Storm brewing?

NAB television code board's fall meeting is set for Sept. 30, and indications are that it'll be rouser. Strong letters already have been dispatched by some code board members to NAB President LeRoy Collins. One protest that NAB's TV board didn't tighten code drastically enough last time, suggested NAB start anew by eliminating option that lets stations be NAB members without subscribing to code and vice versa. Another member complained that TV board rejected code board's "realistic" proposals last time around, then asked broadcaster to "pull the chestnuts out of the fire" by lobbying against FCC plan to adopt code's commercial limits into FCC rules. He suggested code board has no choice but to ask for resignations of all code violators Sept. 30 meeting.

In response to latter complaint, Governor Collins has composed conciliatory letter. As to calling for code violators' resignations Sept. 30 meeting, however, he didn't commit himself. Rather, he said he saw no alternative to resignation "if any broadcaster finds that he simply cannot comply with any restriction in the code and exhausts his efforts to obtain relief by amendment."

Henry abroad

FCC Chairman E. William Henry tentatively plans to leave for Geneva as member of U. S. delegation to International Radio Conference on Space Allocations on Oct. 9. Conference, to conclude deliberations begun in 1959, would settle assignments for all modes of outer space communications and is scheduled to run until Nov. 8. Chairman of U. S. delegation is Joseph H. McConnell, president of Reynolds Metals Co., Richmond, and former president of NBC (1949-53).

If usual procedures are followed, Rosel H. Hyde, senior FCC member, will serve as acting chairman. It will be Mr. Henry's first absence from country since he assumed chairman-ship last June 2.

Priority on fairness

Presumably in line with administration's wishes, FCC Chairman E. William Henry has ordered Broadcast Bureau to give top priority to fairness doctrine as applied to right-wing groups (H. L. Hunt's Life Line; Rev. Carl McIntire; Clarence Manion) who buy time. At last Wednesday's commission meeting—first since its August hiatus—Chairman Henry told Broadcast Bureau to concentrate on application of fairness doctrine in this area and not let secondary things stand in way. Last Thursday he told Senate Communications Subcommittee he felt stations would have to provide "reasonable opportunity" for presentation of contrasting views on controversial issues, whether paid for or not, and that ruling should be forthcoming within fortnight.

Hot week

ABC-TV, which reports it's "over" 94% sold for fourth quarter, has just picked up another advertiser, Simonize, for scattered months in four nighttime shows during "premiere week" of new season plus minutes in four daytime programs. Idea of "premiere week" package is for advertiser to buy minute availabilities in nighttime schedule during Sept. 15-21. Week that all shows on ABC-TV will start new season's run. For this purchase, advertiser rides on network's big promotional campaign kicking off season.

One up, one out

Al King, veteran chief of National Association of Broadcasters' field representatives, has been tapped to head new office designed to improve NAB relationships with state broadcaster associations (CLOSED CIRCUIT, Sept. 2). Mr. King now headquarters in St. Louis but will operate out of Washington in new post. In years of traveling for NAB to sign new members and keep old ones happy, he has come in direct contact with hundreds of broadcasters at their stations, making him ideal choice for new job, NAB feels.

Art Stamler, originator and producer of special presentations at 1963 convention of NAB, has resigned from public relations staff. Last spring was first time NAB has gone in for elaborate productions at convention, and Mr. Stamler was praised for his creations, particularly staging of award to Bob Hope.

Five-year licenses—but

FCC Commissioner Robert E. Lee intends to do more than talk about his proposal that broadcasters be given five-year licenses. He will ask commission colleagues to include it in package of legislative requests agency will send Congress next session. Legislation is required since Communications Act now limits license term for broadcasters to three years.

In present stage of Commissioner Lee's thinking, however, proposal isn't likely to leave broadcasters overjoyed.

It would, for instance, provide that new operators be given short-term licenses, perhaps only one year, with full-term license to be awarded after broadcaster has proven himself. Also, commissioner would favor commission, either through law or rulemaking, having authority to call up license for renewal hearing at any time. This would be aimed at inhibiting broadcasters with five-year licenses from straying off straight and narrow. Commissioner feels his proposal would simplify agency's administrative processes and, at same time, enable commission to devote more attention "to marginal" operators.

Charlie Walker test

Effort may be made to have all nine judges of U. S. Court of Appeals for District of Columbia hear argument on celebrated Charlie Walker case. Feeling is that First Amendment issue is so critical that all members of circuit bench should be in on case from beginning. Motion for en banc hearing being studied by attorneys for E. G. Robinson Jr., owner of WDKK Kingstree, S.C., whose license was denied renewal by FCC last year (see page 78).

Postponement ahead

Although FCC isn't likely to postpone "indefinitely" rulemaking on imposition of code commercial time limitations, there's prospect it will yield for requests for deferment from Sept. 16 until some time in October for comments. Senator John G. Tower (R-Tex.) had asked FCC to postpone rulemaking "indefinitely" which would have meant shelving, but Chairman E. William Henry replied that commission wouldn't do that. (See editorial, page 114).

One way to diversify

Possibility of direct confrontation on newspaper ownership issue in FCC action setting for hearing pending purchase of KQLC Miami, Okla., only station in community, by Miami News-Record, only newspaper in area, is beginning to vanish. C. C. Woodson, owner of newspaper, has been advised by attorneys that he shouldn't subject his newspaper to hazards of regulatory hearing. At moment Mr. Woodson is weighing advice. Mr. Woodson owns string of southwestern newspapers, and has varying interests in KTOK Oklahoma City; KTFO Seminole, Tex.; WACO-AM-FM Waco, Tex.; KXOL-AM-FM Fort Worth.

WSPD-Radio's morning audience equals the other 3 Toledo stations combined. In the afternoon, WSPD-Radio's audience share is 69% greater than the 2nd place station.

Negroes poised to integrate agencies

NAACP OUTLINES PROGRAM

Six-point program calling for "greater utilization" of Negro performers and other personnel in advertisements in all mass media was presented by spokesmen for National Association For Advancement of Colored People to 102 representatives of 56 major advertising agencies at closed meeting in New York Sept. 5.

Details of meeting were released today (Sept. 9) by NAACP and American Association of Advertising Agencies which arranged session at request of NAACP. Agencies that were represented accounted for more than two-thirds of U. S. broadcast advertising volume.

After meeting with NAACP, AAAA officials noted that advertising agencies representing "preponderance" of broadcast volume already have agreed to joint policy statement against discrimination in employment of talent. This statement, issued last June by American Federation of Television and Radio Artists and broadcasting and recording industries, restates no-discrimination provisions in talent union codes to which agencies "long have adhered" (BROADCASTING, June 10). It also provides procedures for casting of performers "in all types of roles so that the American scene may be portrayed realistically."

AAAA also reported it is pursuing separate subject of employment of Negroes on advertising agency staffs, and said meetings have been held in New York with New York State Commission on Human Rights, Urban League of Greater New York, and New York Association of Marketing Specialists.

NAACP's program called for:

- Depiction of 20 million U. S. Negroes in future advertising as consumers reporting every strata of American life, ranging from unskilled laborers to highest paid professionals and technicians.
- Dropping of "present racial barriers" in all sponsored TV and radio programs and commercials and adoption of policy of unrestricted use of Negro performer.
- Policy of merit employment to be instituted by advertising agencies within their organization.
- Use of Negro models in all forms of advertising.
- Recognition that Negro press in large measure serves substantial portion of Negro consumer market and, therefore, advertising in all available media is essential.

Establishment with 4-A's of continuing group or committee with whom NAACP can maintain contact for immediate negotiations concerning implementation of these demands and for resolving any problems that may arise in future.

In related development, acting Labor Commissioner James J. McFadden of New York reported in interview to be broadcast on WLIB New York last Saturday (Sept. 7) that by end of this month 40 advertisers will be using integrated campaigns in radio, TV, newspapers, magazines and billboards.

Mr. McFadden did not mention advertisers specifically on program, but BROADCASTING learned his list included Sinclair Oil, Equitable Life, Eastern Air Lines, Procter & Gamble, AT&T, New York Telephone Co., Consolidated Edison, RCA, General Electric Co., American Airlines and Trans-World Airlines.

Friends of network radio to be feted

CBS Radio said Friday (Sept. 6) it was setting new precedent for network at CBS Radio Affiliates Association convention in New York Oct. 1-2 by giving special recognition to advertising agencies role in "resurgence of network radio."

Acceptances for places of honor at Oct. 1 luncheon already have been received from S. Heagan Bayles, board chairman, Sullivan, Staffer, Colwell & Bayles; Edward L. Bond Jr., president of Young & Rubicam; Charles H. Brower, president of BBDO; Marion Harper Jr., chairman of board and president, Interepublic Inc.; William B. Lewis, board chairman of Kenyon & Eckhardt.

Dr. James M. Parker, a school medical officer, said many Glasgow school children are imitating the walk of TV cowboys hands permanently in the front pockets of their jeans. As a result, Dr. Parker said, the boys are getting rounded shoulders and this is becoming a permanent defect.

Texans to testify at Rogers hearing

Editorializing broadcasters from chairman's own congressional district will lead off House Communications Subcommittee editorializing hearing when it resumes Sept. 18.

Representative Walter Rogers (D-Tex.), chairman, conducted a week's hearing in June which was followed by FCC's issuance of controversial public notice on fairness (see page 68) (BROADCASTING, July 1).

Tentative witness list as of Friday (Sept. 6):

- Sept. 18: John S. Tyler, general manager, and Tom Martin, editorial director, KFDA-AM Amarillo, Tex.; Gerald H. Sanders, owner, KZNN Littlefield, Tex.; Leon Goldstein, American Civil Liberties Union and former program director, WMCA New York.
- Sept. 20: Harry M. Thayer, general manager, WOHO Kingston, N. Y.

Extension on comments

FCC has extended for two weeks deadline for comments on proposal to limit amount of time broadcasters can devote to commercials. Deadline for comments has been moved back from Sept. 16 to Sept. 30. New deadline for replies is Oct. 15, instead of Sept. 30.

Extension was granted as result of petition from Colorado Broadcasters Association. State association, however, asked for month's extension.

Festival buys Canadian firm

Festival Cinema Ltd. has purchased all assets and business of Film Laboratories of Canada Ltd., Toronto, according to announcement made last Friday.
Three new VP's named at NBC today

Three new vice presidents are to be elected today (Sept. 9) at NBC: Lawrence K. Grossman, advertising; Robert D. Kasmire, corporate information; Merrylee S. Rukeyser Jr., press and publicity.

Mr. Grossman joined NBC's advertising department in August 1962 after six years with CBS-TV as executive in advertising and sales promotion. Mr. Kasmire moved up to coordinator, corporate information, for NBC after having been coordinator of special projects in network's executive planning department, which he joined in 1959. Mr. Rukeyser has been with NBC's press unit since 1958, as staff writer, press editor, manager of business and trade publicity and as director of news information in Washington. He was named director, program publicity, year ago, and director of press and publicity last July.

British manufacturer backs NTSC color

Champion for U.S. color TV standards has spoken. Dudley Saward, managing director of England's Rank-Bush Murphy Ltd., radio-TV manufacturer, said it would be regarded by many as Europe's folly if any other color system than National Television System Committee's were chosen.

Speaking at London opening of exhibition of his company's products, Mr. Saward said that just when Britain was planning to adopt NTSC, two further systems had been thrown in and confused the issue. Other two systems are French SECAM and German PAL, both of which were demonstrated in July, together with NTSC system, to delegates of European Broadcasting Union (Broadcasting, Sept. 2).

Clearly comparisons had to be made, Mr. Saward said, but it was little hard to regard tests as strictly comparative since total transmitting and receiving experience with SECAM amounts to about year, and with PAL to only few months. NTSC standards, he pointed out, have been used in America for 10 years, and British engineers have had eight years of experience with it.

British television could be set back several years, Mr. Saward warned, by continued delay in choosing color TV system.

Slate urges editorialists; warns use of discretion

Sam J. Slate, CBS Radio vice president and general manager of WCBS New York, addressing West Virginia Broadcasters Association Friday (Sept. 6), urged radio stations to fulfill community responsibility by editorializing, but to do so with discrimination, wisdom and logic.

Mr. Slate called editorial function "vital," especially in smaller communities where public is subjected to limited amount of conflicting expression due to scarcity of editorial voices in print.

General manager of WCBS, station which has carried editorials for several years, referred to editorials on controversial community topics as "a force for good."

Program that flunked may take course again

Program that failed miserably first time around is going to get another chance—if its sponsor can raise more money.

Operation Alphabet, ETV series of 100 lessons, was shown five weeks locally on WTOP-TV and WETA-TV (educational outlet), both Washington, last July. School officials hoped at least 6,000 of city's 33,000 illiterates would attend viewings at 41 viewing centers, but response was so slim only 12 such centers continue to show programs.

District of Columbia adult education staff has asked Department of Health, Education & Welfare for $35,000 to continue program.

Increased dividend continued by RCA

RCA has declared quarterly dividend of 35 cents a share on common stock payable Oct. 28 to stockholders of record Sept. 20.

RCA board of directors raised quarterly payment from 25 to 35 cents March 1. At board meeting Friday (Sept. 6) RCA also declared cumulative first preferred stock dividend of 87$1/2 cents a share for Oct. 1-Dec. 31 period payable Jan. 2, 1964 to holders of record Dec. 16, 1963.

‘Face the Nation’ back on CBS

CBS’s Face the Nation, radio-TV news interview panel program missing from network schedule since January 1961, returns Sunday (Sept. 15, 12:30-1 p.m., EDT) with Senator J. W. Fulbright (D-Ark.), chairman of Senate Foreign Relations Committee, as panelist on premiere broadcast. Prentiss Childs and Ellen Wadley are producers for public affairs department of CBS News.

Former CBS-TV VP dies

Frank B. Falknor, 66, who retired in 1956 as vice president in charge of operations, CBS-TV, died Friday (Sept. 6) at his home in Boiceville, N. Y. Mr. Falknor joined WABC Chicago in 1933 and served also with WSMO St. Louis. He became CBS-TV's vice president in charge of operations in 1950. He leaves his widow, Jean Falknor, two daughters and a son.

Oil moves the finished products and raw materials that salesmen sell, and when trains, trucks, planes, ships and factories call for fuel—and more fuel—that is a sign of good business...a sign of good selling.

Good selling has never been so important to so many Americans as it is today...but America has never had a salesman quite like television...spot television.

The television stations represented by Peters, Griffin, Woodward are welcomed regularly into millions of American homes where they spend more than 5 hours each day entertaining, informing and selling...selling by demonstrating and displaying the goods and services that keep our economy rolling.

In SPOT TELEVISION the advertiser can specify the number, the timing and the type of his television salescalls in every market...and that is good selling!

We're burning all the old record books for business activity. Availability have been nearly SRO for first half of 1963. Reasons for our banner year: (1) audience knowledge that Channel 4 is WORTH WATCHING! (2) outstanding sales results for local and national advertisers (3) affiliation with CBS, a scorching good network. One more item: the Quad-Cities market. No cold potato, this one! Employment has just hit a new ten-year high, and business is terrific. Call Avery-Knodel, or Maurice Corken at WHBF-TV, Rock Island, Illinois.

Excellent story

Editor: ... we greatly appreciated the excellent story on our “quick cut” commercials produced for United Federal Savings of Des Moines (Broadcasting, July 29).—Edward LaGrave Jr., LaGrave Advertising Agency, Des Moines, Iowa.

‘Futility’ or ‘hypocrisy’?

Editor: In your editorial “Up in smoke” (Broadcasting, Aug. 12) you succumb to faulty thinking when you state that tobacco companies attempt to “articulate an impossible policy” when they try to appeal only to adult smokers.

There is another way to look at the matter. The companies could stop using copy that is obviously directed toward youth, as is the example cited. The fact that the word “adult” is used while actually plugging for young people is nothing more than sheer blather. In another day it would have been called “hypocrisy.” Today it may be called “futility” but it is still hypocrisy.

For some Broadcasting readers, cigarettes may not yet be proved guilty of causing health problems, as asserted by the editorial. But not for those who have checked with their doctors recently. The answer is clear to the vast majority of physicians around the world. That answer provides good reason why the tobacco companies should run scared.—Herbert Ford, public relations director, Southern California Conference of Seventh Day Adventists, Glendale, Calif.

Congratulations ... but

Editor: A bus transfer advertising project (Broadcasting, Aug. 19) along similar lines has been gestating in the files of CBS for some eight years. It was originated by the undersigned and turned over legally to CBS for an honorarium. I am not at liberty to give the details as I surrendered all rights, forever. But the CBS legal department is in a position to confirm the foregoing. Won Inc. is to be congratulated, but it is not the originator of the plan.—Leonard Traube, administrator, corporate projects, NBC, New York.

[The story stated that transfer advertising was not new and had been a practice in foreign countries for some time.]

A real ‘zinger’

Editor: From a grass roots up and at ‘em talk on local radio at a Kiwanis meeting in a small Georgia town of 9,000, to originating, organizing and successfully putting on the first Annual National Broadcast Editorial Conference, the Georgia Association of Broadcasters’ Jack Williams has “made the grade” with every broadcaster in the state. Jack not only has outdone every other spokesman in this industry, but he has done so in a manner that, in every case, has paid direct dividends to every member in the GAB. Top this off with the fact that, unlike the high salaried National Association of Broadcasters’ executives, Jack Williams literally promotes a large portion of his own income through personal appearances, etc., and you’ve got a real zinger for radio.

NAB’s Mr. Bell may “have the ball” (Broadcasting, Aug. 26), but if he looks at the scoreboard he may find that, as far as many broadcasters are concerned, the clock is running out ... NAB is behind ... and it’s fourth down and a hell of a long way to go ... all uphill! This industry needs organizations and men to promote broadcasting. We do not need to spend time and money promoting an organ of idealistic national strategy that is preoccupied with steering committees, advertising restrictions, etc., etc., all calculated to keep us in suspense.—Paul Rethling WPXM Fort Valley, Ga.

Comics need encouragement

Editor: Where have all the comics gone? Where will they come from?

The great ones are aging fast: Jimmy Durante, 75; Jack Benny, 70; George Burns, 68; Groucho Marx, 68, and even the young Bob Hope is over 60. In five years, where will they be? Who will be left to carry on the laughmaking? Red Skelton, Jackie Gleason, Phil Silvers, Danny Kaye—all will be over 50.

Where are the new ones? Probably learning their trade at the Gagwriters-Comedy Workshop in New York.

The workshop is not a school. It’s a humor exchange. And I think every radio and TV station should try to initiate a comedy development program like that [of] the workshop.

Every city has funny men—laughmakers, gagwriters—who need training. If properly encouraged they will develop. If not, they will disappear. Encouragement? All they want is to be heard—at least once. If they warrant encouragement, they should be encouraged. If they should be discouraged, discourage them. But radio and television are the training grounds for the future funnymen of America. The other outlets are fast disappearing. Radio and TV are the only outlets that operate seven days a week, that need constant material, that need new faces.

We’d like every radio and television individual who visits New York to attend our Gagwriters-Comedy Workshop meeting, every Tuesday and Thursday at 225 West 46th Street, so they can

SEASAC replies

Editor: SEASAC Inc. wishes to point out that it does not own the repertory which it licenses (Broadcasting, Sept. 3). It merely represents the performance, mechanical and synchronization rights assigned to it by the copyright owners whose music comprises the SEASAC repertory. Further, SEASAC's repertory is predominately American and only a small part is European.

SEASAC does not know what, if any, complaints Mr. Clarence Jones of WOZ St. George, S. C., has made to the senators and the federal agencies mentioned in your article. SEASAC has had no inquiries from anyone or any agency in this regard. However, SEASAC would welcome an investigation by any authority and is certain that, if such an investigation should take place, the persons and/or agencies making the investigation will be satisfied that SEASAC conducts and has conducted its business for 32 years in an ethical and legal manner.

Concerning Mr. Jones's station, the actual facts are that, after spot monitoring WOZ and ascertaining that it played, in violation of the copyright law, 17 compositions owned by publishers represented by SEASAC, penalties as provided in the copyright law of $4,250 could be assessed against the outlet. However, rather than employing the legal remedies that were available, SEASAC offered Mr. Jones the opportunity of settling his differences with SEASAC by the signing of a performance license which totaled $1,200 for five years. This is the standard rate charged other AM and FM stations similar to WOZ. SEASAC further offered to waive claim to all infringements. Mr. Jones accepted SEASAC's offer. SEASAC does not believe that this, as Mr. Jones charges, constitutes "tampering" with a federally licensed radio station or causing that station financial hardship.

Contrary to what Mr. Jones said, SEASAC is at all times ready and able to provide an accurate index card file of its compositions if and when any interested person visits SEASAC's offices at 10 Columbus Circle, New York. Moreover, SEASAC will promptly answer all inquiries concerning particular works regarding whether or not such works are in the SEASAC repertory. SEASAC also publishes a Schedule "A," which is a list of SEASAC publisher-affiliates, and will assist anyone in obtaining catalogs from its affiliates.—John Koshol Jr., assistant to the president, SEASAC Inc., 10 Columbus Circle, New York.

Harden is taller than Weaver—but their audience is the same size, which is what counts when you’re buying time in Washington.

When radio stopped being furniture, the illusion that it was dead became rife. Harden & Weaver didn’t bring radio back double-handedly. But they contributed. Now that radio is a personal companion instead of a piece of furniture, H&W are in there pitching, personal as all get out. In fact, if you’re not on H&W, your complete coverage of Washington radio is illusory. An illusion like the two lines illustrated. They’re the same length.
Radio's sound worth a thousand pictures?

A picture may be "worth a thousand words," but did you ever think that a "sound" could be "worth a thousand pictures?" Ridiculous? Not necessarily.

During the halcyon days of the radio soap opera, drama and thriller, if you had asked 1,000 listeners to describe the lumberyard office of Ma Perkins or the foreboding confines of the Inner Sanctum, chances are you would get about 1,000 different descriptions of each one.

Imagination Helps • To a broadcast advertiser, this imagination of the listener can be one of his most potent resources. It's no earth-shaking secret that people tend to identify themselves with radio situations based on their own past experience to a large degree. Sounds, words or music may suggest a picture to one person with which the next listener could no more identify than he could make that proverbial moon trip under his own steam.

It's also pretty generally accepted that most of us feel more at ease and at home in familiar surroundings than we do in strange ones. We are more prone to believe information given us by a friend than that which we get from a total stranger. These things all work to the advantage of a broadcast advertiser when the listener can put himself in his own "familiar" surroundings via his imagination.

The Unspoken Message • In 60 seconds, we surely can't go into any detailed descriptions or lengthy dissertations to "paint" a picture for even one listener, let alone thousands. It would take an hour or more to even begin. However, through the proper selection of music, instruments, artists, sounds and arrangements, a great deal can be accomplished without actually "saying" anything.

A short time ago, the Southern California Broadcasters Association presented the Garland Agency with the "Sunny Sound Award" for a radio jingle produced for one of our clients, the Del E. Webb Corporation. Specifically, it was for "radio commercial excellence, a major contribution to the sunny sound of Southern California Radio." The subject matter was the Del Webb retirement community, Sun City, and with an "edge" like that in this category (sunny sounds), it must have almost put us at the finish line to start with.

The "sunny sound," however, incorporated a number of things we wanted to get across, without using up valuable words to do it. Right here, let me say that Vick Knight and Bob Bane of Adventures deserve the kudos for actually producing this spot. They came up with precisely what we wanted and it certainly did the intended job.

Specific Target • Since the age limitation alone reduces our primary market to about 23% of the population, it's even more necessary to do a thorough sales job. Because happiness and pleasant associations are basic benefits offered by the particular product involved, this sort of climate had to be transmitted. The spot also had to be tailored specifically to this small segment of the market.

