the first three convention nights and the rest of the time was mostly in the middle and low 60's and 50's and once dipped to 48.3% (Tues., 10-10:30 p.m.).

Three of these seven cities—Philadelphia, Baltimore and Cleveland—have no independents to which audiences could turn for convention relief. Hence the independents' score in the four other cities—New York, Chicago, Washington and Detroit—would have to be considerably higher than the seven-city averages indicate.

Although details on the audience split-up in the individual cities were still being compiled, ARB prepared an analysis of one presumably typical time

On the patio in Los Angeles

The calmest place in the Los Angeles Sports Arena last week was the studio where three advertising agencies fed live commercials to CBS for Westinghouse Electric Corp.

Betty Furness and her daughter, Barbara Green, waited for commercial calls in a simulated patio. Fred Davis, of Canadian Broadcasting Corp., Toronto, was the Westinghouse corporate voice, at the other end of the room. Equipment was in between.

Grey Adv. was responsible for radio-television commercials; McCann-Erickson for all other consumer products, and Ketchum, McLeod & Grove for corporate commercials. Lansing B. Lindquist, KM&G vice president in charge of broadcasting and media, coordinated commercials into the convention programming.

Miss Furness changed costume as often as three times an evening. She rehearsed words and gestures alone or with her daughter. A hairdresser was on duty in her dressing room.

Producer-director Perry Lafferty of CBS produced the commercials, an assignment he takes every four years (Broadcasting, June 20). The apparent calm of the studio masked a high-voltage nervous tension. "It looks as if they'll break in about five minutes so get ready," the studio p.a. warned, only to reverse itself three minutes later with a prediction no commercial was in sight for another half-hour at least.

Westinghouse commercial time in the 1956 conventions averaged 3 minutes, 20 seconds per hour against an allowance of six to seven minutes. The feeling last week was it probably would total up to less than that when 1960 figures are tabulated.

Mr. Lafferty was aided in his task of helping Westinghouse get $6 million worth of Westinghouse commercials (including production and merchandising) on the air by a studio crew of 20 and another score of agency representatives. (Westinghouse is paying $6 million for full convention-campaign-election night coverage on CBS.) A fourth of commercials were institutional, another fourth were for electronic developments and equipment, and half for consumer products.

Some of the drops for the network outlets, as well as some of the gains for independents, were dramatic, as indicated in the following share-of-audience table prepared from information compiled by ARB:

(BROADCASTING, July 18, 1960)

VETERAN WESTINGHOUSE SPOKESWOMAN AND DAUGHTER

period in New York: 10-10:30 p.m. on each of the first three convention nights as compared to the same half-hour on the same three nights of the preceding week.

This showed that with one exception—NBC on Monday night—the network outlets uniformly suffered losses in their respective audience shares during convention week. And the independents almost as uniformly gained, sometimes with shares three to five and in one case 15 times as high as in the preceding week.

Case Studies: Diagnosis Unknown, Armstrong Circle Theatre and Hennessey on WCBS-TV; M-Squad and This Is Your Life on WNBC-TV; and Alcoa Presents, boxing and the last half of Adventures In Paradise on WABC-TV all racked up higher shares of audience during the week of July 4 than the convention coverage that replaced them last week. Only NBC's "One Loud Clear Voice," a July 4 special, trailed its convention successor in this analysis.
Have networks found a convention coverage formula?

Responsibility to the public outweighs the enormous expenditure on the convention coverage, the three network news vice presidents agree. And they defend the networks against charges of "waste." They do have different perspectives on the way this responsibility should be carried out, however. Each feels his network has evolved a highly workable formula:

John Daly, ABC vice president in charge of news, special events and public affairs:

"This is the way to cover a convention, and, of course, I think our ABC way is the best way.

"Television is two things. It is an entertainment medium and it is also the most efficient communications medium ever devised. Here below we are 1,000 reporters who feel a responsibility to report what is going on here, and so do we.

"Since television came into being — and that's only for two conventions — up to 1952 and even in that year, television was only a stepchild of radio. So only in 1956 and this year has television had a chance to show what it can do in covering conventions.

"In these two tests there has been a lot of thinking as to how we can do a better job. We're trying, experimenting, learning in an attempt to marry this new medium of TV to the old way of conducting a convention. In the future our concept of convention coverage will, of course, be refined and typed and perhaps the networks will give thought to revising our present feeling as to the proper definition of "full coverage."

Sig Mickelson, president, CBS News:

"This is the way. I don't believe there is duplication because each network covers the story in its own way. This extends even to the choice of time to present the full picture. The big news at conventions frequently develops outside the convention hall, in corridors, hotel suites, and press conferences — and even in the street.

"The public should have a choice of coverage among three fiercely competing networks just as they have a choice of different newspapers covering the event."

HOW NETWORKS CLEARED TIME

L.A. blocked out regular shows en masse

All three tv-radio networks last week cleared their decks on Monday-through-Thursday nights to accommodate live coverage of the Democratic convention. Starting times were later on Friday night, permitting a few prime time shows to go through. The complete list of sponsored programs hit by pre-emption:

CBS-TV (Mon. 7:30 p.m.-conclusion)
Kate Smith Show, Whitehall; The Texan, All-State; Father Knows Best, Scott; Danny Thomas, General Foods; Ann Sothern, General Foods; Hennessy, General Foods, and June Allyson, du Pont. (Tue. 7 p.m.-conclusion) News, Whitehall; Dobie Gillis, Pillsbury; Tightrope, Pall Mall, and The Comedy Spot, S. C. Johnson. (Wed. 6 p.m.-conclusion) Two Whitehall-sponsored news shows, 6:45-7 p.m. and 7:15-7:30 p.m.; Men Into Space, American Tobacco; I've Got a Secret, R. J. Reynolds. (Thur. 8 p.m.-conclusion) Johnny Ringo, P. Lorillard; Zane Grey Theatre, S.C. Johnson; Markham, Renault, and To Tell the Truth, Helene Curtis. (Fri. 9 p.m.-conclusion) the following programs were not shown and no sponsor commitments for them had been made: Video Village, December Bride, Twilight Zone and Person to Person.

CBS Radio simulcast the tv coverage and as a result was forced to pre-empt the following shows on Monday through Thursday nights: World Tonight, sponsored locally by affiliates; Backgrounding the News, participating; Amos & Andy, participating; Kingston Trio, Seven-Up; In Person, with Ron Cochrane, participating; Bob Richards, Wheelies, and two dance orchestra programs, participating. Friday night programs were not affected as coverage started later. Because of earlier starting time on Wednesday, these also were pre-empted: A five-minute news show, participating; Lowell Thomas, participating, and Sports Time with Phil Rizzuto, Camel Cigarettes and Midas Mufflers. Some of the programs listed above were broadcast in the eastern time zone only because of time differences.

NBC-TV (Mon. 7:30 p.m.-conclusion)
erating the same event. Each network has its own distinctive policies and techniques in covering the story. To sum up: What the three networks present does not amount to duplication but rather to competitive coverage and—as in other segments of our free economy—it is the public that benefits from this competition.

"The equipment is better and people are becoming more professional in using it." Mr. Mickelson said cost of time alone on the three networks for the two conventions would be around $12.5 million.

William R. McAndrew, vice president in charge of NBC News:

"As long as we have the convention system of picking Presidential nominees, then I believe we should have this type of coverage. If we didn't have the convention on NBC our stations would raise hell.

"Any other solution wouldn't be acceptable. There's the rotation system or letting one network buy exclusive rights to the convention as done for the World Series. That might be fine for underwriting the party deficit but such a proposal would certainly be fought tooth and nail.

"Every four years the same thing comes up. There's a tremendous amount of duplication which seems wasteful and we all lose money doing it, but if we are going to live up to our responsibilities we'll have to continue this type of coverage, using all the ingenuity we can muster to keep what we're putting on the air interesting and informative. The biggest change? We're using newsmen with political savvy instead of announcers."

Earlier in the week Riverboat, Laramie and Richard Diamond also were uncommitted and fell away.

NBC-TV's Jack Paar Show was preempted in full on Wednesday, but on Monday and Tuesday nights the program was picked up while in progress after the convention coverage concluded, a situation that was likely to be repeated on Thursday and Friday. All advertisers pre-empted from the show will receive rebates.

NBC Radio, which aired the convention from 8 p.m. to conclusion from Monday through Friday, only preempted 15 minutes of the Sunoco 3-Star Extra on Wednesday night and 10 minutes of the same news show on Tuesday. Regularly scheduled News on the Hour programs continued in their entirety, but several were delayed to later periods in the hour to avoid interference with particular convention reporting.

ABC-TV (Mon. 8 p.m.-midnight) Cheyenne, American Chicke, Johnson & Johnson, Procter & Gamble, Ritchie, Ralston; Bourbon Street Beat, Alberto-Culver, Reynolds, Brown & Williamson, du Pont; Adventures in Paradise, Chevel-, Rot, Reynolds, General Food, Ar- mour; Amateur Hour, Pharmaceuticals. (Tue. 6 p.m.-1:30 a.m.) Balco/ Sugarfoot, Carnation, du Pont, Brown & Williamson; Wyatt Earp, Procter & Gamble, General Mills; Rifleman, Miles Ralston, Procter & Gamble; Colt .45, Brown & Williamson, Whitehall; Alcoa Present, Alcoa. (Wed. 6 p.m.-3:19 a.m.) Music for a Summer Night, spot carrier; Ozzie & Harriet, Quaker Oats, Eastman Kodak; Hawaiian Eye, Carter, American Chicke, Whitehall, Ritchie; Wednesday Night Fights, Brown & Williamson, Mares Labs. (Thur. 8 p.m.-conclusion) Donald Reid, Johnson & Johnson, Campbell; Real McCoys, Procter & Gamble; Jeannie Carson, Procter & Gamble, American Chicke; Untouchables, Liggett & Myers, Ritchie, du Pont, Armour, Carnation, Whitehall; Take a Good Look, Dutch Master cigars. (Fri. 10 p.m.-conclusion) Rob- ert Taylor in The Detectives, Procter & Gamble; Black Saddle, Chevrolet, Al- berto-Culver.

