If you use television or radio for Houston sales woes, two stations are more effective than one as a pain reliever.

Better still is one other station and KPRC-TV. This combination gives pain relief plus relief for other miseries as well.

But—for fastest, surest relief—for feelable relief almost instantly from the symptoms of sagging sales charts and selling woes, take two doses of KPRC-TV.

KPRC-TV...1. gives effective relief from sneezing, sniffling, stuffy prospects...2. helps ease raw and irritated clients...3. calms that tiring, ache-all-over feeling...4. gets into the mind's eye fast...5. sells for you to a larger audience in Houston.

Ask your accounts to examine the KPRC-TV prescription. They'll agree with you that KPRC-TV in Houston is powerful, fast, effective.

Money where mouth is

Is there more to Ford Foundation proposal for noncommercial-ETV satellite system than "model" presented to FCC in 80-page document (Broadcasting, Aug. 1)? Despite foundation's denial that it contemplates $100 million grant to launch project, report is regarded as having substance because it's business of foundation to underwrite -not draft blueprints. Moreover, Ford already has donated about $100 million to ETV development during past decade.

Fact that foundation, in filing its plan, asked FCC to take no definitive action until all comments were in gives further credence to notion that Ford later will emerge with proposal to provide seed money and perhaps finance purchase of equipment and other hardware to set up noncommercial satellite structure but with operating revenue to be derived largely from savings realized by networks through use of satellite relays. Preliminary draft of Ford "model" reportedly carried $100 million commitment but was held back, possibly to become second big publicity blast when all comments are in by year-end.

Plays are the thing

Xerox Corp., Rochester, N. Y., is negotiating multi-million-dollar contract with CBS-TV for sponsorship of top drama programs. Definitely in works: backing in 1966-67 season of three two-hour specials ("The Glass Menagerie," "The Crucible" and the story of "Death of a Salesman" that Xerox underwrote last year) and also 90-minute "Mark Twain Tonight." Still to be worked out are several other drama deals that also involve 1967-68 season. One source describes plans, through Papert, Koenig, Lois, New York, as "the beginning of a big push by Xerox to expand its TV drama with 'Death of a Salesman.'"

Two for one

Station representatives are worried about number of unrelated advertisers trying to double up 30-second television announcements in one-minute positions at single-minute prices (see page 29). One example is order from airplane and candy company which placed three simultaneous half-minute spots back to back. Moreover, agencies in some cases are asking to be billed separately for two halves of one-minute buys. In one instance, according to one of largest reps, separate billing was requested in ratio of 60% to one sponsor, 40% to other, although placement was to be for back-to-back 30-second spots. Rep suggests it was outright attempt at brokerage of time.

New development of two-sponsor spots could wind up as subject of congressional interest when Senate Antitrust and Monopoly Subcommittee resumes hearing into TV advertising practices soon. In earlier hearing, small advertisers claimed they had tried approach of teaming up with other firms, but were rebuffed by broadcasters (Broadcasting, June 6). Now, although networks have formulated no definite policy on acceptance, fact that some large firms are using method successfully is sure to arouse interest of subcommittee.

Fateful day

Petition for approval of ABC-ITT merger will be before FCC at meeting Wednesday (Aug. 17), but its disposition can't be forecast with certainty. One factor that may come up for comment at meeting is absence of advisory from Justice Department, which has been studying case as long as FCC has. So far Justice has said nothing to FCC except that it regards case as complicated. Nobody at FCC knows whether to expect anything more from Justice—which often leaves matters dangling unless it makes positive finding of antitrust problems.

Autry sells cable

Acquisition of control of Santa Barbara, Calif., elaborate CATV system from Gene Autry's Golden West by Philadelphia Community Antenna TV Co., controlled by Major Robert McLean family, which also owns Philadelphia Bulletin and WFTS-FM, was negotiated last week. Price on basis of acquisition of 100% of stock was $3.3 million, plus obligations of $2.8 million. PCA-TV is guaranteed Golden West's 66% at $82.50 per share, and if it acquired all 40,000 shares, stock price would be $3.3 million.

Harry C. Butcher, president and manager of Cable TV of Santa Barbara Inc., treasurer of National Community Television Association, who was naval aide to General Dwight D. Eisenhower during World War II, holds 18%, with other Santa Barbara residents holding balance. It's indicated most will continue their holdings. System now has 10,500 individual connections (16,000 sets) and reported potential of 30,000 in city and nearby county. McLeans two years ago acquired Santa Barbara News-Press.

Two for third

Third commercial UHF outlet in Chicago is moving closer to fact. Bid is to be filed with FCC soon whereby WSNF-TV there, granted in 1963 on ch. 44 to Essaness TV Associates (theater group) would become one-half owned and managed by Harriscope Broadcasting Co., group station-CATV operator now rapidly expanding. No consideration is involved except equal sharing of costs, profits. Seven months in making, unusual deal was negotiated by Harriscope's Yale Rowe, onetime ABC-TV daytime program executive. Harriscope is headed by Irving B. Harris, who co-founded Toni Co., and also includes Don Nathanson, North Advertising president.

Big game

ABC Films has acquired United States rights to overseas TV game show, Golden Shot, and is developing one-hour pilot for series it'll offer to TV networks. It will offer show as nighttime entry on any network— its first program developed for network sale. Program would be telecast live. Version abroad has been running in Germany and in Belgium as 90-minute show that uses such guests as Princess Grace and Prince Rainier of Monaco (they'll be on German show Aug. 25).

Diversification

Urban renewal in Duluth, Minn., is getting substantial backing of local broadcasters as well as others. Still to be announced is joint venture by KDAL Inc., WDSM Inc., Chun King Foods and Duluth Newspapers Inc. to build big hotel-motel-convention complex on new Gateway mall opposite $1 million KDAL-AM-TV broadcast center for which ground was broken last week (see page 66).

Most Milwaukeeans turn to WTMJ-TV to see for themselves

...in color!

It's no wonder Milwaukeeans like our newscasts so well. Every member of our news staff is a real pro... and we have fifteen of them... more than any other Wisconsin station. Each is skilled at writing, reporting and interpreting the news. What's more, we were the first station in town to use color news film. Matter of fact, we're still using more of it than any other local station. Emphasis on professional, comprehensive, color news coverage has long been our policy. And it's really paid off. For more than ten years now, our CHANNEL 4 REPORT at 6:00 p.m. and 10:00 p.m. has been watched by more Milwaukee-area families than any other newscast at those times.* So remember, next time you're thinking news in Milwaukee, think WTMJ-TV. Most people do.

Pay TV comments, replies deadlines are extended

Forty-day extension on comments and reply comments to FCC's proposed rules to provide nationwide over-air pay television is being announced by commission today (Aug. 15). Comments deadline is being extended from Sept. 1 to Oct. 10 and reply comments deadline from Oct. 1 to Nov. 10.

National Association of Broadcasters, American Civil Liberties Union and Americans for Democratic Action had all requested extending comments deadline to Jan. 1, 1967 so interested parties might have more time to study technical submissions and other aspects of proposed rulemaking.

Zenith Radio Corp., Kahn Research Laboratories Inc., Teleglobe Pay-TV Systems Inc., International Telemeter Corp. and Thomas A. Banning Jr., had submitted detailed specifications on their present and proposed pay-TV systems by the July 25 deadline on technical comments (BROADCASTING, Aug. 1, July 25).

RKO General, Zenith, Teco Inc. and International Telemeter had opposed extending comment deadline on grounds that such extension would not be justified and would, if granted, only delay orderly dispatch of proceeding.

Erie battle over CATV returned for court test

CATV battle in Erie, Pa., which has pitted Edward Lamb newspaper and broadcast properties against George McAdoo's newspaper and TV properties, has taken another turn.

U. S. Appeals Court in Philadelphia told federal court in Erie that it must hold further proceedings on petition by Lamb interests to bar city from authorizing CATV.

Court set aside decision by federal judge in Erie dismissing case initiated by Erie Dispatch and its owned WCTV in that city. Appeals court said case raises questions of "major importance," including whether FCC has preempted CATV by assuming jurisdiction over cable operations.

Among other questions raised by plaintiff: constitutionality of payments by CATV to city, legality of city's ordinance specifying TV stations whose signals must be carried on CATV.

City passed ordinance last year and asked for bids for cable franchise. Two applications were presented; one by Erie News and Times, owner of WSEE (TV), and another by local businessman. Before Erie city council opened bids, Erie Dispatch and WICU-TV instituted court litigation.

Test of TV coverage of Commons recommended

TV coverage, albeit limited, of British Parliament may be tested in early 1967. After more than year of debate, House of Commons TV committee recommended two-month, closed-circuit TV experiment that would result in edited versions of parliamentary debates.

Committee decided live TV and radio coverage of Parliament would be impractical and undesirable but that edited debates would give all members fair chance to be seen and heard. It proposed creating special broadcasting unit whose director would have status akin to editor of Parliament's official written report.

Closed-circuit experiment would cost about $300,000 and would be conducted between Christmas and Easter when Britain's two TV networks have equipment and staff available. Continuous live coverage cost was estimated at $69 million.

Committee's report will go before Commons for vote after summer recess. House of Lords has already voted in favor of admitting TV to its chamber.

New dimensions for local stations seen in 35 years

New concept of local stations, for TV and radio, "based exclusively on community programing, information and a whole new range of services, such as 'delivering' your newspaper electronically at any minute you want it," is envisioned by E. R. Vadeboncoeur, president of Newhouse Stations and general manager of WSYR-AM-FM-TV Syracuse, N. Y.

Predictions for year 2,000 are included in time capsule that will be displayed until June 14, 2000, in lobby of new Mutual of New York insurance company building being built in Syracuse.

Mr. Vadeboncoeur says there will be "no need for local stations" for network programs. These will go from studio to satellite to home, bypassing local outlets. Instantaneous, live, worldwide TV via fixed satellites will be "commonplace," he foresees.

He also says development of transistor "chips" will create miniaturization revolution with radios no bigger than buttons and TV sets that fit into woman's purse or man's wallet. Home TV sets will hang on walls or stand on tables "just like family photographs."

Tom Nugent, former head football coach at University of Maryland, named sports director of WLW-TV Miami, Friday (Aug. 12). Post was to have gone to Clure Mosher, who was leaving WOR-TV New York. Mr. Mosher died last month (Broadcasting, Aug. 1).

Ruth Lyons returning

Ruth Lyons, hostess on Avco Broadcasting's 50-50 Club will return to show Oct. 10 following eight-month absence. She left program in mid-February because of illness of her daughter, who later died. Miss Lyons started 50-50 Club on WLW Cincinnati in 1946, and it went to TV in 1949. Besides WLW, it's carried daily on Avco's WLWT(SV) Cincinnati, WLWD (TV) Dayton, WLWC(TV) Columbus, all Ohio, and WLW(TV) Indianapolis.

Marathon moving into Packard-Bell control?

New development at Packard Bell Electronics Corp., Los Angeles, is move by Marathon Securities Corp., New York, which holds note for Packard stock, to exercise direction of company. It is reported that Marathon has formed new three-man committee to head company.

Marathon holds convertible note for 526,315 Packard shares, or 35% of total, exchangeable at $9.50 per share for distribution with 90 days in blocks of 10,000 shares or less. Marathon's move comes at almost same time that proposed $44-million acquisition of Packard by Singer Co., New York, fell through (Broadcasting, Aug. 8).

Singer is now negotiating new acquisition agreement, but backed off initially because Packard failed to meet projected sales and earnings in May-July period, and because of problems in cabinet production and delays in marketing 19-inch color set Packard introduced in June.

Beer to WRG agency

West End Brewing Co., Utica, N. Y., has moved its $2-million Utica Club Beer (regional) out of Benton & Bowles, New York, and appointed Wells, Rich, Green, New York, as its agency.

No reason was apparent for surprise shift of billing of which approximately $1.2 million is in broadcast, West End noting that B & B's current campaign prepared for brewer (Broadcasting, June 20) has "created favorable comment" and that Utica Club sales are now at new high.

Alberto-Culver moves

Albert-Culver Co., Chicago, Friday (Aug. 12) named J. Walter Thompson Co. there as agency of record for all firm's network TV billings. JWT is one of three agencies handling Alberto-Culver brands, recently acquired major share from BBDO, Chicago.

Heiss retiring

R. J. (Bob) Heiss, manager of WTMJ-AM-FM-TV Milwaukee and with Milwaukee Journal stations since 1934, retires effective Oct. 2. He is 59.
If his master doesn’t believe in the station, he won’t believe your dog food’s the cat’s meow.

How does a station get the respect of a dog lover? Or any other consumer for that matter? They have to earn it. Group W has won the respect of 8 communities. And we’ve earned it each and every time.

How did we earn it in Boston?

For one thing, by being authorities on the one subject everyone in New England is interested in: Weather.

At WBZ-TV, Boston, there’s a fully-manned private weather bureau with three staff meteorologists to give the kind of weather information New Englanders demand.

WBZ-TV was the first television station in New England to hire an accredited meteorologist weatherman. Today, in Boston, Don Kent is weather. He’s the man the people of New England depend on to tell them if the kids will need an extra sweater when they go to school in the morning. Or, whether or not to have their family picnic. Or, if the Red Sox’s game is going to be called off account of rain.

When a station gets this close to a community people respect it. And naturally, that respect carries over to the products advertised on that station. Whether they’re dog food or people food.

The American Bar Association last week presented its Gavel Award for a broadcast on the CBS News hour. It is the fourth year in succession that the CBS News hour has received this outstanding recognition from the nation’s lawyers—a record unmatched by any other news organization in the medium.

The CBS News hour regularly walks off with the lion’s share of top awards for excellence in television. Its over 30 major awards in the past year alone include no less than four Ohio State Awards, four Peabodys and a National School Bell. They add up to an overwhelming affirmation of the Tuesday night CBS News hour as television’s foremost information series.

On September 13 the CBS News hour begins its seventh season. With a schedule of subjects as wide as the human mind. It will go behind the iron gates of our prisons. It will investigate the shadowed corners of some labor unions. It will take a hard look at the grim ghettos in our greatest cities.

It will also explore the world of popular contemporary music. With a lightness of touch that belies the mortal peril of the undertaking it will probe the psyche of the modern woman. It will invite the nation to test wits and knowledge on sports, current affairs, science.

In short, in the weeks ahead the CBS News hour will reflect the world we live in. Without fear or bias. With clarity and great depth.

An award citation once described it as “Clearly television at its best.” It is still the only regularly scheduled hour-long informational series on television.

Meyner explains code stand

EDITOR: An article captioned “Another hobble on cigarettes?” in your Aug. 1 issue reports inaccurately my position with respect to tar-nicotine listings in cigarette advertising. The report says that the Cigarette Advertising Code administrator bars such listings unless they are backed by scientific proof of health significance.

You may note from the wording in Section 4 of the code: “. . . it shall be permissible to make a representation as to the quantity of an ingredient present in the mainstream smoke . . . if:

“. . . A disclaimer as to significance in terms of health shall be set forth in such advertising in substance and form satisfactory to the administrator . . .”

(Therefore) tar-nicotine listings are permitted if they are accompanied by a satisfactory disclaimer as to health significance; and under this provision, advertising containing such listings has been approved by the administrator and is in use.

The code does have a provision permitting tar-nicotine listings—Section 4, subsection (a)—that are based on “adequate relevant and valid scientific data” as to health significance. I know of no such data and, indeed, no code member-company has yet offered any for my consideration.

There has been a lot of misunderstanding about the code position on this issue. Our policy on this point comes down to this: “Prove it (health significance) or disclaim it.”—Robert B. Meyner, administrator, Cigarette Advertising Code Inc., New York.

Is the teen-age market dead? To hear the adult advertiser, who has just finished a 13-week series of go-go spots you might think so. To hear him claim that marketing experts have mislabeled the under 20's as a readily definable and reachable market, you would know so. The facts, though, are very much to the contrary. For what has disenchanted many an advertiser on reaching teen-agers is the failure to understand them. Perhaps our advertiser is too old to be aware of teen-agers' tastes, demands, peculiarities. Perhaps he doesn't have any teen-agers at home. Whatever the problem, he's missed the point.

Not every product can be sold to teen-agers, but there are enough products that they buy or influence to constitute a major marketing segment well worth going after. They buy 55% of the soft drinks, 53% of the movie tickets, 44% of the cameras, 30% of the watches, 23% of the cosmetics, 20% of the fashions. And if it weren't for their hot rods of five years ago, we'd never have had dual exhausts, bucket seats and car bodies that are virtually stripped of chrome.

As with any segment of the overall market, advertisers can only be successful if they truly understand the appeals of that segment and involve themselves in that group's activities. You don't sell the Negro with white models in suburbia settings, and similarly you can't sell teen-agers with adults, or young adults acting like adults think teen-agers act.