Studies had shown that the Lawrence Welk show was quite popular with this segment of the market. Hence, in order to identify with this and at the same time use a "voice" which is distinctive and well known to our market, the deep bass voice of Larry Hooper was used. Prominently backing the vocalist was a banjo, an instrument commonly associated with "the good old days," barber shop quartets and nickel beer. The tempo was upbeat and "happy." All in all, this "setting" for the actual song lyrics and spoken commercial was designed to recall pleasant memories and situations without specifically stating so through descriptive words and phrases. Judging from the reaction to this spot in the form of traffic and sales, it was pretty much on target.

The Right Climate • The ingredients for the proper setting become all the more important when we realize that it's usually unwise to try to make too many different sales points in the actual copy or lyrics. Therefore, the more things we can impart through the overall "climate" of the spot, the better off we'll be—saving those valuable words for the points which really demand them.

The correct placement of such a message on a station or in programing, which also tends to transmit this same general "climate," can lend even more mileage to the spot wherever this is possible.

The public today is probably more cynical about advertising than it has ever been. Consequently, confidence and believability are more important. Everything which can be done to promote this believability takes us one step closer to a sale, and in the long run gives us that extra impact so vital to a successful campaign.

Certainly, many of the things stated here are not news to most broadcasters or mature agency personnel and advertisers. However, it's often easy to get so deep into a problem that some of radio's most obvious advantages can be overlooked. The advent of television has had something of a tendency to color our thinking about broadcast media in general. A football game on television does not require nearly as much verbal comment as a game on radio only. The point is, when we get used to having a picture displayed before us which requires little or no strain on the imagination, we can begin to forget what a truly powerful force imagination can be.

The obvious advantages of a television picture and its impact on a viewer are undeniable and well recognized. The purpose of this MONDAY MEMO is simply to ask ourselves if we are taking full advantage of the inherent resources of radio when we use it. In the realm of creating a mood or a "climate" on radio, a thought now and then about the way it was done when sounds were the only things broadcast can often put us on the right track.

Prior to that time, Mr. Barnett spent two years with Independent Television Corp. and for five years was associated with The Katz Agency. BROADCASTING, September 9, 1963
FALL TV FORECAST: BRISK BUSINESS

Eight of ten stations ahead of last September, survey shows
Representatives agree on fall spot totals, see record for year
Minutes in prime or fringe time are again in short supply

Television stations appeared almost uniformly last week to be sharing the benefits of exceptionally brisk fall spot TV business.

Almost eight out of every ten stations responding to a BROADCASTING survey said their current spot volume exceeds last September’s, and more than nine out of ten said they are at least even with last September.

This September’s performance, with less than one station in ten reporting drop-offs from a year ago, was considered unusually strong in view of the high level of business last September.

At that time 80% of the respondents said business was up by increments ranging from 4 to 40% over September 1961’s (BROADCASTING, Sept. 10, 1962).

A supplemental study among leading station representatives last week found them no less bullish than the stations. Almost without exception, those responding told BROADCASTING their business is up for September and for the year to date—and ought to be up significantly for the full year.

It was emphasized by the reps and evident from the station questionnaires, however, that although most stations are enjoying higher levels of business than last year, this is not a unanimous situation. Sales executives stressed that business always varies from market to market and often from station to station within markets, frequently for no easily accountable reason.

Sometimes there are regional variations. In the current study business seemed especially bustling in the Southwest and West.

Range Of Gains • Among stations estimating the extent of current gains, the average was 18% on a range extending from 4 to 45%. Last year it was 15 on the 4-to-40% range.

The 6% who reported current business lagging behind last September’s represented a sharp reduction from the 13% who reported drop-offs in last fall’s study. The number reporting business holding even with its year-ago levels was up equally sharply, from 7% last September to 18% of this fall’s respondents.

Among those reporting a decline, the number estimating its extent was too low to permit meaningful averages, but the range was for 12 to 20%. A year ago it was from 4 to 30%.

Traced Order Flow • The survey, one in a continuing series by BROADCASTING, in effect traced the flow of spot orders that earlier studies had shown to be moving out of agency offices at a pace to set new records (BROADCASTING, Aug. 12).

It found a majority of stations not only enjoying gains in current business but also getting fall schedules lined up more quickly and more solidly than usual, and generally expecting their 1963 volume to exceed 1962’s.

The survey, like more of its predecessors in the series, found one-minute availabilities in short supply on many stations, particularly in fringe and prime periods. Good 20-second positions were also reported hard to find on some stations, through far less frequently than good 60’s.

Advertisers and agencies were said to be continuing to call for 60-second availabilities primarily—often, it appeared, while good 20 and 10-second positions go begging.

The reports of September gains came from 76% of the station respondents. These were fairly evenly distributed among markets of all sizes, but came a little more heavily from those in the medium-size range. About 80% of the respondents from these markets indicated increases, as against 71% of those in the biggest markets and 75% in the smallest.

Reports of September declines, totaling 6% of all returns, came chiefly from the small and medium-sized markets. Exactly half of the declines were attributed to the arrival of new stations in those markets within the last year. Some of these broadcasters said total spot business in their markets is up, even though their own share is off.

In volunteered comments as well as their percentage estimates, the stations reflected optimism both for the rest of the fall season and for the full year 1963.

One broadcaster said that although his business was lagging a little now, he anticipated a 3% increase in full-year volume. Another, on the crest of a

Will 1963 spot TV total $808 million?

Spot television sales in September 1963, surpassing in almost every instance those of the same month a year ago, indicate strongly that the medium is heading toward new records for the final three months as well as for the entire year.

A BROADCASTING survey (see story above) showed that eight of ten TV stations have booked more spot sales for September than they had for the same month in 1962. A check of leading station representatives verifies this report. Only 6% of stations replying to the survey reported business behind that of a year ago.

In 1962 the Television Bureau of Advertising reported third-quarter spot television increases of 17% over the previous year, from $127 million to $152 million. In the fourth quarter the increase was 11.2%, from $178 million to $198 million.

If 1963 fourth quarter spot TV billings increase as predicted and the total gain equals that of a year ago totals may be expected to be in the neighborhood of $232 million for the three months.

Spot TV billings for 1962 were $721 million according to TVB-Rorabaugh reports.

According to BROADCASTING’s survey, stations predict a gain of 12% in total spot billings for 1963 over those a year earlier. If this forecast proves accurate spot television billings for 1963 should reach a total of around $808 million for the entire year.
41% increase in September sales, looked forward to “new records” for the year.

In between these extremes were numerous forecasts of 8, 10, 12, 15 and 25% increases for the year, plus such general descriptions of the outlook as “quite a lot better than last year,” “substantially better,” “excellent,” “hopeful,” “slightly better,” “good as ever,” “greatly improved,” “good” and “great.”

Early Network Kickoffs = Several stations noted that fall spot business is getting underway earlier this year than usual, largely because of the earlier kickoff dates for the TV networks’ new fall programming (BROADCASTING, Aug. 12).

“The fourth quarter looks more active at this time than it did a year ago,” said one station executive. “The final quarter should be equal to any in previous years. Activity in August seems more rapid-paced than any August to date.”

Similarly optimistic reports came from leading station representation firms. Approximately 95% of those answering the survey anticipated overall gains for the year, and the rest expected to hold even with 1962.

On the average, the companies forecast increases of about 12% in spot TV volume for the year. Individually the predictions ranged from 8% to about 17.5% above 1962 levels.

Their reports on September business also averaged out to about a 12% increase above last September levels, but the range extended from a low of about 7% to a high of 20%.

Like the stations, the reps reported 60-second positions in shortest supply among stations and greatest demand among advertisers, with 20-second availabilities second—but far behind minutes—in both scarcity and demand.

Some reps voiced concern with what they said is a tendency of a number of advertisers and agencies to concentrate 20-second chainbreak purchases on CBS-TV affiliates and to ignore similar possibilities on ABC-TV and NBC-TV affiliates. They attributed this tendency to CBS-TV’s high score in last season’s sweeps.

In stressing the market-to-market and (station-to-station) nature of billing gains and losses, the reps asserted that local economic conditions, seasonal fluctuations and other factors—some of which have never been clearly defined—can individually and collectively influence station business at any time.

One felt that in reporting gains and losses a distinction should be drawn between older, well-established stations and those that are newer and still growing. On his own list, he said, the established stations are averaging about 7 to 10% more business now than a year ago, while the younger, still-growing stations are averaging 20 to 25%.

$4.5 million toy account goes to D-F-S

Toy manufacturer DeLuxe Reading Corp., a subsidiary of Philadelphia and Reading Corp. and a heavy TV user, last week announced Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample, New York, as its new advertising agency. Lowe Co., New York, formerly handled the Elizabeth, N. J., account.

Most of the DeLuxe Reading billing—estimated at about $4.5 million in 1962—is in television, which D-F-S said last week is again playing an important role in its advertising this year. The appointment of D-F-S becomes effective on Jan. 1, 1964.

The agency noted that DeLuxe Reading will increase its advertising in line with a marketing expansion—previously the toy line had been sold only through food markets but now the company will move into “conventional toy marketing channels.”

For D-F-S, the DeLuxe Reading account gain is the third major client acquired in the past few months: Noxzema Chemical Co. (men’s line, skin lotion and two new products) and the multimillion dollar Gold Medal Wonder flour line.

Fall seminar series planned by IRTS

Plans for the International Radio & Television Society’s fall Time Buying and Selling Seminar series have been formulated by committee members, shown here meeting on the Hudson River aboard the yacht “Encore.” The first seminar is tentatively scheduled for Oct. 29 and the 5:30-7 p.m. sessions will continue for eight weeks. The committee is led by “Encore’s” owner/skipper, Al B. Petgen (extreme left, back row), director of client relations, American Research Bureau. Other committee members are (l-r, back row): Erwin Ephron, IRTS’s board adviser to the TB&SS committee and director of press relations, A. C. Nielsen Co.; William McDonald, account executive, A. C. Nielsen Co.; Miss Helen Davis, media supervisor, J. Walter Thompson Co.; Miss Clara Stokes, administrative assistant, American Research Bureau. Front row (l-r): Sam Schneider, WLW Cincinnati sales manager, eastern division, Crosley Broadcasting Corp.; Harold Medén, Franznick-Medén Inc.; Stanley Newman, vice president and director of media, Hicks & Greist Inc.; Lionel Shane, account executive, Harrington, Righter & Parsons; Martin Mills, director research, promotion, The Meeker Co.
ALL 8 IOWA METRO AREAS, COMBINED, account for only 59.1% of DRUG SALES in "Iowa Plus"

It's entirely possible that 100% of your actual shipments into "Iowa Plus" are made to distributors in Iowa's 8 metro areas — but don't forget that these 8 areas, combined, account for only 59.1% of consumers' drug purchases in these 117 counties.*

The Des Moines metro area, for example, accounts for 16.9% of retail drug sales. This is of course important, but it leaves 42.2% to be divided among 7 other metro areas — and another 40.9% from outside any Iowa metro area!*

WHO Radio covers 5 of Iowa's 8 metro areas — covers 808,480 radio homes in "Iowa Plus" — has daily listenership in 239,000 homes (more than all five other radio stations in Des Moines combined, far more than any other station in the state).

In fact, only 22 other radio markets in America contain more people than WHO Radio's NCS '61. Ask PGW for all the spectacular facts.

*These figures are for Sales Management's newly-defined and frequently larger metro areas, as found in the 1963 Survey of Buying Power Issue.

RAB conferences have new look

FCC OR GOVERNMENT OBSERVERS WILL BE AT EACH SESSION

This year's Radio Advertising Bureau management conferences—the first is to be held today (Monday) at The Homestead in Hot Springs, Va.—contain at least three departures from the format used in the eight years the annual meetings have run.

One of these features is the presence at most conferences of an FCC commissioner or other government official as an invited observer (CLOSED CIRCUIT, Sept. 2, Aug. 5). FCC Commissioner Kenneth A. Cox is expected to attend today's opener. Also expected is Charles A. Sweeney, of the Federal Trade Commission staff, speaking on the "Use of Ratings in Selling Radio."

A third innovation is talks on radio slated at most meetings by top advertising agency executives. Henry Renfro, vice president and radio-TV media director of D'Arcy Advertising, St. Louis, is scheduled to appear at today's conference.

Edmund C. Bunker, RAB president, noted that advance registration to the series of eight management conferences was running 25% ahead of last year.

The conferences are held for the information of top station management on sales and operating trends as well as other workshop ideas of economic value. Subjects covered will range from automation to sales incentive plans, including case histories.

Agency Talks • From agency executives RAB expects conferees will learn what individual radio stations can do to help agencies use radio in a better way and what station managers should know about agency attitudes on radio.

Mr. Bunker said the inclusion of FCC members would not alter the format of the management conferences, and though an observer, the commissioner also would be given an opportunity to make a brief address or participate in the question-and-answer sessions.

Mr. Sweeney, who is chief of the Food and Drug Division of the FTC, is expected to describe the limitations on the use of ratings and explain how radio stations can properly qualify the use of ratings in selling time.

On two later programs, E. L. Richardson, former staff attorney and investigator for the House Special Subcommittee on Investigations, is expected to pinpoint his talk on what station managers can do to check the validity of radio audience measurements until the time that an industry audit of ratings is available.

RAB officials said that current plans are to tape Mr. Sweeney's and Mr. Richardson's talks for probable playback at conferences where the officials are not on the program.

Workshop sessions will be conducted for RAB by Mr. Bunker and Miles David, administrative vice president; Robert H. Alter, vice president and director of national sales; Richard Chalmers, director of member development; and Keith Tranlow, director of member service.

Speakers and observers at the RAB management conferences other than today's:

Burke Dowling Adams, president of the agency of that name, is the speaker, and Rosel H. Hyde of the FCC, the observer, at the Sept. 12-13 conference at the Hilton Inn, Atlanta. Clay Stephenson, president of the agency bearing his name, and Mr. Richardson are the top-line speakers and FCC's Robert T. Bartley, the observer, listed for Sept. 16-17 at the Holiday Inn-Central in Dallas.

Leslie D. Farnath, vice president, media, N. W. Ayer & Sons, will speak, and Frederick W. Ford of the FCC, will be the observer, at the Sept. 23-24 Saratoga Springs, N. Y., meeting at the Gideon-Putnam. The Chicago meeting on Sept. 30-Oct. 1 has Mr. Richardson speaking, and Representative William Springer (R-Ill.), member of the House investigations subcommittee, observing.

Walter Guild, president of Guild, Bascom & Bonfigli, will speak, and FCC's Lee Loewinger will observe, at the Oct. 3-4 meeting at Rickey's Hyatt House hotel in Palo Alto, Calif. Set for the Oct. 7-8 Town House motor hotel meeting in Omaha is William L. Sandborn, president of Winius-Brandon, as the speaker, but no government observer is listed.

Kenneth G. Manuel, president of D. P. Brother, is speaker, and Robert E. Lee of the FCC, is the observer at the Oct. 14-15 Executive Inn meeting in Detroit.

Radio Advertising Bureau officials as they prepared for the fall circuit (l to r): Richard Chalmers, director of member development; Keith Tranlow, director of member service; Robert H. Alter, vice president and director of national sales; Miles David, administrative vice president, and Edmund C. Bunker, president. The series of meetings will offer a number of innovations this year. Among these were scheduled appearances of FCC commissioners or other government officials in the role of observers and talks at the meetings by advertising agency executives.

Uniform rules sought for liquor advertising

Uniform regulations to correct the "hodge-podge" of conflicting state controls on the advertising of alcoholic beverages in newspapers and magazines were recommended last week by a committee of state liquor control administrators meeting in Washington.

The recommendations of the Joint Committee of States to Study Alcoholic Beverage Laws are very similar to existing regulations, according to Roger V. Laynor, committee chairman. They cover liquor, wine and beer advertising in magazines and newspapers only and are not concerned with radio or TV advertising. Studies of the broadcast media may be undertaken by the committee in the future, Mr. Laynor said.

Charles W. Bryant, former member of the Washington state control board and chief author of last week's report, expressed the hope that most states will adopt the uniform regulations. Five states already have them in force and 11 more are in the process of adopting them, he said.

Uniform regulations are expected to channel more alcoholic beverage advertising into local newspapers, Mr. Bryant said. In 1961, the industry spent $58.5 million in newspaper advertising. The joint committee is composed of members of two national liquor control associations—the National Conference of State Liquor Administrators and the National Alcoholic Beverage Control Association.

Bolling brochure planned as agency aid

The Bolling Co. said last week it is planning to compile information in brochure form from which advertising agencies can extract data for the programming of automated data processing units.

Edward R. Eadeh, director of sales and research for the station representation firm, said a questionnaire had been designed to facilitate compilation of station and market data after first surveying agencies and determining the data in which agencies are most interested.

G. Richard Swift, president of Bolling's television division, said agencies expected to considerably expand automatic processing of data for selection of media in the future.

CORE says P&G in accord on talent

Procter & Gamble Co., the nation's top TV advertiser, is expected to adopt a stance already assumed by two other big TV spenders, Colgate-Palmolive Co. and Lever Brothers, and start using talent in P&G commercials.

Clarence Funney, New York area director of the Congress of Racial Equality, last week said that P&G, in response to a CORE letter, said its views on integrated talent in advertising coincided closely with those of CORE. A meeting between CORE and P&G officials is being arranged, he said.

Several weeks ago Lever Brothers unveiled commercials in which a Negro youngster appears, and last week a spokesman for Colgate confirmed reports that two of its commercials—one for Fab and another for Soaky—will utilize Negro talent "in a natural, realistic manner."

To speed up its project, CORE has sent letters to 20 top TV advertisers, including General Foods, P. Lorillard & Co. and Bristol-Myers, inviting them to send a representative to a Sept. 24 meeting in New York with officials of CORE. The purpose is to receive assurance from these companies in "one fell swoop" of a policy of integrated talent utilization, Mr. Funney said.

$8 million signed for 'Today-Tonight'

A rapid selling pace at NBC-TV in participations in the network's Today and Tonight shows has accounted for over $8 million worth of billings during the month of August.

William F. Storke, director, participating program sales, said last week it had been one of the most active summer months ever for the sales division. The 13 advertisers contributing to the $8 million figure were Kitchens of Sara Lee through Foote, Cone & Belding; F&F labs through Lilliefield & Co.; Borg Warner Corp. through Edward H. Weiss, Morton Manufacturing through Lawrence C. Gumbinner; Rexall Drug & Chemical through BBDO; Helena Rubenstein through Ogilvy, Benson & Mather; Cameo Inc. through Shaller-Rubin; Florida Development Commission through Louis Benoit; F. E. Compton & Co. through Taham-Laird; Duffy-Mott through Sullivan Stauffer, Colwell & Bayles; Eastern Air Lines through Fletcher Richards, Calkins & Holden; Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing through MacManus, John & Adams; American Cyanamid through Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample; The Gildeen Co. through Meldrum & Fewsmitth, and Savings & Loan Foundation through McCann-Erickson.

Orange commercials to stress all-juice theme

The Florida Citrus Commission’s advertising plans for the new season were virtually completed last week in Lakeland, Fla., as members of the state group gave substantial endorsement to budget, media and copy plans outlined by its agency, Campbell-Ewald, Detroit.

Formal approval on all counts is all but assured at the regular September meeting set for Sept. 11. Last week’s session was an advertising committee meeting, though all 12 commissioners sat in.

The orange advertising will have a new look and a new sound when it is kicked off in November, with much of the TV, radio and print message built around a new “O-J” trademark which will serve as a symbol for all pure orange juice products. Steps to copyright the trademark—which includes the words “The Real Thing from Florida”—already have been taken by the commission’s attorney.

Ken Jones, creative director for C-E, called the “O-J” symbol the key to the orange ad program and “a highly identifiable way of positioning your product.” With a shortage of orange juice due to last winter’s destructive freeze, the genuine product is facing sharp competition from various drinks, ades and synthetics, many containing little or no orange juice.

Mr. Jones
Promote the real thing

The proposed budget of nearly $3.3 million is split pretty much down the middle between print (magazines and supplements) and TV-radio. There is an uncommitted reserve of about $200,000, and $500,000 was allocated earlier for the summer-fall campaign now ending, making an overall total of $4 million for the 1963-64 fiscal year.

Dodge heavy TV spender for new car campaign

Chrysler Corp.’s Dodge is concentrating its pre-announcement consumer campaign in television this year because TV’s “live dimensions” make it closest to actually viewing and driving the new cars, it was explained Thursday by A. C. Thomson, Dodge manager of advertising.

The Dodge pre-announcement drive runs for eight days in 50 major markets starting Sept. 12 using 10-second musical teaser spots. One-third of these are in color. Dodge agency is BBDO, Detroit.

Noting that the Dodge public debut date of Sept. 20 marks the car’s golden anniversary year, Mr. Thomson said that the teaser drive is concentrated in television because “there is renewed youth and family interest in TV programming after Labor Day.”

Dodge also has purchased “the largest scatter-plan of major network television shows we have ever scheduled,” Mr. Thomson said, with the program list spanning the schedules of all three networks. Minute TV spots were bought in top markets for late evening fringe-time exposure last week and the week of Oct. 4 with frequencies running from 15 to 30 a week, he said. The Dodge schedule also includes more than 2,500 daily and weekly newspapers.

CBS Radio issues new rate card

CBS Radio last week announced the mailing of a new rate card (No. 40) to advertisers and their agencies. It is effective Sept. 15.

The new rates, which George J. Arkedis, vice president, network sales, described as nominal upward adjustments in both nighttime and daytime classifications, are the first formal changes in two years. He said current network advertisers would obtain the usual six months’ protection.

Mr. Arkedis noted that network “performance” is at an eight-year high, reflecting advertiser recognition of radio’s vast circulation. He also saw the current upward sales trend at CBS Radio continuing into 1964 on the basis of next year’s first-quarter sales indications.

In the new change, the daytime period will be extended from 6 p.m. to 6:30 p.m., seven days a week. In the daytime, new rates generally average 7% higher for five minute and two-and-one-half minute units, depending on the number of units purchased weekly and consecutively. On this same basis, nighttime rates generally will be 10% higher.

Simmons plans enlarged selective, mass surveys

W. R. Simmons & Associates Research Inc. reported plans last week for two studies which will measure audiences of network television and magazine readership.

The research firm will prepare studies of selective and mass markets, the latter measuring cumulative audiences of 10 magazines and all daytime and evening TV network programs during January 1964.

The selective market study to be conducted during October of this year will have a sample base increased by 20% over the base used for the most recent Simmons study (Broadcasting, Aug. 5) to 15,000 individuals in 6,000 households.

Single program and single issue audience measurements will make use of the combined sample of both studies providing a base of 9,000 households and 22,000 interviews.

The Simmons firm reported that over 50 advertisers, agencies and publishers would be subscribing to the reports.

RCA announces its ‘biggest’ ad campaign

RCA Sales Corp. last week previewed for newsmen in New York its advertising plans for the fall in support of the 1964 RCA Victor line.

RCA officials referred to the campaign as the “biggest” and “most spectacular” not only for RCA but for any segment of the home entertainment industry preparing for a fall season.

The effort starts Sept. 29 with an RCA Victor Week promotion launched by an eight-page, multi-color, rotogravure insert; network TV (Walt Disney’s Wonderful World of Color on NBC-TV); spot radio-TV (backed by dealer-distributor co-op advertising), magazines and other national media.

Jack M. Williams, vice president, advertising and sales promotion, said the RCA plans were designed to continue the manufacturer’s “extremely favorable

ARF plans research study at conference

Audience research will be put into the spotlight again on Oct. 1 when the Advertising Research Foundation holds its ninth annual conference in New York.

A panel on "The Case for Complete Analysis of Audience Services" is scheduled for the morning session along with a Stanley ARF policy on audience measurement problems, according to program plans announced last week.

Lyndon O. Brown of Dancer-Fitzgerald-Sample, chairman of the ARF board, will make the presentation of ARF policy.

The afternoon session will examine a number of "crucial" advertising research problems, including the question, "Have Computers Lived Up to Their Promises for Media Selection?"

Stanley Canter of Oglivy, Benson & Mather will undertake to answer that question.

The all-day meeting will be held at New York's Hotel Commodore.