ABC Radio's broadcast schedule corresponded with that of ABC-TV, but there were no pre-emptions reported.

Networks face approximately the same pre-emptions next week when they shift their newsmen, technicians, cam- eras and other paraphernalia to Chi- cago. There, the Republicans will hold forth with a similar schedule of events. Only the setting and the political cast will be changed.

With the Chicago convention in the Central Daylight time zone, broadcast schedules will be slightly different from those of the west coast sessions.

LOCAL INITIATIVE
Independent stations much seen and heard

Independent radio-tv stations and station groups expended more time, energy and money last week than ever before to cover a national political convention, that of the Democrats in Los Angeles. They will repeat the feat in Chicago during the Republican convention.

Collectively, the manpower of the independents deployed to cover the Democratic event equaled that of the major networks, but individually their efforts appeared to be concentrated on their local delegations and color features.

Here are highlights of this coverage as reported by stations last week. A preliminary list of those accredited to cover the Los Angeles event, as reported by the Democratic National Convention, was published earlier (Broadcasting, July 11).

Corinthian Broadcasting Corp.—KOTV (TV) Tulsa, WISH-AM-TV Indianapolis; WANE-AM-TV Fort Wayne; KHOW-TV Houston; KSTV (TV) Sacramento, Calif.: Corinthian had a staff of five news directors and four cameramen, by Her- man Land, special projects director, and headed by C. Wrede Pettersmeyer, Corinthian president, who acted as general reporter and high level contact. They'll also be in Chicago next week.

Each newsman was assigned to a state delegation. For constant communication, each had a private telephone and rented car and each wore a paging unit to receive messages leading to good stories. Camera crews covered delegate hotels in the morning and car- ried out roving assignments afterward. Two Telenews camera crews were hired for interviews and floor coverage, sound being recorded on the film by wireless mikes carried by correspondents on the floor. Hot news was relayed immediately to individual stations by beeper phone and film was sent by air to Chicago where it was processed for early morning shipment to stations.

Westinghouse Broadcasting Co.: WBC used a dual-tape technique for a July 14 Convention Impressions fea- ture in which Los Angeles and San Francisco tape material was pro- grammed on KPIX (TV) San Francisco. The experiment was so successful it will be repeated at the GOP convention Taking part were Wanda Raney, WBZ- TV Boston newswoman; Mike Wallace, interviewer John Ward, KPIX, and Terence O'Flaherty, San Francisco Chronicle TV critic. The Los Angeles end of the program was flown to San Francisco.

Jerry Landay, WBZ Boston radio, landed a place on the Kennedy plane for Hyannisport, Mass. He'll also travel with the Nixon entourage to Chicago. WBZ covering both conventions in their entirety.

Taft Broadcasting Co. Stations—WKRC-AM-FM-TV Cincinnati, WBRC-AM-FM-TV Birmingham, WTVN-AM-FM-TV Columbus, Ohio, WIBR-AM-FM-TV Knoxville and WXYZ (TV) Lexington, Ky.: A five-man news crew directed by WTVN-TV Promotion Manager Harry Mohr is furnishing more than 200 special convention news bulletins directly to Taft's nine am and tv outlets during the Democratic and GOP conventions, according to Lawrence H. (Bud) Rogers II, vice president.

WKRC-TV Tv News Director Nick Basso and Taft Washington bureau chief Ralph de Toledano keep close watch on state delegations in areas served by Taft outlets with tape and film reports sent through a network circuit four times daily. Shell Oil Co. has bought the coverage in Columbus, Cincinnati and Lexington and local sponsors were lined up in Birmingham and Knoxville. The same crew covers both conventions.

The "Eyewitness" team, supported by more than 50 regular newscasters, working at the local stations around the clock, made more than a hundred direct feeds and used 3,000 feet of film on pre-convention activities before formal sessions began. The same group will cover the GOP convention except for three men from the Fresno outlet.

WHTI-TV Terre Haute, Ind.: Bent on doing a state job with its Indiana delegation, WHTI-TV got nationwide promotion for itself with perhaps the most unique camera coverage. A portable camera was carried by a camerawoman with a bracing contraption which resembled a flag-foil toter. She wore skin-tight western garb embossed all over with station call-letters. General Manager Joe Higgins was on hand to direct news operations.

Paramount Television Productions: PTP, licensee of KTLA (TV) Los Angeles, the only one of that city's four non-network tv stations to carry the convention proceedings live from the Sports Arena, also fed specially prepared quarter-hour convention programs to seven network stations.

The many broadcast leaders with delegate buttons

Broadcasting not only had a large representation for news coverage of the Democratic and Republican national conventions, but had many representatives taking active part as delegates.

A scanning of both parties' pre-convention lists of state delegates (Democrats did not complete delegate lists for California, Connecticut, Mississippi and Puerto Rico) and information from other sources turned up a total of 38 names.

Most of the broadcast delegates themselves hold public offices, ranging from U.S. senators and representatives and state governors down to offices on the local level. The list is headed by Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.), the Democratic vice presidential running mate of Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.). The broadcast list:

A special 15-minute program was sent each day to CBC.

Time Inc.'s WTCN-AM-TV Minneapolis-St. Paul, incidentally, was furnished by WTCN's News Director Sheldon Peterson and Bill Roberts, head of WTCN's Washington bureau. Mr. Peterson's on-spot coverage of the Minnesota delegation and other convention activities were recorded on film and flown to the Twin Cities for showing on regular TV news shows and recorded from phone reports for WTCN radio newscasts. Similar coverage is planned in Chicago.

WAVY New Haven, Conn., and WTRY Troy, N.Y.: These sister radio stations are airing up to 10 broadcasts daily from both conventions by George Phillips, WAVY news editor, for audiences in the New Haven and Albany-Schenectady-Troy area.

WRUL, international shortwave station with studios in New York: WRUL is broadcasting the proceedings of both conventions to its audience in Latin America, where, the station says, there are eight million homes equipped with shortwave sets. Each half-hour WRUL airs a five-minute summary of the sessions in Spanish. They are offered to several Latin American local broadcast stations for rebroadcast.

Philco International Corp. is one of the major sponsors for the WRUL broadcasts. WRUL uses 11,830 kc, 15,380 kc and 17,750 kc.

WLIR New York: special attention is being given to the civic rights angle by WLIR, which programs for the Negro audience. General Manager Harry Novik presented half-hour reports nightly during the Democratic convention and he and News Director George Goodman will supply similar reports during the Republican sessions. In addition, convention highlights and bulletins are being carried in beeper-phone reports throughout the day during both conventions.

WSOC-TV Charlotte, N.C.: A team including Carroll McGaughey, news director, and Fred Barber, reporter-photographer, kept Carolinians up to date on their own delegates' activities with daily telephone and film reports. Mr. McGaughey also covered the Democratic convention as part of an NBC team covering southern delegation development.

WNAC-AM-TV Boston: President Norman Knight headed a trio angling the New England aspects of the convention story to its audiences, interviewing New England delegates and candidates in addition to coverage provided by RKO General Teleradio. Filmed reports, with the New England point of view, were flown back to Boston.

WTOP-TV Washington: The activities of District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia delegates were shown to area listeners in a series of special news programs using locals on coverage. Tony Sylvester acted as anchor man for reports by Steve Cushing, Roger Mudd and Mike Turpin. The same plan is set for Chicago.

WWDC Washington: News Director Robert Robinson will air frequent reports on the Republican convention on the activity of Maryland, Virginia and District of Columbia delegations, according to President Ben Strouse. He said this year's coverage is the most extensive ever made for a Washington independent station. Daily reports are planned by Jim Snyder of Westinghouse Broadcasting as well as interviews by Mike Wallace and interpretive reports by Vincent Sheean.

KCOP (TV) Los Angeles: Baxter Ward, former Gov. Goodwin J. Knight and Cal Tinney aired all regular news and commentary directly from the convention and Tom Duggan conducted nightly broadcasts.

WATV Birmingham: Long distance beeper reports were aired on the station by Betty Frink, Alabama secretary of state. Bob Harper of the Alabama governor's staff also filed reports from the Democratic convention.

KFax San Francisco: More than 50% of the KFax broadcast day was devoted to direct convention coverage in Los Angeles. KFax inaugurated an "all news" format last May 16. The station had a four-man team at the convention, concentrating on the California delegation.

WINS New York: Jim Randolph, the station's Washington correspondent, headed a WINS staff at the convention, presenting special pickups from the convention floor and special features pre-arranged with major contenders for the presidential nomination. The station aired morning recaps of events which happened the night before for early risers. The WINS group also will go to Chicago.

Cleveland Broadcasting Inc.—WERE Cleveland, WLEC Sandusky, both Ohio, and WERC Erie, Pa.: Newsman Bill Jorgenson aired his twice-daily One Man's View program from Los Angeles, plus special editorial reports to the three stations. He also did special features for Radio Press International, which services 80 independent stations. He was assisted by Ray T. Miller Jr., Ohio state senator and president of the stations.

WJR Detroit: Extensive coverage by a 10-man team headed by Jim Vinall was furnished to the Detroit area audience, with Mr. Vinall presiding over an afternoon Convention Caucus and an evening Convention Roundup, the latter program reviewing the major events of each day. The keynote and other major addresses were carried on a non-scheduled basis. Convention reports were planned for regular station news programs. WJR newsmen Jack Hamilton will head the station team at the GOP convention.