Money, Freedom • Today's teen-agers are different. They have more money and a greater freedom and awareness of the world around them than any preceding generation. Their scale of relative interest or excitement started higher than ours. While we may find a space walk the living end—a virtual science fiction novel come true—they view the same event as commonplace. For they've grown up in an era that has known only the hydrogen bomb ICBM's, rockets to Mars, the 707's, the pill, and Henry Miller on display at the local soda fountain. They have no inhibiting experience of a national depression, prohibition, or religion.

Out of all of this has emerged a teen-ager with well defined tastes, yet a member of the greatest conformist group in the world. They have their own language, their own rebellions, their own resistance to adults.

Perhaps the greatest contrast I can offer in the changing mores of today's teen-agers, compared with those of a decade ago, is in the TV dance shows. Ten years ago TV stations took their top adult DJ, put him in an Ivy suit, gave him a stack of records and turned on the camera. It was, in short, a radio DJ show with dancers on TV. For its time and its audience it was successful.

Today, you sell a teen-ager in his own language and with a teen-ager. Take the same dance show. Today's teen-ager show, to be successful, must spotlight the teen-ager. Have a host who, while not a teen-ager, looks like one and is acceptable to the group. Most importantly, the show must involve teen-agers.

Case In Point • A good case in point is our own experience with the Disco Phonic Scene, an hour dance show that originated in our market and is now being syndicated nationally by Seven Arts Television.

The show's ability to sell products has resolved about a host, Jerry Blavat, who has penetrated the teen-ager's mask of boredom through a total involvement. He dances their dances—even originates new ones before they can tire of the old. As the Geator with the Heat, he talks their language and even originates his own. His dancers are real teen-agers, not models doing a jet set go-go. And he reaches them every day of the week through his record albums, seven-days-a-week radio show, and record hops.

In the summer, he goes to the resorts and runs his hops where the foxes (girls) and coyotes (boys) are. And when they have problems, the Geator listens. If they get into the jackpot (trouble), they tell the desk sergeant to call the Geator—not their father. "The Geator'll understand. He'll be able to make my parents understand."

From an advertiser's viewpoint, this means that the Geator can serve as a virtual pied piper to the teen-ager. In Philadelphia for example, the off-screen involvement helped to spark sales of Mountain Dew, a Pepsi-generation product, equal to that of Diet Pepsi, and on one-tenth of the budget.

A department store, with nine suburban locations, opened Geator Style Shops to give the youngsters a meeting spot, a place to open teen-age charge accounts, and freedom from the adult world to select clothing items in teen-age styles and sizes previously scattered throughout the store.

In short, an advertiser must stop being an adult and become a teen-ager. At least long enough to make his spot. Product and packaging reflect the tastes and desires of today's teen-ager "in" crowd.

Avoid 'Phony' Tag • At the same time, keep plugged in! There's nothing worse than promoting yesterday's "in" talk today. The kids will immediately tag you as a phony.

In short, don't let the concept of a teen-aged market die because of the execution being misdirected. Step out beyond your spots and get involved in each local market. Demonstrate your sincerity by catering to their interests. Tell them what you have to sell in a straightforward, no gimmick fashion. Put your message into the media that they listen to, into point of purchase where they congregate. Periodically ask them what they think of you. Then change yourself or your product to reflect what they prefer. From there on you have built a double-edged sword: sales from today's teen-agers and a head start on your corporate awareness in tomorrow's market. For today's purchase is more than a sale to a teen-ager, it's the birth of a customer's life-long loyalty.

A $15-million free ride on TV?

Filler film for giant corporations finds way into most station schedules, makes points for its sponsors worth many times their investment

Free films, some with subtle advertising messages and some not so subtle, are filling an estimated $15 million worth of television fringe time yearly and may be yielding their sponsors promotion worth many times that amount.

Industry associations, giant companies and small ones, some of television's big, regular customers and the U. S. government are all suppliers of free films to television. Some handle the job directly, others through companies whose livelihood is in distribution of these so-called "sponsored films."

The distribution companies involved estimate the average television station, commercial and educational, carries as many as five free programs or a total of two hours, weekly.

Subjects of their films are as diverse as the famous blonde-hair beauties of history and secondary sewage treatment, but practically all have one thing in common—they carry messages or treat subjects in which their sponsors are clearly interested.

Color Your Hair Anyone? * For example, Clairol Inc., distributor of hair-coloring products and a major TV advertiser, has a five-minute color film in distribution called "Blondes Through the Ages." Now several months old, it has achieved 48 telescasts and an estimated circulation of 1.6 million viewers and is still in the prime of its television life.

A striking attribute of most sponsored films is their longevity. An earlier Clairol five-minute filler film called "New Headlines," suited for insertion in women's programming, got 269 plays in three years and a cumulative audience of 9.6 million.

Avon Products has a five-minute film out—"Lessons in Loveliness"—that pictures some of the company's cosmetic products in use. It's been played on TV 32 times and has reached an audience of approximately 2 million.

Industry associations are active in backing documentary films that get free television exposure. A 15-minute color program, "It's Your Decision: Clear Water," is presented under the impetus of the League of Women Voters but was financed by the Soap and Detergent Association. Its message is the promotion of secondary sewage treatment.

Travel films, offered free to television stations, enjoy a wide acceptance, as do sports films and documentaries.

See New England * The New England Mutual Life Insurance Co., Boston, has a half-hour program, promoting New England travel and showing the company's headquarters, that has played on television more than 1,000 times.

There's a long list of distributors of free films and for most of them television is not the primary outlet for their clients' products. Schools, trade and business groups and private organizations are prime targets.

Television stations report occasional contacts from a multitude of free-program sources, but three distribution companies are most frequently mentioned as the major private suppliers of free footage. These are Association Films, Modern Talking Picture Service and Sterling Movies U.S.A.

Modern Talking Picture Service claims to be the largest free-film distributor to TV. With six regional offices in the U. S., it is believed to have booked close to 40,000 confirmed telecasts in the past 12 months for gross fees from clients of $600,000. It carries future bookings for some 11,000 plays.

During the past year Modern serviced 517 television stations with free film. Of these 318 took its films on a weekly basis.

The general practice of distribution companies is to charge $15 for each TV play they get for a given film regardless of the size of the market, the time classification in which it's played, the audience it reaches or the length of the picture.

Quantity Discount * The price may scale down as low as $10 per play depending on the number of films the sponsoring company makes available to the distributor.

There's a tremendous variation in costs-per-thousand-viewers achieved by sponsored films. Their audience appeal has much to do with the time periods in which they're played, but a short filler film may find its way into a superior class merely because it's needed to fill a gap left by a shorter-than-usual feature film or to meet some short-notice program exigency. Sponsored films described as having "clean formats"—that is, of obvious commercial messages—are apt to enjoy much higher station acceptance.

Free-film sponsors get regular reports on the performance of their product.

For instance, Association Films sends its clients monthly computer-prepared sheets showing the markets in which a program has played, the station, date, time, total audience reached broken down in adult and youth categories and running totals on audience data over the life of the film.

A major distributor estimates the time cost of the average television hour filled by free film at $225. Independent stations and smaller market stations are said to be more eager for free film product than major-market network affiliates and the film is usually placed in fringe-time periods.

However, according to one of the larger distributors, there is virtually no station that would follow a blanket refusal policy on sponsored films.

Some stations schedule regular series of free films put together in packages by the distributors who draw from the libraries of various clients whose pictures fit together in theme and length.

Small Markets Busy • The film librarian of an independent New York TV outlet, who acknowledges that his station plays a considerable amount of free film, thinks smaller-market stations are the biggest customers for free footage. "Free films," he says, "may get played when there's not too much competition or when there's too much competition. If the opposition has a blockbuster movie and nothing's going to beat it, they may schedule a free program."

Some free-film sponsors do allow sale of spots within their programs according to stations and distributors questioned—if there is no conflict between film and commercial.

The American Dairy Association is said to allow such TV sponsorship in films it has underwritten.

One notable among TV film practitioners, their business is neither booming nor declining. The emergence of new UHF and educational stations has slightly more than offset some loss in business at VHF stations where schedules have become more fully sold.

Most free films are now being made in color and this is adding to their attractiveness at a time when color footage is at a premium.

Sterling Movies says its overall television distribution increased by 16% over last year although business from VHF outlets declined 5%.

A survey among all television stations (48% responded) conducted by Association Films indicated that 95% of stations with color origination capability televise free color films with travel and sports themes heavily favored. The same 95% said they colorcast three free films weekly.

Free News • Sterling Movies subsidiary, News Screen, aids its clients in preparing and distributing news clips of their activities to TV stations. It may charge as much as $1,250 per release for such service and now grosses about $50,000 a year from this sector of its business.

Occasionally this free news may make it onto a network. A clip of the Navy's Blue Angel stunt flyers supplied by Grumman Aircraft through Sterling was shown on CBS-TV's June 11 Saturday night Roger Mudd news show. The clip was identified with a superimposed line of print saying "official Blue Angel film." but with no mention of Grumman.

Another Sterling division called Creative Programming Services distributes free quarter-hour programs called "Cavalcade" made up of five two-and-a-half minute "participations" (stories) that may be supplied originally by five separate Sterling clients.

Cost to clients for these participations is $3,450. Sterling says it has distributed nine Cavalcade programs, each with five participating sponsors. They've been played on U.S. television stations more than 2,500 times.

An exhaustive list of companies that make free films available to television would include many of the best known corporate names in the country and many of television's biggest regular sponsors. Such names as du Pont, General Motors, Frigidaire, AT&T, Procter & Gamble, Union Carbide, Sears Roebuck, General Foods, Johnson & Johnson, Metropolitan Life, U.S. Steel, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Schlitz, Anheuser-Busch and American Airlines are identified as sponsors of these films. But the list would be by no means limited to the larger firms.

Larger companies, however, may even divide their free film operation into corporate and product publicity divisions. General Foods recently withdrew an eight-year-old half-hour color film, a corporate promotion piece titled Harvest of Convenience, from circulation. After 737 telecasts and an estimated total TV audience of 31.7 million, the picture, which shows how foods are harvested all over the world and packaged in GF plants, was outdated. Packaging innovations have led to production of a new corporate film that will update the company's story.

Product publicity films handled by another GF department, reach TV stations through outside distributors. This GF unit has made three recent five-minute short subjects in color for as many companies products. Another film in distribution from GF titled "More Kick Out Of Football" may have football as its theme but a GF product is its promotion object. A jar of Instant Sanka is shown during the picture.

ID • Sponsor identification in a free film generally takes the form of visual credit lines at beginning or end of the picture. Most such films are required to carry identification of the sponsoring company according to the amended Section 317 of the Communications Act. However, members of the FCC staff known to be dissatisfied with past interpretations of Section 317 and specifically with guidelines drawn up in a House report on this law.

Some on the commission staff think the House report is too permissive in allowing no identification in cases where films have a clear though not pervasive commercial intent. The report gives the example of a travel film offered free to stations by a bus line. In the picture a bus, "clearly identifiable as that of the bus company is shown fleetingly..." In this situation the report says no identification is required.

Sponsor ID would be required, according to the report, if the bus "is shown to an extent disproportionate to the subject matter of the film." One commission staff member describes the law as "murky" in this area.

The FCC staff has drafted proposals for guidelines in this matter but commission action on the question is not expected in the near future.
New trick in two-sponsor spots

It's not piggyback, and it's not integrated; it's a minute shared by two makers of different products, and it's burning many broadcasters

A ripple of concern and indignation is running through the television industry over what some fear may become this year's version of the uproar over piggyback commercials of a couple of years ago.

The cause is a two-company, two-product integrated announcement that appears to give twin sponsors the advantage of a premium position for the price of a single spot. In these commercials two advertisers seek to share the time franchises they may hold on stations or networks.

In these positions they may promote related products simultaneously: for example, sandwich bags and sandwich ingredients, each receiving equal copy and visual treatment.

The practice is not brand new, but it shows signs of spreading and, if allowed to proliferate, could have a seriously depressing effect on television industry revenues, according to many broadcasting authorities. If these commercials spread the way piggyback announcements did, one network official said, some companies could cut their television budgets 20% to 30% while maintaining their present advertising efficiency.

A check of networks, station representatives and agency officials last week indicated no uniform policy on acceptance or rejection of the two-company spots. All broadcasters voiced objections to them but many said that in some cases, such as short-term promotion campaigns, some versions of these announcements might be acceptable or have been accepted.

At Agencies Too: The broadcasters' indecisiveness was backed by agency officials, who alleged that networks and stations are highly inconsistent in their acceptance policies covering these spots.

The most frequently noted case is that of a commercial for Metrecal cookies and Tab, both diet control products. A three-week campaign is set to break for these products using an integrated 60-second commercial produced by Ogilvy & Mather (agency for Mead Johnson's Metrecal) and distributed by the Marschalk Co. (agency for Coca-Cola Co.'s Tab beverage).

A representative of one of the agencies involved admitted some difficulty in placing the announcements on individual stations. "Some are taking them, some are not," he said. "In any case, this is no long-term advertising agreement between the companies. It's merely a short-term cooperative effort tied in with in-store promotion."

The Tab-Metrecal spot is being used as part of the regular broadcast schedules for these products, he explained. "They place the commercial in their list; we pay for the time.

This particular commercial was submitted to NBC-TV and CBS-TV. Both networks reportedly turned it down. ABC-TV, it was said, had not been offered the spot, but a spokesman for that network stated: "It's not our policy to tolerate that type of commercial. If the spot (Tab-Metrecal) were submitted, it would not be accepted."

However, another version of the announcement, one that would treat one of the two products in a secondary way, giving it just a tag line for identification was said to be in development, and it was thought that such a commercial would probably meet network standards.

One agency official who admitted difficulty in placing such spots with networks and stations questioned both the rationale and legality of the broadcasters' positions. "If they'll take a piggyback announcement that handles two products of the same company, how can they refuse an integrated commercial from two companies?"

He doubted that advertisers would want to bring the matter to a legal test and also noted the danger, from the sponsor's point of view, that it might lead broadcasters to charge premium prices for two-company announcements.

Premium: Indeed this is a step that has already been advised by one or more station-representation companies. One such firm told Broadcasting it had advised its stations not to take these commercials as a general rule, but that if they did they ought to put surcharges on them and certainly ought not to allow normal discounts for them.

This rep acknowledged it was just such a policy that had eventually led to the spread of piggyback commercials despite original policies of nonacceptance, surcharge and pre-emptible status instituted by major group broadcasters. Another critic argued that "trying to charge premium prices wouldn't stop these commercials any more than it stopped piggybacks." Rejection he contended, is the only solution.

Corinthian Broadcasting, one of the last station-group hold-outs against piggyback announcements, said last week it had no written policy covering acceptance of the fully integrated two-sponsor commercials.

The networks all claim nonacceptance is the rule for these spots, although there have been one or two instances when one "slipped by."

CBS-TV's standards and practices department says it has not altered a longstanding policy of nonacceptance. In 1959 the network advised agencies that it had previously adjusted its integrated commercial policy in recognition of a merchandising trend.

That policy, it said, would accommodate related-product campaigns "in which the union resulted in a new service or products," such as pie crusts and pie fillings. The network said that as long as the two products were truly related, trade-name mention of the tie-in product would be permitted but without supporting selling commercial. Only one related-product commercial per program was allowed and only one video presentation of the related product was permitted. The audio mention of the secondary product could only establish its relationship to the primary product.

CBS View: CBS officials said that in light of the increasing number of spot-carrier programs since the announcement of that policy, more than one such commercial would probably be acceptable now within a single program.

NBC-TV outlined a policy essentially similar to that of CBS-TV.

However, one agency, responsible for another two-sponsor commercial campaign not yet aired, said it thought two networks had accepted its commercials. These spots are for Colgate-Palmolive's Baggies and Kraft Foods products.

The Colgate agency is Street & Finney; Kraft's is Needham, Harper & Steers. Baggies is also teamed with Cap'n Crunch (Quaker Oats) in another integrated commercial.

A representative of one of the agencies said with some annoyance that "all the networks are inconsistent" in this matter.

The Baggies-Kraft spot, he thought, would be directed at both network and COMMERCIAL PREVIEW: Drexel furniture counts on color

In the expectation that furniture can burst alive in color on the TV screen, Drexel Furniture Co. of Drexel, N. C., has completed production of a one-minute color announcement that will be shown this fall in the advertiser's top-20 markets.

To set off furniture style and color, the commercial combines the theme of a "Wonderful World of Drexel!" with several of the firm's lines by alternating foreign scenes with room settings of Drexel styles.

The commercial opens with a portrayal of a young couple on the move, interspersing the action with modern furniture settings, and then proceeds to scenes of the Mediterranean and Spain, with furniture showing "the bold splendor of Spanish"; of an English manor house to dramatize "castle-inspired" Tudor pieces, and similarly for French Provincial furniture, both classic and sophisticated. A five-second dealer identification tag is provided at the end of the film.