TWA buys FM program in five markets

Trans-World Airlines, through Foote, Cone & Belding, has signed for FM program sponsorship in five major markets, Gene Labrie, vice president of the Concert Network, announced in New York last week.

The 55-minute program will run weekly in the markets, Mr. LaBrie who put the sales package together said, adding that the program will have started in all five markets by this week.

Stations are WCN(FM) New York, WBCN(FM) Boston, WFMT(FM) Chicago, KSFR(FM) San Francisco and KFMI(FM) Los Angeles. The series has been produced for TWA by Stephen Hirsch and Mr. LaBrie is the executive producer. Frank Waldecker is host on the "good music" series.

"a mammoth and magnificent study"

Last Monday night, NBC presented a three-hour television special on the urgent issue of civil rights. It was called "The American Revolution of '63." This three-hour presentation in prime time—broadcast by 171 NBC television stations—was made possible through cancellation of an entire evening's commercial programming. This was an unprecedented step, but it turned out to be more than justified; for the ovation that followed this NBC News Special, produced by Chet Hagan and Robert Northshield, and narrated by Frank McGee, was one of the most overwhelming and most gratifying tributes any television program has ever received. The quoted excerpts adjacent are from comments by newspaper critics as well as major executives of NBC affiliated stations from coast to coast.

Tonight...another major NBC News event: the premiere of the new, expanded Huntley-Brinkley Report.

STATION FREEDOM IS NAB’S AIM

Collins cautions broadcasters of their own shortcomings

Simply stated, the primary mission of the National Association of Broadcasters is to help the individual station to be free, NAB President LeRoy Collins told the Arkansas Broadcasters Association Saturday (Sept. 7).

Today, he said, the individual broadcaster is hog-tied in varying degrees by three forces—the government, outside influences and the broadcaster himself.

“He lives under a Communications Act—hoary in obsolescence—that fixes in the FCC a strange and inefficient commingling of legislative authority, judicial power and executive control,” Governor Collins said. “The result may prove to be a boon to Washington lawyers, but it is nightmarish and frightening to most broadcasters.

“The broadcaster has allowed, for much too long, ratings services of clearly questionable dependable services to influence strongly what he has programmed. . . . To advertisers and their representatives, broadcasters in the past have yielded far too much of their own rightful responsibility.”

Additionally, he said, broadcasters become prisoners of themselves. They can lose their freedom by a slavish devotion to the status quo; an unwillingness to make common effort; by allowing private profit motive to dominate their aspirations and by failing to find new and better ways to serve the public, the NAB president said.

The national association is moving with “marked success” in aiding the broadcaster to become master of his own house, Governor Collins maintained. As an example, he said he was “extremely proud” of the work of the NAB Research Committee and of the work of the codes. “It is my hope that the time will soon come when the public, itself, feels such a deep interest [in the codes] that any broadcaster will feel uncomfortable outside their fold . . . .”

Challenges To Be Met — There are many challenges before the industry which are not being adequately met, he said. For example, he noted, if “some sound additional efforts” are not made to improve advertising practices the government probably will move in with repressive measures. Governor Collins sought a meeting with the networks on TV advertising but was turned down (BROADCASTING, Aug. 26). The problems in this area, he said, are quality of announcements and number of program interruptions.

The NAB firmly believes in state associations and, “we want to see them grow stronger,” he said. “We want to help them in their programs.” To accomplish this, Governor Collins told the Arkansas broadcasters that the NAB plans to add a new staff position for a continuing liaison between the NAB.

The average broadcast employee is 35 years old, has worked in the industry for about 10 years and earns $6,500 if he works in radio, $8,700 in television.

These are a few of the facts assembled by Professor Glenn Starlin of the University of Oregon in an article, published in the Journal of Broadcasting, which reports on the findings of questionnaires returned by nearly 1,900 broadcast employees. The questionnaires were sent out as a part of a study jointly sponsored by the Association for Professional Broadcasting Education and the National Association of Broadcasters.

The study also showed that 50% of television employees and 25% of radio workers had college degrees. Of those returning the questionnaires, between 60% and 70% had attended college, and 95% had finished high school.

Dirty Capitalist

You can't farm without dirt. Ditto $. If you're interested in becoming a corn-raising dirty capitalist, figure on $300 to $400 per acre for good Eastern Iowa dirt. Add cost of home, barn and other farm buildings, to taste. Major equipment will include about $6,000 for a diesel tractor, $2,500 to $5,000 for a combine, and at least $3,000 for a picker-sheller. Miscellany: tandem disk, $750; plow, $900; cornstalk cutter, $500; tv set, $140.*

Capital investment in the average farm in WMTland is around $45,000. Many run more than $200,000.

Is it worth it? Iowa's 173,000 commercial farms annually produce $2.2 billion in gross product, an average of about $13,000. Farming is big business in Iowa.

So's business. Total personal income from non-agricultural activities in 1961 exceeded $4.9 billion.

*Sets in WMT-TV coverage area at last count (NCS '61): 342,360. Area includes 60% of Iowa's population and purchasing power, and three of Iowa's six largest population centers—Cedar Rapids, Waterloo and Dubuque.

'Duffy ain't here,' but Archie lives on

The Hollywood Museum is far from a reality—ground-breaking is not scheduled until October—but it has already begun serving the broadcasting business and the public.

When word of Ed Gardner's death reached KNX Los Angeles the evening of Aug. 19, Mike Roy, who handles the 10 p.m. newscast, thought it would be nice if he could use a segment of an old Duffy's Tavern show in his program. He checked with Harfield Weedin, KNX program director, who is also chairman of the radio acquisitions committee of the museum. Mr. Weedin called Martin Halperin, the museum's radio curator, reaching him at home, where he has a notable collection of off-the-air and off-the-line recordings of radio programs. Mr. Halperin said "of course." By the time the car sent from KNX had arrived he had dubbed one of the classic Duffy's Tavern openings—"Duffy's Tavern, where the elite meet to eat. Archie the manager speakin', Duffy ain't here."—which reached KNX in time for the newscast.

"We hope other broadcasters will call on us and that we'll be able to do as much for them," Mr. Halperin told BROADCASTING. "Let them know we're ready to help without waiting for our building to be finished," he added.

and all state associations (CLOSED CIRCUIT, Sept. 2).

He said the NAB expects dissent and disagreement with its programs but made no specific mention of the current NAB juridicial dispute with the Georgia Association of Broadcasters (BROADCASTING, Sept. 2, Aug. 26).

"Forward progress nearly always involves struggle," he said.

D.C. broadcasters welcome foreign visitors

A reception for 13 foreign broadcasters, who are spending 100 days in the U. S., was held last Thursday (Sept. 5) at the Broadcasters Club of Washington.

The group, under State Department sponsorship, is attending seminars and social functions in Washington and then will go to Syracuse University, Syracuse, N. Y., for six weeks of study. The broadcasters then will split for visits to stations all over the country.

Attending the reception were: Gabrielle Francis, program director, Radio Trinidad and Voice of Rediffusion; Hugh N. J. Cholmondeley, senior announcer of public affairs, British Guiana Broadcasting Service; Krystian Barcz, news editor, Warsaw TV; Raul Aicardi Larenas, director, audiovisual department, University of Chile; Samuel J. D. Nwaneri, controller, Nigeria Broadcasting eastern region; Sani Mahammadu Kontagora, program adviser, Nigeria Broadcasting northern region; Christopher O. Kolade, controller, Nigeria Broadcasting western region.

Romulo O'Farrell-Avila, coordinator, production and sales, Telesistema de Mexico; Juan Harvey Caycedo Peres, chief of production, TV Films Ltd., Colombia, (government-owned); Zvi Gill, head of news and newsreel section, Kol Israel Broadcasting Station; Ali M. Abyad, executive, Yemen Arab Republic Radio Communications (also named to establish government communications network); Mrs. Ali-D-Ramzi, producer and director of women's programs, Iran TV (privately-owned), and Arto Lauri Toivola, assistant editor, Finnish TV.

Government officials in attendance included: Andrew Hatcher, presidential associate news secretary; Richard Philips, director of news for public affairs, State Department; Alan Carter, director of TV service, USIA. Embassy officials also attended.

On Thursday (Sept. 12), the Broadcasters Club will hold a reception for FCC Commissioner Lee Loewinger.

Changing hands

ANNOUNCED • The following sales of station interests was reported last week subject to FCC approval (for other commission activities see FOR THE RECORD, page 105).

• KIRO-AM-FM-TV Seattle, Wash.: 50.21% sold by Saul Haas to Wasatch Radio & Television Co. for $5,095,000 (CLOSED CIRCUIT, June 24, April 15).

Wasatch Radio & Television Co. is arm of the Church of Latter Day Saints (Mormon), which owns or has interests in KSL-AM-FM-TV Salt Lake City; KID-AM-FM-TV Boise, both Idaho, and international shortwave station WRUL Scituate, Mass. Transaction also includes 10-year employment contract with Mr. Haas, at least four years of which he will be chairman of the board at $25,000 yearly. Since last April, the Mormon Church has been acquiring interests from minority stockholders, including Senator Warren G. Magnuson.

MAKE PROVISION FOR RADIO-TV

Study recommends audio-visual plant for culture center

A study prepared for the trustees of the National Cultural Center strongly recommends that a comprehensive communications program be included in the planning for the $30-million center that is to be built by public subscription in Washington.

The study prepared for the Telecommunications Center of Ohio State University, says if the center is to be truly national in scope, it must be designed and equipped so that television, radio and other audio-visual facilities "can bring its resources to the United States and the world."

It recommends that the center include an elaborate plant, including permanent equipment for radio, television, recording and motion pictures, with a resident staff to operate it.

However, the study proposes this as the final phase in a five-step development program that could be launched by providing the center with the capacity for "minimum and occasional use" of audio-visual equipment.

Total Cost - Total cost for all five phases, according to figures in the report, would be $4,112,000, plus $270,000 annually for staff. The study says the center could halt the program at any phase. But it says the center should eventually proceed to phase five — for "only with such a permanent facility can the educational establishment and the American public fully realize the benefits available in years to come from the center."

The study, which has not yet been considered by the trustees, acknowledges that the recommendations may be construed to "be a drastic departure from previous general plans." But it adds that the experience of other performing centers makes it clear that some filming, tape recording and broadcasting "is inevitable."

The center, which "will have the finest artists of America and the world appearing on its stages," will provide "an unparalleled resource of talent reflecting many facets of culture," the study says.

It adds that these talents can be shared with millions in this country and throughout the world, "at only slight additional cost," through the new...
Broadcaster participation sought by NAB

Relationships of broadcasters with the public and the federal government will play a prominent role in the annual series of fall conferences to be held by the National Association of Broadcasters. The eight one-and-one-half day conferences will begin Oct. 14-15 at the Statler-Hilton hotel, Hartford, Conn.

Broadcasters rather than NAB staff members will be charged with the major burden of participation in the sessions with much time to be devoted to floor inquiries, according to Howard Bell, NAB vice president for planning and development. The 1963 conferences will be held under the aegis of increased attempts by the FCC to control more of the activities of stations, most prominent of which is the commercial time standards rulingmaking (see page 80).

The program for all eight conferences will follow pretty much the same format, Mr. Bell said, with a prominent and different guest speaker to address each one. NAB President LeRoy Collins plans a short talk to open each conference and also will participate in panel sessions and answer members’ questions. In addition, he is expected to hold news conferences in conjunction with all eight meetings.

After Hartford, the NAB road show will be in Minneapolis Oct. 17-18 (Leamington hotel); Pittsburgh Oct. 21-22 (Hilton hotel); Miami Beach Oct. 24-25 (Americana hotel); Nashville Nov. 14-15 (Dinkler-Andrew Jackson hotel); Fort Worth Nov. 18-19 (Texas hotel); Denver Nov. 21-22 (Cosmopolitan hotel), and San Francisco Nov. 25-26 (Fairmont hotel).

A joint radio-TV session on the opening morning of each conference will feature Governor Collins and a panel on “Broadcast Relations: Government and the Public.” Panel members will include broadcasters and NAB staffers. Present plans are to film brief messages from individual members of Congress on current government problems.

The guest speaker will address a first day luncheon, to be followed by separate sessions for radio and TV delegates in the afternoon.

A comprehensive report on “research and ratings” will be given during the final morning session which will highlight the work of the NAB Research Committee and Ratings Council since the congressional hearings on ratings. The committee is meeting today (Monday) in New York.

Other final day features will be a panel of broadcasters on controversial issues and how to deal with them and a question-and-answer session with President Collins and key NAB staffers.

The separate radio and television sessions will each discuss management problems utilizing techniques employed at the annual NAB executives seminar at Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.

Storer Broadcasting enters CATV field

BUYS MAJOR INTEREST IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA GROUP

Storer Broadcasting Co. has entered the community antenna field with the purchase of the majority interest in Southern California Cable Television Corp., owner and operator of two CATV systems—in Ojai Valley and Thousand Oaks, both in California—it was announced last week.

Storer will own 80% of the CATV company; Victor Sharar, a majority owner of Southern California, will retain 10%, and Richard A. Moore, former president of KTTV(TV) Los Angeles, and now a TV consultant and broker, will also hold 10%.

Mr. Sharar remains as vice president and general manager. Mr. Moore will be a vice president and director.

Although no price was announced, it was understood the total transaction was in the neighborhood of $60,000.

Both systems are relatively new. The Ojai Valley system began operating in July 1962 and at last report had about 250 subscribers. The Thousand Oaks system began early this year and at last report had 65 subscribers. Both are eight-channel systems. They have been picking up and relying all seven VHF and the one UHF Los Angeles stations.

media. It says the material can be made available through commercial and educational broadcasters, either live or on a delayed basis, through the use of film, records or video tape.

But it emphasizes that the center shouldn't become allied with any one network, station or recording company. To do so, it says, would give “special advantages to the organization concerned” and make it difficult “for the center to maintain its status as a truly national institution.” It specifically recommends against any permanent relationship with any Washington broadcasting organization.

WETA Left Out = This recommendation, if adopted, would undercut a proposal of FCC Commissioner Robert E. Lee that the center provide space for WETA(TV) Washington, ETV station. In a letter to Roger L. Stevens, chairman of the center's board of trustees, Commissioner Lee said that if located in the center, WETA could serve as a “key” station in the distribution of cultural programs to other outlets around the country. The suggestion is part of the commissioner's effort to aid WETA, which is reported to be in financial difficulty. The station is now located temporarily in an Arlington, Va., high school. Mr. Stevens has agreed to discuss the proposals with Commissioner Lee, but a date for their meeting has not been set.

The study strongly recommends that plans for incorporating the communications equipment in the center be made "at the outset." It adds that delays in providing for use of the media may result "in enormous future costs" and unsatisfactory results.

The study was prepared under contract with the U.S. Department of Education at a cost of $28,000. The project staff consisted of Richard B. Hull, managing director of Ohio State University's Telecommunications Center, Burton Paulu, director of radio and television, University of Minnesota, associate director; and Jack McBride, director of television and manager of KUON-TV, University of Nebraska, field supervisor.

Donald McGannon, president of Westminster Broadcast Co. and Robert Saudek, president of Robert Saudek Associates, were members of a panel advising on the project.

Others on the panel were Agnes deMille, author and choreographer; Lawrence Dennis, executive associate and director, commission for academic affairs, American Council on Education; Max Isenbergh, deputy assistant secretary of state for educational and cultural affairs; C. M. Jansky Jr., Jansky and Bailey, broadcast consulting engineering firm; Jarold A. Kieffer, secretary, National Cultural Center; William B. Levenson, superintendent, public schools, Cleveland, and Isaac Stern, concert violinist.
ARGUS-EYED SET AT COLUMBIA

Argus Camera recognized a good thing when it saw it in South Carolina, and snapped it up: a new urbanization growing with a newly diversified economy, a dramatic renaissance in education which makes good employees of native stock, and many other advantages to be found in this growing State, where personal income has nearly doubled in ten years. So Argus came and liked it. So did many others, including Du Pont, Elgin, General Electric, Utica Drop Forge, Smith-Corona Marchant, U.S. Rubber, Allied Chemical—to drop only a few names.

WIS Television reaches two-thirds of surprising new South Carolina, and knows its progressive people—knows their preferences, habits, needs—after 33 years of operating broadcast facilities in the hub-like capital city. This is why WIS Television is the priority station in South Carolina.

How DO You snare a Gold-Crested Budgetspender?

Here is a story with a purpose:

Once upon a short time ago there was this fellow, you see, and he built up quite a reputation for himself by the way he kept capturing that most elusive of all birds, the gold-crested budgetspender. The other ornithologists (who were usually happy enough just having a lark) began to grow jealous. "How," they asked archly—his name is Fred K. Archly—"do you manage to find so many gold-crested budgetspenders?"

"Well, sir," said Fred (a quiet, courteous fellow), "I just ask myself: 'If I were a gold-crested budgetspender, where would I go?' Then I do. And they have. It's all just a simple matter of media strategy!"

Your advertising story has a purpose, too.

That's why this thinly-disguised allegory carries a message for you. There are all kinds of gold-crested budgetspenders flying around the firmament of the broadcast business. Some have bigger wingspreads than others—which makes them more desirable (albeit more elusive).

As everyone knows, a gold-crested budgetspender in the hand is worth a whole flock hidden behind a door marked "Radio-TV Department" or "General Manager" (depending which side of the street you're selling). And—at risk of scuttling Fred K. Archly's secret—you just have to know when and where you can find gold-crested budgetspenders at rest. Then you go there. And they're receptive.

The "when" is the time they happen to be in need of specific, up-to-date, indubitably accurate facts about the broadcast business. Which, in their case, is often.

The "where" is the place most of them go to find such information—a rich feeder of factual nourishment known to them (and, we hope, you) as Broadcasting Yearbook. Like the reliable oak tree, it's a perennial mainstay that puts forth new, fresh foliage every year. It has been doing this more and more comprehensively for the past 53 years—which is only one reason why so many gold-crested budgetspenders are attracted to its authoritative boughs... uh, pages. (Allegory can sometimes be tricky.)

And—would you believe it?—WE also have a purpose.

The 1964 Broadcasting Yearbook will displace the best selling 1963 Broadcasting Yearbook come next December 1. Every gold-crested budgetspender worth his salt will then send the old, frayed copy to his company's Reference Library, putting the bright, mint-new, bigger-than-ever edition within easy reach on his desk.

When he opens it (which could be a dozen times a day), his mind attuned to matters of budget-spending—will you be there? With your story? With the kind of facts about yourself to influence his decisions?

Fred K. Archly will. He's already sent in his space reservation for the 1964 Broadcasting Yearbook, smart fellow. But there are quite a few other prominent, advantageous positions still open. We can't guarantee for how long. (Here is a happy case where the early bird gets something really worthwhile for his foresight.) Lots of people are interested in making profitable contact with gold-crested budgetspenders. Some of them are probably those birds of prey you call competitors.

You can read a frank appraisal of the 1964 Broadcasting Yearbook's virtues in the column at right. The average reader will absorb all the facts in 47.3 seconds. But if you read faster, you can reserve your space that much sooner. Never put off until tomorrow what you can do TODAY—particularly when you're invited to call your nearest Broadcasting office collect. (We also accept postage-due mail.)
Some anonymous genius (with a flair for descriptive precision) has aptly called this—

WHY? Because the 1964 Broadcasting Yearbook is a veritable library of 50 separate directories, comprising the most complete assembly of information about the radio and TV business ever published...yet all compacted with editorial skill into a single, easy-to-use volume.

The 1964 Broadcasting Yearbook (biggest yet) will have nearly 650 pages, two-thirds of a million words, all tabbed for instant reference under six main sections:

A. Television Facilities
B. AM/FM Radio Facilities
C. Broadcast Equipment/FCC Rules
D. Codes/Program Services
E. Representatives/Networks/Trade Groups
F. Agencies/Advertisers/Billings

In short, this unique one-book encyclopedia covers every possible background fact needed by people who work with, and in, the world of broadcasting. No other reference work even approaches the thoroughness with which it documents the radio-TV business, including associated arts and services.

Your advertisement, strategically placed in the 1964 Broadcasting Yearbook, will keep making multiple impressions throughout the whole 12-month life of this remarkable source book. It can be one of your most successful promotional investments because it delivers your story at the very times the people who buy are most receptive.

Circulation: 20,000 copies
Publication: December 1
Rates: same as Broadcasting Magazine.
Deadline: final date is October 1; if advance proofs are required, September 15.

Special Positions: subject to immediate space reservation. Write, wire or phone your nearest Broadcasting advertising office (Washington, New York, Chicago or Hollywood).

Recommendation: Reserve the position you want—TODAY—before somebody else gets it!
plus the VHF in Santa Barbara. "Very shortly," George B. Storer, Jr. said, the three San Diego stations will be added.

to give subscribers a choice of 12 stations. Mr. Storer also noted that the Thousand Oaks area, now with 18,000 people, is expected to expand in the next 10 years to 180,000.

Storer is the latest broadcast unit to enter the CATV field; others are the Cox stations, Broadcasting Co. of the South, RKO General and Triangle, as well as smaller broadcast groups.

Edison award nominations now being accepted

The Thomas Alva Edison Foundation announced last week that nominations can now be made for the ninth annual "National Station Award for Serving Youth." Since 1955, the foundation has given the award to the local television and radio stations whose programs were of the greatest benefit to the young people of their communities.

Each award carries a scroll and a $1,000 Edison college scholarship which the winning stations present to a high school senior selected by a committee of local educators. The deadline for the nominations is Dec. 15.

The winning stations for 1963 will be announced at a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York on Jan. 15, 1964. Last year's winners were WLOF-TV, now WFTV(TV), Orlando, Fla., and WSB Atlanta, Ga.

The network covers events within a 100-mile radius of Syracuse which includes 15 cities. The results of the expanded news gathering network is expected to be especially evident for the radio outlet's News Beat programs and when-TV's expanded Channel 5 Report. More documentary programs are also expected.

Blakeslee awards • The American Heart Association has named NBC-TV and WPTF-TV Philadelphia as recipients of 1963 Howard W. Blakeslee awards for distinguished reporting on heart and blood vessel diseases. NBC-TV's hour documentary, Breakthrough: Heart and

Survey participants are average TV viewers

Persons who participate in diary surveys for TV audience measurements do not necessarily watch more television than those who are not part of surveys, according to a 24-market validation study by the American Research Bureau. The study revealed some audience characteristic differences between the cooperators and noncooperators, but no major differences occurred in viewing levels, ARB said.

ARB's study went into the effects of noncooperation in diary surveys on local market sampling. The emphasis was on the validity and reliability of research techniques employed by ARB in producing local market reports.

Ampex introduces new portable VTR

ALL-TRANSISTORIZED VR-660 TO SELL FOR $14,500

A new portable broadcast TV tape recorder, said to be priced substantially below any other comparable recorder, has been developed by Ampex Corp. Weighing just under 100 pounds, the new Ampex VR-660 Videotape recorder is designed for mobile and studio use by network, commercial and education-
How to tell 'Opolis from Oranges!

Call it "megalopolis" . . . "interurbia" . . . or whatever your market analyst prefers: it's a new marketing terminology to express current concepts. In Providence, we're in the heart of the East Coast Megalopolis.

We stand out as a 14 county, Providence, Tri-State, primary television market. This excludes the three Boston metro counties and leaves 855,000 homes of the 1,606,000 credited to Providence by the 1963 ARB Coverage Study. Let's concentrate on these 14 primary counties. Here's what's new about them:

Total net weekly circulation has increased 47% from 1960 to 1963, up to 1,555,200 according to ARB's Coverage Studies.

Since 1960, these 14 counties have added 110,300 more TV homes able to receive Providence television stations.

In these 14 counties, WPRO-TV's net weekly circulation has jumped by 65,000 homes, up 13% over 1960.

Empire State Building has room for seven more TV stations

The Empire State Building in New York has decided it has a stake in UHF television. If the upper band becomes successful, the managers of the 1,472-foot building see room for seven more TV stations on the 222-foot tall TV transmitting tower which already is carrying seven VHF and one UHF antennas. All rent space on the tower.