WNTA-TV New York: H. V. Kaltenborn, who covered his first political convention for radio in 1924, hosted a convention program series on WTNA-TV. Mr. Kaltenborn, who was 82 on July 9, came out of retirement to discuss the conventions with newspaper reporters in a panel show titled Convention Wrap-Up. The program returns 24 hours for the duration of the Republican convention. The series originated in a WNTA-TV studio but is carrying live audio reports direct from Los Angeles and Chicago.

WNITA radio used the combined facilities of Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. and MBS from 6 a.m. (sign-on) to 1 a.m. (sign-off) during the Los Angeles convention. Programs included a daily Convention Today round-up at 9:30 p.m. WNTA carried the Wednesday night balloting live and on Friday aired the acceptance speeches of both the presidential and vice presidential nominees. One WNTA feature program carried convention music and voices from the past, including William Jennings Bryan, Grover Cleveland and Franklin Roosevelt.

KRAM Las Vegas: Commentator Alan Jarson headed a five-man news team covering the Los Angeles convention, following up planning which began last October. The station shipped 10 tape recorders, broadcast amplifiers, a dozen microphones and miles of cables to the Democratic meeting and will do the same when the Republicans gather. Ted Oberfelder, vice president and general manager, claimed KRAM's effort is the first independent convention coverage ever attempted in Nevada radio-tv history. KRAM's convention coverage is part of a series, Campaign '60, on significant election year events. The series has four local sponsors.

KUSC (FM) Los Angeles: To help senators and congressmen at the convention keep constituents at home informed on what they are doing, 25 telecommunications students at the U. of Southern California offered facilities at the educational station for making five-You're shooting at a booming economy when you beam your sales message into Beeline station radio broadcast territory. For example, in Fresno — home base of KMJ — retail sales exceed Spokane, Washington and Trenton, New Jersey, both with larger populations.\footnote{Sales Management's 1959 Survey of Buying Power}

Last year alone 14 new companies moved into Fresno County. There were 117 industrial expansions. Millions in farm and food-processing income generated in this No. 1 U.S. agricultural county help keep buying demand high.

The most effective way to beam your radio message into the thriving Fresno market is on KMJ, the Beeline station in Fresno.

minute voice tapes to mail to radio stations in home communities. Donating their services without charge, the students also offered to airmail the tapes at their own expense. At least 12 senators and three representatives accepted the offer. The student broadcasters also offered opportunity to make tv reports on film, but regrettfully levied a charge to cover the cost of the film.

Payola, quiz-rigging condemned in platform

Payola, quiz-rigging and government corruption are roundly condemned in the platform adopted July 12 by the Democrats. There's no freedom-of-broadcasting plank, however, reported by Chairman Oren E. Harris (D-Ark.) of the House Commerce Committee. Harris was a member of the committee that produced the platform.

Freedom of information was endorsed. The platform rejected "the Republican contention that the workings of government are the special private preserve of the Executive."

The Democrats criticized the Republican failure to reverse a national mood that accepts payola and quiz scandals, tax evasion and false expense accounts, soaring crime rates, influence-peddling and the exploitation of sadistic violence as popular entertainment."

Reform of government processes was promised along with a code of federal ethics that should attract able people to public life. A cleanup of administrative agencies was promised, with restoration of the integrity and powers of these agencies.

A plank referring to "flagrant profiteering" in the drug field proposed creation of a consumer council to represent consumers in the formulation of federal policies and in administrative proceedings. This, it was suggested, would have a direct bearing on the Federal Trade Commission and advertising.

More effective presentation of America's image by the U.S. Information Agency was urged.

And GOP's preparing for its Chicago turn

While the nation and important segments of broadcasting were immersed in last week's Democratic convention another job was underway at Chicago — completing the communications facilities for the GOP convention starting July 25.

Illinois Bell Telephone Co. has installed a rooftop platform at the International Amphitheatre with 40 microwave dishes aimed at Chicago's Loop and another 46 at other spots. A team of 200 technicians set up the communications, including 250 teletypewriters and sheafs of underground cables.

Hal Carlson, Illinois Bell plans committee chairman, said telephone facilities are 10% greater than was the case at the Democratic convention held in Chicago four years ago. Facilities will feed the Bell 87,000-mile coaxial-microwave network linking TV stations in 425 communities plus 1,000 radio outlets. Bell anticipates a potential viewing audience of 45 million homes.

Most convention activities will be concentrated in the amphitheatre and the Conrad Hilton Hotel. A fleet of vehicles, including a mobile telephone center and 75-foot snorkle tv towers and trucks, will be placed at strategic points for special pickups.

Other vital statistics: 3,500 telephones, capable of serving a city with about 10,000 population; 40 tv and 100 radio circuits; funnels out from the amphitheatre to likely "hot spots" (the Hilton, airports, railroad stations); 25 special switchboard positions, 200 teletypewriters and 200 public telephones; 28 microwave systems (transmitters and receivers), which Illinois Bell is borrowing from other Bell System companies and now testing, plus other prewired apparatus. A 510,000-mile cross-country telephone network will serve 1,800 newspapers and wire services, with teletypewriters alone covering a 470,000-mile network serving 9,500 locations.

The figures are based on information compiled by a combination of Arbitron instant-ratings devices installed in television sets, and coincidental telephone calls (which will gradually be replaced by Arbitron equipment). Approximately 800 television homes, selected to be representative of the U.S., were sampled every half-hour.

When installation of equipment is completed, homes in 100 so-called "tracts" throughout the U.S. will be sampled automatically and continuously in the same way that ARB's local and seven-city Arbitrons currently are operated. At present, homes in 24 "tracts" of the national Arbitron sample have been equipped with the continuous sampling devices and the rest, pending completion of installations, are sampled by telephone every half-hour. The national Arbitron probably will get its second commercial run — not counting a test conducted in mid-June — during the Republican convention in Chicago starting July 25.

Westinghouse gets Stratovision contract

Westinghouse Electric Corp., Baltimore, has been awarded a $2.2 million contract to equip and staff the two aircraft needed to launch an etv program announced last fall by the Midwest Council on Airborne Television Instruction (Broadcasting, Oct. 26, 19, 1959).

Reported jointly last week by Buford M. Brown, vice president of the Westinghouse Baltimore Div., and Dr. John E. Ivey Jr., president of the Midwest Council at Purdue U., the contract calls for two planes equipped with special transmitting facilities and for three broadcasting engineers, who will operate all of the broadcasting and monitoring equipment, tape recorders and other gear. The FCC has allocated tv broadcast channels.

The program is scheduled to start Jan. 30, 1961, with a four-month demonstration period consisting of three days a week, Dr. Brown said. During the regular school year beginning September 1961, the telecasts will operate six hours a day, Monday through Thursday. Instructional programs will be transmitted directly from tapes carried aboard the plane. One plane will serve on a standby basis.

Six-State Coverage - Developed by Westinghouse, this "Stratovision" technique for transmitting tv signals from a high-flying (altitude of 23,000 feet) airplane will bring tv classes to millions of students in an area covering all or parts of Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin.

The Midwest Council is assisted in the program by Purdue Research Foundation and Purdue U., where the courses will be prepared. The Westinghouse technical program is under the direction of Charles E. Noble, who originated and demonstrated Stratovision in the mid-forties and is currently manager of surveillance radar projects at the Westinghouse air arm division.

Merger plans would avoid duopoly charge

When multiple broadcaster Transcontinent Television Corp. takes over its fifth vhf outlet—and its sister am station (WDAF-AM-TV Kansas City; see Changing Hands, page 65)—there are a couple of agreements that may or may not go into effect depending on the merger plans of two giant corporations—General Railway Signal and Regina Corp. (waxers and polishers).

General and Regina are in the process of a merger which when consummated (stockholders are due to vote in next couple of weeks) would lead to this "duopoly" problem:

General Railway owns about 15% of the Class B stock of Transcontinent. Among the stockholders of Regina are John Hay Whitney and others associated with him in the ownership of the Corinthian stations.

If the merger between General Railway and Regina goes through this would mean that Corinthian principals would own significantly over 1% of General Railway stock and thus be counted in Transcontinent ownership.

Transcontinent owns four vhf (and with Kansas City, five) and Corinthian owns five vhf outlets. Since FCC rules prohibit any one entity from owning more than five vhf, arrangements have been made to—

* Place General Railway Transcontinent stock into voting trust agreement insulating General Railway from corporate affairs of TTC.

* Remove General Railway director on TTC board. He is Herbert Chamberlain who has tendered his resignation effective upon the merger between his company and Regina.

Help to Colorado U.

KBTV (TV) Denver has donated 27 units of television equipment, valued at time of purchase at more than $30,000, to the U. of Colorado for use in its projected educational television development. The equipment consists of all components needed to operate a TV station except camera chains and a synchronizing generator. KOA-TV Denver had made a similar gift of used equipment several years ago.

Correct English

Because of what it feels is the broadcaster's "responsible for to the public in the correct use of the English language," WAVE-AM-TV Louisville, Ky., has issued a style book for its reporters and copywriters. The book urges writers to keep sentences short, simple and effective. It includes abbreviations of terms commonly used in news copy and continuity. Emphasis is placed on the necessity for conversational tone and for taking into account the limitations of the announcer. Particular attention is paid to cliches traditionally over-used on radio and writers are instructed to avoid them.

Emergency-proof fm

Standard Electronics Div. of Reeves Instrument Corp., Farmingdale, N.J., has put out a series of fm transmitters with "patchover" protection to keep a station on the air despite emergencies. The transmitters have capabilities for simplex, fm stereo and other multiplex services, with the patchover principle adopted from that used by Standard on tv transmitters since 1951. The 10-kw fm transmitter consists of matched units: a 1-kw driver with serrasoid modulation and two 5-kw amplifiers with a power combiner. The driver is available separately as a 1-kw transmitter or with one amplifier to radiate a 5-kw signal. Driver output and amplifier input and output impedances are identical, 50/51.5 ohms, facilitating rapid rerouting of the rf signal to patch over a temporarily inoperative driver or amplifier.