The commercial was produced in New York at Spectra Films, through Drexel's advertising agency, Arndt, Preston, Chapin, Lamb & Keen, Philadelphia.

spot-television schedules, whereas the Baggies-Cap'n Crunch announcement would look for spot schedules only.

This agency official said he didn't know whether jointly sponsored integrated announcements represent a trend in agency-advertiser strategy, but he did say that Colgate had been considering this plan for a long time.

Another Example ■ Two further commercials that would fit into the fully integrated description are reportedly planned for Marshmallow Fluff, a product of Durkee-Mower handled by Richard K. Manoff Agency, and Skippy Peanut Butter, and another for Marshmallow Fluff with a Nestle Co. product.

Another commercial, one "partially integrated" and advertising Frito Lay chips primarily with audio and video presentation of Armour frankfurters, ran on NBC-TV as part of a special July 4 campaign. Although the announcement dealt mainly with the Frito Lay product, NBC officials feel it would have been just as effective if it had referred to frankfurters without using the Armour brand name. The implication is that it would not be accepted in the same form again.

Most station representatives hesitate to take an adamant stand against the two-sponsor spots, though all would apparently like to see them wiped out of existence.

A vice president of one of the largest representation companies said he couldn't see why the broadcasting industry should put itself in a weaker posture by accepting them.

"This isn't like newspaper advertising," he commented, "where the advertiser is proprietor, in a sense, of the page he buys. The sponsor isn't the proprietor of the spot schedule he has contracted for and he can't go trading off part of it to another sponsor."

This station representative was openly bitter about such agency methods. "The agencies' guilt about their media commission system of compensation leads them into these practices," he charged.

A media vice president at one of the largest spot-TV buying agencies saw the situation quite differently. There's no reason to restrict these commercials, he said. When there's a natural relationship between products, he suggested, it may be in the best interests of clients to double them up in a single commercial. "This has been done in print for so long," he went on, "it's natural for the method to segue into broadcasting."

The same agency man asserted that in spite of broadcasters' complaints about piggyback commercials, the industry had enjoyed a record year in revenues according to FCC figures. Piggybacks brought more advertisers into the medium, he said, and integrated commercials could have the same effect.

Circulation guaranteed by Florida station

WALT Tampa, Fla., began a new guaranteed-circulation plan last week whereby sponsors on the station are assured a rating of 6.0 for their sales messages or a cumulative weekly audience of 35,000 homes.

Rating and circulation figures will be drawn from special Pulse surveys to be conducted in the Tampa-St. Petersburg area three times yearly.

Called "SMD" for sales messages delivered, the plan provides that if the rating or circulation figures are higher than the guaranteed levels, advertisers will still be able to renew contracts at the same unit rate.

If the figures fall below the guaranteed levels, advertisers' renewal contracts will provide for making up the difference in ratings or homes reached at no additional cost.

TV spending per family

TVAR finds average is $14.56, up 51% from five years ago.

Spot television advertisers spent an average of $14.56 on every television family in the country last year. This figure, based on FCC financial data released two weeks ago, represents a 51% increase over the average spot outlays per family of five years ago.

Market-by-market cost-per-family information was compiled and released last week by Television Advertising Representatives. As in previous years, TVAR's compilation shows that the largest markets get the heaviest per-family concentration of spot-TV dollars.

The top-20 markets in 1965 were blanketed with spot billings that averaged $16.47 per television family; those markets below the top 40 received $8.16 per family.

TVAR noted that markets of similar size but with different numbers of TV stations may vary significantly in the spot monies they receive per family, those with more stations being apt to get more spot.

Dallas, the rep firm pointed out, with four stations got $16.10 in spot billing per family while Cincinnati, of a similar size but with only three TV stations, received an average of $11.38 a family.

Auto sponsor returns to TV

Jim Moran (r), who built one of the nation's largest auto dealerships with television but quit heavy use of the medium two years ago because of soaring program costs, watches one of his new TV spots at WBKB-TV Chicago with Richard A. O'Leary, ABC vice president and WBKB-TV general manager.

Mr. Moran's Courtesy Motors is buying 42 spots a week this month and part of next to clear out 1966 models but he said he is back in television for good. He was on TV first in 1948, subsequently pioneering late night programs and movies. Courtesy agency is Malcolm Howard Advertising, Chicago.
Why do they love us like they do, DO, DO?

WE KNOW you're bored with all the rating claims you hear from broadcasters — but who tells you WHY people listen?

One reason our area is mad about us is that we spend more dough to produce truly BIG-TIME news, sports, weather and other local-interest stuff. For example, Norm Schrader, our News Director, just spent a month in Viet Nam, interviewing 127 Fargo-area servicemen, right up there in the fighting.

Another for instance, our twelfth Annual WDAY Band Festival on May 14 drew 86 high school bands to Fargo (nearly 6,000 bandmen) — 80 girls in the beauty contest — multiple thousands of parents, teachers and friends for one of the biggest days Fargo ever saw.

We could go on and on. It's a story of community leadership and vitality that you ought to hear. Ask PGW!

Where's the action?

Well, it depends on which of NBC's new adventure shows you're asking about.

On "Tarzan," most of the action will be taking place against a background of jungle foliage, giant waterfalls, rivers bulging with hippos, and hippos bulging with pride over the idea of appearing in so exciting a series.

On "Star Trek," a weekly excursion into the unknown of the future, the action will be set beyond our time and solar system. When the viewer joins the crew of the United Space Ship Enterprise each week, he won't know which landfall in space has been marked as his destination. If ever there was a far-out series, this is it.

On "The Road West," the arena of action belongs not to the future but the past. It's the frontier country west of the Mississippi—the land of the early sodbusters. It's here that pioneer Ben Pride and his family have come to search for a new way of life—against seemingly hopeless odds.

On "The Girl From U.N.C.L.E.," the action may take place just about anywhere, for this lovely agent's assignments to thwart Thrush will be taking her to every corner of the globe. (We know a globe has no corners, but let's not quibble.)

And just as unpredictable are the settings for "T.H.E. Cat," a series about a fearless and incredibly agile do-gooder. Over the weeks, the series' writers will confidently be whisking Mr. Cat from one dangerous mission to another. Around the studio, the writers are already being referred to as the Cat's whiskers.

Five new adventure shows in all—and all quite different. Yet, there is one specific answer as to where the action is during this new and exciting 1966-1967 season.

It's on the NBC Television Network. You know it. THE FULL COLOR NETWORK

When a Big “Cat” Comes to Town

When Humble announced plans to build the world’s biggest catalytic cracking unit (“cat cracker” in refinery parlance), it naturally created quite a stir at Baytown, Texas, where the big “cat” will be located. The people of Baytown have known Humble a long time, nearly fifty years now, and they have seen many changes in the refinery skyline as the need for more and better petroleum products required larger and more sophisticated equipment. But they must have felt a nostalgic twinge when they saw old Cat Cracker 7.1, source of more than a billion gallons of World War II aviation gasoline, come down to make room for the big “cat.”

One thing the citizens of Baytown knew from experience, however, was that the giant catalytic cracker, like every new piece of equipment in the refinery, would be as clean in operation as the most advanced technology can make it. Maintaining clean air and water is as important to us as it is to our Baytown neighbors.
Piels’ appeal in Spanish

Piels Brothers, New York brewers, has hitched its Spanish-market advertising wagon to Raul Marrero, one of the rising stars in Spanish show business.

Mr. Marrero’s first assignment under an exclusive contract with Piels is a one-minute color commercial proclaiming Piels Real Draft as “the only beer my friends and I drink.”

The commercial opens with Mr. Marrero singing a popular Spanish song on location in San Juan, P. R. Then, holding a bottle of the product, he says in Spanish: “Piels Real Draft, each sip a temptation,” and other theme lines such as “Piels Real Draft, light to the eye, light to the taste.”

The scene shifts to a swinging Puerto Rican party, with young lovelies offering to pour Mr. Marrero’s Real Draft. The commercial returns to its original bayside location and closes with a product shot.

Piels, through Spanish Advertising and Marketing Services, New York, has scheduled the spot to appear in two weeks on WNJU-TV Linden-Newark, N. J., particularly on the stations’ Spanish-language sports show, Catedra Deportiva. The commercial will also be used in Piels cinema advertising.

The spot was produced in the one-minute form and an edited 30-second version by Viguie Guastella Inc., San Juan. Sara Grimmer of Spanish Advertising was the copywriter.

Burden wants more teeth in double-billing rule

A radio broadcaster last week filed a formal petition with the FCC to institute rule-making proceedings to prohibit the very practice he is accused of using at one of his stations.

Don Burden, president of Star Stations of Indiana Inc. (WIFE-AM-FM Indianapolis), last week proposed that the FCC’s double-billing rule be amended to include a prohibition on false affidavits to advertisers.

Wife currently faces an FCC hearing on its license-renewal application largely on charges that it issued false affidavits to advertisers on the times and dates their commercials ran. The station is also accused of mishandling a contest (BROADCASTING, May 2).

In defending himself against charges of false reporting, which he acknowledged occurred but which was blamed on employee errors, Mr. Burden had observed that the practice was widespread among broadcasters, and, objected to being “singled out” on this issue. He suggested that the FCC prohibit this practice through a rule-making proceeding (BROADCASTING, July 25).

In his petition last week, Mr. Burden said that the bogus reports to advertisers be treated the same as the commission treats double billing. Double billing, the practice of charging local advertising a lower rate, then billing him at a higher, national rate so that the advertiser can collect a larger sum from the manufacturer as part of his allowance for cooperative advertising, was banned by the FCC last year (BROADCASTING, Oct. 25, 1965).

Mr. Burden suggested that the double billing rule (Secs. 73.124, 73.299 and 73.678) be amended to add the same ban on “any bill, invoice, affidavit, or other document . . . which misrepresents the time or the date or the number of times that such advertising was broadcast.”

Home furnishers band together for TV show

A group of manufacturers has banded together to sponsor a television program geared to stimulate consumer interest in home furnishings. Five national and local home-goods manufacturers, who previously had not been television advertisers, began sponsoring a regular half-hour, Sunday morning show last week on KTLA (TV) Los Angeles. The Better Living Show, as it’s called, has a 52-week commitment from the Golden West Broadcasters-owned station.

The program is pre- and shown in color. It aims at informing viewers of latest trends in decorating, home-furnishings designs, color trends, new materials and housing. It’s integrated into and followed by an hour film travelogue-type program sponsored by the California Institute of Better Design, which has been running on KTLA for more than eight years.

The new series does not provide commercial breaks in a conventional way. In essence the entire program is a commercial featuring the products of the sponsors. Viewers are told where they may buy merchandise displayed on the show.

Among the sponsors for the opening weeks of the series are Kravet Fabrics, New York, maker of decorative materials; the Flintkote Co., New York, manufacturer of shingles, sidings, paperboard products and wall and floor tiles; Bob Mitchell Designs, Los Angeles, wallpaper manufacturer; Max Rawicz...
Know what it takes to “bring you in” from 37,000 feet?

In addition to a highly skilled crew, it takes a multi-million dollar airport with integrated communications and navigation systems.

It takes an air traffic control system, radar, towers and lighting.

It takes computers, radio communications, and a message center with teleprinters, telephones and intercoms.

It takes distance-measuring equipment, radio altimeters and other precision airborne equipment.

Finally, it takes somebody to supply all this—specifically designed and engineered to the requirements of the airport authorities. That somebody is ITT.

For the past 30 years ITT companies have played a vital role in the evolution of the aviation industry.

ITT patents form the basis of modern radar and other air navigation systems. The ILS (Instrument Landing System) is an ITT development. Every 30 seconds somewhere in the world an aircraft lands safely using ILS.

Without these, and many other ITT systems, air travel as we know it today would be impossible.

Zenith spent over $4 million in major media in 1965 with more than 40% going into TV, a substantial increase over 1964.

CATV ruling held up

California judge orders delay on rule forbidding importation of signals

A federal judge in California last week canceled the first FCC ruling that temporarily tried to stop existing CATV systems from expanding their services and continuing to provide distant-city TV signals to their subscribers.

U. S. Circuit Judge Walter Ely in Los Angeles issued a temporary restraining order against a July FCC order that imposed interim restrictions on three San Diego area CATV systems and their carriage of Los Angeles TV.

At the request of the FCC, and with the concurrence of the parties, he agreed, however, to hear arguments on his temporary stay on Aug. 22 in San Francisco.

The CATV systems are Mission Cable TV Inc. and Pacific Video Cable Co., both of El Cajon, and Southwestern Cable Co., San Diego.

Last month, the commission, acting on a complaint by KFMB-TV San Diego, that the cable systems were adversely affecting it and the other San Diego TV stations, told the three CATV systems to curbs expansion of their systems pending a hearing on the KFMB-TV allegations (Broadcasting, July 25).

All three cable systems were operating before Feb. 15, the effective date of the FCC's Second Report and Order bringing CATV's under FCC jurisdicticn. One of these rules prohibits these CATV systems from importing TV signals beyond their grade B contour into any of the top-100 markets. San Diego is 54th.

A Matter of Timing • The FCC hearing will seek to determine the size of the systems as of Feb. 15, and again on March 17. The latter is the date the FCC Second Report and Order was issued and the first day the commission began enforcing the distant-signal rule.

The FCC's July order barred the CATV's from relaying the Los Angeles TV signals into areas that weren't being served on Feb. 15. The commission said, however, that the Los Angeles signals could continue to be provided to pre-Feb. 15 customers, and to new subscribers in the pre-Feb. 15 areas. It also said that in new areas, the Los Angeles signals could be served only to those subscribers who had signed for service before Feb. 15.

Where the CATV's expand into new areas, the FCC said, they could only provide the signals of the San Diego TV stations. In addition to KFMB-TV, (ch. 8), San Diego also has KOGO-TV (ch. 10) and KAAR-TV (ch. 39) and is served by KETV (TV) (ch. 6) and KEWT (TV) (ch. 12) both in Tijuana, Mexico.

There were two other CATV's named in the KFMB-TV petition. One, Rancho Bernardo Antenna Systems Inc., La Jolla, was found to be serving a real estate development, and adds new subscribers only when new homes are built. The other, Poway Cable TV, Poway, Calif., had been named in the KFMB-TV complaint, but reached an agreement with the station before the FCC acted.

KFMB-TV is licensed to Midwest Television Inc., a group broadcaster with headquarters at WCA(TV) Champaign-Urbana, Ill. August C. Meyer is president.

In their appeals against the FCC's order to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, the three CATV's contend that the FCC lacks statutory authority to regulate CATV; that the July order violates the free-speech and due-process clauses of the Constitution; that the commission unlawfully made the rules retroactive to Feb. 15 although they didn't adopt them until March 4 and they weren't published in the Federal Register until March 17; and that the temporary prohibitions imposed on the CATV's were unlawful because the FCC did not make an official finding that "irreparable injury" would be done to KFMB-TV if the practices were continued until a decision was made after a hearing.

Senate CATV hearing resumes Aug. 25

The Senate Subcommittee on Patents, Trademarks and Copyright, which earlier this month began a hearing on CATV copyright legislation, announced last week that it would resume the hearing with testimony from the Justice Department and CBS. Scheduled to appear for the Justice Department will be Edwin M. Zimmerman, first assistant in the agency's anti-trust division, who was to have appeared during the earlier session but had to be rescheduled. Richard Jencks was also to have appeared at the first sessions for CBS and will be called back when inquiry resumes Aug. 25.

The subcommittee is considering a legislative package to revise the nation's copyright laws and decided to hold a separate hearing on the CATV aspects of the measure because of what it felt was an urgent need to reach a determination on this subject because of related court decisions and legislative action.

At the first session the CATV industry, departing from its earlier plea for exemption from copyright liability on the programs it rebroadcasts from TV stations, acknowledged liability in certain areas but warned it could be driven out of business if full liability was enacted. FCC Chairman Rosel H. Hyde and Register of Copyright Abraham L. Kaminstein both agreed that CATV should be granted some exemptions. A solid battery of witnesses from broadcasting, motion pictures, sports leagues and licensing organizations, however, opposed any such exemptions. No mention is expected on origination. The present copyright law applies to CATV when it originates programs.

When the hearing resumes Mr. Zimmerman is expected to testify that the Justice Department feels CATV should be granted full exemption from copyright applications because it feels the copyright owner, who already receives fees from the original broadcaster, should not collect a second reward when the CATV system retransmits the copyrighted program to its subscribers.

Meanwhile the House judiciary subcommittee deliberating over the same piece of legislation reported it had held more executive sessions without reaching any final decision.