This is the optimistic reaction to a study recently submitted to the FCC by the Empire State Building. The $10,000 test was conducted by RCA for the management.

One of the problems worrying electronics engineers was whether the disturbance between two lobes of a UHF radiator—where one slot antenna is placed on one side of the tower and the other on the opposite side—would be sufficient to cause trouble. The RCA report, after an on-the-air test, says that the interference zone between the two lobes is so narrow that it is not significant.

One unusual aspect of the test, according to Dr. Frank G. Kear of Kear & Kennedy, consulting engineers for the New York skyscraper, is that the antennas were placed behind copper screening already in use for WNYC-TV, the educational station on channel 13. Openings were cut in the screening to permit the UHF slots free access. The copper screening aided the UHF test and had no adverse effect on the radiations of WNYC-TV.

In addition to all seven VHF stations in the New York area, the Empire State Building is carrying WNYC-TV on channel 31. Also allocated to the market are channels 25, for ETV which is held by the New York State Board of Regents; 37, for which three applicants are vying; 47 (construction permit held by WNJU-TV for Linden, N. J., but seeking a move to the Empire State Building).

Kodak introducing 2 audio tapes in fall

Two new Eastman Kodak audio tapes for sound recording will be introduced this fall, using a Durol polyester base, said to be 40% stronger than conventional triacetate. The tapes, to be marketed through conventional electronic supply houses throughout the country on an “off-the-shelf” basis, are types A303 and A304. Eastman Kodak has been marketing sound recording tapes for the last 18 months, but generally they were sold direct in bulk quantities.

Type A303 tape is basically a low-print tape with a signal to print ratio of 54 db. High frequency sensitivity and undistorted output have been increased 33% over conventional general purpose tapes. The A304 is a high output tape which has more than double the undistorted output of conventional tapes.

The new Durol base virtually eliminates stretching. In case of a recorder malfunction, the tape has a built-in “shear pin” effect—it breaks clean rather than stretching and snarling. Accidental breaks can be spliced with little, if any, program loss.

Cinerama gets rights to Telcan distribution

Cinerama Inc., developer of the Cinerama film process, has negotiated an agreement with a British company to develop and distribute that firm's proposed home television tape recorder in the U. S. and other countries of the Western Hemisphere.

Under the agreement signed with Rutherford Engineering Partnership, Berroda, Cinerama will have controlling interest in a new distribution company, Cinerama Telcan, to be based in New York.

Rutherford Engineering Partnership, which already has announced plans to market a TV system in the United Kingdom, will provide technical assistance to Cinerama Telcan. The company will have a 66% interest in a joint venture to be set up in England.

Cinerama plans to distribute the new telecine product in the U. S. within the next few months, and may license distributors in other countries.

Sylvania set sales up 16%

Sylvania Home & Commercial Electronics Corp., marketing subsidiary of Sylvania Electric Products Inc., Batavia, N. Y., has reported unit sales of television sets for the first seven months of 1963 as 16% ahead of the same period last year. Issuing the report last week, Sylvania noted that its Halovision model has continued to lead TV set sales.

1963-64 GUIDE TO TELEVISION'S FINEST SCHEDULE OF ENTERTAINMENT, NEWS AND INFORMATION

This 12-page advertisement contains excerpts from the big, full-color, 40-page souvenir book which you've seen on the NBC Television Network.
Somewhere in the world, news is always happening. And the intricate processes that bring the raw news to the point of broadcast, keep the lights burning at NBC News headquarters every night in the year. But what counts, finally, is what goes onto the air, into people's homes and heads. At NBC, this means that over one quarter of the entire television network schedule, last year, was produced by NBC News—an unprecedented volume. To produce this volume NBC maintains the largest broadcast news operation in the world. In all, the NBC News organization numbers over 800 skilled professionals, based in some 75 countries. This year, it is undertaking a bold, new venture in broadcasting the news—the one-half hour, five-day-a-week Huntley-Brinkley Report.

For some time past, this news show has been winning extra-ordinary critical and public acclaim. As a result, these two serious and untheatrical reporters have, like it or not, become TV "celebrities." But they are the first to attribute the success of their show to something beyond what is called the "chemistry" of their joint appearances. As one of them has said, "We look only as good as the team is good."

The team is good, and growing better—and bigger, to meet the challenge of providing 30 minutes of news every Monday through Friday. A staff of 45 is committed to the enlarged Huntley-Brinkley Report with field producers in London and Tokyo for specially produced news features; in addition to the regular overseas bureaus, and domestic bureaus in New York, Washington, Chicago, Los Angeles, and Miami.

For the first time, thanks to the work of many hands, the public may view the news via television in full depth and breadth on a day-to-day schedule. The new Report covers the news in the succinct style the two reporters have made famous. And it can probe into the background of the immediate news with documentary vignettes exploring personalities, underlying issues and contexts, as well as "features" on arts, fashion, sports and odd items in the news. Many reports, eventually, will be sent from overseas by regular instantaneous transmission via satellites. Between now and then, NBC News has increased its film facilities to handle the increased flow of information.

The pace quickens, the demand grows. The NBC News day has always raced the clock. Now it goes faster than ever.
As Monday goes, so goes the week....

True—and NBC's Monday brings The Huntley-Brinkley Report, the enlightened way to start your evening viewing, Monday through Friday. For Monday amusement, Monday Night at the Movies leads off our bill of fare, and it's a cinematic chef d'oeuvre. Here are the big films of the 50's: the ones you kicked yourself for missing, and the ones you wanted to see a second time. To whet your appetite, we'll say that the list begins with Love is a Many Splendored Thing, David and Bathsheba and Executive Suite. All are television "firsts," and when the originals are in color, that's how we'll broadcast them.

After the flicks, stay with us for Hollywood and the Stars, a new series of behind-the-scenes entertainments with Joseph Cotten as host-narrator. The love goddesses from Theda Bara to Liz Taylor... the great screen lovers, Bushman to Brando...the tough guys, including Bogart and Cagney...it's the whole, fabulous Hollywood story.

Sing Along with Mitch comes next, complete with tenors, baritones, basses and beard. Not to ignore Louise O'Brien and Leslie Uggams, who, with a line of TV's cutest chorines, complete Mitch's feast for the eyes and ears of us all.

NBC Television keeps up its late-hour liveliness every Monday (and Tuesday through Friday, too) with Tonight. Johnny Carson continues in the driver's seat, Skitch's gang operates in the tuneful realm, and the guests are people you've always wanted to meet. Meet some—tonight.

Thus, diarist Samuel Pepys noted that the world was expected to end on a Tuesday in 1667. It didn’t, and so we have NBC Television, not ending the world, but taking you well-nigh out of it. Tuesday nights. It starts with James Franciscus as Mr. Novak, who’s a hip, handsome, two-fisted–high school English teacher! And extremely dedicated, too, although Dean Jagger as the canny principal sometimes has to curb his high spirits. This dramatic team gets a big assist from a live-wire student body of 1200, whose problems and escapades give the solid plots plenty of action.

Empire’s many fans of last season will be hailing Richard Egan in Redigo, a new adventure program. It’s true that station wagons outnumber stallions and skirts may be rustled more frequently than steers, but Jim Redigo proves weekly that today’s West is still a man’s world.

The Richard Boone Show brings television’s first full-season repertory company in an extraordinary group of original dramas. Boone and playwright Clifford Odets are the creative dynamos behind this unique project, described in more detail elsewhere in these pages.

The Bell Telephone Hour returns on Tuesday, star-filled and various as always. This season, in addition, The Andy Williams Show will share the space with Bell, along with a number of Actuality Specials featuring prominent NBC News correspondents on camera. Whichever enterprise is holding forth on a particular Tuesday night, the hour bears close watching. So do all the others.

WEDNESDAY
Wednesday is the best of all...."

Best for wedding, according to the old English rhyme. Very good for watching NBC, too. Wednesday’s a drama-lover’s dream—adventure all evening long. First off, there’s The Virginian, the famed fictional cowboy whose notable transition to television occurred last season. James Drury in the title role and Lee J. Cobb as Judge Garth head the strong cast of regulars, and guest stars are the standard policy. This Fall, the 90-minute series will shed light on the events that brought our mysterious hero West to Medicine Bow. A must for all who like action lean-in-the-saddle, and, as color set owners know, it feeds the eye as well as the imagination.

Espionage is the spine-tingling title of NBC’s new Wednesday night suspense series, investigating the shadow-world of international undercover agents, soldiers in a deadly, secret war that never ends. These stories, shot in European locations, have the impact of newsfilm and the tension of cloak-and-dagger drama. Espionage is probably the boldest profession, and if spies ever have a dull day, you won’t see it here.

Some people stay right at home and lead dangerous lives. That, in short, is the dramatic premise of The Eleventh Hour, in which, this season, the distinguished actor Ralph Bellamy will play forensic psychiatrist L. Richard Starke. Jack Ging returns as Paul Graham, clinical psychologist. The two bring warm human understanding and psychiatric insight to crises that hit the troubled and emotionally ill, often at—the eleventh hour.

Indeed we do, and with good reason. NBC’s Thursday night is an enticing blend of all the entertainment art: drama, comedy, music, and variety. Temple Houston, our first case in point, marks a novel path for the adventureously inclined. Hollywood magnetic young Jeffrey Hunter in the title role, as a young lawyer traveling through the Southwest practicing rough and ready frontier law before the circuit-riding judge of the post-Civil War period.

A residency at Blair General awai Dr. Kildare this Fall. Although America’s favorite young M.D. will still labor under Dr. Gillespie’s keen scrutiny, this means more responsibility for Dr. Kildare and a broad scope for the scalpel-sharp dramatic series, starring, of course, Richard Chamberlain and Raymond Massey.

Svelte and glamorous she’s not, but Hazel is nevertheless the favorite TV heroine of millions. As played by Shirley Booth, Hazel’s a domestic gem beyond price—generous (she’d give you the shirt off Mr. Baxter’s back), loving (what would Harold be without her?) and outspoken (than goodness!). Hazel returns this Fall in a fresh series of comic adventure and as before, the Baxter family shares the pleasure with all of us.

Post-Hazel, Thursday brings the new Kraft Suspense Theatre—featuring top stars in original dramas with meaningful themes developed through action and suspense, and filmed in color. Seven Thursdays in the year Perry Como’s Kraft Music Hall takes over, with guest stars, spectacle, dancing, laughter, and songs, songs as only Perry can sing them.

Chaucer's phrase from The Knighte's Tale does service here to remind us that "right" is the right word for the NBC Friday night's tale, starting with International Showtime. Master of Ceremonies Don Ameche and his crew coursed two continents last summer, and you'll see fabulous finds from the circus capitals of Europe and the Far East on your home screens.

Meanwhile, back in Hollywood, the multitude of projects included in The Bob Hope-Chrysler series have been moving forward under Bob's benign eye. There will be a Hope show every week, ranging from the dramatic "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich" to the razor-sharp wit of a typical Bob Hope comedy-variety show, with Hope as host on every one—and he'll also play a couple of dramatic parts.

A lighter part is Larry Blyden's in Harry's Girls, as the fast-stepping manager of three delectable dancers on European tour. The new show is Blyden's first TV situation comedy, and the girls—Dawn Nickerson, Susan Silo and Diane Williams—are talented, fresh and amusing newcomers, and very easy on the eyes.

The rightness and lightness of our Friday nights are neatly enhanced by The Jack Paar Show. This season as in the past, the brightest stars in show business will nowhere glow so brilliantly as in the presence of the Seer of Studio 6B, Jack Paar himself. This applies to conversation as well as performances, both of which will be doubly dazzling to those who see them in NBC's living color. But even in black-and-white, Jack Paar's a must-to see, and to talk about next day.

So wrote a lady poet, long before NBC got round to making Saturdays really special. This Autumn, the pleasantries get a crisp start with The Lieutenant, a new, stunningly realistic hour dramatic series on the peacetime Marine Corps, with Gary Lockwood as the young Looie whose assignments range from his base in California to the furthest reaches, and Robert Vaughn as his leathery superior officer. If you thought Marine Corps adventure ended with Korea, this will open your eyes.

We suggest you keep them open for The Joey Bishop Show, NBC's second Saturday night hit. Fall finds comic Joey Barnes and his spouse, Ellie (played by charming Abby Dalton), being proud but oftimes puzzled parents. The newest member of the cast, Joey, Jr., weighed in at seven pounds, nine ounces—and he's out to steal twice his weight in scenes. But Joey, Sr., has an ace up his cuff—more stand-up comedy routines.

Survivors from pre-television times will recall when the Saturday night movie was standard American ritual, along with the Saturday night bath. NBC revived it (the movie part) last season, and this coming Autumn Saturday Night at the Movies will present a fresh package of films from the fabulous Fifties. Among them are such successes as Daddy Long Legs, A Man Called Peter, and How to Be Very, Very Popular; the stars include the likes of Richard Burton, Leslie Caron and Marilyn Monroe. These movies will be playing for the first time on television, and many, of course, will be in color.

Reminder: listed times are correct for NYC & LA. See newspapers and TV GUIDE for your local schedule.
Calm, yes. But many other things, too, on NBC Television this Fall. Come sundown, Sunday's serenity will be rippled by laughter with a Spanish accent. The cause will be comic Bill Dana's happy creation, José Jiménez, as a hotel bellhop on The Bill Dana Show. Cry javoc!

On José's heels is Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color. A suspense story from Paris, a musical of old Vienna, jungle adventures as only Disney can do them, and, of course, new miracles of animation. In other words, it will be the mixture as before: when you have a perfect blend, why change it?

And if you haven't, why not find it? Which is what Imogene Coca has done, ending a long search for a starring comedy role, with Grindl. Grindl is a free-lance gal-of-all-work—a specialist at finding closet skeletons and belfrey bats on every job she holds.

Bonanza rides into view next, returning in full glory—and full color—for another season. Voted the nation's favorite series last Spring, it's the Western that's cooler, firmer, faster on the draw, more fully packed with adventure. Millions have switched to Bonanza, and you'd better, too. Or else.

After the Western, we go Eastern. Du Pont Show of the Week presents distinguished dramas that make it the Broadway of television, and they are matched by the keen actuality of its documentaries. In sum, Du Pont provides a grand climax to the pleasures of Sunday evening.

Mondays through Fridays most fathers and children are out of TV range after the "Today" show, and women become the majority audience. We find that they fancy a bit of drama and a fair supply of daytime news, but above all they enjoy meeting people. Audience-participation shows, built around a contest, a conversation, or a game, are welcome company in the housewife's busy (but sometimes rather lonely) world. This Fall, she will discover two such additions to the NBC daytime schedule, "Missing Links" and a new morning program that brings back the popular Merv Griffin as host. Both shows are part of NBC's unprecedented three hours of color programs each weekday.

10:00 am SAY WHEN. Art James is host.
10:30 am with Frank Wood starring. Merv Griffin premieres Sept 30 (color).
11:00 am CONCENTRATION, with Hugh Downs. A new time period, beginning Sept 9.
11:30 am TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES. With Bob Barker. (In color after Sept 30).
11:55 am MISSING LINKS. Game show, premiering Sept. 9 (color).
12:00 Noon YOUR FIRST IMPRESSION. Bill Leyden moderates (color).
12:05 pm NBC News Mid-Afternoon Report. Live from Chicago, with Floyd Kalb.
12:30 pm TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES, with Bob Barker. (Color after Sept 30).
1:00 pm PEOPLE WILL TALK. Fun and games with Dennis James (color).
1:30 pm YOU DON'T SAY. Tom Kennedy referees, with celebrities and guests (color).
2:00 pm THE MATCH GAME, with Gene Rayburn, celebrities and guests.
2:25 pm NBC News Mid-Afternoon Report. Live from Chicago, with Floyd Kalb.
2:30 pm THE DOCTORS. A complete hospital drama every week.
3:00 pm THE LORETTA YOUNG THEATRE, with Miss Young as hostess-star.
3:30 pm THE MATCH GAME, with Gene Rayburn, celebrities and guests.
4:00 pm THE MATCH GAME, with Gene Rayburn, celebrities and guests.
4:30 pm MAKE ROOM FOR DADDY. Situational comedy, starring Danny Thomas.
Sunday newspapers are very fat cats compared to the weekday editions—a phenomenon that once caused Wally Cox to wonder why The New York Times always found more news that was fit to print on the Sabbath. One answer is that Sunday is when most newspaper readers, like most of us, have the most time.

Television viewers, too, have time for more than the headlines on Sunday. There's leisure to lean back and let the TV set detail the newest novels, fashion's latest folderol, what's big in art galleries and sports stadiums across the country.

All this fits the premise of NBC's "Sunday," a one-hour week-end television news magazine that begins on October 20th. "Sunday" is aimed at a light, unhurried view of the week's happenings, with emphasis on music, art, sports, theater and other topics that regular news broadcasts seldom have time to cover in much detail.

The new program's host is NBC Newsman Frank Blair, well known to early birds for his eleven-year assignment on the "Today" show. In keeping with the "magazine" concept, the "Sunday" program is establishing regular departments, conducted by staff members.

Veteran NBC News White House correspondent Ray Scherer is responsible for interpretive reports of the week's events. Younger viewers will be treated to a weekly explanation of a complex news subject, illustrated with film animation and narrated by NBC News correspondent Robert Abernethy. The Washington scene, including social notes and fashion news, will be covered by Nancy Dickerson, and the world of sports, by Joe Garagiola.

"Sunday" critics will appear regularly, to praise or bury new ventures in their respective spheres of interest. Among the critics are Aline Saarinen, Cleveland Amory, and NBC's Edwin Newman. And behind the scenes, the worldwide resources of NBC News will be made available to "Sunday's" staff.

On the Fall NBC schedule, "Sunday" is a near neighbor of the newly arrived "G-E College Bowl," which last year won an Emmy as "the outstanding program achievement in the field of panel, quiz or audience participation." Sober as that sounds, it's a fast-paced show filled with as much excitement and competitive spirit as many a more muscular contest. And it will be seen in color.

Since "G-E College Bowl" in turn is followed by our long-running (and headline-garnering) "Meet the Press," it's clear that "Sunday" is in good company. In fact, NBC is wearing its Sunday best this Fall.
When Greece was in her glory, Athens had a population of about 300,000. This Fall, perhaps 75 times that number will be watching a television program about the Golden Age of Greece. At NBC, the concept of news embraces all actuality, past, present, and probable future. The 40-odd subjects of one-hour news specials this year include the training of a professional football star, private art collections, the Paris-to-Istanbul railroad, developments on the frontiers of medicine, and the life and culture of India. Also this season the widely acclaimed portrait of "The Kremlin" will be rebroadcast in color.

When the chiefs of NBC News approve a program like "Greece: The Golden Age," or "The Kremlin" they commit over $100,000—sometimes as much as a quarter of a million—to one production. Why do they do it?

The answer seems to lie in a mixture of pride and conscience. NBC News pioneered this type of programming when it still seemed off-beat and of limited public interest. Today the audiences for these shows are respectable, even by television's giant yardstick. As William McAndrew, executive vice president of the NBC News Division, says, "Our province as newsmen embraces anything of significance that happens anywhere at any time."

It has never been a newsmen's style to count the costs or difficulties when important events are happening. Should he respond differently because the important events happened last month, or 2,500 years ago? NBC News thinks not.

Option time will go the way of the Model T as commission refuses to reconsider decision

The FCC last week rejected requests of CBS, ABC and the ABC-TV Affiliates Association that it reconsider its decision to outlaw television option time. The order banning the networks' traditional practice of assuring station clearances goes into effect tomorrow (Sept. 10).

In its option-time order, issued May 28, the commission held that the practice isn't essential to TV network operations, is an artificial restraint of access to TV station time and is an abdication of licensees' responsibility (Broadcasting, June 3).

And in its order last week, the commission said the arguments advanced in requesting reconsideration were without merit. The vote was 6-1, with Commissioner Robert E. Lee dissenting. He was also the lone dissenter in the vote to bar option time.

CBS was concerned only with that portion of the order barring any practice "having the same effect" as option time. The network interpreted this to include its incentive compensation plan, which the FCC specifically held to be a rules violation in a separate order.

CBS said the "same effect" provision of the Model T is invalid because it's "too vague." The commission, however, said "the context within which" the provision is contained must be considered. It said it was concerned with option time "and devices of like restraining effect." Broadcasters, the commission added, are well aware of "the type of arrangement we have in mind."

Second Point - CBS also argued that "same effect" provision wasn't properly raised in the notice of rulemaking. But, the commission said, the rulemaking asked for comments on the form a rule should take to "effectuate the prohibition of option time." Eliminating only the specific practice of option time, the commission said, "would hardly effectuate the desired result."

In its separate order barring the incentive plan, the commission held it violates the rule prohibiting arrangements under which stations are penalized for refusing network programs. Under the incentive plan, an affiliate earns 10% of the station's network rate for the first 60% of the programs it carries and 60% of the rate thereafter.

ABC had held that the commission's order failed to consider the "competitive imbalance which exists among the three networks because of station scarcity. The network also said that it was particularly handicapped in its effort to overcome its competitive disadvantage because the commission, a day after abolishing option time, rejected the proposal to drop in, at short spacing, third VHF channels in seven markets.

No Comment - The commission, which still has the drop-in case under consideration, would not comment on that aspect of ABC's argument. But in turning to the question of competition, it stuck by its position that option time has no "substantial connection with competitive equality among the networks."

The commission conceded that, since ABC has fewer affiliates than CBS or NBC, "any given number of 'defections' would be more significant, percentagewise, in its case than with the other two." But the commission said there is no reason to believe that defections will occur in sufficient numbers "to jeopardize successful" network operations.

The commission said the ABC affiliates' contention that elimination of option time would restrict the flow of network programs "warrants little further comment." The commission restated its view, first expressed in its May 28 order, that networking "would continue without the restraining effect of option time."

Carriers say intrastate is out of FCC's bounds

The FCC has no jurisdiction over the activities of intrastate common carriers, 20 of the microwave services told the commission last week in asking for a declaratory ruling on the subject.

They voiced their belief that "the commission has exceeded its statutory authority over intrastate communications operations" in asking for the ruling.

"The carriers provide a video transmission service principally to subscribers engaged in the community antenna television (CATV) business," the carriers said, although they are available to serve other interests. The services of all the signing carriers, they said, were strictly intrastate, and cannot be federally regulated. "The commission has failed to recognize or accord any distinction whatever in the regulation of intrastate carriers as compared to its regulation of interstate carriers and has, in fact, asserted jurisdiction indiscriminately and without regard for the statute from which its authority emanates."

The carriers concluded by saying that "it is clear that the practices of the commission . . . have been in violation of the Communications Act of 1934" and should be ceased.
FCC's fairness policy attacked

SEN. THURMOND HITS AT HEARING; REP. HARRIS IN SPEECH

The FCC's July 26 public notice on fairness, which broadcasters have attacked since it was issued, was challenged by members of Congress last week, first in a Senate hearing and later in a major speech by the chairman of the House Commerce Committee.

Senator Strom Thurmond (D-S.C.), a member of the Senate Communications Subcommittee and a frequent critic of commission policies, Wednesday (Sept. 4) asked FCC Chairman E. William Henry why the commission had even issued the notice.

Senator Thurmond said he has received letters from broadcasters throughout the South who want to know what they must do to comply.

Chairman Henry said that the main reason for the notice was a House Communications Subcommittee hearing on editorializing where the FCC was told that licensees needed guidelines on editorializing and the broadcasting of controversial programs (BROADCASTING, July 1).

Senator Thurmond also tried to learn whether the commission would require broadcasters who carry sponsored controversial programs to provide free time for opposing views. Chairman Henry answered that the commission "has never to my knowledge decided this" but has a study underway and would consider it "very soon."

It was understood that the commission would take up this question at its meeting Wednesday (Sept. 11).

HARRIS, TOO - Meanwhile, Representative Oren Harris (D-Ark.), whose Commerce Committee is the parent of the subcommittee that has been conducting hearings on editorializing, bluntly told the FCC last week that it should review its fairness statement "to determine whether it is in conformity with the Communications Act...."