■ Technical topics

Cue tapes = W.H. Brady Co., Milwauk ee, offers highly conductive, pressure-sensitive aluminum foil tabs to be applied to magnetic recording tape for automatic stop-start-repeat operation. The Quik-Cue Contact Tabs are made of .001-inch foil which becomes part of the tape. They are applied wherever automatic switching or cueing is desired. When the tab reaches the contact points of a relay on the machine, it actuates the mechanism to stop and shut off the relay or to reverse and repeat the program. They are for professional or amateur use and work on video tape and regular recording tape, according to the manufacturer. The tabs come attached to cards in units of 42 individual tabs to be peeled off at a cost of less than two cents per tab.

Range controller = Westrex Corp., a division of Litton Industries, has introduced a new general purpose audio compressor-limiter for use where the amplitude of the original sound is greater than the useful range of the recording or broadcasting equipment. The system consists of an RA-1593-A amplifier and RA-1594-A control unit. After initial settings are made on the control unit from a preliminary audio level test, the amplifier automatically compresses its output or chops peaks to keep the volume to within limits of the system. For further details, write Leo Call, sales supervisor, Westrex Corp., Recording Equipment Dept., 6601 Romanian St., Hollywood 38, Calif.

Catalogs available = Two new catalogs covering parabolic antennas for standard microwave service, mobile communications base station antennas and associated cables and mounting accessories are available from Prodelin Inc., Dept. G-20, 307 Bergen Ave., Kearny, N.J. Pertinent data regarding each Prodelin antenna and accessory is contained in the catalogs, the manufacturer states. They are available on request.

Speedy delivery = A "Tapemobile," 30-ton tractor-cab trailer-truck, has inaugurated a new delivery and pick-up system for Audio Devices, Stamford, Conn., manufacturer of magnetic tape, film and discs. On a two-way transcontinental run, Audio’s products will be delivered to company warehouses, and material used to make them will ride home "free" on the return trip. Delivery is expected to be speeded up by four days on the cross-country run and the firm claims that the Tapemobile could mean a saving of as much as $100,000 a year.

New turntable = Fairchild Recording Equipment Co. has scheduled its new Model 440 turntable for August 1 delivery. The turntable will have two speeds (33 1/3 and 45 rpm), single belt drive, and a control that varies turntable speed by plus or minus 1-1/2 %. It is priced at $69.95 less base and mounting board.

Greentree branch = American Recording Tape Corp., Costa Mesa, Calif., manufacturers of audio and industrial magnetic recording tapes and accessories, has begun operating as a division of Greentree Electronics Corp., which has manufacturing facilities in Costa Mesa and administrative-sales offices in Los Angeles.

Canadian development = Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., Toronto, Ont., has developed a 10 kw modular television transmitter with complete standby. The standby equipment will ensure no less than half-power operation under any circumstances. Designated TTC-100 series, the new unit is a 10 kw sync peak visual, 5 kw aural transmitter, has three chains of amplifiers, two visual and one aural. It has a standby first amplifier and a driver unit. The transmitter has separate power supplies for each chain, and two blowers, either of which will cool the transmitter. The transmitter comes in three models, with TTC-100-C completely automated. It is the first such transmitter designed specifically for Canadian operational needs. It is designed to take care of any kind of failure at the touch of a button, with less than five seconds lost air time, according to C. E. Spence, manager of broadcast equipment sales.

Gates produces more than half of all phasing systems today . . . twice as many as all other manufacturers combined. And, Gates phasing systems are built by the largest full time phasor production department in the country . . . a department made up of men specializing in the design and manufacture of the finest possible phasing and antenna coupling equipment.

The outcome of this unexcelled background has resulted in the following Gates exclusives:

- The use of Gates manufactured silver plated coils for better conductivity, more stable operation and greater system efficiency.
- Easy accessibility to every part for adjustment and maintenance.
- The use of Gates “full grip” variable conductors providing a high degree of stability for all front panel controls.
- The use of “make-before-break” meter switches that have inductance loops opposite the meter. These switches provide complete compensation for the inherent meter inductance, extremely important today because of increasingly tight directional patterns.

All directional phasing equipment is manufactured to the exact specifications of the customer’s consulting engineer, and work is not initiated until the consultant approves the design.

Gates manufactures phasing equipment up to 100 KW in power and for any number of elements. Prices are quoted promptly upon receipt of specifications. Many phasing systems can be quoted within one working day. We invite your inquiry.
The figures for the first six months of 1960 as compared to those of the comparable period of 1959 have convinced Geoffrey Irwin, managing director of Great Britain's Television Press Agency, that "a £22 million increase in tv expenditure during 1960 over the previous year is not too much to expect."

He further speculated that program contractors' gross revenue, before discounts, is likely to be £80 million this year as against 1959's £58 million. The six month's increase represented in the tables below is 35%. Revenue is calculated from contractors' rate cards and it excludes agency and series discounts.

CBC's Competition

BBG proposes rules for second tv network

A 49% interest in any company licensed to operate a television network competitive with the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., must be held by at least six second tv stations in Canada's major markets. This basic ground rule was proposed by the Board of Broadcast Governors at Ottawa on July 7.

The BBG proposed 12 rules for a second tv network. A public hearing will be held on these proposals on Sept. 1 and 2 at Ottawa. Following the hearing, final regulations for licensing a competitive network will be announced and applications received until November 1.

Until now, national networks in radio and television have only been permitted to the government-owned CBC. With competitive tv stations licensed and soon to be in operation in eight major markets, need for a competitive network has arisen.

The BBG proposed that a company be licensed to operate a network, that it must prove its ability to obtain microwave facilities and adequate microwave network time for live and taped programs; that such a company be licensed for an initial five years, with renewal in five year periods; that half the directors of the company must be elected by six or more basic tv stations holding stock in the company; that BBG must approve share transfers. The second network stations could only be affiliated with one network, but individual stations could obtain special programs from another network with BBG approval.

Stations must have an affiliation agreement with the network. The agreement would be subject to BBG approval. The network must provide for distribution of studio produced programs and remote facilities. All programs produced by the network must be offered all affiliated stations, but if not taken within 30 days, can be offered to competitive stations in the area. The agreement between the network and its affiliates may provide for reserve time periods; but the affiliates may have only first option on any additional programs offered by the network.

No network may have an exclusive contract to take programs only from one program supplier or non-Canadian network. BBG regulations applying to stations must be observed by the network, and final responsibility for programs and program policy of the network will rest with the network company.

British American Oil Co. Ltd., Toronto, Ont., and Dow Brewery Ltd., Montreal, Que., will share the sponsorship of 21 games of the Eastern Canadian Football Conference, plus three play-off games and the final Grey Cup championship game on the eastern Canadian English and French-language CBC television networks. This marks the first time a brewery has sponsored the games outside the province of Quebec.

In western Canada, CBC has announced the Western Interprovincial Football Union games, covering 11 league games and four or five play-offs, plus the Grey Cup game, will be 50% sponsored by British American Oil Co. Ltd. Negotiations are continuing for sale of other 50%. The western games will be carried by the CBC's western tv network.

Liquor ad code proposed in Canada

The principles and objectives of a proposed national code for liquor advertising have been endorsed by the Canadian Assn. of Provincial Liquor Commissioners at their July meeting at Jasper, Alta. Nine provinces and the Yukon Territory had representatives at the meeting. Only Newfoundland was not represented. The code is the first drawn up to guide liquor advertising on a national level. It will not be made public until the various provincial governments adopt it and make it public.

The conference was told by Ontario representatives that the province will implement the code in stages between Aug. 1 and Nov. 1 this year. This will permit legal liquor advertising in all media for the first time in the most populated province, where radio and television advertising of beer has been seen only from U.S. border stations or Quebec stations. Publishers have circumvented the law by printing outside the province.

SAUVE QUI PEUT
(or women and schedules first?)

A heavyweight H-R salesman (195 pounds), two secretaries (small, 105 pounds; petite, 90 pounds) and a 75-pound carton of indispensable WMAL-TV schedules* are trapped on the third floor of a hot agency. In fact, the building is burning.

Two baskets are attached to opposite ends of a rope which is strung across a pulley outside a window. When one basket is grounded, the other is at third-floor-window level. However, there is only one way to utilize this device: by placing a heavier weight in one basket than the other. The weight of human being(s) in the descending basket must not exceed that of the other by more than 15 pounds, because lives would be endangered. This restriction does not hold for the WMAL-TV schedules. They can take it.

Naturally, you can depend on the H-R salesman. How did he save all?

Burn up the mails—send solution pronto. First-time winners will receive a free copy of Dudeney's hot opus "Amusements in Mathematics"—Dover Publications. Repeat winners will receive other valuable prizes.

*Weighty, indeed—due to WMAL-TV's emergence as the Number One nighttime audience leader (ARB and Nielsen). Summer advertisers on WMAL-TV's Straw Hat Plan win ex officio via audience increases of as much as 15% without additional cost.

Canadian BBG okays two new tv stations

New tv stations have been recommended for Antigonish, N.S., and Mont Blanc, Que., by the Canadian Board of Broadcast Governors.

Atlantic Television Co., Antigonish, will be licensee of a new station in Antigonish on ch. 9 with 73 kw video and 36.5 kw audio. The new Mont Blanc station on ch. 80 with 401 w video and 200.5 w audio will be a satellite of CHAU-TV New Carlisle.

The BBG also recommended a foreign language radio station for C. Stanczykowski, who applied for such a license a year ago. It will be on 1410 kc with 1 kw. The BBG studied the foreign language broadcast problem in the Montreal area before recommending the new operation.