Fair trial vs. press subject at ABA meet

Recommendations looking toward possible resolution of the basic conflicts of fair trial and free press are to be made public about mid-September, according to a study group in the American Bar Association. Changes in the law are expected to be urged.

Judge Paul C. Reardon of the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts and chairman of the ABA advisory committee on fair trial and free press reported Aug. 6 to the National Institute on Bar Public Relations during the ABA annual meeting in Montreal, that the two-year work of the committee is about completed. He praised both media and bar groups for their cooperation in the extensive research effort described as the most exhaustive on the subject to date and conducted both here and in England.

Judge Reardon declined to spell out what the recommendations will be. He did say, however, that "all hands—bench, bar and media—have agreed there is a problem" and "our studies and recommendations will endeavor to point the way to its solution. You may assume that the solution may call for statutory or rule changes in the bulk of the jurisdictions in the U.S."

Meanwhile last week, in the area of pretrial publicity and its reputed adverse effect upon fair trial, a university law professor, who conducted a survey of the 210 courtrooms of the 70 counties of the State of New York, found that 86 per cent of the judges would like to limit pretrial meetings and 94 per cent of the lawyers would like to see such restrictions. The study was made by the Center for the Study of American Law, University of Michigan, with the help of an advisory committee of judges and law professors who were responsible for both the planning and the conduct of the research.

NBC signs for drama

Will have TV version of Broadway show shortly after its premiere

NBC-TV last week backed its faith in the developing "TV drama renaissance" by announcing that it will present "The Investigation," Peter Weiss's play about the 1946-65 Auschwitz trial in Frankfurt, Germany, early in 1967. The network reportedly paid $500,000 to the play's Broadway producers.

The play opened last October in 17 German cities simultaneously, including East Berlin. It is, according to Don Durgin, NBC-TV president, "surely one of the most shattering dramas ever brought to the American stage."

"The Investigation" will have its American stage opening at the Ambassador theater in New York, Oct. 4. In announcing the TV production, Mr. Durgin commented that the presentation of a drama on television in the same season as its Broadway production is an "important innovation."

Utu Grosbard, director of the Pulitzer Prize-winning Broadway play, "The Subject Was Roses," will direct both the Broadway version and the NBC-TV color production. The telecast, adapted from the 140-minute stage script, is expected to run 90 minutes, but a two-hour time period is available if needed.

Producers for both stage and TV versions are Walter A. Hyman, Eugene V. Wolsk, Emanuel Azenberg and comedian Alan King. They have contracted to provide NBC-TV with a finished tape ready for broadcast.

Audience Puller = According to the producers, TV revenues will go "a long way toward covering production costs for the Broadway version." Moreover, Mr. King declared: "A successful viewing audience for the show would number between 15 and 20 million persons, giving us that many advocates to persuade the remaining 100 million persons in this country to see the show on the stage."

Mr. Weiss is the author of "Marat/Sade," last season's Drama Critic Award-winning Broadway production. His cast of 25 characters is drawn from trial transcripts. Guards and officials from Auschwitz prison camp were charged with the murder of millions of Jews during World War II.

NBC-TV's scheduled telecast is part of a recent upswing in network plans for quality drama. Against a background of NBC-TV's long-continuing Hallmark Hall of Fame series, which has included original drama among its productions for the last 15 years, Julian Goodman, NBC president, has announced a Sunday afternoon experimental theater series for NBC-TV early next year (Broadcasting, Aug. 8).

There's a possibility NBC-TV may also step up its program of developing new dramatic talent by employing on-air "auditions" of prospective actors and actresses. The testing would take place within the framework of its Tonight show, which has served from time to time as a testing ground for new comedians and singers.

A spokesman for the network said last week NBC-TV's talent department and Tonight producers have discussed such a project "beyond the idea stage" but not to the point of firming details. ABC will present ABC Stage 67, a Wednesday night series of one-hour dramas and musicals for the 1966-67 season. CBS has plans to show a series of CBS Playhouse original dramas in 9-11 p.m. time periods, possibly early in 1967. CBS is offering up to $25,000 for acceptable Playhouse scripts (see story below).

CBS-TV gets wheels going on drama

CBS-TV, which has set aside $500,000 in funds to lure original drama scripts (Broadcasting, June 27), has four name producers signed for CBS Playhouse, the projected vehicle for showing original TV drama specials. The producers are Herbert Brodkin, Fred Coe, Martin Manulis and George Schaefer. They will work with writers who under the Playhouse plan receive up to $25,000 for a commissioned script.

It was reported last week that

ARB finds comedy is favorite viewing

A study released by American Research Bureau revealed that the evening comedy show was the most popular program type in the 1966-67 season. The National Television Audience Composition Report for 1966 showed westerns running second with adventures in third place.

The study was conducted in January and March by ARB. The resulting figures were based on half-hour viewing averages for all network programs in 19 categories, classified according to program content.

The study is further broken down into men, women, teen-agers and children. Men preferred westerns; women evening game shows; children and teen-agers comedy shows. Following is the complete study:

Reginald Rose, TV and motion picture writer, who had been associated with \textit{Playhouse 90} among other dramatic vehicles, has been commissioned by CBS-TV to write a play for the new series.

Mr. Rose will receive $25,000 for the drama script that is entitled “Dear Friends” and deals with four married couples who live in New York. Mr. Rose was associated with Mr. Brodkin, who will produce the new play, in \textit{The Defenders} series on CBS-TV a few seasons ago.

Mr. Brodkin was executive producer of CBS's \textit{The Defenders} in addition to credits ranging from \textit{Studio One} to \textit{Playhouse 90}. Mr. Coe has been producing on Broadway and in motion pictures, and was active in such TV series as \textit{Philco Playhouse}, \textit{Producers Showcase} and \textit{Playhouse 90}. Mr. Manulis produced several \textit{Playhouse 90} programs and has been producing motion pictures for major studios in Hollywood and currently is translating to film the Broadway hit, “Liv.” He will be able to produce only one program for \textit{CBS Playhouse} at present because of a commitment to Columbia Pictures. Mr. Schaefer is a director and producer of NBC's \textit{Hallmark Hall of Fame} series and has lengthy Broadway credits.

Dr. Frank Stanton, CBS Inc. president, in a letter to CBS employees last week, noted that CBS-TV had received in less than a month after the project's announcement, "more than 150 unsolicited scripts, an equal number of author inquiries, and nearly 100 scripts or outlines from established sources."

Banner sales top

$6 million in half-year

Banner Films Inc., New York, last week reported a 1966 half-year total of over $6 million.

Charles McGregor, president, reported that domestic sales in that period reached an all-time high, particularly from sales of \textit{Tarzan} and \textit{Bold Journey}. Banner, he said, has sold five features to CBS-TV (including four "Tarzans") and renewed contracts with CBS-owned stations for the "Tarzan" features. He said the \textit{Tarzan} color series, scheduled for NBC-TV this fall, has also been sold in Canada to Canadian Broadcasting Corp. and United Program Purchase Ltd.

The Banner executive said his company's foreign sales have exceeded $1.5 million. In domestic syndication, he added, Banner will release two first-run features: "Too Hot to Handle" (color) with Jayne Mansfield, and "Sheena, Queen of the Jungle."
In Jacksonville, Fla., WJXT(TV) is seeing the fruit of its continuing labors ripen as the Duval county grand jury nears the half-way point in a six-month investigation of alleged corruption and waste of public funds. The investigation was triggered by a series of investigative reports and editorials on WJXT (Broadcasting, June 6).

To date three officials have been indicted as a result of the grand jury investigation. Other indictments are expected in the near future.

Bill Grove, news director of WJXT, said the digging began about 18 months ago with a look at the way officials were buying insurance. From that it spread into other areas of possible corruption and waste. There was a lot going on, Mr. Grove said, and the news simply wasn't being reported by the newspapers or the broadcast media. "We felt we were in a position to try and do the job," he added.

He attacked the problem by hiring an investigative reporter whose job was to look onto an area and bring the story in without worrying about a daily deadline. As things progressed, a second investigative reporter was hired.

Such investigations require full-time attention, Mr. Grove said. It can't be done by giving regular beat reporters an assignment on the side and telling them to go at it in their spare time, he added.

The special reports usually run four to five minutes and are inserted in newscasts. However, he pointed out, they don't go on the air until cleared by the station's attorneys. WJXT follows up the reports with editorials.

Last month a Florida newspaper, the Tampa Tribune, praised the station's efforts as being in the "highest traditions of American journalism" (Broadcasting, July 18). Comments such as that one and the general reaction of the public in Jacksonville to the reports and the editorials, Mr. Grove said, "makes a lot of things worthwhile."

vides two-way communication beyond the capacity of broadcasting. "A one-way screening of the teacher or the manager is not the most effective educational use of TV," Mr. Halpern asserted.

Messrs. Siegel, Culkin and Hilliard spoke at a Thursday session on "Broadcasters' Communications: Past, Present and Future." Mr. Hilliard also spoke at a Tuesday session on "The Tools and Requirements for Progress."

New Gear * In exhibits accompanying the conference RCA demonstrated for the first time what it called "the most versatile electronic system yet designed for individual student playback and study of prerecorded TV-tape and film-lesson material."

The system, or study center, included an eight-inch TV monitor, a 10-inch film-viewing screen, audio-tape equipment for recording and playback, a speaker and headphones, and a dial for selecting lesson playback from remote sources.

Sony Corp. showed a video-tape recorder said to be capable of recording black-and-white pictures, with sound, and of playing them back immediately on a standard TV set after a "simple wire connection." Sony said the 45-pound unit, model SV-300, was designed specifically for the audio-visual training field and would be ready for delivery about Sept. 1 at a price of $1,250.

Amplex Corp. showed its new model 6275 video-tape recorder with video control center, described as a low-cost, high-fidelity unit that connects directly to the TV-antenna terminal of any existing television set.

I.C.S. Services, Scranton, Pa., included in its display the Educasting FM radio instruction system, which permits listeners to respond to multiple-choice questions asked by a "radio teacher."

The meeting, the second international conference and exhibit sponsored by the AMA to explore educational problems and challenges, was held Tuesday through Friday in New York.

'Martian' sales good, despite late start

Wolper Television Sales last week reported that sales are on the climb for its syndicated My Favorite Martian, an off-network series (formerly on CBS-TV), despite the fact it was placed in syndication late in the selling season. Walter Kingsley, Wolper TV sales vice president, said the series has been sold in 15 major markets, and that many stations had scheduled Martian for a start next month instead of January as originally contemplated by the Wolper firm.

Among stations scheduling the series for September are WGN-TV, Chicago, WNEW-TV New York, WJZ-TV Baltimore, KTV(TV) Los Angeles, WAI-TV Atlanta, KMTC-TV Kansas City, Mo., WLWD(TV) Dayton, Ohio, and WTTG(TV) Washington. Worldwide syndication rights were acquired last May by David L. Wolper, president of Wolper Productions Inc. (a division of Metromedia) from Jack Chertok Productions and marked Wolper's first acquisition of rights to a major network series.

Mental-health group hits 'funny farm' disk

The National Association for Mental Health (NAMH) is mounting a campaign against the broadcast of a musical recitation distributed by Warner Bros. Records for Jepalana Music Co., New York. The recitation, spoken with a drum-beat background, assertedly gives a detrimental image to mental patients.

NAMH headquarters in New York distributed a memorandum July 22 to 850 state and local chapters requesting them to complain about the record to station and program managers.

The record, "They're Coming to Take Me Away Ha, Haah!", is published by the XIV Music Co., a subsidiary of Jepalana Music. It contains references to the "funny farm," "happy homes" and "white coats."

"In general, the record portrays the mentally ill as wild lunatics that have to be shut in an institution more like a prison than a hospital," Brian O'Connell, NAMH executive director, said last week.

Mr. O'Connell said that when NAMH contacted Warner Bros. Records, the company said it already had a distribution contract for the record that legally had to be fulfilled. Mr. O'Connell said Jepalana gave the NAMH "no satisfaction."

He added that preliminary reports from the association's chapters indicated that the station managers were listening "sympathetically" to requests that the record be taken off the air. He had no reports, however, of station commitments not to play the record.

SESAC, of which XIV Music Co. is a publisher affiliate and which licenses the record, said its policy does not exercise jurisdiction over what its affiliates publish. The licensing firm said NAMH had not called the disk to its attention. Relationships between NAMH and SESAC have always been cordial, the licensing firm said.

Some state chapters of NAMH have sent letters to program directors, urging suppression of the record. The national chapter has circulated one
Why do so many corporations contribute to America's colleges?

1. ( ) they want to help the colleges

You were right if you checked No. 2.
American corporations want to make sure there will be enough college-trained leaders to fill the management jobs open today and in the future.
This is good insurance for business.
And the need, we must remember, isn't getting smaller.
World trade is developing fast; business is getting more competitive, more complex; science is introducing new products and processes rapidly.
College-trained men and women are needed, in increasing numbers, to plan and direct the activities of business.

2. ( ) they need the leaders colleges train

But the colleges can't do the training job alone. They need classrooms, laboratories and facilities, yes. But even more, they need backing to maintain a staff of top-notch teachers.
This is the human equation that makes the difference in reaching the margin of excellence needed in the U.S.
This is everybody's job, but especially industry's.
Of course American business wants to help the colleges, so you were also right if you checked No. 1. College, after all, is business' best friend.

WTOP-TV schedules four-day festival

WTOP-TV Washington will pre-empt from one to two hours of prime-time programming each night for four successive nights next month to carry the Pageant of Performing Arts. Production costs for the shows were estimated at $50,000. They'll be carried as sustaining hours. The series has also been offered to the National Educational Television network.

The opener features the National Ballet with "Swan Lake" and "Con Amore" on Tuesday, Sept. 6, from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. The Washington National Symphony will be featured in the second program, Wednesday, Sept. 7, from 8:30 to 10 p.m. Howard Mitchell conducts the symphony with Andre Watts as guest pianist.

On Thursday, Sept. 8, the Opera Society of Washington will be seen in Mozart's "The Magic Flute" from 9 to 11 p.m. The final program in the series features guitarist Charlie Byrd, his trio and quintet on Friday, Sept. 9, from 9 to 10 p.m.

The Byrd show was taped at WTOP-TV, the others were recorded during regular performances earlier this year.

The series, said George Hartford, vice president and general manager, is designed to give the public a sample of the performing arts available in Washington and "dramatically points up the fact that these organizations, year in and year out, are available to Washingtonians."

Roy Meacham, drama critic for the station, will be host for the series.

CBS-owned TV's to study teen-age marriages

The five CBS-owned TV stations will probe teen-age marriage and divorce and then canvass attitudes toward this social phenomenon in the one-hour special, Feedback: Marriage—A Game for Kids?, Tuesday, Sept. 6 in prime time (WBBM-TV Chicago, KNOX-TV St. Louis—9 p.m.).

CBS News Correspondent Harry Reasoner will narrate the documentary portion of the program. Area newsmen will present a question series over the air to viewers in the five metropolitan areas.

Ballots printed in major newspapers are to be returned to the stations and results will be announced in follow-up broadcasts in prime time, Tuesday, Oct. 11.

This is the first "Feedback" all five CBS-owned TV stations have participated in since the format was originated by WBBM-TV in 1963. Filmed in the home cities of the five stations, the program interviews marriage counselors and participants in successful or broken teen-age marriages.

Merrill Brockway, producer of two Emmy-winning broadcasts for WBBM-TV and WCAU-TV, produced the program for the CBS-owned stations. He included among the youths interviewed Tommy Retzig, first master of TV's Lasie and now a 23-year-old with a wife and two children, and Gale Sayers of the Chicago Bears, 1965 pro football rookie of the year.

AT&T asked for Telpak-sharing views

The FCC has asked AT&T for its opinion on whether news media should be allowed to share with one another in the communications package deal known as Telpak.

Telpak, which is used by some large broadcasters, currently offers reduced rates to AT&T customers who purchase a minimum package of 12 voice-grade circuits. These circuits are used for voice messages, teletypewriter, photo facsimile and other services.

AT&T now permits only regulated utilities and various government agencies to share Telpak services when they do not need the full 12 channels.

BCG newsletter offers case for editorials

John T. Murphy, president of Avco Broadcasting, calls for public action through broadcast editorials in a new issue of BCG Communiqué.

Mr. Murphy advises broadcasters to “express opinions, endorse, editorialize. We do less than a complete job if we do not expose our audience to views they would not get otherwise.”

In the same publication Ben Strouse, vice president and general manager of Avco’s WWOC-AM-FM Washington, describes the method of rotating editorials through his stations’ schedules to attain maximum cumulative audiences.

The views on editorializing are contained in an article titled “Radio Editorials: Good Citizenship or Good Business,” which weighs the benefits and risks of carrying station opinion.

BCG Communiqué is published by Broadcast Communications Group, which represents Avco stations.