Representative Harris, in a letter sent to Chairman Henry Sept. 5 and in a speech before the Arkansas Broadcasters Association in Little Rock Sept. 7, said that the notice "if actually enforced...is likely to place an intolerable burden upon the members of the commission which the members cannot possibly discharge without neglecting other important responsibilities."

Elements of the commission's notice, the congressman said, "can only result in obliterating [the] fundamental dividing line of responsibility with regard to programing between licensees and the commission."

"The commission's primary responsibility in programing is limited to a periodic overall review," Representative Harris said; the licensee is responsible for content on a day-to-day basis.

Only a week earlier the National Association of Broadcasters asked the commission to rescind its notice and said it had caused "widespread bewilderment" among broadcasters (BROADCASTING, Sept. 2).

Pastore's View - Senator John O. Pastore (D-R.I.), subcommittee chairman, was concerned that ability to pay for air time might determine whether the public would be able to hear opposing views. "Do you think for one moment that the fact that [a] group was able to propagandize the public and pay for it, that it should be prevailing without an opposite view being given a fair opportunity to express itself?"

Senator Pastore said he was "afraid we are going to be in serious trouble" if the commission decides that it would be necessary to pay for time to obtain

Sen. Talmadge, too

Senator Herman Talmadge (D-Ga.) has labeled the FCC's controversial July 26 policy statement on a broadcaster's responsibilities under the fairness doctrine "an unwarranted infringement upon freedom of speech."

The senator's indictment was delivered in a letter to FCC Chairman E. William Henry asking for a commission explanation. He said the regulations outlined in the statement (Broadcasting, July 29) are "unduly restrictive. . . I have been in politics a long time and have been criticized many times." Senator Talmadge noted, "however I have always felt that such critics had a right to their opinion."

He pointed out that the FCC encourages stations to editorialize but at the same time "restricts stations so as to make it a virtual impossibility in some areas."

interest rules for members of the executive branch, he noted, but is very lenient with itself.

Broader Bill • The senator received no encouragement on this point from other members of the subcommittee. Senator Proxmire said he was more interested in his limited goal but would like to work with Senator Thurmond on a conflict of interest bill at a later time.

But Senator Thurmond wasn't the only person interested in broadening the bill. Senator Pastore said it seemed to him the legislation unfairly singled out members of Congress. Senator Pastore said the bill "raises certain doubts about the qualifications" of congressmen and ought to be broadened to include any public official.

Senator Proxmire agreed. He first offered his proposal in 1960 when he learned that an FCC hearing examiner's decision favoring Capital Cities TV Co. for channel 10 Albany, had held that the applicant was "manifestly superior in civic participation because, in part, five congressmen were stockholders" (Broadcasting, June 27, 1960). "It cannot be ignored," Senator Proxmire said the examiner wrote, "that some of these individuals have achieved civic and political prominence which denotes in them an ability to discern and be responsive to the interests of the people of their community."

The senator told the subcommittee last week that "we have fought hard for legislation to prohibit ex parte contacts by congressmen with the quasi-judicial agencies. . . Now we learn that, far worse than making a phone call or writing a letter, a member of Congress fairness. Chairman Henry agreed and said that this is the approach that the commission has usually taken. "The only thing I am unable to do is to say that there will be a majority of commissioners that will agree," the chairman added (Closed Circuit, Sept. 2).

Senator Pastore showed special concern about the Citizens Committee for a Nuclear Test Ban, which has requested free time from more than 300 stations to answer attacks made against the treaty in programs provided by the conservatively oriented Marion Forum and Life Line Inc. (Broadcasting, Sept. 2).

Senator Pastore is also chairman of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy and is one of the Kennedy administration's key supporters of the test ban treaty.

Senator Thurmond's questioning of Chairman Henry occurred during a subcommittee hearing on a proposal of Senator William Proxmire (D-Wis.), who has tried since 1960 to require the commission not to give applicants special consideration because some of their principals may be members of Congress. Senator Thurmond supported Senator Proxmire's bill, S-708, and urged him to broaden it to prohibit members of Congress from holding any interest in broadcast stations.

"A member of Congress should not only do right, he ought to appear right," Senator Thurmond said. Congress requires stringent conflict of in-

Proxmire praises TV show

NBC-TV's three-hour Labor Day special on the civil rights problem was lauded last week by Senator William Proxmire (D.- Wis.), who called the show a "great contribution by private enterprise to better understanding in America." The senator, a frequent critic of television, noted that the program was carried "at an enormous cost to NBC, because it was necessary to forego all advertising."

"Many of us," the senator said, "have criticized the television industry for various things, but when the industry does something such as this — considering how well the documentary was done; being balanced, thoughtful and penetrating — the industry deserves commendation."

can influence decisions of the FCC by purchasing or accepting as a gift, stock in a company which intends to apply for a television license."

Henry Disagrees • Chairman Henry testified that the commission does not believe legislation is necessary because the Capital Cities case "states that the commission does not have nor has it ever had a policy of favoring or penalizing an applicant for a broadcast license because a member of Congress is numbered among the officers, directors or stockholders of such applicant." Nonetheless, he said, the commission endorses the basic purpose of the proposal.

Senator Proxmire also criticized Commissioner Frederick W. Ford, who was commission chairman at the time of the Capitol Cities decision. Commissioner Ford had told a reporter in 1960, Senator Proxmire said, that the commission "considers having congressmen as stockholders a 'favorable factor' in awarding television licenses."

Commissioner Ford told the subcommittee last week that congressmen who are stockholders should be identified as such because it is "better to put it there for the world to see."

A Broadcasting study found this spring that 21 congressmen and senators or their relatives held interests in broadcasting stations (Broadcasting, May 20, 6).

FCC Bills • In other business, the Communications Subcommittee heard the FCC support two bills it had requested: S 1005 would authorize the FCC to grant special temporary authorizations for up to 60 days for certain nonbroadcast operations; S 1193 would require that petitions for intervention in certain FCC proceedings designated for hearing must be filed not more than 30 days after publication of the hearing issues in the Federal Register.

The subcommittee also heard testimony favoring legislation that would authorize the FCC to allow certain radio amateurs to broadcast in the U. S. on a reciprocal basis. Proponents were to work out language of a letter that would be submitted for the hearing record and indicate an understanding of the operators' responsibility.

Objections to ETV band denied by commission

The FCC's plan to add the 31 channels in the 2500-2690 mc band to the present educational television assignments (Broadcasting, July 29) moved steadily ahead as the commission last week denied petitions for stays and reconsiderations of the rulemaking. The two objections to the ETV reservations were filed by the Central Committee on Communications Facilities of the American Petroleum Institute and the National Committee for Utilities Radio.

The central committee argued that ETV already had enough space in the spectrum and the only thing that has kept the oil companies from a wider use of the band is the lack of FCC policy on the fixed stations.

The national committee said that the 1990-2110 mc band, originally proposed by the FCC as one of the two alternatives, is preferable from a technical standpoint. Although the lower band has only 20 channels, the national committee said, equipment to use the channels is much more readily available.

Both groups asked for a stay of the effective date of the rulemaking because, they said, the Sept. 9 (today) date meant that the commission could not properly reconsider the action because of its August hiatus.

The FCC's denial of the committees' petitions, to which Commissioner Robert T. Bartley was the lone dissenter, said that the supplicants did not "claim [or] show that failure to grant a stay will result in irreparable injury to the public or to their own interests," the criteria by which, the commission said, petitions for stays are judged.

Furthermore, the FCC noted, the 2500-2690 mc band was not being reallocated from the operational fixed services to the new Instructional Television Fixed Service on Sept. 9. Present users will retain their licenses, although the commission plans a three-year freeze on new applications.

The committees' petitions, the FCC stated, brought up nothing that had not been considered in its earlier deliberations.

Government sets up communication system
EXISTING UNITS UNIFIED BY EXECUTIVE ORDER

A national communications system, comprising all the government's continental and overseas telecommunications circuits, has been established by President Kennedy.

The NCS, established by executive memorandum, will strengthen and unify all existing government communications systems. It includes the military Defense Communications Agency, the General Services Administration's Federal Telecommunications System and circuit systems used by the Federal Aviation Agency and other agencies.

Operating head of the overall federal system will be Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, acting as executive agent for the President. Mr. McNamara has appointed Solis Horwitz, director of organization and management planning in the Defense Department, as assistant to the secretary for this job, and Lieutenant General Alfred Starbird, director of DCA, as manager.

Responsible for policy in the development and operation of NCS will be the director of telecommunications management in the executive office. This position was held by Dr. Irvin Stewart, former FCC commissioner, until he resigned in April (BROADCASTING, April 22).

Dr. Jerome Wiesner, the President's science adviser, has assumed the responsibilities of the director of telecommunications management as they relate to NCS. Acting director of telecommunications management is Ralph L. Clark, former radio consulting engineer.

In the memorandum, the secretary of defense is given authority to request assignments of radio frequencies for NCS and to monitor for frequency utilization.

WCCO asks FCC for 750 kw power

WCCO Minneapolis last week asked the FCC for permission to increase its power from 50 kw to 750 kw, citing its position in the central area of America and the "white" areas of radio coverage as justification.

The petition of the station follows a request by the Clear Channel Broadcasting Service for 750 kw power for all clear channels (BROADCASTING, April 15) and a brief in support of the CCBS petition filed by WSM Nashville (BROADCASTING, May 13). WLV Cincinnati, another clear channel station, has asked for the 750 kw power for experimental use.

The Class IA Minneapolis station, which is licensed to Midwest Radio-Television Inc., noted that in spite of the proliferation of radio stations in recent years about half the nation is still not served by nighttime radio. Situated near the center of the country, the station said it is ideally located to serve the vast center of the land, and could do so easily with 750 kw.

The 830 kc station said that it participated in the commission's clear channel proceeding, and that it hadn't applied for the higher power earlier because the FCC said it wouldn't accept such applications at that time. The FCC did promise, however, to consider the power hikes at a later date, and wcco asked the commission to grant its petition and similar requests by other clear channels.

Wcc also noted that with increased power it could serve the nation's interior in times of emergency and as a voice of civil defense.

More than $5 billion approved for space

Congress, which agreed on a $5.35 billion space authorization bill last month, has helped loosen up a logjam of appropriations bills that includes fiscal 1964 funds for the FCC, Federal Trade Commission and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

At about the same time Congress also approved a continuing resolution which will allow the government agencies that have not yet had funds appropriated for the current fiscal year (1964) to continue to operate under their 1963 budgets until Oct. 31.

Appropriations bills for all independent agencies had been blocked while the House awaited passage of the space authorization measure (CLOSED CIRCUIT, May 20). The Independent Offices Appropriation Subcommittee planned to move quickly into "clean-up" hearings with a few agencies and was expected to release a report on the FCC and FTC budget requests later this month. The FCC is seeking $16.4 million.

The final NASA authorization includes up to $42,175,000 for communications satellites. NASA requested $51,000; the House approved $42,175,000, the Senate $44,175,000.

An amendment written into the authorization requires the Communications Satellite Corp. to reimburse the space agency for all "exclusive" benefits it obtains from government experimentation.

'Town Meeting' lauded

Senator Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.), chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, last week praised CBS-TV's Town Meeting of the Air program, broadcast this summer (BROADCASTING, July 15).

Senator Magnuson said CBS President Dr. Frank Stanton's "initiative and perseverence, and the resourcefulness and imagination of the executive producer, Fred W. Friendly, contributed enormously to this historic landmark in global communications."

"I congratulate those pioneers here and in Europe," the senator said, "who made this broadcast possible." The program was the first of its kind to use a satellite relay between the U. S. and Europe.

Harris tells the FCC to turn around

HE DEPLORES FAIRNESS DOCTRINE, AD LIMITS, HORSE RACE BAN

The number one broadcasting authority in the U. S. House of Representatives as much as told the FCC last week to scrap its new fairness doctrine and its proposals to impose limitations on advertising time and on broadcasts of horse racing information.

Oren Harris, chairman of the House Commerce Committee, which is responsible for broadcast legislation, took public issue with the FCC in a speech prepared for delivery at a meeting of the Arkansas Broadcasters Association last Saturday (Sept. 7).

The speech was in an unusual form. It consisted mostly of the texts of two letters Mr. Harris had written, one to FCC Chairman E. William Henry and the other to a troubled but unidentified broadcaster who had told Mr. Harris he was on the verge of getting out of radio and television because of government harassment.

The letter to Mr. Henry, dated Sept. 5, was confined to the commission's recent policy statement on its fairness doctrine. Mr. Harris accused the FCC of assuming programing responsibility that was rightfully the broadcaster's, and he demanded that the agency reconsider its fairness policy.

In the letter to the broadcaster Mr. Harris took up other subjects:

- He predicted that the FCC "may very well drop" its proposal to limit the amount of time that broadcasters may devote to commercial messages.
- He said the commission's proposal to ban most horse racing broadcasts, along with its new fairness policy and plan to impose commercial limitations, denoted a "new commission attitude [that] I regret."
- He did nothing, however, to allay broadcasters' fears of tough new regulations on editorializing. He said Congress ought to lay down the "ground rules" for editorializing, and he said he was "deeply disappointed" that broadcasters regarded attempts to do so as interference with free speech.
- He endorsed the National Association of Broadcasters' project to audit the program rating services and said that legislation to regulate the raters "should only be the last resort."
- He claimed for Congress the right to make policy on the regulation of community antenna systems in television and disagreed with the FCC's assertion of authority in that field.

Below are the slightly condensed texts of Mr. Harris's letters to Mr. Henry and the unnamed broadcaster:

Dear Chairman Henry:

On July 25 the commission adopted a public notice advising broadcast licensees concerning their responsibilities in connection with programing on controversial issues under the commission's so-called "fairness doctrine." In its notice the commission states:

"When a licensee permits the use of its facilities for the presentation of views regarding an issue of current importance such as racial segregation, integration or discrimination, or any other issue of public importance, he must offer spokesmen for other responsible groups within the community similar opportunities for the expression of the contrasting viewpoints of their respective groups. In determining compliance with the fairness doctrine the commission looks to substance rather than to label or form. It is immaterial whether a particular program or viewpoint is presented under the label of 'Americanism,' 'anti-Communism' or 'states' rights,' or whether it is a paid announcement, official speech, editorial or religious broadcast. Regardless of label or form, if one viewpoint of a controversial issue of public importance is presented, the licensee is obligated to make a reasonable effort to present the other opposing viewpoint or viewpoints."

The quoted passages, in my considered opinion, give to the public interest standard of the Communications Act an interpretation which is contrary to the basic pattern of the act. Under the act the responsibility for broadcast programs rests with the individual licensee. In discharging this responsibility the licensee is called upon to establish and meet the needs of the community which he serves. At renewal time he must then give to the commission an accounting of his stewardship.

The authority and responsibility of the commission with regard to programs thus is limited to determining periodically whether or not the licensee on an over-all basis has performed in the public interest.

There are specific statutory exceptions to this basic rule. The Communications Act imposes a specific obligation upon a broadcast licensee who permits use of his facilities by a political candidate. Another specific obligation with regard to programing is contained in Section 317 of the act.*

*These specific statutory obligations merely confirm the general pattern of the act that the licensee has the primary responsibility for determining on a day-to-day basis the content of programs and that the commission is limited to a periodic over-all review of broadcast programing.

The passages quoted from the commission's notice of July 25 can only result in obliterating this fundamental dividing line of responsibility with regard to programing between licensees and the commission. If the commission in an attempt to achieve fairness seeks to apply its "fairness doctrine" to the content of individual programs involving the discussion of issues of public importance, then, contrary to the policy of the act, the commission inevitably will inject itself into programing on a day-to-day basis.

Let us assume that a station broadcasts a regularly scheduled religious program. The minister in the sermon thus broadcast criticizes the policy of a local builder not to sell his homes to Negroes. He appeals to his congregation and to the listeners to support this stand by picketing the sales office of the local builder.

In conforming with the notice, must the station seek out the builder and offer him an opportunity to reply? Let us assume the builder desires to reply. In his reply he states that he alone cannot modify the mores of the community and he appeals for a modification of the presidential order aimed at the prevention of racial discrimination in housing financed under federal government programs. The builder feels that the order should be extended to cover homes constructed with the aid of traditional loans advanced by banks or building and loan associations without recourse to veterans or FHA financing.

Other builders oppose the stand taken by this builder. They feel that the constitutionality of the President's order, as it now stands, should be tested in the courts and that under no circumstances should the order be extended to conventional mortgage loan financing. Should these builders then be given an opportunity to voice their views over the station?

A recent public opinion poll indicates that many more white Americans approve of nonsegregated schools and churches than approve of non-segregated housing. Is the station to offer time for the presentation of this point of view as well?

What about the point of view advanced publicly by some prominent white persons that Negroes should be redistributed among the 50 states so as to approach a roughly equal distribution of Negroes in relation to white population in each of the 50 states? What about the often-publicized views of some prominent Negroes who favor concentrating all Negroes in some of the 50 states so as to allow Negroes to develop their own economic, social and cultural institutions?

Where is the discussion of public issues to stop which started with the broadcast of a regularly scheduled religious program?

Will not the attempt to achieve "fairness" with regard to individual programs lead to a blue-penciling by broadcasters of all programs containing references to public issues, including sermons broadcast from churches? Will not stations want to avoid starting an interminable chain of argument and debate? Will they, therefore, be inclined to omit one of the sources of this danger, namely, religious programs?

All of the facts in the example are taken from recent responsible news reports concerning "contrasting viewpoints" which have been expressed on this particular "issue of current importance." I wonder how the commission proposes to deal with cases like these under its public notice of July 25?

The public notice, if actually enforced, is likely to have one further result: It is likely to place an intolerable administrative burden upon the members of the commission which the members cannot possibly discharge without neglecting other important responsibilities placed upon them by the act. Thus, in order to meet the responsibilities under the public notice, the commission will have to discharge the day-to-day determination of what constitutes fairness in programs involving the discussion of public issues. Certainly nothing like this was ever contemplated by the framers of the Communications Act. On the contrary, the very purpose of the act is to leave primary responsibility for programming with the licensees.

I am, therefore, calling upon the commission to review the content of its public notice of July 25 in order to determine whether it is in conformity with the Communications Act of 1934, as amended. If the commission, upon review, determines that it is not in conformity with the act, I trust the commission will appropriately modify its public notice.

In either case I request your early advice as to the decision reached by the Commission in this matter.

Sincerely yours,
Oren Harris, M.C.

The second letter was addressed to "one of the many broadcasters whom I have had the pleasure of meeting in the course of my 23 years of service in the House of Representatives":

Dear Friend:

I have been thinking about what you told me during your last visit at my office. You said, I remember vividly, that you had your "belly full" and were about ready to sell your station. A broadcast station license, you felt, was tantamount to a hunting license for the FCC and the Congress to haunt broadcasters in connection with every aspect of their business.

Let me take the things you mentioned one by one:

First, with regard to the commission's proposed advertising limitations, I believe firmly that after the comments are all in and after the commission will have had an opportunity to think over this matter, it may very well drop the proposed limitations. In any event, Representative Walter Rogers of Texas, who is the chairman of our Subcommittee on Communications and Power, has introduced a bill which would clarify that the commission does not have any power to adopt rules limiting advertising. I take it that while the effect of the bill would be to eliminate the commission's rulemaking power in this respect it could still in granting a license take into consideration whether the program service offered meets the needs of the community and this inquiry would include the question whether such program service involves excessive commercialization.

I believe the bill constitutes a step in the right direction in that it would permit the commission to cope with excessive commercialization as one aspect of programming on a case-by-case over-all basis without letting the commission inject itself into the day-to-day program operation of all broadcast stations.

As to the second point—the commission's recent elaboration of the fairness doctrine—I have written a letter to the commission wherein I expressed some of my views on this subject. I expect to hear from the commission before long, and I shall send you a copy of their reply.

Thirdly, you have mentioned our committee's broadcast ratings investigation. This investigation has been concluded. I think you will agree with me—the facts are that many broadcasters have been taken in by many ratings services. Perhaps some of the broadcasters did not mind too much being taken in. However, I believe you will agree that broadcasters cannot meet the public interest standard of the Communications Act and at the same time use false or at least misleading broadcast ratings.

I have expressed before the view that legislation in this area should only be the last resort. Individual broadcasters, however, are not in a very good position to evaluate the adequacy of rating procedures and rating information. If broadcasters were required to shoulder this responsibility individually I venture to say that ratings would necessarily have to fall into disuse.

The only way in which broadcasters can audit rating services is to do so collectively as has been proposed by the National Association of Broadcasters. The association has made good progress in establishing an audit bureau for rating services and I hope the association has the full support of its members in taking this step.

This reminds me that you had some misgivings about your own trade association. Let me remind you that your association was responsible for the adoption of radio and television codes which contain specific provisions concerning the limitation of advertising. It is a fact that only about 38% of radio stations and 70% television have subscribed to the codes. I venture to say that had your association been in a position to exercise greater influence in this area the industry might not be confronted now with commission rulemaking on advertising.

I have already said that I don’t agree with the commission’s proposed rule, but I do believe that broadcasters individually and collectively can do more in this area than has been done in the past.

The last point which you made concerns our committee’s hearings on editorializing. As you know, the Communications Act does not contain any specific provisions on this subject and many questions have been raised as to what should be the ground rules for broadcast editorializing. I am of the firm conviction that the Congress should concern itself with the establishment of such ground rules and that it should not leave this important question to the FCC without at least laying down specific guidelines to the commission. I am deeply disappointed that many broadcasters have viewed these hearings as an attempt on the part of Congress to interfere with free speech. Certainly, this was not our intention. As early as 1958, in speaking to the Connecticut Broadcast Association, I stressed the importance of broadcast editorializing and expressed the hope that this practice would become more widespread than it had been heretofore. I hold to the views then expressed.

The attitude of many broadcasters towards our hearings on editorializing seems symptomatic to me of the prevailing mood of broadcasters today. Broadcasters in general seem to feel on the defensive.

Let me suggest that the requirement that broadcasters must establish and meet community needs can be both your shield and sword. If you succeed in getting your communities behind you you need not fear greatly governmental criticism or interference. The commission’s Omaha hearings seem ample proof of my contention.

I have a strong feeling that in recent months the commission may have forgotten an important principle which it alluded to in its statement on programming.* The commission stated “we do not intend to guide the licensee along the path of programming; on the contrary the licensee must find his own path with the guidance of those whom the signal is to serve.”

The commission’s notice of fairness, its proposed rulemaking on advertising, and the proposed ban on horse racing information, seem to me examples of this new commission attitude. I regret this attitude and I hope this trend will not continue.

There is one more thing I wanted to say to you since you are operating a television station in addition to an AM-FM radio station. It has recently come to my attention that community antenna television systems are increasing by leaps and bounds. In my own state there are now more than twice as many such systems as there are television stations.

The commission, without any specific statutory authority from the Congress, has attempted to regulate community antenna television systems and this regulation has met with a great deal of opposition. The commission has won an important judicial victory in the Carter Mountain case. In that case the court upheld the contention of the commission that it could use its power to license microwave operations for the purpose of regulating community antenna systems.

I don’t agree with this approach but the court in this case upheld the commission’s point of view. I am still old-fashioned enough to believe that basic policies should be laid down by the Congress, and not by commission fiat with judicial approval.

I just wanted to mention this because it seems to me that a basic conflict seems in the offing between local television stations on the one hand and community antenna systems on the other. Unless some steps are taken to resolve this conflict, the Congress may well be called upon to do the resolving for the two contending parties.

We just had some experience with resolving a management-labor conflict in the railroad industry, and I can assure you that none of us members of Congress cherish the thought of having to do the same thing with disputes of this nature on a continuing basis.

Thus you can see we members of Congress have a few gripes of our own and I don’t expect you to be able to take care of ours. However, I shall do my best to take care of some of your complaints and I shall also be glad to hear from you.