Set sales dropping

Sales of radio and television receivers in Canada continue to drop, with 117,033 tv sets sold in the first five months of 1960, compared with 139,744 in the same 1959 period. Radio set sales in the January-May period this year totalled 189,012 against 220,547 in the same 1959 months, according to figures released by the Electronic Industries Assn. of Canada at Toronto.

Ontario continued to lead in purchases accounting for 43,954 tv sets of the total and 89,300 radio receivers, with Quebec in second place with 29,751 tv receivers and 47,134 radio sets.

Dutch station illegal

An unlicensed radio station operating on board a ship off the coast of Holland has been declared an illegal operation by the Dutch government. Commercial broadcasting is not allowed in Holland and the 1620-kc station is violating that statute. Operated by Vrije Radio Omorep Nederland, VRON programs popular music principally. It is following a pattern established some months ago by Radio Mercuur, a ship-station transmitting in Danish. It is reported that similar operations are planned off the coast of Scandanavia.

BBG’s tv plans

Applications for second television stations in all Canadian cities, not just the eight major markets, are expected to be heard by the Board of Broadcast Governors starting this fall. No applications have been filed with the BBG, but the board is expected to announce soon that it will entertain such applications in September. Not all cities which are now served by one station have a second tv/vhf channel available by international agreement between the United States and Canada. Recommendations will be made by the BBG if the market permits the economic establishment of a second station in these smaller cities. Third tv stations in major cities where vhf channels are still available, such as Vancouver and Winnipeg, may also be licensed after the second stations have had a chance to become established.

Record year predicted

Gross commissionable national billings in Canadian television were up 29% in the first three months of this year to $14,484,460, according to a report of the Broadcast Advertising Bureau, Toronto, a branch of the Canadian Assn. of Broadcasters. At this rate, Karl A. Steeves, tv sales director of BAB points out, Canadian tv stations could produce $60 million of national business this year, a record in Canadian tv advertising.

Abroad in brief

Animals star Riverbank Productions, Toronto, Ont., has sold its 13 episode film series, Tales of the Riverbank, to the British Broadcasting Corp., London, England. The children’s film series is about animals. All the actors are small animals including hamsters, mice, frogs, chipmunks and a raccoon. The series has been shown on the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. Negotiations are in progress for their use in Russia. They also have been shown at the Stratford (Ont.) Film Festival and the Moscow Film Festival. David Ellison and Paul Sutherland of Toronto are producers. The films’ budget was as low as $2,500 each.

Mobile Canadian vtr Taylor Video Corp., Toronto, has ordered for fall delivery a mobile video tape television production studio-on-wheels costing over $250,000 from Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., Toronto. The 50-foot truck will be equipped to produce both feature television programs and tv commercials in any location. Equipment will include three British E.M.I. 4½ inch image orthicon tv cameras, the first such units sold in Canada since Canadian General Electric reached a marketing agreement with the British firm. The mobile studio will also have the latest Ampex Videotape recorder, associated studio gear for the cameras, complete 16-channel audio system, telechrome special effects and other facilities.

Compton’s British affiliate Compton Adv., N.Y., has acquired an interest in S.T. Garland Advertising Service Ltd., London. The agencies will make their international facilities available to their clients. The Garland organization will be known as Garland-Compton Ltd.
WARNERS SELLS POST-'48s

Canadian group to distribute movies to tv

Warner Bros. Pictures Inc. has granted a seven-year license to Creative Telefilm & Artists Ltd., Toronto, to distribute about 110 post-'48 feature films to television. Though the purchase price was not disclosed, it was reported to be approximately $11 million.

Warner's move is expected to touch off similar action by other major studios, including Columbia Pictures, 20th Century-Fox, and Samuel Goldwyn Productions. The Warner group is not the first major U.S. product of post-'48 vintage to have been released to television. Matthew Fox, who purchased the entire RKO library in 1955, has sold the 83 post-'48 films in the group to tv, starting in 1957, after making payment to unions representing writers, actors and directors.

Details Later — Details of the Warner transaction with Creative Telefilm were sketchy. David B. Stillman, president of Creative Telefilm, said that additional information would be released at a news conference in New York this week. He declined to give titles of the features included in the package but confirmed that the group included "A Star Is Born," "Battle Cry," "East of Eden," and other films issued to theaters between 1950 and 1956.

Creative Telefilm is listed on the Toronto stock exchange. A leading investor in the company is Louis Chesler, Canadian industrialist, who provided the financing for the purchase of the pre-'48 Warner library. Eliot Hyman, who was associated for a time with Mr. Chesler in Associated Artists Productions, which distributed the pre-'48 Warner features, has renewed his business affiliation with Mr. Chesler in Creative Telefilms. It is reported that a U.S. subsidiary of Creative Telefilms will be formed, with Mr. Hyman in a top level post, for the purpose of selling the post-'48 Warner features.

The recent agreements concluded by the motion picture producers paved the way for the release of post-'48 films to tv. A major obstacle was that talent guilds had insisted upon a share of the profits in the rentals of these films to tv. The latest contracts with actors and writers provide that they will not share in post-'48 features' revenue but will in films produced in 1960 and thereafter.

Post-'48 Rush Seen — All major producers leased or sold outright their pre-'48 features. Most are reported to be formulating plans for offering their post-'48 product to tv, though United Artists has reported recently it is biding its time.

Many post-'48 films produced abroad or by independent companies here already have been sold to tv. Broadcast Information Bureau reported last week that there are almost 2,000 titles already available. BIB's latest issue of its "Tv Feature Film Source Book" indicates that a total of 9,200 features have been released to tv.

Post-'48s offered by Alexander Prods.

M. & A. Alexander Productions has assembled a star-studded "VIP" package of 35 post-'50 theatrical features which are being offered to tv stations. The package already has been sold in more than a dozen top markets from Atlanta to Spokane. "When stations can offer big names . . . they can be assured of top ratings and ready interest on the part of sponsors," Arthur Alexander, president of the firm, said.

The "VIP" package includes: "Pandora and the Flying Dutchman," with Ava Gardner, James Mason and Nigel Patrick (a 1952 release); "The Warriors," starring Errol Flynn, Joanne Dru and Peter Finch (1955); "Tonight's the Night," with David Niven, Yvonne De Carlo and Barry Fitzgerald (1955); "Security Risk," with John Ireland and Dorothy Malone (1954); "Seven Angry Men," with Raymond Massey, Debra Paget and Jeffrey Hunter (1955); Mickey Rooney and Wendell Corey in "Bold and the Brave" (1956); "Highway Dragnet," with Joan Bennett and Richard Conte (1954), and others.

Survey analyses radio sports shows

Two out of three locally produced sports programs on radio stations are sponsored, according to a survey conducted by Karl Klages, director of the Utah State U. sports news division.

Based on a study of 225 returned questionnaires, Mr. Klages found that sponsorship of sports shows ranges from 60% of total coverage at large stations to 70% at medium and 78% at small stations.

Football was found to be the favorite play-by-play sport, followed by basketball, baseball, hockey, track and other events. Football sportscasts are carried...
What the viewers think

Concerned by criticisms of tv in newspapers and magazines, WHIO-TV Dayton, Ohio, decided to take a poll to determine how local viewers felt about tv in general. Purpose of the survey was to investigate general public attitudes on programming rather than measure the popularity of WHIO-TV. The first mailing was 1,500 questionnaires, of which 33% were returned. The second mailing was 250 with identical questions. The results were compared separately as a check on the accuracy of the sampling. The percentages were approximately the same, convincing the station the margin of error on a sampling of that size would be relatively small.

Detective adventure programs were first-choice favorites of the greatest percentage of viewers, while only one-third as many preferred educational programs. Perry Mason and 77 Sunset Strip were the best-liked shows in the former category. Questioned on network "specials," 54% of the viewers favored them, though some of these added qualifying comments such as "if worthwhile," or "if they really are special." However, 42% replied they preferred regular programs. Many of the comments expressed disappointment in spectacles, but there was favorable response to such documentaries as Population Explosion. It was learned that 47% of the respondents had watched that show—40% liked it; 6% didn't, and 1% offered no opinion.

WHIO-TV requested comments in addition to straight answers to the questions and reports that 45% cooperated in this, with comments running from one line to a full page. Less than 1% of the comments could be construed as hyper-critical or anti-tv, the station reports.

by 63% of the surveyed stations, with stations averaging better than 14 games in the 1959-60 sports year. This includes high school, college and professional games originated by the stations. Nearly four-fifths (78%) of small stations originated football; 84% of all other stations originate play-by-play coverage of various sports.

Two out of three of the stations employed sports directors, with 64% of stations saying these directors doubted in news, sales and other station functions. Thus only 36% of radio stations have full-time sports directors.

Salaries of station sports directors nation-wide in many cases exceed those paid to newspaper sports editors in communities of comparable size, it was found. Average salaries: Large stations, $11,500 for full-time directors, $11,600 for combination men (many of these also get tv talent fees); medium stations, $8,200 for full-time, $7,400 for combination men; small stations, $6,200 for full-time, $3,900 for combination men.

Talent fees for play-by-play were found to average $37.50 per game at large stations, $31 at medium and $22 at small stations. Over half of the sports directors or play-by-play men are college graduates.

The 5-7 p.m. period was found the most popular sports period (56% of stations), followed by 7-9 a.m. and 10 p.m. Sports scoreboards and 1-2 minute capsules are becoming popular, Mr. Klages' survey found. He pointed out that the survey figures came, to a considerable extent, from stations which have won acceptance through local sports and/or news coverage. Replies were from the management level.