NYC council opens meetings

After years of veto, the New York city council has opened its sessions to news coverage by radio and TV.

Councilman Joseph Modugno (R-Queens) said the council action was voted on unanimously. Mr. Modugno quipped: “TV coverage of the city council may improve the quality of TV programs.” He said: “Now instead of getting into politics through radio, television and movies, one can get into movies and television through politics.”

Regulations on the radio-TV coverage will be drafted by the city’s rules committee.

Texas firm applies to FCC for microwaves to relay special CATV-only programs to cable TV systems

The issue of CATV's originating programs, which the FCC ducked and tossed in the lap of the Congress, may have to be decided by the commission. Before the Congress gets around to acting.

Last Monday (Aug. 8), the FCC accepted the application of Dal-Worth Microwave Inc., Dallas, for microwave links to other Texas microwave systems. The following day, the long-dormant Texas Television Broadcasters Association met in Dallas and voted to oppose the Dal-Worth flings.

There were 23 TTBA members present and the association had asked Douglas Anello, general counsel of the National Association of Broadcasters, to sit in on the session. Ray Herndon, KMDT-TV Midland, president of TTBA, said the association, which was formed three years ago, hadn't seen a need to be called into session. Dal-Worth proposed to originate local programming for CATV's.

Dal-Worth proposed to deliver three channels of programs that it would originate in the Dallas-Fort Worth area. One channel would carry only movies, another would have sporting and news events and the third would be educational and available to area colleges and universities.

It proposed to offer the services to four microwave systems: Andrews Tower Rental Inc. near Glen Rose, West Texas Microwave Co. near Aledo, KBC Corp. near Walnut Springs and East Texas Transmission Co. near College Mound. These, in turn, would presumably offer the local origination to the systems they serve in communities around Dallas, Fort Worth, Austin, Waco and Brownwood.

Dal-Worth also plans to serve Brownwood Television Cable Service Inc. Brownwood Cable has about 5,000 subscribers.

Dal-Worth originally made its proposal earlier this summer at the National Community Television Association convention in Miami (Broadcasting, July 4). At that time it said it would seek FCC approval for microwave links to Tyler, Abilene, Waco, Brownwood and Lubbock and hoped to interconnect its system with other microwave facilities to ultimately serve 200,000 CATV homes in Texas and Oklahoma.

Up in Air • John G. Campbell, president of CAS Manufacturing Co., Dallas CATV manufacturer and one of Dal-Worth's founders, said last Thursday (Aug. 11) things were still very "indefinite"; that he was negotiating with program sources for material to fill the three channels if the FCC approves the microwave hops.

Last year when the FCC issued its rulemaking that asserted its jurisdiction over CATV's, the subject of local origination was not included. It was the commission's intent to let Congress cover the subject. But Congress has been slow to act.

Following a long hearing and several weeks of closed sessions, the House Commerce Committee finally approved a CATV bill, essentially the FCC's draft measure. This included a ban on CATV origination (Broadcasting, June 13).

The House bill has since been stalled. It has not been voted out by the Rules Committee and there seems to be no rush about getting it on the floor for a vote in this session. The Senate Communications Subcommittee has shown no inclination to set a hearing date until the House takes action.

Calling all cars: NAFMB wants FM in all vehicles

The National Association of FM Broadcasters (NAFMB) is campaigning for an FM set in every American car, bus and truck, and is seeking to enlist some 1,500 FM stations to help.

With Lynn Christian, station manager of WPIX(FM) New York, as volunteer campaign director, NAFMB plans to pour 4,000 institutional communications into the ears of FM listeners shortly before the September introduction of the 1967 line of cars and trucks. The commercials urge listeners to insist on FM sets in their new vehicles.

Mr. Christian and a score of other FM station managers around the country have been conducting a "Drive with FM" campaign that will serve as the national campaign model. Earlier in the month, Mr. Christian kicked off nationally with flyers and pledge cards to all 1,500 FM stations, NAFMB members or not.

Yes, when rabies is a threat.
And aside from the straight news angle, the news media often perform a vital public service by alerting the community to the presence of the rabid animal.
Lederle Laboratories, too, has its special assignment in such a news break...delivering the antirabies serum.
Because the rabies virus works with astonishing speed in the victim’s nervous system, antirabies serum must be given immediately. Supplies of the serum are on hand at strategically located depots throughout the country. And, if additional quantities are needed, the Pearl River headquarters is ready — night or day — to provide the serum as fast as planes can fly it.
Like many other public service drugs, the serum involves long and costly processes. And because such drugs are used on comparatively rare occasions, their sale is seldom adequate to cover invested costs in research, development, manufacturing or distribution. As it is with the news media, however, public service is an integral part of the pharmaceutical prescription business.
distribution company, last week announced the sale of its unusual "13 for '66" feature film package to a total of 80 markets. Films included in this package are being sold prior to their actual production for delivery following a two-year period of theatrical distribution. Among the stations that have contracted for the features are the five CBS-owned stations, Time-Life Broadcast stations, the Storer Broadcasting group, as well as 66 other TV outlets across the country.

Navy hot line - A news hot line has been set up at the Navy public affairs office in Hollywood. Navy news from around the world, reported daily, including direct radio reports from Saigon, are being made available to news media by dialing area code 213 and then 688-2545. The public service audio reports are being presented around the clock, Monday through Friday.

Reports on Africa - Three half-hour documentaries are scheduled for prime time in August and September on KMTV (tv), Omaha. In the past month, KMTV news analyst John Hlavacek has been compiling information on various facets of Africa's politico-economic problems, its culture and its relations with the world. The series will include interviews with the emperor of Ethiopia, officials in Rhodesia, Americans living in Africa and West African government officials on the progress of emerging nations.

International goodwill - WRVR(FM) New York, a noncommercial station, has designated October as International Radio Month and will devote approximately 12 hours of programs each day to a different country. The station has invited 90 broadcasting organizations to send it programming material. WRVR, owned and operated by the Riverside Church, will reciprocate with 12 hours of its programing for broadcast in other countries.

Advertiser tie-up - General Foods Corp., White Plains, N. Y., one of the few advertisers still involved in program development, is developing a half-hour comedy series for 1967-68. The projected series, Ready, Willing and Able, will be produced by Universal Television. The program has no network commitment.

Equal-time fight - Clifford Vaughs, West Coast regional director of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, was granted five minutes of uninterrupted time on KTLA(TV) Los Angeles to discuss civil rights issues. It was the outcome of a somewhat bitter controversy over whether he was entitled to the time under the equal time provision of the Communications Act. Mr. Vaughs had charged that on his July 24 appearance on the Tom Duggan Show on KTLA, he was interrupted repeatedly and his organization was insulted. The station denied the accusation but granted his request for rebuttal.

New series plot - Universal Television and producer-writer Roy Huggins, the team that produced Run for Your Life for NBC-TV, will develop a TV series for 1967-68, an hour program about a private detective. Tentative title for the series is The Outsider.

Another for Edwards - Ralph Edwards, who only last month announced that his Truth or Consequences series is returning to television this fall (CLOSED CIRCUIT, July 18) has signed a long-term contract with Screen Gems to develop prime-time live, tape and film audience-participation programs.

Three-way pilot - The man who helped make Peyton Place a mainstay on ABC-TV, is going to try to create a similar viewer attraction for CBS-TV. CBS News to go all-color

Seven months ago, CBS News executives were cautious as to how long it would take for newscasts to go all color (BROADCASTING, Jan. 3). But the definitive answer came last week.

Gordon Manning, CBS News vice president and director of news, announced on Aug. 10 that starting Aug. 29 all of CBS News's regularly scheduled hard newscasts on television would be presented in color. On that date a morning and a mid-day news program both featuring Joseph Benti along with an afternoon news show with Douglas Edwards will go color. Walter Cronkite's evening news show went color last Jan. 31, followed by Roger Mudd's Saturday evening news show on Feb. 5 and Harry Reasoner's Sunday news program on March 6.

cific project is still to be announced but the agreement is now effective, with pilot delivery set for Dec. 15.

Young people's program • A local program designed totally for a specific audience—those people in the 18 to 34 age bracket—premiered on KTH-TV Los Angeles earlier this month. Broadcast live and in color, the new show is entitled 18-34.

Expand distribution • Continental Productions Co., Chicago, and CBS Films Inc. have agreed on the latter distributing the syndicated color TV tape series An Evening with throughout the world with the exception of the U. S. Wow Continental will continue to handle domestic distribution. There now are 27 half-hours in the series.

WQXR separation • WQXR, New York said last week it'll separate its new AM and FM programming on Jan. 1, 1967, broadcasting classical music on FM and lighter music on AM, 9 a.m.-6 p.m., Mon.-Fri., and 6 a.m.-6 p.m. on Sat. and 7 a.m.-6 p.m. on Sunday.

Historic Tribute • Columbia Records has released "Edward R. Murrow—A Reporter Remembers—Volume One: The War Years," a two-record set devoted to the late Mr. Murrow's World War II broadcasts from England, and his accounts of D-Day, the return to Germany and the celebration of VE-Day in Piccadilly Square. Assembled from CBS Radio and British Broadcasting Corp. transcriptions, the recordings were prepared and edited by Fred W. Friendly, Alvin Snyder and Sheldon Hoffman with the aid of Professor Milo Ryan, University of Washington and include narrative announcements by Douglas Edwards.

Bozo goes network • Bozo at Midwest, one-hour color special shown on KCOR(TV) Los Angeles earlier this year is being re-edited for possible network sale by Larry Harmon Pictures Corp., Hollywood. The re-edited film will include special footage not used in the local telecast. Larry Harmon, president of Larry Harmon Pictures, starred as Bozo in the special.

Halloween with Peanuts • CBS-TV is scheduling a color special, It's the Great Pumpkin, Charlie Brown, on Oct. 27 (8:30-9 p.m., EDT), featuring the Peanuts gang. The program, sponsored by Coca-Cola Co., through The Marschalk Co., both New York, is being produced by Lee Mendelson-Bill Melendez Productions. The Halloween special will be written by artist-writer Charles M. Schulz, creator of the Peanuts comic strip.

work two new half-hour comedy series, one in 1967-68 and the other in 1968-69. Kayro, which is producing Pistols 'n' Petticoats, for CBS-TV this fall, has pilot commitments for the new comedy projects. Universal Television is Kayro's partner in the deal and its syndication arm, MCA Television, will be exclusive film distributor of the shows.

Great crimes pilot: Warner Bros. Pictures Television and ABC-TV last week agreed to a development deal for a new anthology series tentatively titled Great Crimes of The Century. A pilot is now being prepared for the hour series under the supervision of Warner's production head, Robert F. Lewine. The projected series is aimed at the 1967-68 season.

NAB to investigate suggestive lyrics

A “thorough investigation of questionable recorded material being sent to broadcasters” is underway by the National Association of Broadcasters Code Authority. The study follows some broadcasters' complaints about the type of records on the market and being played on the air.

The code's interest in the subject was disclosed last week in a letter from Howard Bell, code director, to J. C. Stallings, owner of KREE Nacogdoches, Tex. Mr. Stallings had written the NAB: “It is time NAB help us to clean up the dirty, filthy, suggestive double-entendre records which are being played by so many stations. He also asserted it was time “the broadcast industry clean its house morally before the government does it for us.”

Mr. Bell said the subject of such lyrics had come up at the radio code board's June meeting and at that time the board reaffirmed a long-time stand that it is “the responsibility” of each code station to use caution in what it airs taking into consideration “general standards of decency.”

After the investigation, Mr. Bell added, the code authority may go before the code board with recommendations.

A main concern in this case is the code's reluctance to be a censor for stations. Staff members do not feel this is the code's function and Mr. Bell, on several occasions, has expressed his opposition to outright bans on any subject category.

Mr. Stallings said he thinks the answer to the “dirty” records problem lies with the NAB code which can form a committee “to screen suspect records and notify stations of its findings. The committee should be composed of knowledgeable radio men, hep to the undercover language of the gutter.”

Most broadcasters, he said, “would welcome the excuse to cull the filth. It is pointless, however, for one station to police itself if its competitor does not.”

NARA assesses role of Negro DJ's

Negro disk jockeys last weekend had an opportunity to seriously examine themselves and their work at the National Association of Radio Announcers' 11th annual convention in New York (Aug. 11-14).

Del Shields, NARA executive vice president, said the convention’s basic theme was preparedness for the part the Negro plays and can play in broadcasting. NARA's purpose, he indicated, is to elevate the Negro's status in broadcasting and help him “throw off his entertainment crown” and become more sophisticated on the job. NARA, whose 90% Negro membership includes some 500 Negro DJ's, has since 1965 taken up a more active program in improving the Negro, Mr. Shields explained. Its 1966 convention, he said, would serve as a notice that “NARA is really here to stay.”

Among the scheduled speakers on the four-day agenda were: William Booth, New York State commissioner on human relations, discussing Negro opportunity; H. Naylor Fitzhugh, vice president of Pepsi-Cola Co., expected to give NARA a $1,000 scholarship for a Negro student in communications; Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker, president of the Educational Heritage Library, Yonkers, N.Y., and special assistant to Governor Nelson Rockefeller on urban affairs; and Ed Wright, NARA president and program director of WABQ Cleveland.

A last-minute assignment was given to Dr. John E. Allen III, director, research division of Dore and Allen Inc., New York. Dr. Allen was to talk about the Negro market and its importance. His firm is a station rep listing 39 Negro-oriented outlets among its clients.

An awards dinner was set for Saturday (Aug. 13), when presentations of distinguished service awards were to be made. According to Mr. Shields, the recipients would include WOL-AM-FM Washington for best one-year improvement; KDFJ Los Angeles for news coverage of the Watts riots; WCBR Inkster, Mich., affiliate WCRO(FM) Detroit, and its owner Mr. Haley Bell; and the Westinghouse Broadcasting radio stations (WINN New York, WBZ-AM-FM Boston, KFWB Los Angeles, KDKA-AM-FM Pittsburgh, WOWO Fort Wayne, Ind., and WIND Chicago), for their work in advancing equal opportunity for the Negro.

NARA convention activities also included a morning golf tournament (Aug. 12) at the Riverside, N. J., country club with a variety show that night at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, convention headquarters. On Sunday another variety program was set for the Village Theater, featuring 40 acts.

Through cooperation with various record companies, NARA is planning to release an album of 25 tunes, titled "R & B [rhythm & blues] Hall of Fame." These albums will be sold at $2 each in the hope of raising $200,000 to defray expenses, Mr. Shields said.

NARA, in addition to its Pepsi-Cola $1,000 scholarship, has received a $5,000 gift from Monument Records in Tennessee. The total of $6,000 will be used as a scholarship fund for students in communications. Mr. Shields said NARA is working closely with Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va., on this project.

Interest in NARA's meeting had not been encouraging Mr. Shields indicated that letters written to the managements of 25 leading Negro-appeal stations had yielded only one reply. Even so, he said he expected an attendance close to 600 by the weekend.

Congress to look into satellite questions

Pastore subcommittee to probe Ford-plan problems;
Holifield will air Defense Department needs

Senator John O. Pastore (D-R. I.) used a hearing last Wednesday that was billed as an exploration into "progress and recent policy developments in space communications" as a launching pad for a full-scale inquiry by his Senate Communications Subcommittee into the complex issues of domestic satellite communications.

The next day, Senator Pastore announced that a hearing would be held Aug. 17, 18 and 23 and would include testimony from Ford Foundation officials, representatives of the communications common carriers, the Communications Satellite Corp., the television networks and the National Association of Educational Broadcasters, all of whom are involved in the complex question of who should operate any domestic satellite system.

Ford Foundation President McGeorge Bundy and Fred Friendly, former president of CBS News and now a television consultant to the foundation, are scheduled to be the leadoff witnesses Wednesday.

Also to testify that day are James McCormack, chairman and chief executive officer of the Communications Satellite Corp., and Joseph V. Charyk, Comsat's president. They are expected to comment on the surprise Ford Foundation proposal to establish a nonprofit domestic satellite communications system that would benefit educational television (BROADCASTING, Aug. 1, 8)

Not to Impinge on FCC • Senator Pastore told the hearing last week that the proposal had aroused much public and official attention and while the subcommittee would do nothing to impinge on the authority of the FCC in deciding the issue, the issues raised did involve subjects the subcommittee was interested in.

This week promises to be a busy one in the satellite communications field, for, in a related congressional development, the House Military Operations Subcommittee also announced it would hold a hearing on government procurement and use of satellite communications. The unit, headed by Representative Chet Holifield (D-Calif.), said the Defense Department and the military services would provide testimony during the first week of the hearing, beginning Aug. 15.

Later, representatives of the Office of Telecommunications Management, the FCC, major government agencies participating in the National Communications System, Comsat, AT&T and other carriers will also participate.