Sincerely yours,
Oren Harris, M.C., Chairman

'SMUT’ WAS INCIDENTAL, FCC SAYS

Robinson testimony was enough for renewal denial

The FCC vigorously defended last week its right to look at programming and claimed that court decisions and congressional legislative history upheld this view.

But, it added in its brief to the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia in the WKDK Kingstree, S. C., case, even without the question of the "smut" and "vulgarity" of Charlie Walker’s patter, its refusal to renew the WKDK license must be sustained because the licensee, E. G. Robinson Jr., misrepresented his knowledge of the questioned broadcasts.

The commission last year denied the WKDK license renewal after a hearing in Kingstree. It held that Mr. Robinson permitted disc jockey Charlie Walker to broadcast programs that were "coarse, vulgar and suggestive of indecent double meanings."

Mr. Robinson in his appeal maintained that the FCC has no right to look at programming. He contended that the FCC decision violates the First Amendment and the "no censorship" provision of Section 326 of the Com-
"DESIGN IT THE BEST YOU KNOW HOW, AFTER WHICH WE WILL PRICE IT"

This was the instruction from Gates management throughout the development of the BC-5P-2 5000 watt AM broadcast transmitter. That this directive became a reality is now history, as 218 of these transmitters now operate world-wide. Several of the design features, responsible for this universal acceptance, are listed below. In preparing this analysis, Gates recognizes that the items it omits could be construed as weak points. Actually, this effort is to cover the points that are of major importance to a buyer who is going to invest several thousand dollars for a 5000 watt transmitter.

TRANSMITTER SIZE: A prime objective was to fit the transmitter into the smallest possible room size, while staying within good engineering practice. There was no sensible reason, however, to build it so small that: (1) it is hard to service, (2) it runs hot, and (3) it cannot be 100% self-contained. After all, few things are worse than finding room and protection of life for an outboard high voltage power transformer. BC-5P-2 is 100% self-contained in 3 cubicles, each with its own cooling system. Floor size is 73½" across and 39½" front to back. With the 78" height, BC-5P-2 has a total cubage of 135.6, a minimum for both good cooling and serviceability with common sense ease.

TRI-UNIT COOLING: The BC-5P-2 features a special 3-cabinet cooling system consisting of blowers, each with 270 C.F.M. air capacity and ¼ H.P. motor, plus ceiling suction fan. Blowers are shock mounted to assure minimum low frequency noise.

FULL TEE NET TANK:
Gates does not stop at the dotted line ... (below). The

![Diagram of a full tee net tank]

BC-5P-2 has a complete Tee network to guarantee meeting FCC harmonic reduction figures. FCC rules say this reduction is "as measured into a suitable load". Gates DOES NOT interpret a suitable load as an antenna coupler with its own network. The BC-5P-2 must meet FCC harmonic measurements at the transmitter output terminals into a pure resistance dummy antenna. Nothing else!

POWER AMPLIFIER COMPONENT VALUES: Lasting power is as important as output power. For this reason, Gates has installed what we firmly believe to be the largest power amplifier component list of any 5000 watt transmitter made. To prove this, we list these values for you to check.

- Plate Tank Coil: Edgewound ribbon, Micalex insulated, rotating type for tuning, ½" x ½" ribbon, silver plated, 20 amperes rating.
- Tank Vacuum Capacitor: Jennings Model M voltage 15,000 volts. Current: 21 amperes.
- Shunt Capacitor No. 1 Tee Network: Ceramic insulated 5½ Mica Type G3 rated at 15,000 volts and 21-27 amperes.
- First Tee Net Coil: Edgewound, ribbon Micalex insulated, fixed tapped, ribbon 3/32" x ½" silver plated, 15 amperes.
- Second Tee Net Coil: Rotating type continuously variable edgewound ribbon, Micalex insulated. Ribbon ½" x ½". Silver plated, 20 amperes.

POWER OUTPUT: Capable of 5000 watts, the transmitter provides ample margin for losses incurred in directional arrays. The ability to modulate an easy 100% (note easy) is very important. The same modulator tube complement is used in the BC-5P-2 as in the Gates 10,000 watt model and at the same plate voltage.

TUBE OR SILICON RECTIFIERS: Gates has both. What should I buy? As silicon rectifiers cost more and must never fail (they are not replaced like a tube) Gates feels that the very best is necessary and demands 3 times voltage and 15 times current safety factors. If the equipment is operator-attended, such as with directional tubes, might be preferred.

TRANSFORMERS: The heart of any equipment. Here, the number is important, as distribution of load has much to do with transformer and transmitter heat, and heat has very much to do with transmitter life. BC-5P-2 has a total of 22 sealed transformers and reactors, sparsely distributed throughout the three cubicles. They are all made for 50 cycle service — a 20% bonus safety factor for 60 cycle users.

CABINET RADIATION: All broadcast transmitters must pass critical cabinet radiation tests to obtain FCC approval. To assure absolute cabinet radiation compliance, the entire RF driver/tank and output network are constructed within an 11 gauge aluminum housing.

commissions Act (Broadcasting, July 15).

Coming to the station's defense, but on somewhat different grounds, was the American Civil Liberties Union. Although acknowledging that the commission has the authority to look at programs, the ACLU attack was on the vagueness of the standards by which it judged the Charlie Walker broadcasts (Broadcasting, Aug. 26).

The commission's brief last week was the final one in the case. No date has yet been set for argument before the circuit court.

Right To Review - The FCC bolstered its contention that it has the right to review programs with a half-dozen court cases.

"It has long been settled," it said, "that the commission has authority to consider the past or proposed service of an applicant, and that a denial of license upon a ground reasonably related to the public interest, including the character and quality of the program service, is neither censorship within the meaning of Section 326 of the Communications Act nor an abridgement of the right of free speech."

While the First Amendment extends to broadcasting, the FCC said, "different rules are appropriate for different media of expression." The commission's concern with program content, it said, "does not stop with a decision that the material falls within the protection of the First Amendment; it necessarily extends also to consideration of whether the program serves the public interest...

Answering the ACLU argument that the commission's standards were not sufficiently precise, the FCC said: "Since the commission was deciding a particular case of adjudication, the terms 'coarse, vulgar, suggestive and susceptible of indecent double meaning' take concreteness from the material which they describe."

The ACLU argument might apply to rulemaking or a general rule, the FCC said, adding: "The commission has a proper concern with a pattern of operations which has patently offensive and vulgar and which the licensee itself is unwilling to defend in the public interest. It has a right to compel an applicant to prove that there is something more than naked commercial selfishness in his purpose. Misuse of a public trust is clearly relevant to the statutory objective. The commission's concern with the sensibilities of the housewife, teen-ager and the young child also has a legitimate basis in the context of radio broadcasting, and particularly in the case of disc jockey patter. The suggestion of the ACLU that the commission's decision may stifle creative programing is without substance. The commission was at pains to limit its holding to the facts of this case, pointing out that the test it employed would not necessarily apply to other types of programing."

Other Grounds - At one point in its brief the FCC suggested to the court that it need not meet the constitutional issue of free speech; it could decide the case on the misrepresentation issue.

At another point it said that even if Mr. Robertson's plea that he was not liable for the material broadcast by his disc jockey was accepted, this showed he failed to exercise proper control over the station's programing and had thus failed to meet "a most fundamental licensee obligation."

The commission agreed that its discretion in the program field is not "absolute or unbounded."

"We do urge that once the basic principle of congressional authority to require operation in the public interest as determined by the commission is accepted, the 'public interest' standard considered in the context of the radio medium provides an adequate standard for commission action and for judicial review in the program field," the commission stated.

MOUNT OPPOSITION TO FCC COMMERCIAL TIME LIMITS

The nation's airlines have received unexpected dividends from a most unlikely source—a proposed rulemaking by the FCC.

This has come about through extra heavy traffic by broadcasters to Washington to line up opposition in Congress to the commission's proposal to adopt the commercial time standards of the National Association of Broadcasters' voluntary codes as government rules.

Latest state delegation of broadcasters to visit its congressional delegation was from Oklahoma last week (see picture, this page) while the North Carolina and Missouri associations will be on Capitol Hill next week. The Oklahomans were successful in their crusade, with the Oklahoma congressmen agreeing unanimously to file a joint opposition with the FCC.

The North Carolina Association of Broadcasters, led by President Jac Starnes, WBAE Burlington, will visit its congressmen tomorrow (Tuesday) with Missouri broadcasters due the next day. Don Dailey, KXBF Springfield, and president of the Missouri Association of Broadcasters, will head that delegation. Other state associations from Tennessee, Georgia and West Virginia have also made trips to Washington in opposition to the FCC's plan.

In addition, 19 state associations have taken formal actions opposing the FCC rulemaking, according to Milt Magruder, NAB assistant director of public relations. NAB records also show that broadcasters from over 40 states have made personal, written or telephone appeals to members of Congress on the time standards rulemaking. Comments continued to come in at the FCC last week with the deadline a week from today (Sept. 16).

ACCEPTANCE

...23 of the top 25 national spot TV advertisers bought KTVU last year.* Here is evidence of advertisers' acceptance of the San Francisco Bay Area's independent television station. Programming which meets the varied tastes of the Bay Area TV audience is one reason for this acceptance. Clean commercial scheduling with no triple spotting and no product conflicts is another. For greater effectiveness, join the advertising leaders and buy KTVU.

More oppose adoption of codes as FCC rules

A few more kicks were aimed at the FCC's backside last week in protest against the commission's proposed adoption of the National Association of Broadcasters' radio and television code commercial time standards as FCC rules (Broadcasting, May 20). Broadcasters have been objecting right along (Broadcasting, Sept. 2, Aug. 19), but some other groups got into the act last week. Identical petitions signed by four organizations from Opelousas, La.—the St. Landry Parish Farm Bureau, the St. Landry Parish Cattlemen's Association, the Opelousas Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Opelousas Lion's Club—scored the proposal to turn the codes into FCC rules as contrary to the American system of free enterprise.

Radio stations operate in the public interest under strict federal supervision, the groups argued, and even formed the NAB, which serves as a self-regulatory body for broadcasters.

The Advertising Club of Chattanooga criticized the proposed rulemaking as an infringement of free speech and contrary to the Bill of Rights. Broadcasters, it said, are perfectly capable of self-regulation.

KMUL Muleshoe, Tex., the only broadcast interest to comment on the proposed advertising restrictions last week, said that the station generally conforms to the NAB code, but sometimes it is more in the public interest to go over the voluntary limits when a public service is rendered by a commercial. Thus, the station said, the rules, if adopted, would actually discriminate against the businessmen who necessarily would be refused advertising time on such occasions.

The same commission proposal was the subject of a letter from the Texas Association of Broadcasters to its members. The letter scored the proposed rulemaking as unconstitutional and urged support for a bill recently introduced in the House of Representatives by Representative Walter Rogers (D-Tex.). The bill (Broadcasting, Sept. 2) would forbid the FCC to make rules limiting broadcast advertising.

HEW gets new requests for ETV station funds

Three new applications for federal grants to build or improve educational TV stations were accepted last week by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which administers the program.

The new applications, seeking a total of $267,163, were filed by Des Moines, Iowa, School District for $43,886 to expand the facilities of KDPS-TV (ch. 11); Santa Barbara, Calif., ETV for $139,043 to activate a new station on channel 20, and St. Louis ETV Commission for $84,234 to improve the facilities of KETC-TV (ch. 9).

HEW approved the first five grants 10 days ago, totaling $858,152 (Broadcasting, Sept. 2), and now has 14 additional requests pending.

Some equal time changes please Prohibitionists

The Prohibition party bar has endorsed suspension of equal time requirements for the 1964 presidential and vice presidential candidates and urged broadcasters to follow the guide of fairness.

Adopting a resolution by acclamation at its annual convention in St. Louis, the Prohibition party noted that broadcasters, "mature members of the American community," have shown an "increasing awareness" of their obligations.

The Prohibition sentiments were transmitted to the Senate Commerce Committee which has Section 315 changes under consideration.

The resolution called on broadcasters to provide "adequate time for discussion of campaign issues, without lumping so-called third parties in one 'variety package' type of program."

FINANCIAL REPORTS

Capitol reports one of its best years

In the fiscal year ended June 30, Capitol's Records had its highest sales since 1959 and the second highest in the company's 21 years, Glenn E. Wallichs, board chairman and chief executive officer, told a board meeting in Hollywood Aug. 23. He credited the sales increase to across-the-board success with albums, whose sales reached an all-time high, and single records, which had their best sales since 1957. Electra Megadyne Inc., Capitol's electronics subsidiary, in its second year of operations doubled the previous year's volume, Mr. Wallichs reported. EMV TV switching and/or broadcast systems have been installed at four universities and four airports in addition to TV stations throughout the country.

New York indicts broker for stealing

The New York state attorney general's office reported last week that Bernard M. Kahn, a New York broker-dealer, has been arrested on charges of stealing $65,000 from two clients who had bought shares in Home Entertainment Co. of America, Santa Monica, Calif., a pay TV organization. Home Entertainment Co. is not involved in the charges, the attorney general's office said.

An affidavit by the attorney general stated that the money given to Mr. Kahn was to have been placed in a special escrow account in the Bank of America in Los Angeles. It said Mr. Kahn had the bank deposit the $65,000 in his personal account in the bank's Beverly Hills branch. The attorney general's office said Mr. Kahn has been indicted on six counts in connection with the offering of $3 million of Home Entertainment stock, which never was completed.

Home Entertainment Co. of America severed connections with Mr. Kahn last month (Broadcasting, July 22).

Paramount dividend: Paramount Pictures Corp. will pay a quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on common stock Sept. 20, to stockholders of record Sept. 3.

 Edited by the American Trucking Association Foundation and the Trailmobile division of Pullman Inc., a Cincinnati truck-trailer manufacturer.

Prizes will be given in three fields—magazines, newspapers and radio-TV, with a special $500 award for weekly newspapers. Second place winners will receive $700 and third place will bring $300. The entries will be judged by an independent panel of six members from the three fields and winners will be named on the basis of their contribution "to the understanding of metropolitan transportation problems."

Entries for the contest, which is named for the founder of the American Trucking Association, must be received by the ATA Foundation, 1616 P Street, N.W., Washington 36, D.C., no later than Dec. 31, 1963.

‘Battle Line' getting slots in prime-time

The sales impact of Official Films’ ‘Battle Line' series was pointed up in a report last week by Robert A. Behrens, vice president in charge of sales for OF, who noted that 15% of the 73 stations signed for the first-run series have pre-empted networks shows in prime time.

The half-hour actuality program has been sold in 73 markets and will begin on many stations later this month, according to Mr. Behrens. Among the network programs being pre-empted by ‘Battle Line,' he said, are CBS-TV's 'Twilight Zone, Petticoat Junction, Password and Mr. Ed; NBC-TV's 'Redigo, Temple Houston and Bill Dana Show and ABC-TV's 'Farmer's Daughter and ABC Special Reports.'
Here's a unique built-in feature! The Recording Amplifier of the RT-7B Cartridge Tape System generates two kinds of cue signals. One is used to automatically cue up each tape, at the beginning of a program, the same as in ordinary units. The other signal, a special Trip-Cue, can be placed anywhere on the tape. This will cause the playback unit to trip and start other station equipments.

You can preset two, or a dozen or more RCA tape units, to play sequentially. You can play back a series of spots or musical selections, activate tape recorders, turntables, or other devices capable of being remotely started. (In TV use 'Trip-Cue is ideal for slide commercials. Tape announcements can be cued to advance the slide projector.)

You'll like the RT-7B's automatic, silent operation, its compactness, high styling, perfect reproduction. Cartridge is selected, placed in playback unit, forgotten until "air" time, then instantly played. Cueing and threading are eliminated. Cue fluffs are a thing of the past!

Transistor circuitry, good regulation for precise timing, low power consumption, are among other valuable features.
SHAPING UP: '64 POLITICAL SHOWS
Nominating conventions will be more streamlined than ever in effort to keep radio-TV audience listening and watching

When the Democratic and Republican parties pull the wraps off their national conventions next summer, the nation will find that the historic nominating machinery has been streamlined more than ever for the television and radio audience.

Politicians and broadcasters have learned from experience that the electronic media have changed these conventions. No longer can the parties afford the archaic, long-winded, delegate-oriented pageants of the past. The national audiences, as the parties have seen, will dial away.

And the broadcasters, for their part, are planning supplementary programming to insert when the conventions become dull and tedious. Video tape has given broadcasters an opportunity to switch away from the proceedings on the convention floor and turn to reports and interviews recorded when the floor activity was more interesting.

Convention coverage of 1960, succeeded the best to date, will be improved and surpassed in 1964, according to predictions. (See page 88.)

Radio-TV Boost = Broadcasting's convention coverage has become a welcome boon to the party treasuries—four or five days of constant prime time attention focused on the parties, one at a time, with only an occasional baseball game or old movie to distract the audience. Broadcasters and their sponsors pick up the tab, and the politicians provide the show. If it's a winner, the well-done convention can give a presidential candidate such a boost that its momentum can go a long way in carrying him to victory.

But if the show is a bore and the national audience begins to flip dials in a desperate search for anything but the convention, politicians admit that this can bring on punishment in the ballot box.

Work on the 1964 conventions is underway. The men who will direct the major coverage (network and large station chains) have met with the party convention planners and already have conducted on-site inspections of facilities at the convention cities—San Francisco July 13-17 for the Republicans and Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 24-28 for the Democrats.

In Washington, meanwhile, party workers are wading through stacks of requests for working space at the convention halls, more studio and working space at the convention hotels plus rooms for the thousands of newsmen and technicians, and parking space for the hundreds of mobile units and private vehicles required for these mammoth special events.

Those In Charge = The White House is awaiting the right moment to announce formally what some broadcasters have known for months—that J. Leonard Reinsch of Atlanta, executive director of the Cox stations, will again be in charge of the entire Democratic

The democrats will be meeting in Atlantic City's Convention Hall, which will be host to a national political convention for the first time. Looking over the hall are (l-r) William Eames, CBS News editorial director; Leonard Reinsch, convention manager for the Democratic National Committee; Jack Christie, committee co-coordinator for radio-TV; Robert Wussler, CBS News production director; and Alvin Thaler, CBS News production manager for convention coverage. CBS will handle the TV pool for the Democratic convention.

- Exceptionally flat mid-frequency response plus one of the smoothest 1000-to-2000-cps response characteristics ever measured, resulting in extremely pure midrange quality.
- Two specially damped 3 1/2" tweeters, with smooth response all the way to 20,000 cps.
- Wide high-frequency dispersion, with polar response characteristic far superior to that of conventional tweeters of similar size.
- 4,500-cps LC dividing network.
- Rigidly constructed cabinet with woven metal grille.
- Impedance: 4 ohms. Size: 24" x 13" x 12 1/2" deep. Weight: 45 lbs.

Networks will use ‘everything’ in covering conventions

The people responsible for network television coverage of the 1964 national political conventions pledged last week they will give the Republican and Democratic events everything they’ve got in manpower, time and equipment.

All agreed that the emphasis this time will be on putting the convention story in perspective for the viewer at home, a change from previous coverage which tended to stress proceedings on the convention floor (see page 86).

NBC News, which won critical praise for its 1960 coverage (Broadcasting, Aug. 1, 1960), “will use every resource possible” to stay on top, said Julian Goodman, NBC News vice president. The network will call on many of the key men who were responsible for NBC’s 1960 performance. Working under the direction of William R. McAndrew, NBC News executive vice president, Mr. Goodman will be Reuven Frank, producer, and George Murray, director.

There will be some technical innovations that the network is not yet ready to reveal, Mr. Goodman promised. The NBC wire service, inaugurated during 1960’s convention coverage and recently put into fulltime operation (Broadcasting, Aug. 5), will be utilized, he said. The network also intends to assign reporters to each of the state delegations as it did in 1960, a device that kept NBC unusually well informed on breaking news developments, Mr. Goodman added. And, of course, he said, Chet Huntley and David Brinkley will be the anchors.

CBS Plans - CBS News has done some reorganizing since 1960 and will employ the special election unit that it formed in January last year and which covered the 1962 elections for CBS. Headed by Bill Leonard, executive producer, the unit is presently operating with a permanent staff of eight “which will probably expand to 95% of CBS News by July,” commented William Eames, the unit’s editorial director.

“Our prime goal will be to work from now until the conventions whereby we can tell the story better,” Mr. Eames said. Perhaps the story has been lost in past concentration on technique and machinery, he suggested.

The convention viewer can look for great improvement in portable cameras, more sophisticated coverage and better pictures—and a real improvement in internal communications, “one of the big bugaboos,” Mr. Eames said.

Anchor positions will be handled differently next year, he said, but he did not explain how.

At ABC - Elmer Lower, new president of ABC News (Broadcasting, Aug. 26), has a large share of responsibility for CBS’s 1956 convention coverage and NBC’s in 1960. “I will be giving a lot of personal supervision to ABC’s coverage,” Mr. Lower said while in Washington conferencing with his capital news team last week. “ABC expects to be fully competitive in every way,” he said. The network has about a dozen men at work on convention planning right now, Mr. Lower added. Robert Quinn, the news department’s executive producer, also will be executive producer for the convention, and Bill Leonard, who this year was the principal director, Mr. Lower said.

Like the other networks, ABC is developing material for use when interest wanes on the floor. The network will use an anchorman, Mr. Lower said, but he has not been named.

convention (Closed Circuit, Aug. 12). Mr. Reinsch has handled broadcasting arrangements for Democratic conventions since 1944 and has directed the party’s national conventions since 1956.

The Republicans, who rely less on professional media personnel for this work, already have named Robert R. Snodgrass, an Atlanta businessman and veteran national committee man from Georgia, to handle radio and television arrangements.

Both already have guided media representatives through the convention halls and hotels. Decisions on who’ll get what space probably won’t be made until the first of next year.

But the parties have assured broadcasters that they will do everything they can to cooperate and ease the sizeable problems of convention coverage.

Intramural Competition - Convention coverage has become a prestige battle for broadcasters and for the networks especially. The conventions have become tests of their enterprise, mobility and endurance. But despite the intense competition—or perhaps because of it—broadcasters will again form pools to avoid impossible congestion at key points on the convention floor and at the hotels. NBC drew the TV pool responsibility for the Republican convention; ABC passed up its chance to handle the Democratic convention so CBS will be in charge at Atlantic City. Mutual is taking care of radio pools at both conventions.

The parties report that broadcasters are asking for more convention space than in the past. Requests for credentials also are up.

For the Democrats next year’s convention will pose some of the problems faced by the Republicans in 1956—little contest for the nomination. “This is the first time since 1944 that we’ve had a convention with predictable results,” Mr. Reinsch said.

The Big Contest - The Republicans will have a situation comparable to the 1960 Democratic convention—a wide open contest. The GOP believes this very contest gives their convention “an inherent interest” from the point of view of a national audience, said William Sprague, director of public relations for the Republican National Committee.

“As far as making a good television show is concerned,” Mr. Sprague said, “we have long been aware of the importance of that audience. . . . We will try to make it as easy as possible for the media to get the work done that they know best how to do. I will be hoping to see that the media get every possible advantage, but we do have to leave room in the hall for the delegates.”

Mr. Reinsch predicts the Democratic convention “will be the most streamlined political convention anybody’s held in years. We are mindful of the 1956 Republican convention which went overboard in entertainment and when President Eisenhower’s motorcade from his hotel to the convention hall took precedence over some of the speeches being made in the hall by cabinet members,” he said. Scheduling of events will be critical, he added, but Democrats “have geared their conventions in a way that places emphasis on voters in the audience rather than on the hall" where attention formerly was focused.

TV's Dangers • Mr. Reinsch, an experienced broadcaster, noted that "convention coverage on TV can also be dangerous—pre-empting too many programs, upsetting viewing patterns—this can develop resentment which will show up in the ballot box.

"Radio did away with the newspaper extra and television did away with the deadlocked convention," he said. Looking off to some future convention, certainly not next year's, Mr. Reinsch said that a deadlock would cripple a campaign if television stayed with it and continued to pre-empt shows.