Ziv-UA policy change

In a change of programming policy at Ziv-United Artists, the company last week announced it has signed a contract with John Robinson, head of Libra Ltd., Hollywood, under which that organization is to produce an action tv film series for Ziv-UA. Richard Durso, Ziv-UA vice president in charge of programming, New York, said the agreement covering the still untitled series is the first of a group of similar transactions to be negotiated with producers, writers and directors as part of the new programming principle at Ziv-UA. He noted that in the past, the company relied on its own production organization for its tv output.

Syndicated Roy Rogers’ re-runs bring big results for Nestle

There is some creative material—a few books, a lesser number of plays and still fewer movies—that seems to be endowed with eternal life and the ability to go on entertaining people year after year, generation after generation.

To this select band of immortals, add a TV entry, the Roy Rogers Show. For five years it occupied a weekly half-hour time period on NBC-TV, with General Foods as sponsor. Then, in the fall of 1958, 100 of those programs were put into syndication. Scarcely had that move been announced before the Nestle Co. decided that this might be a good advertising medium for its beverages, bouillon cubes and flavorings. Nestle proposed a test to Roy Rogers Syndication.

The terms of that test, as set up by Nestle and its agency, McCann-Erickson, were simple but difficult: (1) Get the Roy Rogers Show into good time slots on top stations in 35 major markets, including New York, Chicago and Los Angeles, and do it in approximately one month. (2) In three months, the Roy Rogers Show must equal or beat the rating and cost-per-thousand of the Lone Ranger (solidly entrenched on CBS-TV after eight years, three of them with Nestle as sponsor). (3) Deliver proof of sales of Nestle products directly traceable to the program.

The Results: “We cleared time on 31 stations, 85% of them within the stipulated 30 days,” Ned Koenig, president, Roy Rogers Syndication, explained. “At the end of three months, actually two of broadcasting the program for most of the stations, the Roy Rogers Show had an average rating of 14.9 versus 10.3 for the Lone Ranger, and a cost-per-thousand of $1.61, compared to the Ranger’s $2.02.

“So far, so good. Then came the test of our program’s selling power. We offered a calendar, something everyone expects to get for nothing. But to get one, the viewer had to buy a can of Quik and tear off the label and take it and a dime and put them in an envelope and send them in. Despite the trouble and the cost, we got roughly 100,000 orders in one month from only seven spots on the 31 stations. Later, we did the same thing in Canada and sent out 150,000 calendars.”

Convinced, Nestle has continued its sponsorship of the Roy Rogers Show ever since. Today it is in 110 U.S. markets, plus Canada, where Nestle shares sponsorship with General Mills. Nestle’s contract runs through May of next year, with options for two more years which everyone expects will be taken. The programs are also syndicated in another 60 U.S. cities for other advertisers.

Still a firm believer in contests, Nestle is preparing to stage a big one this fall based on naming a Palomino pony which is almost a duplicate of Roy Rogers’ own Trigger. First prize will be a family vacation for one week including a visit to the Roy Rogers ranch. Second and third prizes will be 15 other Palomino ponies, complete with western saddles, stirrup and bridle, and 50 German shepherd Bullet-type puppies. There will be 10,000 additional prizes of Roy Rogers merchandise, from boots to pajamas.

Proof of Purchase: Tailored to appeal to children under 14 years of age with the objective of stimulating mass display and sales of the Nestle Quik product, the proof of purchase angle is covered by entrants attaching any portion of a Quik label or tracing the Quik brand name. The contest begins on Sept. 12th, 1960 and closes Oct. 22nd, 1960, with the Reuben H. Donnelley Co. of Chicago handling all the details.

The contest will be advertised through one-minute TV commercials on each Roy Rogers half-hour show during the six-week contest period, and on Circus Boy, an NBC show. In print, two one-half full color comic strip advertisements will be employed in all major markets.

In addition to the U.S. and Canada, Nestle has been projecting sponsorship of the Roy Rogers Show in Australia, France, Germany, Puerto Rico, Cuba, Brazil and Bermuda and is going into Belgium in the fall. The series has been dubbed into French, German and Spanish and provided with Portuguese, Mr. Koenig said, adding that he now has contracts for it in Nigeria, Lebanon, Hong Kong and Ghana. “We’ve had an offer from Japan, but we’re holding off here, waiting until they lift their present price limitation of $300 per half-hour program.”

The phenomenon that is Roy Rogers began to pick up steam 21 years ago when the newly titled “King of the Cowboys” shook hands with his present manager, Art Rush, on what is perhaps the most unique deal in show business. No formal contract exists between them.

Top Movie Star: For 12 years Roy was the top western star of the movies, measured by box office receipts. Today the 86 pictures in which he starred are still to be seen on television where their ratings bely any notion that the old style hard-riding, hard-fighting, fast action westerns have lost their popularity.

As a movie star, Roy amassed a comfortable small fortune. But it was not until ten years ago, when he entered television through his original 100 half-hour films sponsored by General Foods over the NBC-TV network, that he became the tycoon of the western field.

To handle the deluge of ideas offered by various manufacturers, merchandising expert Larry Kent was brought into the company as vice president and general manager of Roy Rogers Enterprises Inc., of which Roy is president and Dale Evans vice president.

Presently there are more than 400 items bearing Roy’s Double R Bar brand. They range from toy guns and cowboy paraphernalia to such prosaic things as lunch boxes. For the past eight years this merchandise has averaged $30 million annually at retail level with Roy receiving 5% of the gross on a royalty basis. Mr. Kent attributes this huge volume to two factors: Roy’s 25 year reign of popularity, now sustained largely by television, during which Roy’s original fans have grown up and presented him with a second generation of equally ardent fans. Of almost equal importance is the high quality level of his merchandise, every item of which bears a personal pledge to parents from Roy and Dale, reading: “Dale and I are proud of every product that bears our name and we use these items for our own children. WNDU-TV South Bend, Ind., is scoring points on several fronts this summer with its daily telecasts of the area's Junior League and Babe Ruth League baseball teams. The Monday-through-Friday (4-5:30 p.m.) series began in mid-June and will continue through August, when championships will be decided.

According to W. Thomas Hamilton, WNDU-TV general manager, the plan was to revive sagging local interest in teenage and pre-teenage baseball. The daily ball game has not only accomplished its goal but has developed into a "surprisingly unexpected commercial bonanza." Commercially, the games have attracted strong support from local and regional advertisers, it was reported.

Station personnel helped the various teams in the two leagues find sponsors to underwrite the expense of furnishing uniforms. The station also had a specially designed baseball field set up adjacent to Notre Dame U.'s stadium.

The novelty of playing on tv has created tremendous interest among the families, friends and relatives of all the youngsters playing the national pastime, Mr. Hamilton says. Moreover, recreation and civic officials are said to have hailed the WNDU-TV action as the biggest boost the area's overall recreation program that has taken place in many years.

Tv Specials, Too | The syndicated half-hour shows are but part of the Roy Rogers tv activity which supports the vast merchandising campaigns. For three years, the cowboy king and his queen, Dale Evans, have put on a half-dozen western spectaculars in the Chevrolet-sponsored NBC-TV Sunday evening hour normally occupied by Dinah Shore. They've just contracted to do seven more during the 1960-61 season. These specials during 1959 turned in three of Chevy's most highly rated shows.

Sports-minded Roy, who owns a gun club with a trout lake and a 9-hole golf course complete with lights for night play, is also president of National Football League Enterprises, the newest mushrooming area of his enterprises.

Roy's executives smile over his periodic gestures toward the easy life. This summer he completed a book titled My Favorite Christmas Story for fall release. While relinquishing interest in two automobile agencies, he matched this "cut-back" by acquiring part ownership of the Shelter King tent company and several new real estate ventures, in addition to his Big Bear, California boat landings and Arizona ranch holdings.

Friends say that Roy believes that land is the best possible investment.

Before his departure on an extended summer fishing tour with his sons, Dusty and Sandy, Roy was asked what division of his enterprises he considered the best prospect for the future.

His reply: "Television. Dale and I enjoy doing the Chevy shows and hope to be on them for some years to come. There seems to be no end in sight for the growing foreign market for our films or for the domestic re-runs.

"We have just developed a format for a new series ... . I can't divulge the premise because there are so many imitators around, but it will be aimed at the western-loving youngsters, a new crop of which blooms every year. If it weren't for the kids I'd be nowhere and as long as they'll have me on tv I expect I'll be around trying to keep 'em happy."

Program notes

Company is coming | FCC Chairman Frederick W. Ford will be interviewed by Charles Collingwood on CBS-TV's Person to Person July 22 (10:30-11 p.m.), originating in Alexandria, Va. Actor Cesar Romero will appear in another segment of the show.

Strike call? | Board of Screen Extras Guild is asking members for authorization to call a strike against the Alliance of Television Film Producers if the board feels such action necessary to obtain a fair collective bargaining contract. Ballots were mailed Wednesday (July 13); deadline for their return is next Monday (July 25). SEG contracts with both ATFP and the Alliance of Motion Picture Producers expired more than a year ago, April 2, 1959, but board letter states that "the strike if called will NOT be against the major studios. ONLY the Alliance."

Format moves | Format Films has moved to new quarters, over 10,000 square feet in area, at 4741 Laurel Canyon Blvd., North Hollywood. The new building is twice the size of the former one in Burbank and will permit Format to offer a self-contained unit complete with sound and cutting equipment for the production of tv commercials and animated cartoon series.

Navy time | KALB-TV Alexandria, La., gave over full sponsorship of a one-hour dramatic show to the U.S. Naval Reserve as a public service. The program was part of NTA's TV Hour of Stars package and was presented in prime time. The station's production department altered the credits and titles of the program to present them against the background of a naval officer's cap, thus associating the program with its "sponsor." The commercials were written and prepared by stationkeepers at the local Naval Reserve base. They were directed by Harold Thom for the KALB-TV department of public affairs.