The controversy in this inquiry revolves around whether Comsat can contract with the Defense Department, as it is planning to do, for the lease of satellite channels. The FCC in July agreed with the carriers' contention that they are the only authorized users of Comsat and that others, including government agencies, can deal directly with Comsat only in unusual circumstances. The issue is similar to the one to be scrutinized by Senator Pastore's subcommittee later in the week. Both hearings involve questions of who shall have the right to use or operate a communications satellite system.

Lay It on Table • Senator Pastore called the Ford proposal "interesting and intriguing," said it has tremendous national interest and that the best way to handle it was to lay it all on the table and scrutinize it.

He said the recent proposals for satellite operation filed with the FCC—particularly the Ford Foundation plan—raised important questions, such as whether the FCC now has sufficient authority to make a determination, whether the Ford plan represents an encroachment on free enterprise and whether it is the best way to benefit educational television. It is hoped the hearing will shed light on these questions, on what the impact of these plans would be and what legislation, if any, is needed to deal with the issues.

At the moment most of the parties involved are in disagreement on who should own any such domestic satellite system—carriers, including the Communications Satellite Corp., or noncarriers such as television networks or the Ford Foundation.

As a prelude to the next phase of the inquiry, FCC Chairman Rosel H. Hyde and James O'Connell, director of the Office of Telecommunications Management, last week reported to the subcommittee on the progress made to date and the problems facing the development of satellite communications on both a domestic and international level.

Chairman Hyde testified that while important decisions had been made in the past year on such issues as the technical characteristics of the basic global system, the ownership of satellites and U.S. earth stations and on who shall have access to Comsat's facilities, "other problems of equal complexity and far-reaching effect have arisen." He said this was to be expected in such a fast-developing field and that the FCC's goal in this area had always been "the effective integration of this new technology with the existing communications networks so as to achieve the most rapid, efficient and economic communications system, both domestic and worldwide."

Broader Issue Remains • Among the important questions that Mr. Hyde said the FCC faces was one that will be aired in the Pastore hearing. Mr. Hyde said that although the FCC had dismissed, on a technicality, an application by ABC Inc. to operate a domestic television satellite system, the broader issue
What on earth is “net balance”?

Look a little lower and to the right. You'll find the answer in half-pint type.

Now most advertisements are designed to inform. This one is designed to deceive. And it's this kind of deception that smears guilt-by-association on every honest man in advertising, publishing, broadcasting and the retail automobile industry.

Representing 22,000 franchised new-car dealers, N.A.D.A. is doing all it can to stop this kind of advertising. But we need your help.

What can you do to clean up and clean out ads like this? Take a tough stand: refuse to have anything to do with false, misleading or deceptive advertising.

It's not easy for you. But it's much harder on the dishonest retailer. Without advertising to shout in, he'll be reduced to a whisper.

NAB's Harvard '66 class graduates 71

Despite the airline strike 71 broadcasters from 26 states and Washington, managed to get to the National Association of Broadcasters Fifth Management Development Seminar at Harvard University, finish the two-week course and finally graduate.

The seminar covered such subjects as analysis of the executive's role and function; formulation of competitive strategy; costs and competitive pricing; planning, budgeting and controlling operations; managing human resources; implementing competitive strategy, and appraising and improving management performance.

The commencement address was delivered by NAB President Vincent Wasilewski.

Third row (1-7): Mr. Wasilewski; Norman L. Bacon, KMOX-AM-TV-St. Louis; Winthrop B. Baker Jr., KYTV-Philadelphia; David C. Croninger, WIP-Philadelphia; Alexander P. Hunter, KREM-AM-TV-Spokane, Wash.; David H. Freedman, WMID-Atlantic City; Don E. Fuller, WTBC-AM-FM, WSJV-TV-Elkhart, Ind.;

Carl C. Morgenroth, KGVO-Missoula, Mont., and Roy B. White Jr., WBLG-Lexington, Ky.

Fifth row (1-7): Reid L. Shaw, General Electric Broadcast, Schenectady, N.Y.; Dr. Sterling J. Livingston, Harvard; Harvey B. Backnell on the delay in drafting the bill and urged him to do some "ear-twisting" with other government agencies to convince them and Congress of the importance of his telecommunications office and of the need for support and speed in reaching decisions. He criticized procrastination in reaching some of these decisions in the past. He called communications the "blood vessel" of this country and said Mr. O'Connell, as the President's adviser, should be making some of these decisions.

Congress support grows for ETV's

Educational television, buoyed in recent weeks by the attention of benefactors such as the Ford Foundation, last week was the recipient of additional support from Congress.

Although the good intentions of the foundation proposal to create a non-profit communications satellite system that would serve the TV networks and use the profits to support ETV unleashed a deluge of mixed reactions, (see page 58) several influential members of Congress took note of the attention and acted to aid ETV efforts.

Senator John O. Pastore (D-R.I.), chairman of the Senate Communications Subcommittee, which is holding a hearing on the domestic satellite system and the issues raised by the foundation’s plan, urged prompt action to resolve the controversy and bolster ETV’s sagging fortunes. Senator Pastore called the proposal a dramatic one made by a serious organization and added that educational television is “fast dying on the vine” and needs relief soon.

Senator Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.), chairman of the Commerce Committee and architect of the Educational Television Facilities Act of 1962, which awarded $23.3 million to the states to aid ETV, also came to the support of noncommercial television and restated his intention to hold an inquiry on the subject in the next Congress.

In a statement to the Senate, Senator Magnuson said that since educational television has no firm financial base on which to operate and as the government has not clearly described the methods by which ETV may support itself and expand, Congress should examine the areas in which the federal government can assist, as it has assisted in elementary, secondary and higher education, vocational rehabilitation and other specialized areas.

He said he had “noted with interest the imaginative proposal” of the foundation and said he was “confident that whatever action the FCC takes it will be consistent with the policies” of the various communications laws and the “over-all public interest which gives the FCC broad powers.”

He said the next phase for ETV would be an expansion from sectional to national network interconnections. He added that he had asked all interested parties to prepare views and recommendations for his hearing. The inquiry, he continued, would focus on the impact of ETV on the field’s development, whether the formula of matching state funds with federal funds should be modified, whether the ceiling of $1 million to any state should be raised or whether a new approach should be adopted.

Representative Claude Pepper (D-Fla.), had his own answer about whether the limit on grants to states should be raised. In a bill he introduced last week, he proposed that the $1 million per-state limit be raised to $3 million. The bill would also extend the existing program for an additional five years.

“I believe that one of the best mediums for restoring the sensitive ideal of the whole man to 20th century America is through the aid of educational television . . . and educational television can and must bring quality to the viewing audience so that they can intelligently participate more actively in society,” he said.

Congress says ‘no’ to more FCC funds

The Senate last week went along with a House slash of $181,500 in the FCC budget request for the fiscal year that began July 1 when it passed the appropriations bill for independent government agencies.

The cut in the request had also been recommended by the Senate Appropriations Committee when it reported on the bill. The amount approved, $17,338,500, is identical to the appropriation for the previous fiscal year. The commission had made the request for additional funds to cover salary increases that became effective last year.

The difference will have to be absorbed by trimming some commission activities in the year.

Also included in the bill that passed by a 82 to 2 vote was an additional $100,000 in the amount approved by the House for operating funds allotted to the Office of Telecommunications Management.

The Senate approved $1.6 million for the office, compared with $1.5 million approved by the House. Both the House and Senate figures, expected to be adjusted in conference, are far below the $2,270,000 requested by the President.
Johnson's first FCC votes; acid test to come

The FCC's brand-new commissioner, Nicholas Johnson, has taken his first steps; in the last two weeks he's begun to vote. Appointed last June to a full, seven-year FCC term following the resignation of former Chairman E. William Henry in April, Mr. Johnson had decided to participate or has abstained from voting in any commission actions since he took his office July 1. He has been seen, however, assiduously briefing himself on the cases considered by the commission during those six weeks. On Aug. 3, the former Maritime Commission administrator cast his first vote. With Chairman Rosel H. Hyde and Commissioner Robert T. Bartley, Mr. Johnson voted to grant an additional 10 minutes to KABL Oakland, Calif., in oral argument on an initial decision from a hearing examiner holding that it violated FCC rules in identifying itself with San Francisco instead of Oakland and failing to correctly identify the sponsors of a commercial announcement. The examiner recommended a $10,000 fine, following a hearing (Broadcasting, May 11).

On Aug. 9, Mr. Johnson cast his second vote, again with the majority, staying the effectiveness of a June 22 initial decision recommending the revocation of the license of WHHL Holly Hill, S. C. An FCC hearing examiner found that WHHL had misrepresented to the commission its ownership and financial and technical status (Broadcasting, June 27). In this action, Mr. Johnson joined Chairman Hyde and Commissioner Robert E. Lee. Commissioner Bartley dissented and Commissioner Kenneth A. Cox did not participate.

On Aug. 10, Mr. Johnson joined his fellow commissioners in a series of actions, including the grants of an educational noncommercial television construction permit to West Virginia University and a new daytime AM station in Sparta, N. C., acceptance of applications for new daytime stations, change of facilities and a change of transmitter site of an FM station that would involve short spacing.

This week Mr. Johnson faces his first acid test; he will, if he continues participating from now on, cast the key vote in a number of vital decisions facing the commission at its mid-summer full-scale meeting Wednesday (Aug. 17) some of which have been hung up by a split among the other six commissioners. Among these cases are several radio stations accused by the FCC staff of overcommercialization and a CATV request for waiver of the nonimportation rule by a cable company in the Altoona-Johnstown, Pa., area.

for the White House office. Last year, Congress appropriated $1,280,000 for the fiscal year just ended.

Joint House-Senate conference-committee action will have no effect on the FCC funds, as both branches have agreed on the amount to be granted.

Monroe stresses TV's role in civil rights

A greater involvement of television in breaking down barriers among millions of people to help solve the country's racial problems has been suggested by William B. Monroe Jr., director of NBC News, Washington.

Mr. Monroe said that changing laws for civil rights has been the "easy part" but changing people is a task more difficult but one that TV, on the local and network level, must tackle.

TV has made the most impact of any medium in the civil rights effort, he said, noting, "Negroes looked to television to tell their story because it could convey in depth their strong feelings, it could convey them all across the nation, and because it was just about the only channel of communication genuinely open to them."

Because of TV's "demonstrated impact," he said the medium has a "greater concern than most other segments of the U.S. establishment over how we're going to meet the really tough part of the racial struggle that lies ahead." Mr. Monroe's observations were contained in an address Aug. 5 to graduate journalism students at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill.

Radio down 17, TV even in latest code figures

From May 15 to June 15, 33 radio stations joined the National Association of Broadcasters radio code and 50 stations withdrew. In the same period two TV stations were added to the TV code and two were withdrawn.

WDHO-TV Toledo, Ohio, and KGUM-TV Albuquerque, N. M., joined the television code; WPHT-TV Philadelphia and KDIK-TV Dickinson, N. D., withdrew.

Radio stations added: WAVU-AM-FM Alberville and WSON Birmingham, both Alabama; KGSD Willows and KMBY-FM, Monterey, both California; WINE-AM-FM Brookfield, Conn.; WLTW Tampa and WTMJ Ocala, both Florida; KXME and KATN, both Boise, Idaho; WNWI Valparaiso, Ind.; WKEX Cadiz, WKPY Princeton and WSTO(FM) Owensboro, all Kentucky; WBNY-AM-FM Big Rapids and WTPS Portsmouth, both Michigan; WDL Meridian, Miss.; KFPR Carson City, Nev.; KJEN-AM-FM Oklahoma City;
The Printers' Ink Network may cost you more or less, it depends...

It depends mostly on your point of view.

If you begrudge spending one more dollar than you need “to take an ad,” no matter where you “take” it, you can certainly buy cheaper among the advertising/marketing press. And you will.

But if you value the widest reach, highest visibility and deepest readership possible for your advertising, the Printers' Ink Network of Magazines will cost you less. Much less.

Take total circulation: The Network's is a whopping 83,500. You probably won't find any single publication in the field even cracking 60,000 for years. Why wait? Your biggest marketing expenses are the sales you're missing.

You will pay more total dollars to advertise in the three magazines of the Printers' Ink Network than to advertise in any one of its competitors. But you'll be paying less per-thousand, per-exposure, per-reader, per-whatever.

Why practice false economy in today's economy of abundance?

Remember what the economists say, and “Gather ye shekels while ye may.”

Box resigns his Balaban positions

John F. Box Jr., executive vice president of the Balaban Stations since 1957 and managing director of WIL-AM-FM St. Louis and KBXO-AM-FM Dallas, quietly resigned two weeks ago, it was disclosed Thursday (Aug. 11).

He said he expects to announce a new affiliation within broadcasting after a few weeks of vacation. According to speculation by former associates, he may relocate in some area of sales, agency or program work rather than station administration. Mr. Box had been with the Bartell group before joining Balaban.

Mr. Box, however, has not yet resigned his industry radio station assignments with the National Association of Broadcasters and the Radio Advertising Bureau although those organizations acknowledged they were notified that he no longer is with Balaban.

Mr. Box had his headquarters at WIT but made frequent trips to KBXO.

As well as Balaban officials said the parting was “very friendly.” Former station associates, though, indicated his resignation may have been due at least in part to policy differences. The resignation was submitted in late July, effective Aug. 1.

It also was learned that Hale Bondurant, formerly with the Balaban group and onetime manager of KFBi Wichita, Kan., rejoined the organization Aug. 1 as general manager of WIT. For several months he had been at WIT on a consulting basis. Irene Runnels continues as station manager at KBXO.

WIT changed format earlier this year, going from top-40 to a contemporary good music pattern (Frank Sin- atra, Barbra Streisand, etc.) and continuing a strong talk show in the even-

Mr. Box was reached late Thursday at the Cape Cod summer home of Harry W. Cheshires Jr., president of D'Arcy Advertising, St. Louis. Mr. Box said his decision to leave Balaban “had been under consideration for several months.” He said he continues to retain a trust fund interest in the stations.

Pair enjoined from radio jobs in San Antonio area

Kono San Antonio, Tex., has won a court injunction barring two former disk jockeys, Woody Roberts and Lee Sims, from working for any other radio station within a 50-mile area. Messrs. Roberts and Sims said they intend to appeal the decision handed down Aug. 3 in a Texas district court.

Kono contended the pair had walked off the job without notice in April and had gone to KTSF San Antonio. Kono claimed the move was a violation of its contract that prevents personnel from working for any station within 50 miles of Kono within 18 months after leaving the station.

CBS Radio's 243d

Wina Charlottesville, Va., will become CBS Radio's 243d affiliate, effective Oct. 30. The station, owned by Charlottesville Broadcasting Corp., is on 1400 kc with 1 kw daytime and 250 w nights. Wina, which holds a construction permit for 1070 kc with 5 kw (nondirectional day and directional night), is expected to switch to the new facilities on the day of the CBS affiliation. At present, Wina, an NBC Radio affiliate, shares coverage in that area with WRVA Richmond, Va. Another Charlottesville outlet, WCHV, is an ABC Radio primary and MBS secondary affiliate.

NBC revamps its division lineups

The radio and owned-television operations of NBC will be revamped into the NBC Radio division and the NBC owned television stations division, effective Sept. 1, according to an announcement last week by Julian Goodman, NBC president.

Stephen B. Labunski, president, NBC Radio, and Raymond W. Welpott, president, NBC owned stations, will be the presidents of the radio and owned TV division, respectively (see page 10).

The radio division will be composed of the radio network, formerly a division by itself under Mr. Labunski, and also NBC-owned radio stations and NBC Radio Spot Sales, which with their TV counterparts have been in the NBC-owned stations division under Mr. Welpott. In the new alignment Mr. Welpott's division retains NBC-owned TV stations, NBC Television Spot Sales and NBC's community antenna division sales.

The radio division, which is a part of NBC's CATV interests and owned-TV stations, will be the major operating divisions into the CBS/Broadcast Group and the CBS/Columbia Group (BROADCASTING, June 13). Unlike NBC's arrangement, the CBS TV network and the CBS owned stations are subsumed in one group—CBS/Broadcast—along with CBS News and CBS Radio.

ABC operates its four broadcast divisions separately: ABC-TV, ABC Radio, ABC Owned Television Stations and ABC Owned Radio Stations. At both CBS and ABC the sales function comes under the respective division service.

Can dark sets be lit up

That's question raised by Harris ETV survey of sets not in use in N.Y.

A warning that commercial TV may be failing to entice uninterested but potential viewers among the better-educated, higher-income families is sounded by a Louis Harris and Associates Inc., New York, survey.

The survey covered the Greater New York area under the commission earlier this year of WNDT-TV Newark, N. J.-New York, a noncommercial station (CLOSED CIRCUIT, Feb. 21). WNDT is making the survey public today (Aug. 15).