A major Democratic innovation will be the elimination of a headquarters hotel, Mr. Reinsch said. "This is intended to make it easier for all media and the Democratic National Committee." It will save duplication because the media normally set up double facilities, one at the convention hotel and the other at the convention site, he explained. This move should save time, money and crews, especially for broadcasters, he said. The networks "are all thrilled" about it, Mr. Reinsch commented.

This also saves the national committee "from the ticklish job of obtaining accommodations for VIPs," Mr. Reinsch noted. "Everybody wants to stay at the headquarters hotel," he said.

Another Democratic innovation has been proposed: the presidential nominee's acceptance speech, which usually precedes the selection of a vice presidential candidate, will be held off until the end of the convention.

GOP 'Amateurs' • Republican sources have been less specific on their 1964 plans, mainly because most of the party people involved are relative amateurs in media. Mr. Snodgrass is first a businessman in auto finance and second a Republican party leader. Robert L. Pierce, national committeeman from Wisconsin, in charge of all convention arrangements, also has no media experience. But this is the way Republicans have always handled their conventions, a party spokesman said, and it's always worked out.

"We will do everything we possibly can to interest the TV audience because we reach so many people that way," Mr. Pierce said last week. "We got a lot of ideas from their [the Democrats'] 1960 convention in Los Angeles and I think we learned from some of their mistakes... maybe I'm biased," Mr. Pierce said.

Both parties are sure to place time limits on the length of demonstrations and have for years limited nominating and seconding speeches.

One of the major innovations in convention programing has been the use of film to illustrate the party platforms.

Both parties did this in 1960, and as Mr. Reinsch noted, the Democrats were first to use pictorial devices. In 1956 then-Senator John F. Kennedy narrated "Pursuit of Happiness," a filmed history of the party that served as a "warm up" for the keynote address by Tennessee Governor Frank Clement.

Pictorial Reports • Mr. Pierce said 1960's pictorialization of the GOP platform was "a great expense and it wasn't worth what it cost. . . . I don't think it was terribly pleasing to an awful lot of people. My judgment is there will be no such program as in 1960."

"Mr. Reinsch declined to reveal what the Democrats plan for their 1964 program but he said the party intends to provide interest in the convention with pictorial reports of some kind.

One thing is sure: the platform committees of both parties will again meet in the week prior to the convention. As Mr. Reinsch sadly recalled of the 1952 convention, "We lost control. . . . The convention began with full live TV coverage, but the platform committee was still at work trying to hammer out its platform, and the convention was 12 hours old before it could be presented—and that had been planned as one of the first orders of business."

The Democrats lost much of their TV audience, he noted. They realized they could not afford to keep the country "waiting around again while a committee worked," and have scheduled the platform committee to meet prior to the convention, Mr. Reinsch said. The Republicans have followed suit.

Location of the conventions on opposite coasts won't present quite the logistical problem broadcasters faced in 1960. Then they had one week to pick up all their equipment and crews from where they were scattered throughout.
GOT A FRINGE PROBLEM?

SOLVE IT WITH SURROUNDING SOUND! Hook the Broadcast-er by Surrounding Sound into your circuit and you'll put more sound in your signal without affecting modulation. Los Angeles and rush them to Chicago. Next year there will be six weeks between the starts of the convention.

Timing will be a factor for the convention planners, however. The Republicans are expected to hold late afternoon sessions in San Francisco to reach the largest possible audiences throughout the country. The Democrats, convening in Atlantic City, probably will conduct night sessions to take advantage of prime time.

RTNDA convention begins Wednesday

Over 300 broadcast newsmen are expected in Minneapolis this week for the 18th annual convention of the Radio-Television News Directors Association, Wednesday-Saturday (Sept. 11-14).

A highlight of the sessions at the Radisson hotel will be the presentation of the RTNDA awards for excellence in various categories of electronic journalism.

A record total of 334 entries were submitted for the awards competition. Winners to be honored Thursday (Sept. 12) in separate radio and TV categories include:

Spot reporting, WNEW New York; WRCV-TV Philadelphia; reporting community problems, WAGU New Orleans, KBOI-TV Boise, Idaho; documentary editorial, WIND Chicago, WSB-TV Atlanta; daily editorial, WTOP Washington KWTY (TV) Oklahoma City; single subject editorial, KING-TV Seattle, single editorial documentary, WFBM Indianapolis.

Special citations: KVOR Colorado Springs for documentary, WRCV-TV for reporting community problems.

Robert Hurleigh, president of Mutual, will be the speaker at the awards luncheon.

RTNDA President William Garry, newly-appointed editorial director of WBKB(TV) Chicago, said the convention also will feature a session devoted to the subject of keeping newsmen healthy under the pressures of deadlines. Dr. Edward Litin, head of psychiatry at the Mayo Clinic, will speak on the subject.

Ted Koop, CBS Washington vice president and former RTNDA president, will deliver the keynote address Wednesday morning and Sol Taishoff, editor-publisher of Broadcasting and Television magazines, will deliver the annual banquet address Saturday night.

Don Jamieson, president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, will speak at the Saturday luncheon and that afternoon Professor Harold Nelson, University of Wisconsin, will tell the newsmen "How to Keep the Boss Out of Jail."

New officers will be elected Friday morning with 1st Vice President Edward Ryan, WTOP-AM-FM-TV Washington, scheduled to be named 1964 RTNDA president.

Four Star sets record with August sales

Four Star Distribution Corp. completed more individual sales during August than during any month of the year, grossing more than $500,000, Len Firestone, vice president and general manager, reported today (Sept. 9).

He noted that the total did not top March and April, both of which were "million dollar months," but said the 42 sales constituted a unit record for 1963. Mr. Firestone added that August usually is a "slow month," but explained that this year some stations delayed buying during June and July and made their final decisions in August.

Among the stations which bought Four Star programs during August were KSU-TV Salt Lake City; WLWT(TV) Cincinnati; WLEX-TV Lexington, Ky.; KXLY-TV Spokane, Wash. and KXOO-TV Tulsa, Okla.

The series involved were the Dick Powell Theater, Zane Grey Theater, Rifleman, The Detectives, Target: The Corruptors and Stagecoach West.

Negro variety show scheduled on WPIX(TV)

An all-Negro TV variety show using commercials with Negro talent will begin on WPIX(TV) New York under the sponsorship of Posner Distributing Corp. on Sept. 20 and subsequently will be placed on stations in Chicago, Los Angeles, Detroit and other major markets.

The half-hour film show, Showtime at the Apollo, will present such Negro performers as Nipsy Russell, Duke Ellington, Sarah Vaughn, Count Basie, Lionel Hampton and Nat King Cole.

The films were produced by Pathe Productions several years ago at the Apollo Theater in New York’s Harlem, but, according to a spokesman for Posner, have not been shown on TV or in any other medium.

Hamilton Posner, president of the Posner organization, which manufactures and distributes hair preparations for the Negro market, bought the rights to the 26 half-hour films from Pathe Films Inc. Posner’s agency is Boardman and Blachman, Parsippany, N. J.

The program will be carried on WPX in Saturday, 11:30 p.m.-12 midnight.

Roberts to head new Triangle syndication

In an expansion move in program production and distribution to stations, Triangle Broadcasting has created a syndication arm, Triangle Program Sales, with headquarters at 320 Park Avenue, New York. The telephone number is HA 1-2770.

Triangle Program Sales is headed by Mike Roberts, who recently was vice president and general manager of WBC Program Sales Inc. The first staff appointment to Triangle Program Sales was made last week by Mr. Roberts who named Keith L. Andre a sales representative. Mr. Andre has resigned

Here's the Answer To Libel Suits:

One slip of the lip, however accidental, can bring about court action—with you as the defendant in a libel suit. It can be costly enough to be disastrous. Now you can hold your loss on any claim to an agreed amount you carry yourself, and let Employers Reinsurance handle the excess. This specially designed policy provides economical protection against losses due to libel, slander, invasion of privacy, piracy, violation of copyright. For details and rates, contact:

as regional director of the Radio Advertising Bureau to accept the new post.

A major program project in which Triangle is involved is a series of half-hour programs, This Is America, films of festivals, fairs and fiestas. The color programs will be filmed by WFLI-TV Philadelphia and the first episode on the Pennsylvania Dutch Folk Festival at Kutztown, Pa., already has been produced. Other segments will be devoted to the Danbury (Conn.) Fair; Old Spanish Days Fiesta in Santa Barbara, Calif.; Festival of the Pacific at Honolulu, and the Agricultural Futurama in Harrisburg, Pa., among others.

Triangle also has signed an exclusive contract to film a performance of the Podreca Piccoli Theater (marionette troupe) for Christmas release to TV stations as a one-hour program. Triangle Program Sales will handle syndication of This Is America and the Christmas special to stations in the U. S. and abroad.

Revue uses live music for all its TV series

A total of 21 film composers and arrangers and scores of copyists and musicians from APFM Local 47 are averaging more than 1,000 man hours a week at Revue Studios, highest such activity in the TV film industry today. Revue uses live music in its 11 series, according to studio music supervisor Stanley Wilson and Harry Garfield, head of post-production.

In explaining the studio policy on music, Mr. Garfield declared that "our way of thinking has always been that foreign tracks cannot compete quality-wise with the creativity and craftsmanship which we have in the United States. We simply have never had any use for them. Even today, the lower basic cost of 'runaway recordings' is no longer a deciding factor. Our needs are so immediate and so complex that it pays us to go with the highest caliber TV and motion picture screen scoring available. Live music is no longer enough. It must be original in concept and execution in order to satisfy the taste of today's sophisticated television viewers."

Mr. Wilson reminded that television has become an important musical outlet and in the era of continually rising standards "we feel that the high quality of films we are producing deserve the best scoring talent in the business." He pointed out that besides four Emmy nominees, under assignment at Revue are four Oscar winners.

Program notes...

New regional network — The Virginia Good Music Network — WRVC-FM Norfolk, WLS-FM Roanoke and WFMV (FM) Richmond — has started a Sunday afternoon series of complete operas. The programs originate at WRVC-FM, which tapes the operas and rushes them to the other stations. The network is exploring the possibilities of expanding the chain of stations and also lengthening its classical music programming.

Tennis film — A half-hour documentary on the history of tennis narrated by Chris Schenkel and sponsored by Philip Morris as an industrial film has been completed and is intended for distribution to TV stations in America and abroad. Producer was Robert Bendick.

Sullivan and satire — CBS-TV's The Ed Sullivan Show (Sunday, 8-9 p.m.) has obtained an option to "What's Going On Here?" a series of satirical sketches by British performers, and will utilize a segment on Oct. 6. The sketches satirize the news in a new-broadcast format. The Sullivan program intends to use the segments, ranging from six to eight minutes, on various telecasts during 1963-64.

More news for NET — Beginning in October, National Educational Television will offer to its 73 affiliates a new one-hour program of news interpretation, News Analysis, produced in conjunction with The New York Times. Moderator-editor of the program will be Times Sunday editor, Lester Markel, and regular participants will be Washington correspondents Max Frankel and Tom Wicker.

New packaging firm — Adpro Production Advertising, with headquarters at Samuel Goldwyn Studios, has been organized by Maurice A. Krowitz and J. F. McCarter to package a radio show featuring Sylvia Holmes called Sylvia by Candle Light. Adpro reportedly is also in negotiations for a 15-minute sports show for TV.

Gambling special — Social and economic aspects of legalized gambling as a source of government revenue will be the subject of an hour television program scheduled for broadcast in October by wcbw-TV New York. Two production-research units have been sent abroad to conduct independent research and bring back film footage for the show. One unit is scheduled to join the New York State Assembly team in London, the other will contact New York City investigators studying legalized gambling in Wellington, New Zealand and Australia.

Veteran performer honored — Eddie Cantor, first national president of American Federation of Television and Radio Artists (1937), will be honored tomorrow (Sept. 10) in his Beverly Hills home when Jack Benny presents him with a scroll. The testimonial praises Mr. Cantor for his pioneering work with AFTRA 26 years ago, at a time when he was a star in his own right and for his continued loyalty and dedicated service to his fellow performers of radio and television. The tribute was authorized at AFTRA's recent national convention in Los Angeles.

Churchill Portrait — Seven Arts Associated Corp. has obtained for TV distribution a half-hour documentary program, "Churchill, The Man," which was produced by Associated British-Pathe Ltd. The program was approved personally by Sir Winston Churchill at a recent screening. It may not be telecast during Sir Winston's lifetime.

Back to Work — Production on the CBS-TV's Judy Garland Show, has been resumed with the appointment of Norman Jewison as executive producer for the remaining 13 shows, and Gary Smith as producer. Other appointments include Arne Sultan and Marvin Worth as head writers, and Ernie Flatt choreographer and musical stager. Production of the show was suspended in early August when producer John Schlatter

WVMC editorials dry up teen-agers’ beer supply

One small-town broadcaster in Illinois has no doubt that broadcast editorials work.

Teen-agers retaliated with a burning cross in the front yard of John Hurlbut's home in Mount Carmel Tuesday night because an editorial campaign on his station there, WVMC, has been successful in drying up local sources of bootleg beer and liquor for "parties" while the youngsters' parents were away.

Mr. Hurlbut said the campaign has produced widespread favorable reaction from local police and parents who have become alerted to the wild party problem this summer.

The affairs resulted in several juvenile pregnancies, including one eighth grader, all frankly discussed on the air but without names. The editorials also hit parental laxity.

Aside from such on-air editorials, WVMC also has ventured into the newspaper publishing field. Mr. Hurlbut, WVMC and the station's manager, Phil Tofani, are partners in the publishing of a new weekly tabloid, Midweek, which will have its third edition Wednesday. Printed by offset, the paper goes into competition with the city's only daily. Ads for it are sold separately from WVMC. Initial circulation is 6,200. and his staff of writers resigned following the taping of five shows.

Doodles' latest • Morgan-Estey Productions, Hollywood, is preparing a series of 130 five-minute children's programs, A Day with Doodles, for syndication through Desilu Sales. Doodles Weaver plays all the parts and also does the narration for the slapstick series, based on the clumsiness of a good-natured, well-intentioned youth for whom everything goes wrong. The series is being filmed in 16mm full.

Two 'Roots' scheduled • Two hour programs in The Roots of Freedom series, produced by CBS News, will be broadcast in September. "Athens, Where the Theater Began," with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, will be aired Sept. 11 (10-11 p.m. EDT). "The Golden Age of Greece," with King Paul and Queen Frederika as guides, will be televised Sept. 22 (6-7 p.m. EDT). Both shows, filmed in Athens, were produced and written by Perry Wolff.

Series opener • "1492," first program in the ABC News series, Saga of Western Man, will be telecast in color Oct. 16 (10-11 p.m. EDT). The show traces the historic events of that year which helped shape modern man and his civilization.

NET folk series • WHYY-TV Wilmington, Del., has produced a series of 15 half hours tracing the development of folk music in America for telecast by National Educational Television affiliates. The series, called Lyrics & Legends, is hosted by Dr. Tristram P. Coffin of the Graduate School of Folklore at the University of Pennsylvania.

New films available • Headed for Trouble and Diabetics Unknown have been released by the Public Affairs Committee Inc., New York. Headed for Trouble deals with police handling of juvenile delinquents and is available in a 29-minute TV version. Diabetics Unknown, made to help find the 1.5 million undisclosed diabetics in the country, is being released to coincide with Diabetes Week, Nov. 12-18. It is in both 23 and 29-minute versions for TV.

Tandem college course • WCAU-TV Philadelphia and the educational whyy-tv Wilmington, Del., beginning today (Sept. 9) will work in tandem to present a college-credit television course run by the University of Pennsylvania. Social Change and Social Problems will be shown by wcau-tv from 6:30 to 7 a.m. and by whyy-tv at 1 and 7 p.m. The Philadelphia station this fall is also showing an educational show on modern European drama. Students who register for the TV classes and complete the courses will receive credits toward their degrees.

Grandad documentary • The 90-minute version of the 26-episode Victory at Sea (dealing with World War II and a grandaddy among TV documentaries) will be repeated on NBC-TV on Dec. 7 (7:30-9 p.m. EST). The 90-minute film first appeared on the network on Dec. 3, 1960. The original episodic Victory appeared on NBC-TV in 26 weekly half-hour installments in the 1952-53 season and since that time the episodes, now in syndication, have been seen on many stations, some playing Victory several times.

Administrative group • The Clayton Organization has been formed in Hollywood to administer operations of Clayton Productions and the Walton Co., it was announced by Billy Hester, president. Other principals in the new firm are Herman Saunders, former executive at Mark VII Productions, and Albert Mossler, production head of the Walton Co., who will manage the New York office. Plans call for widening Clayton's activities, which now include production of theatrical and TV films, promotion and representation. Clayton is located at 8272 Sunset Boulevard, Los Angeles 46.

Plus three • Promotion helping three companies, including couple of competitors (ABC-TV and NBC-TV), involves new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer album entitled "Songs We Sang on the Andy Williams Show" (NBC-TV). Artists are the Osmond Brothers who will appear regularly on next season's The Travels of Jamie McPheeters (ABC-TV, Sunday, 7:30-8:30), an MGM-produced show. MGM is supplying ABC-TV station promotion managers with album at no cost for mutually beneficial publicity, contests and the like.

40 years have seen a 'few' style changes

The early days of broadcasting, circa 1923, was a subject of discussion on WRC Washington between Joseph Goodfellow, vice president and general manager of the station, and Betty Groebli, hostess of WRC's Capital Bylines. The microphone, the same type the station used to sign on the air with on Aug. 1, 1923, was noisy but operative. Throughout August the station presented Focus on Forty, Monday-Friday, 7:05-7:30 p.m., excerpts from programs over the past four decades. The program was then added to the station's regular schedule on Saturday nights.

Parks, zoos get nod for station parties

The end of summer is near, and radio and television stations are promoting last-minute flings-in-the-sun at parks and zoos. Among recent events:

- WTOL-TV Toledo, Ohio, had its fourth annual "day" at the local zoo and drew a crowd of 55,600 "children of all ages" to see the antics of Yogi Bear, who was billed as the "Ace from Outer Space." The crowd was the largest of the year for the zoo.

- WIBC(TV) Pittsburgh, had an estimated 25,000 for its annual "Family Day" at West View Park. Rides at the park were renamed for WIBC and NBC-TV programs: "Hazel's Dips," "Grindl's Ferris Wheel," "Bob Hope's Tilt-a-Whirl" and others.

- A "600th" birthday party for "King Fuddle," a puppet on the "Three Stooges" program on KTUU(TV) Oakland-San Francisco, drew an estimated 7,000 children to Oakland's Children's Fairlyland Park, the park's largest crowd of the year.

- What Philadelphia turned the grounds surrounding its studios into a carnival with pony rides, merry-go-rounds and game and refreshment booths for the amusement of some 5,000 of its listeners.

- KMTV(TV) Omaha had 15,000 "relatives" show up at the station's "Family Party." Held in the Omaha municipal stadium, the party celebrated KMTV's 14th anniversary.

Special screenings in fall promotion kit

Both NBC-TV and CBS-TV held closed-circuit news conferences last week to promote their new program series during the upcoming season.

NBC-TV presented the first in a series of live conferences Tuesday (Sept. 3), during which Chet Huntley and David Brinkley were interviewed by editors and reporters in New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, Philadelphia and Washington from 1-1:50 p.m. In addition, reporters in markets served by more than 200 NBC-TV affiliated stations were invited to local studios to see and hear the conferences. Other NBC-TV personalities will be interviewed on future conferences.

NBC-TV telecast a news conference on the Sept. 5 Tonight show (midnight-1 a.m.). The expanded half-hour Huntley-Brinkley Report begins weekdays on the network today (6:30-7 p.m.). The interview program was opened and closed by William R. McAndrew, executive vice president in charge of NBC News.

CBS-TV utilized a video-taped closed-circuit telecast on Thursday (Sept. 5) with Danny Kaye and Phil Silvers, who discussed their new program series. For stations not able to utilize the closed-circuit feed on Sept. 5, filmed copies of the interviews are available through the press information department in New York.

Drumbeats . . .

Stay tuned • King Features Syndicate, to promote its three new TV cartoon series, “Beetle Bailey,” “Barney Google” and “Krazy Kat,” is sending customer stations a 16-inch double-faced disc with comic audio promos by the cartoon stars. The 35 spots include 10-second, 20-second and stay-tuned announcements. Also on the disc is an open-end comedy routine in which the local MC’s can talk by phone with four of the “Beetle Bailey” principals, right on camera. The cartoons will premiere on most stations in early September.

Pro tips • Curt Gowdy, broadcaster of the Boston Red Sox baseball games and new owner of WCCM Lawrence, Mass., brought some of the Red Sox to Lawrence to show the town’s Little Leaguers some of the fine points of baseball playing. Pitcher Dick Radatz, third baseman Frank Malzone, shortstop Eddie Bressoud and coach Bill Herman were the instructors.

Racy station • WJMJ Philadelphia, which claims it is always fast out of the starting gate, has had a stake race named in its honor. The “Better Music” purse was held at Liberty Bell Park, the state’s first parimutuel track.

Testing, 1-2-3 • A telephone strike in the Tampa-St. Petersburg, Fla., area gave Don Owens, WLCY St. Petersburg, the idea to collect string from listeners and make a two-mile long “Dixie cup-and-thread” phone system between the two cities. The hookup would stretch across the Gandy Bridge (Tampa Bay). The listener guessing how long the system will have to be wins 1,000 records.

Flendid finery

The sweatshirt as a promotional gimmick has produced some pretty horrible garments, but the sweatshirts handed out by WNYS-TV Syracuse N. Y., at least have the advantage of being intentionally horrible—they are designed to promote the station’s Saturday and Sunday nights horror programs.

The name of “Baron Daemon,” host of the shows, is prominently emblazoned on the perspiration blouses, along with the legend “I’m a real cool ghoul!” and a picture that resembles a son of Count Dracula and the Werewolf Lady. The channel 9 station is offering 10,000 such sweatshirts and tee-shirts to viewers.

Natal day • WTCN-TV Minneapolis-St. Paul celebrated its 10th birthday Sept. 1 with a party to which all children born in the twin cities on Sept. 1, 1953, were invited. The children received gifts, and a prince and princess chosen at the party on the Dave Lee Show each received a savings bond and transistor radio.

Green grow the calls • WIL St. Louis presented power lawn mowers to listeners who mowed the largest and most unusual set of the station’s call letters. The largest set, which did not belong to anyone with a postage-stamp lawn, were nearly 100 feet high.

Early birds • WJAG Norfolk, Neb., carried 10 bus loads of listeners to the Nebraska State Fair at Lincoln Sept. 1, for the 13th consecutive year. The caravan left the station at 6 a.m.

Audio plugs • Revue Studios has cut five-minute open-end radio interviews with stars and guest stars of the 11 TV series currently in production at the studios. The spots will be sent to more than 900 stations. Special 10, 20 and 60-second promo trailers for individual stations have also been cut. Nielsen city stations will be identified by call letters, and channel numbers will be used to identify stations in non-Nielsen cities.

Up in the air • Chicago’s air is not only full of traffic news reports from the city’s radio stations, but it is getting full of aircraft from which some of these reports originate. WGN announced last week that it is sending up a Cessna Skyhawk to report suburban traffic and augment the station’s regular helicopter. WBBM last week announced it too is beginning regular helicopter reports for motorists. Other stations use ground check points.

Seeing red • WSJS-AM-FM-TV Winston-Salem, N. C., has purchased a 1923 fire truck and is using it at area schools to promote fire safety.

CBS-TV’s card of Sunday information

It doesn’t contain a ZIP code number, but CBS-TV was sure that its 192 affiliates which saw the postcard on a closed-circuit telecast got the message. The card lists the Sunday shows on network from 6 to 11 p.m. for the new season. CBS-TV’s Defenders, E. G. Marshall and Robert Reed, are exhibiting the card.

In another fall promotion, the network said it is sure of a circulation “in excess of 6 million” for a 24-page newspaper supplement which is scheduled to run today (Monday) in four newspapers.