In command | British Field Marshal Bernard L. Montgomery recreates his own campaigns in a tv documentary series starting Sept. 11 on the 47 affiliated stations of the National Educational Television and Radio Center, N.Y. The British Broadcasting Corp. series, titled Command in Battle, consists of eight half-hour shows.

Overseas report CBS Films Inc., N.Y., reports international business during the first five months of 1960 increased 45.2% over the same period of 1959. CBS Films' business rose 45.5% in Europe, 159% in Japan, 56.9% in Australia, 50.9% in Canada, 44.6% in Latin America and 15.2% in the United Kingdom. Growth is expected to be maintained during the remainder of the year because of new stations going on the air soon in both Canada and Australia, the new quota in Japan and other factors, according to Ralph M. Baruch, director of international sales.

RTNDA awards William Small, president of Radio TV News Directors Assn. and news director of WHAS-AM-TV Louisville, Ky., has announced a new system to be adopted in judging RTNDA's 13th annual awards competition. Northwestern U.'s Medill School of Journalism, which has judged all entries in the past, will handle tv and Indiana U.'s School of Journalism will judge radio. Entries must be submitted on official RTNDA entry blanks by September for programs broadcast between Sept. 1, 1959 and Aug. 31, 1960. Blanks may be obtained from the RTNDA Bulletin, Communications Center, Iowa State U., Iowa City and should be submitted to the judging universities. Written presentations will not be returned to competing stations. Outlets in the U.S., Canada and territories are eligible. The winner will be announced with the winner of the Paul White Memorial Award, at RTNDA's international convention in Montreal Oct. 5-8.

Quick listening Radio Programming Service is making available to stations four series of 60-second Mini-Mats programs. Twenty of each are made available every week. Shows are mailed the day they are produced. They may be programmed separately or spliced to make five-minute programs. Stars are Don Dunphy, Martha Tilton, Earl Wilson, Broadway-Hollywood reporter; Dr. Paul Popeneo, marriage counselor, and Sam Shulsky, market expert.

Syndicated singers Living Opera with Alan Wagner, heard for two years on WNYC New York, is being syndicated by Fred B. Tarter Productions. On the show the m.c. plays and discusses recordings, interviews opera luminaries and reports opera news. It has universal appeal, the syndicator says, but especially attracts upper-income listeners. Audition reels are available from Fred B. Tarter Productions, 26 W. 47th St., Room 700, New York, N.Y.

New bureaus The Associated Press has begun operation of two new radio news bureaus, one at Columbus, Ohio, the other in Charleston, W.Va. The outlets will supervise all service in their local areas.

Musical memorabilia WFFA Dallas and its parent organization, The Dallas News, have presented the station's library of 15,000 copies of sheet music, valued at $40,000, to North Texas State College, Denton. The music has been collected for 38 years and ranges from jazz to classical. Included are two classical arrangements for orchestra, said to be as valuable today as when they were written, and such curios as nine arrangements of "Yes, We Have No Bananas." The college said the collection would be available to worthwhile musical groups on a free loan basis, as well as to scholars.

SOAP OPERA Described by its producer as "the essence of the soaps," Listen to Joe, a daily taped five-minute radio series has been released by KBB Productions, Hartford, Conn. The program is based on the question "Do you understand your husband?" and is beamed to women, giving them advice on how to learn about and discuss intelligently the subjects husbands are interested in.

Harlem headliners Lone Star TV Productions, Dallas, has acquired worldwide distribution rights to Harlem Variety Review, a musical half-hour series featuring more than 30 top Negro entertainers, from Pathe Pictures. Lone Star President Robert Montgomery announced that the 13 half-hour films will be offered initially nationwide in the U.S. Among the singers, dancers and comedians featured are Count Basie, Duke Ellington, Martha Davis & Spouse, Nat (King) Cole and Bill Bailey.

Race problem WBT Charlotte, N.C., originated a six-hour broadcast of the World 600, a stock car race of 600 miles for a purse of $106,775, which it fed to a network of 40 stations from Pennsylvania to Georgia. The race marked the opening of the $5 million Charlotte Speedway. The Pure Oil Co. sponsored the program on WBT.

NBC-TV to add Paar to tv color schedule NBC-TV will administer another shot to color tv this September when it adds the Jack Paar Show to its string of colorcast programs, boosting the network lineup to 28 hours a week. That addition, plus two daytime half hours also being added this fall, will bring the network's color programming to 1,100 hours this calendar year, up 50% over the 720 hours last year.

The Paar show (Mon.-Fri., 11:15 p.m.-1 a.m. NYT) will be taped in color the first four nights of the week, with the Friday night repeat version (The Best of Paar) catching up later in the season. The two daytime shows going color are Play Your Hunch (10:30-11 a.m. NYT) and the Jan Murray Show (2-3 p.m.), both across the board.

NBC-TV credits the decision to colorcast the Paar shows and the two daytime programs to RCA's new 4401 image orthicon tube which permits shooting color with the same amount of light used for black and white. This will permit the shows to originate from their present studios without extensive alterations.

Already planned for NBC-TV's fall color lineup: the weekly Tennessee Ernie Ford Show, AT&T Musicals, Price Is Right, Perry Como Show, Bonanza, Shirley Temple, Dinah Shore Chevy Show, and the daily Continental Classroom, Price Is Right and It Could Be You.

Opry' talent hunt

Pet Milk Co.'s third annual Grand Ole Opry talent contest drew 5,000 entrants.

Finals of the 1959 country-western music contest were held in Nashville June 25 through the facilities of WSM there. The winner, Johnny Milnor, who auditioned over KBWD Brownwood, Texas, received a contract for appearances on six Grand Ole Opry shows and a recording contract with Hickory Records. Six contenders appeared in the finals, culminating talent searches on 200 Keystone Broadcasting System stations.

Pet Milk Co. executives, including Ted Gamble, president, and Robert Piggott, advertising manager, served as hosts to the finalists; the agency, Gardner Adv. Co.; WSM, which originates Grand Ole Opry locally; KBS representatives, including Sidney J. Wolf, president, and Edwin R. Peterson, senior vice president and station managers.

Finalists and the stations they represented (KDBS Alexandria, La.; WWNR Beckley, W. Va.; KLCO Poteau, Okla.; WLET Toccoa, Ga.; WTBC Tuscaloosa, Ala., and KBWD) received scrolls at the awards dinner. Principals were guests of recording star Roy Acuff at an all-day picnic on their estate at Hickory Lake.

Radio brings home the bread

American Bakers Puts the Whole Loaf in Radio" is the title of a four-page brochure just released by Radio Advertising Bureau. It tells how the baker (58 plants in 26 states) earmarked its entire budget of $500,000 for radio, running "good music" spots in 33 markets.

American needed a medium to influence the housewife in her three-times weekly bread buying, Robert Llewellyn, the company's advertising manager tells in the book. Radio was picked for its frequency and economy. The advertiser then commissioned six melodies and used up to 17 pieces to record them. A subsequent record-album offer drew 1,000 listener requests in one market, the RAB booklet says.

'Clutch Cargo' Awards

Wheeling, W. Va., police and local station WTRF-TV collaborated on a joke that turned into a serious youth project, the Clutch Cargo awards.

The original, lighthearted Clutch Cargo Humanitarian Award was tied in with the cartoon show seen Monday-Friday, 6:55-7 p.m. over WTRF-TV.

It was presented by police to a parking-lot attendant who was singled out as a humanitarian for letting police store gear in his shack until it was needed. The gimmick got such wide publicity that police and the station got together to launch the legitimate Clutch Cargo award. First winner was a 12-year-old girl who saved a drowning friend. Future awards will be made as the occasion arises and the sponsors hope they will be an inspiration to Wheeling teenagers.

KREI Boulevard

The Board of Alderman of Farmington, Mo., has voted to rename East Webster Street in honor of KREI, that city. Henceforth it shall be known as KREI Boulevard. In announcing the change a city official said, "The change in names of this street is to publically acknowledge the 12 years of public service to the entire community by KREI and its owners, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil W. Roberts. KREI has never failed to use its facilities to the fullest extent for the betterment of the community, and this act expresses the deep appreciation of the people of Farmington to the station and its owners."

Grocery boy = WING Dayton, Ohio, has instituted a promotion which it claims builds audiences and sponsors goodwill at the same time. A manager of a local Kroger grocery store is named "Manager of the Day," and his name is mentioned over WING twice during the morning. Listeners who have submitted entry blanks are called and asked to identify this manager. The prize is $25 in groceries and the pot is raised by $5 each time a call is not answered correctly. So far 10,000 enter-ty blanks have been received and the bonus has not grown larger than $40.

Five tons of sales power = KKIS Pittsburg, Calif., tied in with a local circus promotion involving the opening of a food market as a Norge appliance dealer in that town. Besides animal acts, stars of Ring Bros. Circus performed and a five-ton elephant was used to demonstrate the durability of a Norge FV-F9 home freezer. KKIS taped circus sounds and aired them during the three-day event. Affinito's Quality Food Market reported it sold several freezers and home laundry appliances through the overall circus-manufacturer-dealer-station promotion.

Nose for weather = WCBS New York offers a barometer to listeners which tells them the weather by the change in color of a chemically-treated nose on a caricature and urges them to listen to the Jack Sterling Weather Watch show.

Under par = WIP Philadelphia has organized a "Hole-in-One Club" for golf-

Who covers Ashtabula County?

ARB'S 1960 TV COVERAGE STUDY reports in depth the full story of TV coverage in Ashtabula and all 3,071 other counties in the 50 United States.

All counties ... all TV markets ... all TV stations are covered in ARB's big 1960 "encyclopedia of television" soon to be released. It not only provides the most recent data available (reflecting the changes that have taken place at over 200 TV stations since the last county-by-county study two years ago), it offers this information based on a sounder technique of measurement than has ever been attempted.