Most viewers of noncommercial TV, at least in New York, were depicted as the community's more affluent, better educated and probably older members. The WNDT viewer is more likely to be a community leader. And contrary to popular belief he's less likely to be an egghead who is prejudiced against commercial TV and probably he's a viewer of a "fair amount" of commercial TV.

The Harris pollsters, using the diary and depth-interview methods, found a substantial number of people in favor of financing educational TV through "limited commercials." The phrase was not defined, but WNDT has had limited sponsorships, or underwriting of programming, from such major TV advertisers as Shell Oil and Philip Morris.

Bristol-Myers Co., New York, currently underwrites a series of programs on performing and fine arts on WNDT with tapes available to a number of other ETV stations (BROADCASTING, Jan. 17).

Among viewers of the noncommercial station, which the study indicated was developing a hard-core audience of its own, the greater percentage listed commercial TV as a desirable source of ETV support, and listed private foundations and industry along with wealthy individuals and boards of education next, followed by the general public, the federal and local governments and finally "limited commercials" (57%).

A similar response was compiled from nonviewers of WNDT with the exception of a low score for the general public as the desirable financing source.

The report said 27% of the total New York audience were active viewers of ETV in December 1965 but that the figure had grown to 35% in April 1966. In its analysis the Harris company defined the active viewer as one watching the ETV station at least once every two weeks.

The study found that relatively few viewers watch the "big" commercial stations exclusively. Therefore, the report said, the success or failure of WNDT—like that of other stations—must depend on programming.

The study attacks what is called commercial TV's "numbers" technique of measuring "sets on" and "households watching," noting that the "real story of current television viewing and the best measure of the potential for channel 13 [WNDT] lies in the 'sets not on' and 'adults not viewing' results" uncovered in the surveying. In thus showing audience "missed" in quarter-hour periods, the Harris report points up the rise of TV sets turned off in homes where the income and education are higher.

The report observes: "The pattern is consistent and clear. From early until late evening, more than a quarter of the television sets of at-home families remained turned off. These silent sets belong to the better-educated, higher-income families.

"During prime television time—from 8:30 through 9:30—in one-third of college-educated families who are at home for the evening, the set is dark. During these same hours, the commercial advertiser is unable to deliver his message to almost one-third of those with the greatest degree of flexibility and expendable income."

The report based this conclusion on

Work starts on KDAL-AM-TV's new home

Ground was broken last Tuesday (Aug. 9) for the $1-million KDAL Broadcast Center to be built in the downtown urban renewal area of Duluth, Minn.

Participating in the ground breaking ceremonies (1 to r) were Governor Karl F. Rolvag of Minnesota; J. Howard Wood, chairman of the board of Kdal Inc. (KDAL-AM-TV) and president of the Tribune Co.; Odin S. Ramsland, executive vice president and general manager of Kdal Inc.; Ward L. Quaal, president of WON Continental Broadcasting Co. and Kdal Inc., and Robert Dettman, vice president and chief engineer of Kdal Inc.

The center will include two color television studios, radio facilities and office space for 25 employees in 40,000 square feet of space.

Plans call for the center to be completed by January 1968.
a charting of New York viewing patterns on a Monday (Dec. 6, 1965) but noted that they were “repeated” through the week.

The report asserted that commercial TV would appear in an affluent society to depend “more and more on the lower-income, less-affluent groups.” Moreover, it continued, “unless the tide can be turned, today’s $8,000-a-year household can be expected to react towards commercial television tomorrow the way his $10,000-a-year neighbor is responding today. Yet, rather than reversing the trend, commercial television appears to be directing its efforts more and more toward its ‘hard core’ audience, the less educated, the less discriminating.”

The study said that when the measurement of TV audience goes beyond sets in use and reports on individuals watching in the household, a “serious shrinkage” in the “character” of the TV audience becomes “patently clear” and that while the major attrition was among college-educated adults, there was a drop-off across the board.

Additionally, the study observed, when the male household heads and men and women of college education are watching television, it’s more likely to be something other than the number-one program for that time segment.

But the study warned that all is not roses with the audience generally attracted to ETV, WNDT, while reaching its “target audience” in terms of affluence and education, has a serious flaw in the profile of its regular viewer: Its strength is with older viewers, not younger viewers, and the “most important group, over the long haul, is the one with younger men and women.” Hence, the report observed, WNDT must begin to “score” via communicating with the young-married family households.

According to the report, the non-commercial-channel viewer is “social, active in the community, indulgent, busy at home listening to hi-fi, reading a book or magazine, watching television” and turning to WNDT for programs not found elsewhere. Among the programs, the survey found WNDT viewers mostly looking for drama and plays, more and better news commentary and more shows in the music-art-dance category.

Missouri firms skirmish over CATV pole rights

A face off in the battle between CATV operators and telephone companies over pole-attachment rights may be in the making in a small Missouri city of 10,000.

The community is Warrensburg, and the protagonists are Warrensburg Cable Co. on one side, and United Transmission Inc. and United Telephone Co. on the other. Warrensburg Cable is principally owned by Telesis Corp., Chicago (group CATV owner). United Transmission and United Telegraph are subsidiaries of United Utilities Inc., Kansas City, a holding company for independent telephone companies. Both Warrensburg Cable and United Transmission, the CATV arm of United Utilities, received franchises from the Warrensburg city council last October.

when Warrensburg Cable filed suit in state court against United Transmission and United Telephone, asking for $135,000 in damages as well as an injunction prohibiting the two United companies from hindering it in its attempts to place cables on the poles jointly owned by United Telephone and the local power company.

In its complaint, Warrensburg Cable contends that the telephone company has refused to grant pole-attachment rights. It further charges that the telephone company has strung coaxial cable for United Transmission on the poles in a manner that makes it impossible for Warrensburg also to put its cables on the same poles without violating the National Electrical Safety Code with respect to distance from power lines.

Warrensburg Cable claims it has suffered $10,000 in actual damages; asks also for $50,000 in punitive damages, $75,000 as treble damages under a state antitrust law, and attorney fees of $2,500.

Paul Henson, president of United Utilities, declined to comment on the complaint.

Huntley's NBC contract prevents TV ownership

Chet Huntley's contract with NBC has prevented the new broadcaster from becoming a stockholder in a proposed TV station. But Mr. Huntley's agreement with NBC still permits him to retain 25% ownership of Island Broadcasting System Inc., licensee of WIRV Riverhead, N. Y.

Island Broadcasting is an applicant for a new TV station on channel 55 in Riverhead and last week asked the FCC to postpone action on the application because of Mr. Huntley's new status regarding the TV application. Island's petition also noted that although Mr. Huntley has withdrawn his interest in being a part owner of the proposed TV station, he does not want to change his present 25% ownership in Island.

Island thus asked the FCC if the TV application could be amended to specify a new corporation in which all current corporation stockholders except Mr. Huntley would be stockholders.

While asking the FCC to postpone action on the application, Island stated that "for the first time, in connection with prosecution of the television application, the National Broadcasting Co. has approached Mr. Huntley and indicated that there might be a question of appropriateness for Mr. Huntley to own 25% of a television station. The grounds suggested ... are unique contractual relationships between Mr. Huntley and NBC."

Expansion plans

WRTX(KV) Knoxville, Tenn., has announced a more than $1 million expansion program. The new equipment includes a 50 kw transmitter, three live color cameras, two high-band color video-tape machines and a color-film chain which is already in operation. Also, WRTX is constructing a new 1,073 foot tower. Proposed completion will be Oct. 15., at which time the station will have an effective visual power of 1 megawatt.

FINANCIAL REPORTS

CBS gains 30% in half

2d quarter paces first half to record sales, earnings; daytime uptrend continues

CBS Inc. enjoyed a 30% rise in net income and a 15% gain in net sales for the first six months of 1966 compared with the like period of a year ago. Net income in first-half 1966 was $28,463,359 and net sales were $374,557,842.

The network also confirmed reports that CBS Inc. this year had its highest sales and earnings for any second quarter and first half in history. For the second-quarter period alone, net income was up to more than $13.5 million, or 67 cents a share, and net sales were more than $183 million.

A report issued last week by William S. Paley, chairman, and Dr. Frank Stanton, president, also pointed up that CBS sales over the last 10 years have increased 118%, from over $300 million to almost $700 million. They reported net income in the decade increased about 250%, with only two deviations in the pattern: a dip during the 1960-61 recession, and another reflecting a slight decline last year. CBS noted, however, that if adjustments were made for the shorter revenue year in 1965 (52 weeks) to compare with the 53-week year in 1964, earnings in 1965 would come close to those recorded in 1964.

CBS, in noting that 1963 was the first year for which "adequate" net time and talent revenue figures for each TV network were available, said that since that time CBS-TV has maintained a lead in revenues. For 1966, the report put the lead as 15% ahead of NBC and 46% above ABC.

The report said daytime revenues have been growing more rapidly than nighttime revenues during that period and said the trend was expected to continue (BROADCASTING, July 25).

At a board meeting Aug. 10, a cash dividend of 30 cents per share was declared on CBS common stock payable Sept. 9 to shareholders of record at close of business Aug. 26.

CBS meanwhile denied, through a spokesman, recurring reports that the company was holding discussions with the Curtis Publishing Co. on possibly acquiring the magazine publishing firm. A look at Curtis occurred nearly four years ago, it was acknowledged, but a decision was then made not to consider Curtis.

CBS has stated from time to time that it has been on the lookout for diversification into various fields, including publishing.

UA merger blocked, Paramount's OK'd

In the world of movie making, one merger was off last week and one on.

Consolidated Foods and United Artists abandoned their plan to unite and formal approval was given by directors for the merger of Paramount Pictures Corp. into Gulf & Western Industries.

The United Artists-Consolidated union fell under the weight of stockholder disapproval received by managements of both companies and the pressure of a sagging stock market which had seen the value of both companies' shares decline since first announcement of the merger plan several week ago (BROADCASTING, July 25).

Gulf & Western's purchase of Para-
This was the E-V Model 635.
It started a tradition of excellence in dynamic microphones.

This is the new E-V Model 635A.
It's better in every way!

How can a microphone as good as the E-V Model 635 be made obsolete? By making it better! It wasn't easy. After all, professional sound engineers have depended on the 635 since 1947.

During this time, the 635 earned a reputation for toughness and dependability that was unrivaled by other omnidirectional dynamics. And internal changes through the years have kept the 635 well in the forefront of microphone design.

But now the time has come for an all new 635: the Electro-Voice Model 635A. It's slimmer, for easier hand-held use. Lighter, too. With a slip-in mount (or accessory snap-on Model 311 mount) for maximum versatility on desk or floor stands. The new, stronger steel case reduces hum pickup, and offers a matte, satin chromium finish perfect for films or TV.

The new 635A is totally new inside, too—and all for the best. A new four-stage filter keeps "pops" and wind noise out of the sound track, while guarding against dirt and moisture in the microphone, completely eliminating any need for external wind protection. Of course you still get high output (−55dB) and smooth, crisp response. And you can still depend on the exclusive E-V Acoustalloy® diaphragm that is guaranteed against failure for life* (it's that tough)!

We expect to see plenty of the "old" 635's in daily use for years. But more and more, the new 635A will take over as the new standard. It's easy to find out why: just ask your E-V Professional Microphone distributor for a free demonstration in your studio. Or write us today for complete data. We'll be proud to tell you how much better the new Model 635A really is!

*The E-V Professional Microphone Guarantee: All E-V professional microphones are guaranteed UNCONDITIONALLY against malfunction for two years from date of purchase. Within this period, Electro-Voice will repair or replace, at no charge, any microphone exhibiting any malfunction, regardless of cause, including accidental abuse. In addition, all E-V microphones are GUARANTEED FOR LIFE against defects in the original workmanship and materials.

SETTING NEW STANDARDS IN SOUND
Mount Pictures, which will be accomplished through a transfer of stock valued at approximately $125 million (Broadcasting, July 4), must still be approved by shareholders.

Gulf & Western, a manufacturer of industrial products and aerospace-industry components and a wholesaler of automotive parts, also plans to merge with Gulf Sulphur Corp. through an exchange of stock.

Special stockholder meetings of all three companies will be held early in October to act on the proposed mergers.

Adverse shareholder reaction to the United Artists-Consolidated proposal came as an apparent disappointment to management. United Artists reportedly hoped that under the corporate umbrella of Consolidated it would be better able to carry out diversification plans within the entertainment industry.

United Artists has felt for some time that its market price relative to earnings has been undervalued, thus putting it at a disadvantage when it came to negotiating for properties that might be acquired through exchanges of stock.

Paramount last week reported a net loss for the second quarter of $852,000 representing $0.53 per share. In the comparable period last year the company earned $2.40 a share. A Paramount statement pointed out that no television licensing of motion pictures had been accomplished in the second quarter this year as in last year's second period. However six-month operations this year were profitable.

Murphy is chairman for Capital Cities

Thomas S. Murphy will replace the late Frank Smith as board chairman and chief executive officer of Capital Cities Broadcasting.

Mr. Murphy, who has been president of the group's broadcasting company since 1964, was elected at a special meeting of the Capital Cities board late last week. He will also continue as president.

Mr. Smith died of a heart attack Aug. 6 (see page 84).

Mr. Murphy, 41, takes over a publicly owned company that has been highly successful in expanding its list of broadcast properties and in maintaining exceptionally strong earnings records. Its most recent financial report, covering the first six months of 1966 operations, showed profits up 27% on a 10% increase in sales. (Broadcasting, July 18).

Capital Cities is known to have been carrying on discussions with several major companies looking toward diversification outside the broadcasting field.

Mr. Murphy, a graduate of Cornell University and the Harvard Business School, was associated with the Kenyon & Eckhardt agency and Lever Bros. before joining Capital Cities.

ITT at record level in first half of '66

Sales and earnings at International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., New York, for the first six months of 1966 rose to the highest point in the company's history according to Harold S. Geneen, chairman and president. Sales and revenues increased 17.2% over the same period last year while earnings per share were up 15.2%.

ITT currently is awaiting FCC approval of its proposed merger with ABC.

Gains control of KNTV(TV)

Allen T. Gilliland Jr. was granted control of KNTV(TV) San Jose, Calif., by FCC Aug. 5.

Mr. Gilliland, along with W. W. Jacka, Bank of America and National Trust and Savings Association, was executor of estate of his late father, Allen T. Sr. KNTV was wholly owned by Sunlite Bakery, owned by Gilliland family. Mr. Gilliland, who paid $957,825 for 71% ownership, is president of KNTV, which operates on channel 11 with ABC-TV affiliation.

Bartell Media reports gain of 37% in net

Bartell Media Corp, New York, has reported net income in the first six months of this year 37% ahead of the comparable period last year.

Lee B. Bartell, president, also confirmed a report that Bartell Media had rejected a $1.7 million bid for sale of one of its owned radio stations. The offer, he said, was "inadequate in view of the progress made by the station, its vigorous market and growth prospect."

Mr. Bartell said the company's CATV activities will soon include installation of facilities in several northeastern areas. The firm has already filed an application for a CATV system in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Bartell stations are WADO New York, WOKY Milwaukee and KCBQ San Diego, Calif. The company also owns Telecuracao and Telearuba, both in the Netherlands Antilles. Bartell's properties include consumer and trade magazines, books and various publishing activities.

For the six months ended June 30:

Realty Equities begins Schine transactions

The first in a series of transactions transferring the J. Myer Schine properties to Realty Equities, New York, in a $75 million deal took place last week when Realty Equities took possession of 52 movie theaters and the Schine CATV systems in Massena, Potsdam and Canton, all New York. The purchase price was understood to be in the neighborhood of $6 million.

Originally Realty Equities reported it intended to sell off some of the Schine properties (which includes the Ambassador hotel in Los Angeles and 10,000 feet of ocean-front land in Boca Raton, Fla.), including the CATV system and WPTF-AM-FM Albany, N.Y. The radio station has been sold, but approval by the FCC has been held up pending the outcome of a renewal proceeding.

Production underway on home video-tape records

Audio Fidelity Records Co., New York, last week began producing TV tapes for use with home video-tape recorders.

The company's first efforts will be in the entertainment field, with plans for at least 25 different tapes during the first year, according to Herman D. Gimbel, president. But talks are underway, he said, looking toward leasing, prerecorded TV tapes from the networks and adapting them to home video-tape machines. Audio Fidelity may also arrange to tape educational films produced by publishers and teaching groups, he noted.

Mr. Gimbel said the tape process, called Audio 20/20, begins by recording a one-hour, informal recording session onto master tape, using standard TV cameras and studio facilities. The result is then edited for duplication.