The promotion — similar to the one used by CBS-TV in its 1962 new-season promotion — is running in the New York Times and New York Herald Tribune, the Chicago Tribune and Los Angeles Times. Copies of the supplement are being offered to affiliates for use in local newspapers or other promotion.

BILINGUAL PROBLEMS

BBG hears requests to ease restrictions on beer ads

Changes in beer advertising regulations, authority to broadcast in French as well as in English in Quebec City, and dropping network affiliations were among the problems aired at the public hearings of the Board of Broadcast Governors at Ottawa during the last week of August.

Beer advertisers requested radio spot announcements instead of having to sponsor at least 10-minute programs. BBG wants to change the present beer regulations for television from 60 seconds (with 12 seconds devoted to the product) to 30 seconds with all of it devoted to product and brand advertising. Beer drinking, however, is not to be encouraged in the advertising.

J. W. Murray, speaking for the Brewers Association of Canada, said there is no need for special regulation of beer advertising. Surveys, he reported, show that most Canadians do not object to beer advertising, and most are already subject to it from U. S. border stations. He felt brewers should be allowed 60 seconds of TV advertising to promote brand preference.

Prohibitionists appearing before the BBG were told by the Rev. Emlyn Davies, Toronto Baptist minister member of the BBG, that the problem was not one of for or against alcoholism, but "how to advertise this product through radio and television without producing the results you fear and most people wish to avoid."

Bilingual Opposition • CJQC Quebec City, English-language station, asked for permission to broadcast in French as well as in English. The request was opposed by other Quebec City bilingual, but mainly French-language, stations on the grounds that there were already four radio stations in Quebec City broadcasting in French. The CJQC license had been granted for an English-language station to serve the minority of English-speaking people in Quebec’s capital city. Speaking for CJLR Quebec City, Jacques Laroche, its president, felt that if CJQC was permitted to broadcast in French, within three years half its...
Welsh TV programers may merge operations

Directors of the financially hard-hit Wales, West and North Television Ltd. have sent letters to shareholders about a merger offer by Television Wales and West Ltd., another company in the commercial network.

There are about 900 shareholders with small holdings in WWN. The programming company began operations last September and covers about 110,000 homes. In its first three months the youngest of Britain's commercial television companies suffered heavy losses. Earlier this year it suspended local programming.

Television Wales and West directors have agreed to the terms of an offer to WNN. The offer is subject to approval by the Independent TV Authority.

TWN has been operating for more than five years and covers 800,000 homes in south Wales and the west of England. Last year it had a net profit of $140,000.

TV continues advance in Japanese homes

There are an estimated 10,000 color TV receivers operating in Japan, out of a total of 12.6 million sets registered with the Japanese Broadcasting Corp.—and another 500,000 which may not be registered, the U. S. Department of Commerce has reported in a survey of Japanese electronics output for 1962.

The television figures show that 61.1% of Japan's households owned a TV set in 1962, compared with only 44.8% in 1961.

In 1962, Japanese manufacturers produced 4,865,000 TV receivers compared with 4,585,000 in 1961. The 14-inch monochrome set accounted for 91% of total TV production; the other 9% was for 16-inch monochrome and color receivers. Over 4,000 color TV sets were produced in 1962.

One of the stimulants to TV demand, it is reported, was the abolition of the 20% commodity tax on transistorized TV receivers.

In the radio field, the production of transistor radios (three or more transistors) increased 7% in 1962 over 1961, totaling almost 13.3 million receivers. Tube radios declined to 1.26 million. It is estimated that there were 2.5 million "toy" radios (using one or two transistors) made last year. Almost wholly for export.

Overall, the Commerce Department's Electronics Division estimates, Japanese electronics output totaled $1.6 billion in 1962—up some $200 million over 1961. U. S. electronics output for 1962 was $11.5 billion, up $100 million from the year before.
DATELINE: TV film overseas by Lloyd Burns

Past and future of overseas TV syndication

It wasn't too long ago that most people in our business described international sales of the U.S. television product as "negligible" and announced that as far as their companies were concerned, it was just "too early to get into" international distribution. Those of us who are heavily involved in overseas distribution—and Screen Gems has been in it with both feet since 1954—never held or have long since been disabused of this impression.

International business over the past nine years has been neither negligible nor meaningless, nor too insignificant to warrant anything but our complete efforts. Further, there is every indication that we will continue to accelerate our distribution, increase our sales and expand our overseas markets.

This is not to say that a foreign "bonanza" is just around the corner for every Tom, Dick and fly-by-nighter. Marginal operators won't find a pot of gold at the end of every ocean voyage to Europe, the Far East or Latin America. But the truly solid companies in our business will find ever-widening opportunities as international video develops at an ever-increasing tempo. We're making money in international distribution. Our sales are growing from year to year. And they will continue to do so just as long as television continues expanding around the world.

Expansion Abroad • There's no end to this expansion in sight. England, France, Germany have all added or are about to add new TV networks to their broadcast facilities. Brazil now has more than 50 television outlets with many more due to be added in the next few years. In Japan, set circulation is now in the neighborhood of 13 million, with several million sets being added each year. The total of TV sets around the world last year surpassed the U.S. total and will pile up its lead rapidly in the years ahead.

As impressive as these facts and figures are, they become all the more astounding when we realize that the majority of the countries of the world are only now in their primary stages of TV development. Many countries—with such obvious exceptions as the major European powers, Japan, Canada, Australia, Brazil, Mexico—have not yet reached a position in TV broadcasting occupied by this country in 1950 or earlier. Many, having only begun television during the last year or two, cannot be expected to approach full development for many years. It is in this context that we must assess our overseas business—present and future.

The ground rules under which U.S. distributors must operate vary from country to country. Based upon a country's stage of development, its economic system, its social mores, its monetary policy, its political stability, its cultural background, we are faced with quotas, government ownership, government-licensed monopolies and nationalistic feelings. While all of these factors deter the free play of competition we know in this country, through experience and additional effort we have managed in most instances to resolve our problems.

Artificial Prices • One result of these multiple factors is that we are often being paid artificially low prices for our product—prices which bear little if any relationship to what a substantially similar market in this country would pay for the same product. But this problem, too, is being slowly resolved to our benefit.

A quite general experience of the substantial overseas distributor is one in which he is paid a ceiling price of, for example, $1,000 for a top half-hour program in a market where the station would have to expend perhaps $3,500 to fill the half-hour with home-produced entertainment. The effect of such artificial price ceilings is that U.S. distributors are subsidizing local production to the tune of $2,500 for each half-hour they buy from us. To a greater or lesser extent, we are subsidizing television development in almost every country in which the U.S. product is sold.

I don't mean to suggest that such subsidization is necessarily evil or unfair—in the long run it will work to our advantage since it allows a country to develop its TV facilities more quickly. The more rapidly they approach the competitive trading position of U.S. television—and this will happen more quickly than many could believe possible—particularly in terms of numbers of outlets and networks, number of hours on the air and number of available advertisers, the better market for our product they will become.

This subsidization is simply a fact of life to the U.S. distributor overseas. We, of course, would like to be able to give less of a subsidy by getting higher prices for our product and we negotiate toward this end constantly.

Relaxed Quota • In some small way it was the constant pressure of U.S. distributors and the long range negotiation of our trade associations which caused Japan to increase its budget to $3.3 million for the next six months for the purchase of foreign TV film, the preponderant amount of which, of course, comes from the U.S. This is an important step forward. And even though the Japanese government has indicated it will continue to maintain a form of artificial price ceiling on each half-hour or hour, it is clear at this moment that higher pricing is already in effect.

Although the Japanese decision represents a liberalization of their previous position, in that applications for the purchase of TV film in excess of artificial price ceilings set by them will be accepted, it is not certain that the granting of such applications will be automatic. The principal effect, then, of their higher budget will be to allow them to buy more and more of the U.S. product.

A parallel situation may be brewing in Great Britain, where for years the Independent Television Authority has maintained a 14% quota on foreign TV product. Now there appears to be some possibility that this quota will be raised to 20% in the near future. Representing as it does another step forward, such a relaxation of policy is obviously Lloyd Burns, born in Toronto and a graduate of McMaster University, was one of the pioneers of film distribution in Canada. A partner and general manager of Telepix Ltd., Toronto, Mr. Burns also became general manager of Screen Gems (Canada) Ltd. in the early fifties. After organizing and spearheading a major expansion of Screen Gems' branch offices, he relinquished his holdings and position with Telepix and moved to SG's New York offices in 1958. Mr. Burns became vice president in charge of international operations in 1959.

welcomed by U.S. distributors.

Britain, in maintaining its quota over the years, has done so both to encourage its own producers and creative talents as well as to placate its trade unions. At the same time the quota has, in effect, limited the subsidy U.S. distributors were making to British TV. As long as prices paid for American films continue to be artificially limited—and the strong likelihood is that this will be so even under a 20% quota—the voluntary easing of the quota will mean more volume but not necessarily higher pricing. Most importantly, it is a progressive rather than a regressive move.

Canada, where Screen Gems produces more than ten hours of programing each week and where almost all of our network and many of our syndicated series are seen, elected to relax its 45% quota by 10% during the summer months. The comparatively liberal Canadian quota, partly a matter of proximity and of similarity of Canadian and American tastes, is governed primarily by the physical and economic factors of production. Canada simply doesn't have the means within the country to produce and fill more than 55% of its air time. The very fact of the quota, however, serves the same purpose as the British one in restraining free negotiations and open competition. It must be noted that as compared to Britain and Japan, Canada pays considerably higher prices proportionately than the other markets.

Rosy Future * Dealing daily, as we do, with quotas and pricing, we can see the situation changing appreciably and dramatically. Certainly everything points to more volume and higher prices in the future. Although U.S. distributors may be faced with artificial ceiling prices for the foreseeable future, the gradual amelioration of the situation gives a rosy glow to our worldwide prospects. Presently, most international markets need us to program at costs many times lower than their local costs for home-produced programs. Most U.S. distributors accept the present limitations and the low prices for a number of reasons: Like it or not (and when we think about it, we like it) we're aiding the development of international television; we're building an international appetite and acceptance for American programs; we're making money despite some of the low prices we're paid.

True relaxation of artificial barriers will come about gradually as each country develops more stations and networks in order to air more programs for more viewers. Ultimately, this will bring about internal competitive buying situations. The end result will be higher prices for our product—prices which will finally bear comparison to the market situations we are accustomed to in this country.

Even with the tremendous strides in international TV development that we expect over the next five to ten years, not more than a handful of countries will develop adequate program production facilities to the point where they can depend upon local production to fill their program needs. American programs will be needed—perhaps even more than at present.

So we're not singing the blues in any shape or form. The international situation can only get better and international sales can only go one way-up. And the preponderant amount of those sales, as at present, will continue to be made by U.S. distributors. It's a prospect we can look forward to with equanimity, but not complacency. And it's one which in many ways we made possible.

CTV stretches ocean to ocean on Sept. 15

Canada's second television network, CTV Television Network Ltd., Toronto, goes live on microwave network on Sept. 15, when cctv-tv Halifax, N.S., is linked with the rest of the network. To mark the inauguration of the complete national second TV network, CTV will air the one-hour Something to Sing About, originating in various parts of Canada. The ten-minute finale will have all the singers from cities in the five time zones, Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver, sing together in chorus.

The program is the first all-Canadian special show produced by CTV. It is being sponsored by the Trans-Canada Telephone System, which built the microwave network of 3,365 air miles across the country. The network between Montreal and Vancouver went into operation a year ago.

Abroad in brief...

Toll to pay * One of the pay TV companies which expects to get government permission to operate experiments in selected areas of Britain next year has changed is name from Toll TV Ltd. to Pay-TV Ltd. The company is a subsidiary of British Relay Wireless and Television Ltd. and British Home Entertainment Ltd. Associated British Picture Corp. has agreed to link with the company for the pay TV experiment.

TV sets multiply * The number of TV sets now licensed in West Germany is close to 8 million, according to figures released last week by the government.

Rulemakings

PETITIONS FOR RULEMAKING FILED

* Cocoa Beach, Fla. — James A. Bloor, Re- Quests that Commission be amended to assign commercial television channel to Cocoa, Fla., county of Brevard, assigned channel to be 63, 55, 56 or 63. Received Aug. 29.

* Evansville, Ind. — Valley Hi Broadcasting Corp. Petition for amendment of rules to add channel 307 (110.3 me) to Evansville. Received Aug. 22.
For many years the investor-owned light and power companies and the rural electric cooperatives have been, on the whole, good neighbors. They have worked together to bring electricity to rural America. About two-thirds of this electricity is produced by investor-owned companies who either supply rural customers directly, or supply the co-ops.

The REA
The two systems are, of course, different. One, as its name implies, is financed by investors. The other is financed by loans from an agency of the Federal Government, The Rural Electrification Administration (REA). REA loans are made at the low interest rate of 2%. Co-ops financed by The REA pay no Federal income taxes. The rural electric program was started during the Depression, in 1936, to help get electricity to farms more quickly.

But notwithstanding the fact that electricity now flows throughout our farmlands, requests for treasury appropriations to The REA continue to get bigger and bigger. In 1952, appropriations amounted to $175 million. The last budget called for $425 million for loan authorizations, with the greater part requested for building generating plants and high-voltage lines.

This leads to a big question: does the nature and continued expansion of this program indicate, over and beyond necessary co-op improvements, a significant move toward federalizing the nation's power by making use of the farm economy?

That is the general issue. And against it, writers, editors, legislators, farm leaders and others are asking some pointed questions.

The Questions
Some ask if The REA in Washington is encouraging co-ops to build power plants that are not needed. Others ask if these loans are being made to some co-ops to develop a Federal power system not authorized by Congress. People both in and out of Congress are asking whether it is proper for a Federal Government bureau to loan your money under such circumstances.

Also: are REA loans being used to finance expanded service to urban or industrial customers in contradiction to the original purpose of the rural co-op? Are they being used unnecessarily to finance equipment for business and industrial ventures locating on REA-financed co-op lines? Is it proper for The REA in Washington to lend public funds while keeping the economic basis for making the loans a secret?

Ground Rules Helpful
We in the electric light and power business are interested in these questions, too. We have good reasons for wanting them answered. We've worked with rural electric co-ops for many years. and we think that clearly understood ground rules would help both the co-ops and ourselves. We believe that such "clear ground rules" will help us to continue to work with our good neighbors to go on meeting the nation's power needs, wherever the power is needed.
OUR RESPECTS to William George Garry

Broadcast journalists: Protect your professional rights

The big strides of broadcast journalists during the past dozen years or so are only the steps of a child compared to the achievements of radio and television news which may be possible in the years just ahead. But radio-TV newsmen will have to work for their prize and guard it.

If there is any who might so witness to the bright prospects of broadcast news—or testify to the professional accomplishments of the electronic media so far—Bill Garry could well qualify.

Formerly news director of CBS-owned WBBM-TV Chicago and newly appointed editorial director of ABC-owned WBBK (TV) there, Mr. Garry is concluding his year’s tenure as president of the Radio-Television News Directors Association. He also will lead RTNDA convention activities this week in Minneapolis.

A veteran newspaperman and TV news pioneer, Mr. Garry served RTNDA for a number of years before becoming president. In 1957-58 he was RTNDA midwest regional vice president, 1958-60 board of directors, 1960-61 vice president for TV and 1961-62 first vice president.

Be Alert • Mr. Garry believes broadcast newsmen have achieved high professional stature on the local scene and compare favorably with competing newspapers. He feels radio-TV, however, must be alert to protect their freedoms from government and others.

“Never have I had so much assistance from so many—government, welfare agencies, doctors, lawyers, the man on the street,” he says. “But rather than be discouraged by all this interest, I take courage in the fact that broadcast news has made so deep an impact as to elicit this concern.”

William George Garry was born in Chicago April 19, 1911, the eldest son of one of the city’s finest, Police Lieutenant George M. Garry, and the grandson of Michael S. Garry, eighth ward alderman. Should this not be sufficient to qualify him as true native, Mr. Garry enjoys playing his trump card: “Uncle Tom” Garry is Chicago’s deputy commissioner of sewers.

His was the colorful “voice of the sewer” that Time magazine once described as the overriding claxon heard on the public address system at the Chicago convention of the Democratic Party which got the late President Roosevelt nominated for his third term. Mr. Garry’s uncle was in charge of convention arrangements at that time, including the PA system.

No Overset • Young Bill grew up on Chicago’s West Side and was graduated from St. Mel high school there. It was here that he first became interested in journalism. He was editor of the student newspaper, The St. Mel Magnavox.

His journalism mentor, Brother Li-gouri, remarked in later years, “One thing about Garry, he kept the cost down. There never was any overset.” Mr. Garry feels this early “tight writing” experience was of particular importance in helping him to make the transition to the broadcasting side of journalism. “I learned you can get a lot of good stories into a short period if you don’t overwrite,” he says.

In the summer of 1929 Mr. Garry got his first job: runner in the Chicago brokerage offices of S. B. Chapin & Co. It lasted about three years, just long enough for him to experience vividly at the scene of action the stock boom, bust and depression aftermath. Then his family moved to the northern suburban community of Niles Center (later Skokie) and Mr. Garry did public relations work for that community and worked partime as reporter for the Evanston News-Index.

During this period Mr. Garry con-tinued his formal education at night school. He took four semesters at De Paul University’s School of Commerce, four semesters in foreign relations at Rosary College and another four in journalism at Northwestern University.

Grass Roots Editor • In 1938 Mr. Garry was named managing editor of the Skokie News and in 1941, after acquiring a part interest in the paper, he became editor and publisher. The following year, however, found him as a private in the Army Air Force where he soon became a photographer and a candidate for officer’s training.

Commissioned in May 1943, Second Lieutenant Garry was assigned to Alaska. He served four years at Ladd Field, Fairbanks, in a variety of positions including base adjutant. Mustered out as captain in 1946, Mr. Garry continued there another year as civilian information specialist. He served first on the staff of Lieutenant General Howard A. Craig and for a short time with Lieutenant General Nathan Twining.

Returning to Chicago, Mr. Garry in 1948 became managing editor of the Pickwick Papers, a group of five suburban newspapers of Pickwick Publishing Co. serving several northwestern Chicago communities. The next year he joined Acme Newspictures as central division news editor and also as staff correspondent for Acme’s parent organization, NEA Services.

Early TV News • One of Acme’s principal clients at the time was WBBN Chicago, so Mr. Garry quickly became deeply involved in helping to package and produce the nightly pioneer TV news program for WBBN. He then conceived of a TV cartoon package to report baseball scores which Acme syndicated.

Mr. Garry was transferred to New York in 1950 as television news manager for Acme and he went to work on a similar cartoon package for football too. He continued as TV news manager there through 1952 although in the interim Scripps-Howard switched the operation to United Press Newspictures.

Appointed news director of CBS-owned WBBM-AM-TV Chicago in 1953, Mr. Garry headed both radio and TV news there until 1960 when the two station operations were completely separated by CBS. From 1960 until a health sabbatical earlier this year, Mr. Garry served as WBBM-TV news director with the TV news staff totaling 28. His appointment as editorial director of WBBK was effective Sept. 1.

On Keeping ‘Fair’ • Apart from Knights of Columbus and the Chicago Executives Club, Mr. Garry restricts his affiliations to the professional societies of his trade. His reluctance to be a “joiner” is based on his feeling that a newsmen can lose his objectivity through too many personal affiliations and the “favors” they often elicit.

A bachelor, Mr. Garry devotes quite a bit of his spare time to his nephew, especially at Christmas when he enjoys fabricating all sorts of elaborate yuletide decorations, including a real sugar plum tree. Photography and model trains also are among his hobbies, he says, but they always will run a poor second to his first and only true love—news.

Mr. Garry

Good news

MORE than $70 million has been committed by the three television networks to the production of news and documentary programs this season. That is a lot of money, and it looks even bigger to network managers that know that only a part of it will be recovered by the sale of advertising in the programs it will be produced.

Yet it is not so big when measured against other standards. News and documentaries will represent no more than 15-20% of the total program expenses of the three networks. Considering the importance of the journalism function of television, $70 million is little enough to spend. It is, we suggest, the best and the cheapest insurance against government controls that would hobble not only the journalism but also the entertainment functions of television.

That, of course, is the parochial appraisal of the significance of the $70 million commitment. Of more importance is the effect a broadened journalism function will have on the television audience. Entertainment, the function on which the main effort of television is spent, is of undeniable value if measured by no other criterion than public demand. But it is in the field of information that television can perform its most useful social service. The performance of that service will be advanced by the invigorated network projects of this season, but it cannot be left to the networks alone. It is also a job for the stations.

There is no dependable way to calculate the amount of money that television and radio stations are now spending to produce news shows and documentaries of their own. But it unquestionably represents a substantial part of their total program budget, and it is growing. All over the nation stations are enlarging their news staffs and, of at least equal importance, are hiring professionals to whom journalism is a career.

Professionalism is as necessary to broadcast journalism as to journalism of any kind. The newsman who works for radio or TV must command at least as much respect for his training, his seriousness of purpose and his devotion to his craft as the newsman who works for the best newspapers and magazines. Without the quality of professionalism, broadcast journalism is not journalism at all. It is a shoddy branch of show business.

The professional status that broadcast journalism has already achieved is being recognized both within and outside the media. At the networks and at the more progressive stations top management is giving its journalists more time, more money and more responsibility. Outside recognition is exemplified by the President's agreement to sit for individual interviews on the new half-hour evening news shows of CBS-TV and NBC-TV.

Altogether the new surge of information programming is the healthiest trend to develop in broadcasting's recent history. It will do more than most others for broadcasting and for the country.

Now back to the program

THE FCC might as well give up right now on its proposal to invoke commercial time limitations in its rules. That would not only be the graceful thing to do but also would save the government and broadcasters the expense of proceeding with a go-round the FCC can't win.

The rulemaking was started in the first place only by a bare majority of commissioners, at least one of whom indicated later he wasn't convinced it made sense. It was clearly another attempt to coerce broadcasters by threatening action the commission had no serious intention to carry out.

Now influential congressmen are taking an interest in the matter. Representative Walter Rogers (D-Tex.), chairman of the Communications Subcommittee of the House, has introduced a bill to prohibit the FCC from invoking advertising time limits. No doubt many of his colleagues can be persuaded to take a similar view.

Comments on the rulemaking are due Sept. 16. Once they are in and the FCC has made all that work for lawyers and all that expense for broadcasters, it ought to withdraw from this silly business and get down to productive work.

What comes out in the wash

THE Norge Sales Corp. has sent to its distributors a handy manual that gives all the tricks of getting local rates for national advertising and beating down either local or national rates by inducing stations to bid against one another. The details of the Norge buying strategy for a campaign to introduce an automatic washer were reported in this publication last week.

No one can blame Norge or any other advertiser for trying to get the best deals it can. Broadcasting suffers only if stations respond to pressures by cutting rates by one means or another.

The root problem here is in the differential at some stations between local and national rates. As long as local business can be placed for less than national business, the temptation of national advertisers to work the gimmick of the local distributor will be strong.

Some years ago the Station Representatives Association undertook to persuade stations in both radio and television to adopt single rates for both local and national business as a deterrent to exactly the kind of gambit Norge is attempting now. There was merit in the SRA argument, but many broadcasters ignored it. To us the argument still has appeal, but we recognize the fundamental right of stations to decide for themselves whether two rates or one serve their best interests.

If they choose two, they must also be prepared to apply them with consistency.

"It was owned by a couple of actors who only used it to make TV films!"

BROADCASTING, September 9, 1963
Any experienced broadcaster knows how to build phony ratings with money give-aways and gimmicks. They may temporarily help station sales or make cost-per-thousand look good — but, still, the advertiser is without results.

This policy has never been accepted by KSTP Radio. For nearly forty years, KSTP Radio has delivered the results that only honesty and integrity can assure. KSTP's adult radio programming has served its advertisers and the public more effectively, more efficiently than any other station.

That's why advertisers stay with us — many of them for nearly forty consecutive years. And that's why KSTP is still your best buy in Minneapolis/St. Paul.