Two Nationwide all-county sampling sweeps were conducted utilizing more than 500,000 home interviews backed by ARB's proven Interviewer Supervised Viewing Diary. Each sweep was specifically designed to simultaneously gather viewing and coverage information. Viewing data, already delivered to clients as the most comprehensive market summary of local audience size, was the first phase of these Nationwide sweeps. Phase two, ARB's 1960 TV Coverage Study, now locates these viewers, by county, for a finite evaluation of television in every area of the country.

SPECIAL SERVICES
In 1952 P.B. Reed, more familiarly hailed as "Pincky" by his host of friends, was one of 10 men among the vast RCA work force who were awarded the RCA Victor award of merit, highest honor bestowed by the giant electronics firm on an employee.

What did he do to deserve the honor?

Very simple. In 1950 RCA handed over to Mr. Reed the Government Service Dept., then comprising 37 people and doing about $300,000 worth of business a year.

When he left the job in 1957, the department employed more than 5,000 and was doing $35 million annually.

RCA explained the award went to Mr. Reed because of the "dynamic growth of the Government Service Dept."

The ability to do a superior job is one of the attributes of 51-year-old Pinckney Brewer Reed, now vice president in charge of RCA's Washington office handling commercial and government business and soon to be named vice president of government marketing in charge of the electronic data processing division.

Structural Savvy — Another attribute is Mr. Reed's wide-ranging knowledge of the RCA complex. Company-wise, the amiable Chicagoan was weaned on Photophone, served as a tech rep with the Navy during World War II, sold broadcasting, communications and other engineering products in postwar years and was in charge of RCA's International Sales before coming to his present Washington job early in 1959.

He probably knows a little more about his company's divisions, products and people and about Washington governmental activities and people than anyone else on the commercial side of the RCA empire.

That makes him a natural for the supervisory job he now holds: overseeing such burgeoning RCA activities as data processing, astro-electronics, defense electronics, laboratories, electron tubes and semiconductors, broadcast and TV equipment, communications apparatus and international sales.

He is a member of the RCA executive council and of the general managers group. He reports to Fred M. Farwell, RCA vp for marketing. In his new position he will report to D.H. Kunschman, electronic data processing division vice president.

Togetherness — One of Mr. Reed's early accomplishments in Washington was the fruition of a decade-long attempt to centralize the numerous RCA offices in the Nation's Capital. He brought 90% of them under one roof last May in what is now known as the RCA Building at 1725 K St., N.W.

Mr. Reed joined RCA in the depression year 1930. He started with the Photophone division in Chicago and in the next seven years covered the Midwest, installing and repairing this motion picture sound gear. He became a regular sales engineer for RCA equipment in that time, selling broadcast and communications equipment as well as movie projectors and sound apparatus.

When war came in 1941, he was a natural as a tech rep in this industry-military program which assigned civilian experts to military units to instruct and trouble shoot the immensely complicated and brand new "Buck Rogers" devices coming from war-time military and industrial laboratories.

Sub Chaser — He was assigned to the Navy where he worked mainly on sonar and radar. He was stationed at East and Gulf Coast shipyards and later with the Fourth Fleet at Recife, Brazil. Several times he was aboard destroyers and PT boats in live pursuit of enemy submarines off South America. This period is recalled by a shingle at his home identifying him as an honorary member of the Brazilian navy.

In 1944, with victory in sight, Mr. Reed was assigned to the Navy's Bureau of Ships in Washington. The following year he was reassigned to RCA's Washington office as a specialist in government contracts.

This was the period when television began reaching for its present eminence. Radio also awoke from its wartime hibernation and resumed its unparalleled growth.

Although Mr. Reed was the government contracts man, he found himself selling TV transmitters and other gear to broadcasters. He sold two or three of the first few TV transmitters bought by broadcasters. He also sold the first post-war 50 kw AM transmitter.

Old Friend — Mr. Reed's interest in radio is of long standing. During his high school days in the 1920s he was bitten by the radio bug, but his interest was more than amateur. He soon had worked up an income building $100 and $150 radio sets for friends.

In 1947, he left Washington to become regional sales manager of engineering products, with headquarters in Cleveland. In 1948 he was brought to Camden as national field sales manager for all engineering products (including broadcast equipment).

In 1950 he was made a vice president of RCA Service Co. and took over the Government Service Dept., and in 1957 was made a vice president and placed in charge of RCA's International Sales, handling the multi-million-dollar export business. In May 1959 he was assigned to Washington.

This fits, too. In his 30 years with RCA, Mr. Reed has made one trip around the world, 10 round trips to Europe and four round trips to the Far East. This is good experience to have in Washington where you never know whom you will run into.

Chicago Start — Mr. Reed was born Jan. 21, 1909, in Mobile, Ala., and brought up in Chicago by his widowed mother (his father died when he was 9). After high school, Mr. Reed went to work for Zenith Radio Corp. and Temple Radio Co., while attending Armour Institute of Technology.

Mr. Reed's given name, Pinckney, comes from his mother's southern heritage. She's related to the South Carolina signer of the U.S. Constitution.

The RCA vice president lives with his wife, the former Imogene Groff of Birmingham, in Fairfax County, Va. They were married in 1937 and have two sons. Mr. Reed has one hobby, deep sea fishing, but he seldom finds time for it these days.

There's one skeleton in the Reed closet.

When he first joined RCA in 1930 he was scheduled to receive two weeks' training. After the first day, RCA rushed him out to Dubuque, Iowa, on an emergency repair job and kept right on assigning him to other jobs. He never did complete that two weeks.
EDITORIALS

Cases in point

In the past two weeks there have been dramatic illustrations of (1) the idiocies of federal editorial control over a medium of journalism and (2) the virtues of freedom.

On July 7, by government decree, a national television network was obliged to present a freak show featuring Lar Daly, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president recognized by no one but himself and the FCC.

Last week, in the absence of a government decree, television and radio covered a national political convention more thoroughly and more informatively than any similar event had ever been covered before.

Mr. Daly was exposed to a national television audience because the law requires broadcasters to give equal time to all candidates, however obscure, on all programs except those in the general category of news.

The Democratic convention was accorded wide-ranging coverage because, for the first time in 33 years, broadcasters were able to interview all newsworthy participants without worrying about granting equal time to their rivals in local political races. The convention, a special news event, was exempt from the equal time requirements. A 1959 amendment to Sec. 315, the political broadcasting law, removed newscasts, news interviews and coverage of news events from the provisions of the section.

In previous political conventions broadcasters had been forced to avoid on-the-air discussions with many convention participants who were also candidates in local races. A station or network that interviewed a delegate who was also a candidate in his home town or state ran the risk of having to give equal time to his opponents from other parties. Under such circumstances newsmen were given lists of convention participants to avoid, even though those who were avoided were in possession of significant convention news.

The removal of that absurd restriction gave broadcasters last week the freedom to interview at will. And the result was a heads-up job of coverage.

When Congress reconvenes next month, a further modification of Sec. 315 will be up for House consideration. Already passed by the Senate is a joint resolution suspending Sec. 315 for presidential and vice presidential candidates during this campaign.

This resolution deserves the support of all broadcasters. But it must be considered no more than a preliminary to the final job that must be undertaken when a new Congress meets next year—the total repeal of Sec. 315.

The political payoff

Broadcasters took it on the chin again last week in Los Angeles. At the very least they expected a pat on the back from the Democratic national convention. Instead the party's platform picked up those ugly epithets payola, quiz-rigging, corruption and sadistic violence, born of the House Oversight inquisition and magnified beyond any reasonable resemblance to the facts. These subjects had no place in the party platform.

The gratuitous slaps were spliced into the platform in lieu of a plank on freedom of communications. Informal overtures had been made to the committee to reassert the party's faith in the freedom of broadcasting as the modern extension of the free press.

Why? We need not look beyond the membership of the platform committee. Oren Harris of Arkansas was a member. He wanted nothing in the platform that would undercut his Oversight freeway to the headlines. Evidently no one else on the committee cared—not even its chairman, Chester Bowles, the Connecticut congressman who made his fortune in the advertising agency business.

Next week it will be the Republicans in Chicago. They too will have a platform that can be stood on or walked around, as their candidates wish. Will they grasp the opportunity that their Democratic opposition muffed? Or will they too echo those libels against all broadcasters because a few feet slipped way back a year or more ago?

Put it in writing

Sometimes we're surprised that television ever gets on the air at all.

We're not talking about the difficulties to be overcome in covering a sprawling, brawling political convention, which by its nature is an adventure in loosely organized chaos. The problem we have in mind is closer to a daily than a quadrennial consternation and is getting worse.

We're talking about the sheer volume of paper work necessary nowadays to do business with all the people making a living in television production. Nobody starts without a contract. At last count—which was made last week by Broadcasting and is described elsewhere in this issue—the networks had contracts with 80 different unions and locals, some of which require more than a score of subcontracts to spell out different terms for different member categories, including parking-lot attendants. These terms are meticulous in their detail, often prescribing lunch hours and carfare as minutely as job assignments and pay scales. Many of the specifications sound ridiculous or unnecessary.

Union and management people both argue that such detail is essential to self-defense, that unless everything is spelled out, down to the last coffee break, the other side—or some other union—will take advantage of the omission and the result will be endless wrangling if nothing worse. Perhaps so.

The evolution of labor-management relationships certainly has not reached the utopian point where complete mutual trust can be expected. But are they still at the point where unions and employers must suspect each other at every turn? What is to be gained by either side from the feeling that a man will refuse to turn around unless his contract requires him to do so—or that he will be asked to move mountains unless his contract forbids it?

Unless some sense is introduced into employ-employer relations, the business of broadcasting will remain unnecessarily complicated and costly, and some of TV's most imaginative writing will continue to be found in union contracts.