The company's first tape, with country-and-western star Johnny Paycheck, features songs from his Carnegie Hall album. Mr. Gimbel said this session is being duplicated on 1/2-inch Sony tape. Audio charges $49.90 for a tape recorded with the program. The Sony Corp. has set a price of $39.95 for the equivalent reel of blank tape, so in effect Audio Fidelity charges the customer $9.95 for its program and the duplication service.

The firm plans to offer various tape sizes and speeds compatible with home video machines as they are marketed by other manufacturers. Availability of the different tape formats, Mr. Gimbel suggests, will depend on interest expressed by home VTR owners. The first release can be played on Sony's $995 home unit or on General Electric Co.'s VTR (with a Sony deck) which GE plans to market in the fall.

Is space coupe next?

A tiny sliver of pure gold, about twice the diameter of a human hair, promises the reality of that long-term fancy of the Dick Tracy comic strip — a two-way wristwatch radio.

It also has potential for the design of a miniature space TV camera.

The development was announced by Westinghouse Electric Corp. last week. The gold sliver, Westinghouse said, is a key part of a new transistor giving it completely new capabilities. The significance of the gold sliver, it was explained, is that it can vibrate in tune with integrated circuits.

Dr. William Newell, one of the new transistor's developers, said: "With further development, we will see the day of the true Dick Tracy wrist radio."

UHF stick opposed on Empire State Building

WPX(TV) New York and the Association of Maximum Service Telecasters last week opposed applications filed for UHF channel 68 in Newark, N. J. WPX, owned by the New York Daily News, contended that the two applicants propose to put their antennas on the Empire State Building thus frustrating the FCC's rules governing the assignment of TV stations to designated communities.

The applicants are Atlantic Video Corp., of Asbury Park, N. J., a wholly owned subsidiary of Walter Reade-Stirling, the theater chain, and Clifton S. Green, a Brooklyn liquor dealer and magazine publisher.

Both WPX and AMST claim in their filings that a channel 68 transmission from the Empire State Building would violate FCC rules, which state that the minimum UHF adjacent-channel separation distance must be at least 55 miles. Both assert that a transmitter site on top of the Empire State Building is only 40.5 miles from the transmitter site for channel 67 Patchogue, N.Y., and 52.2 miles from another proposed UHF outlet in the same area.

IEEE sets convention plans

The Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers last week outlined plans for its 1967 four-day International Convention and Exhibition (March 20-24) in New York, and named Donald G. Fink, IEEE general manager, as general chairman for the event. IEEE said approximately 300 papers will be submitted for over 60 technical sessions. As in the 1965 meeting, exhibits will be centered in the Coliseum and sessions will be held in the New York Hilton Hotel.

Technical topics . . .

Gets CATV contract = Entron Inc., Silver Spring, Md., CATV equipment manufacturer and system operator and builder, has received a $500,000 contract to design and build a complete CATV system for Suffolk TV Cable Corp., North Braddock, Pa. Engineering and preliminary construction work began Aug. 1.

RCA-Whirlpool parting = RCA and Whirlpool have agreed to end the use of RCA's trademark on Whirlpool products. The two firms were associated over the past 11 years. Sale of Whirlpool products with the RCA trademark will be phased out by March 1969. Termination of license agreement for use of the trademark followed announcement of Whirlpool's plans to acquire a majority stock interest in Warwick Electronics Inc., Chicago, which makes TV set, radios and other appliances for Sears, Roebuck & Co.

Switching literature = Dynair Electronics Inc., San Diego, manufacturer of video switching equipment, is distributing a free brochure, "Video Switching Techniques." The 26-page pamphlet details, with illustrations, common methods of switching audio and video information.

Color processor = The Houston Fearless Corp., Los Angeles, has introduced two configurations of the Colormaster high speed processing machine for reversal color film. One is for the Anscochrome AR-2, the other for the Ektachrome MB-4 process (and ECO-2 with optional scrubber).

'Ghost' study started at new N.Y. building site

A two-month engineering study of TV interference from the proposed 1,350-foot World Trade Center in New York City got the green light last week. Working on the study will be the TV Broadcasters All-Industry Committee, (a group of engineers and lawyers from New York TV stations,) and the Port of New York Authority, builder of the Trade Center.

Eight TV stations are now committed to long-term contracts with the Empire State Building for transmission from atop its 1,475-foot-high TV antenna. It has been suggested that these stations' signals may bounce off the Trade Center and cause ghosting effects. Broadcasters first voiced concern over the proposed twin skyscrapers last February (Broadcasting, Feb. 28).

Delco makes its

50 millionth radio

Delco Radio Division of General Motors, Kokomo, Ind., announced last week the 50 millionth car radio it has manufactured. Delco was started by GM in 1936, and began turning out auto radios from the beginning. During World War II, however, Delco turned out only 35,000 in 1942, none during 1943 and 1944, and just 2,300 in 1945.

It required four and a half years to produce the first million radios and 16 years to manufacture 10 million. On April 14, 1964, Delco noted the production of its 40 millionth. In the last two years, it made 10 million more.

Delco now produces AM, AM-FM and AM-FM-stereo car radios, in some 50 different models. It now also makes car-heater and air-conditioning controls, as well as transistors, rectifiers, digital equipment, and other solid state devices.

USIA radio course

The Vietnam Radio Broadcasting System (VTVN) awarded diplomas to 90 training employees, certifying that they had completed a three-month course in radio writing, production and studio engineering. The course, requested by the Vietnamese government and sponsored by the Joint U.S. Public Affairs Office in Vietnam and the U.S. Information Agency, was officially opened last February by director John Chancellor, VTVN director Major Vo Duc Vinh and other government officials. The purpose in the training was to reorganize network operations and programming, to provide professional training for its staff and to modernize the Radio Saigon building as well as VTVN's technical facilities.

USIA instructors from Washington were: Michael J. D'Angelo, news editor and writer; Robert Eiden, studio engineer; Stefan Maksymjuk, producer, and BBC ponders: How much should the telly tell?

A few months after Kenneth Tynan, British drama critic, mentioned the most unmentionable of four-letter Anglo-Saxon words on one of its programs, the British Broadcasting Corp. last month went into the subject in depth.

Exit 19, which the BBC billed as a documentary drama, showed a young couple in bed talking about their sex lives. The BBC ordered an investigation after hundreds of viewers complained.

Sample dialogue:

Boy: “When did you first make love?”

Girl: “At 17.”

Boy: “Did you enjoy it?”

Girl: “Not very much.”

The program’s producer, Philip Saville, supplied the questions for the 45-minute program, but the actors, both amateurs, supplied their own answers.

On Exit 19, the participants, a 28-year-old film editor (male) and a 21-year-old art student (female), talked in detail about their sex habits and gave their attitudes toward homosexuality, incest and premarital love.

The BBC had ballyhooed the program as a study to determine “if in the age of spaceships the British are still living in the steamship age when it comes to sex and ethics.”

Network to revert to Argentine owners

The new military regime of Argentina’s President Juan Carlos Ongania announced that The Argentine Government Broadcasting Network, including 36 radio stations and one of the four television channels in Buenos Aires, will be returned to private operation.

All stations were seized nearly 20 years ago by the Peron regime, and while some reverted later to private ownership, others were kept under government control.

Earlier the executive board of the Inter-American Association of Broadcasters had asked the new Argentine government to change or modify existing legal measures that do not give enough guarantees of freedom of information and expression (Broadcasting, July 11).

Worldvision symposium spawns global road show

A series of presentations, drawn from its Worldvision symposium held last May in Mexico City, will be shown around the world by ABC International Television Inc. They will be seen in Los Angeles and San Francisco on Sept. 28 and 30 respectively, and in 22 other cities globally in October. In November, presentations are slated for Paris, New York and Chicago.

The symposium last May explored TV’s role in the space age as “new opportunity for the global advertiser” (Broadcasting, May 16). ABC International Television acts as purchasing and sales representative for 64 foreign TV stations in 26 countries.

Speechless commercials sell in the Philippines

The young man and the woman in the TV commercial are dining in a smart restaurant. The man sips wine. The woman watches. In the Philippines, ladies don't drink in public. The man draws a pack of cigarettes out of his breast pocket. He doesn't offer the lady one. Filipino ladies don't smoke in public. In a sense he doesn't offer the viewer one either. For his hand covers the pack and there's no brand name visible. He lights up. Still there's no dialogue, no voice-over, no pitch. Soft sell? By American standards the sell is ridiculously soft. Finally, in the closing seconds of the commercial, the smoke comes spiraling back across the screen and billows into a pack of Philip Morris. End of commercial and end of sell.

The commercial tells a great deal about advertising in the Republic of the Philippines and about the native consumer. The consumer of the Philippines can't be badgered into a buy. Tell a Filipino to go out and buy something and it's as sure as rain in the monsoon season that he's been alienated.

It also may not be smart to try anything but visual communications with consumers. There are nine major native dialects spoken in the country and, although English is widely understood, there's no truly national language. And while the Philip Morris spot didn't suggest this, American products have to be tailored for the Philippine economy. Detergents can't be sold as washing-machine products. Washing machines are as rare as overcoats in the Philippines. Instead, Procter & Gamble sells Tide for hand-laundry use.

Producer of the Philip Morris commercial and fact bank for anything and everything about the Philippines is Luis Nepomuceno, a second-generation film-maker. Mr. Nepomuceno's father, Jose, produced more than 200 feature films, both silent and sound, during his lifetime in the Philippines. Luis Nepomuceno has somewhat followed in his father's footsteps by producing film commercials for his own company, Fame Inc. Luis Nepomuceno and Fame Inc. (stands for Film-Advertising-Media-Exhibitions) make the majority of film commercials in the Philippines.

One Of Many = Fame owns the largest studio in the Philippines, located in Markati, a suburb some five miles from downtown Manila, and currently has the exclusive contract for exhibition of film commercials in more than 95% of the movie houses in the country.

All of Fame's 65-to-75 commercials a year are shown first in theaters. Then about seven out of 10 of them make the transition to television. A smaller percentage put on still more mileage, being shown from film trucks in the provinces where neither movie theaters nor television are available.

Since they are shown foremost in movie theaters on big screens, all of Fame's commercials are filmed in 35-mm color. Afterwards 16-mm black-and-white prints are made for television. By next year at least one of the six commercial TV channels in the Philippines is expected to have color capability but for the present every commercial produced by Fame has to be re-edited into black and white.

Fame Inc. employs more than 200 permanent people. Its production division numbers a regular staff of about 60. The company has been making commercials since 1959, getting into the business about five years after the birth of the country's commercial television industry.

All of Fame's commercials are shot in 60-second length. Some subsequently are edited down to 30-seconds for use on TV. The aim with every commercial is for a one-day shooting schedule. A 60-second color commercial produced by Fame Inc. in the Philippines will cost about $5,000.

No Talk = Fame specializes in wordless commercials. If dialogue is used it likely will be English, or, perhaps Tagalog, the closest thing to a national language. Manila is mostly English and Tagalog-speaking and probably not more than 10,000 TV sets are located outside of the capital city-area.

Commercials for American products are often conceived and written in the Philippines, cleared with the agency in the U.S. and then produced and filmed back in the islands. Fame sends its film by jet airliner—a 15-hour trip via Hawaii— to General Film Laboratories in Hollywood for processing.

Most of Fame's spots are produced on location in the Philippines or Hong Kong or some other nearby Far Eastern countries. Behind-the-camera talent, all trained domestically (some by Luis Nepomuceno and his father), is said by people in Hollywood to be up to international standards. Performing talent for commercials also are natives, some of whom work in the movie business as well. When Caucasians are needed for commercials—as they occasionally are—they're recruited from the large American colony in the Manila area.

The company is branching out into feature-film production. Last month Luis Nepomuceno visited Los Angeles, where he announced plans for coproducing movies with international interests, international casts for international consumption. According to Mr. Nepomuceno, all of the features will be made with television intended as the eventual medium for presentation.

Abroad in brief...

M-E expands = McCann-Erickson International has announced purchase of 49% interest in Dobbs-Wiggins-Goldberg, New Zealand agency billing approximately $2.5 million. The agency will be known as Dobbs-Wiggins-McCann-Erickson Ltd. ME International's agency operation now covers 33 countries.

World TV = Dates for Fifth International Television Symposium at Montreux, Switzerland, have been set for May 22-27, 1967. Satellite communications, color TV and educational TV will be among the subjects treated at the Swiss-organized symposium.

Spanish market = WNJU-TV Newark-Linden, N. J., has named Movierecord Group of Enterprises as its sales representative in Spain and Portugal. WNJU-TV, a UHF station that programs in Spanish is seeking firms in those countries to advertise on its outlet. Movierecord Group, made up of 18 companies in Spain, Portugal, Switzerland and Germany, maintains a New York office. Its other activities include: a circuit of movie houses, commercial production.
Syndicator revises promotion copy

The syndicator of the Lucky Bucks promotional contest cited by the FCC in a letter of censure sent to a broadcaster last month (BROADCASTING, July 18) has revised its literature and advertising in an effort to meet commission objections.

Maurice Azrael, president of Azrael Productions, of Baltimore, said the changes were made to “make sure that stations shall not advertise our Lucky Bucks program in a misleading way.”

The commission in its letter had criticized the station for carrying announcements that listeners could win “over $6,000 in cash” each week when, in fact, it “was virtually impossible to win more than a small predetermined fraction of that total.” It also said advertising in connection with another aspect of the contest was misleading in indicating that listeners who “trade dollar bills with the program’s sponsor might receive a “lucky buck” which might be worth up to $500.

Mr. Azrael, in a letter to William Ray, chief of the commission’s complaints and compliance division, said the company has “eliminated all advertising, both verbal and printed, which claims prize offers of $6,000 weekly or any other cumulative amount.” “We have also deleted any advertising which implies that the listener who trades dollars with the sponsor might receive a Lucky Buck which can be worth up to $500 if it is a Lucky Buck,” the letter noted.

He added that scripts furnished to stations have been changed to eliminate such claims or implications, and that Lucky Buck users are being notified that they may not make those claims in their advertising.

Azrael Productions has syndicated Lucky Bucks contests to some 1,000 stations over the past 15 years—although not always with the same advertising—and is now furnishing the content to some 40 outlets.

Wmca New York radio begins a five-month transit advertising campaign this week to highlight station activities. Keyed to the theme of "The Wonderful World of the Good Guys," a series of subway and bus posters will stress the station's emphasis on birthdays, bar-mitzvahs, weddings, lost dogs and editorials.

Some 3,000 46-by-60-inch two-sheet platform posters will be displayed in approximately 477 subway stations throughout the metropolitan area for two months. The two-sheet buy is said to be a record for any campaign on New York subways.

One hundred busses carrying New Jersey commuters will also feature Wmca placards, starting Sept. 1. Billboards on Times Square and other high-traffic locations will supplement the transit campaign.

The station says that because the buy is unprecedented there is no firm estimate for number of exposures expected. It adds, however, that according to Subway Advertising Co., New York, 1,800 placards would net 230 million exposure opportunities per month. Al Van Brunt & Co., New York, handling the campaign, estimates a half-billion exposures during the five-month period.

IRTS picks two winners for grad scholarships

The International Radio and Television Society (IRTS) has announced in New York that two graduate students in communications are the winners of this year's $500 scholarships awarded by the IRT Foundation.

DEATHS

Edmond L. DePatie, 66, VP and general manager of Warner Brothers Pictures, died of heart attack Aug. 6 in
Frank Smith, Capital Cities chairman, dies at 56

Frank Milton Smith, 56, chairman of board and chief executive officer of Capital Cities Broadcasting Corp., died Aug. 6 of a heart attack in Baltimore. He was returning to his Pleasantville, N. Y., home after attending the funeral of Harmon Duncan, a Capital Cities vice president and co-general manager of WTVD (TV) Durham, N. C., who died of a heart attack Aug. 3 (see below). Mr. Smith’s death occurred at the peak of his broadcast career. The station group he had organized, starting with a single station purchase in 1954 in Albany, N. Y., (UHF wrow-tv, later Capital Cities switched to VHF wten[tv]), grew into a prominent broadcast entity as Mr. Smith and his associates added station properties throughout the country. Within a 10-year period, Capital Cities was listed (in 1965) on the New York Stock Exchange, and for the first six months of this year reported a net income of more than $2.5 million, the earnings up 27% and revenue about 10%.

A recent published report placed Mr. Smith’s holding in the company as a little over 10.5% of the outstanding common stock.

Mr. Smith was born Jan. 26, 1910, in Jellico, Tenn. He was a Phi Beta Kappa graduate from Washington and Lee University, and received an M. A. from Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration.

His early background included stints with Lehman Brothers, New York, investment brokers; the former Biow Co., New York advertising agency; wnew New York and, in 1935, wlW Cincinnati where he was general manager, and in 1937, the Gruen Watch Co., Cincinnati, as advertising manager. In 1939, he was a vice president of a radio program production firm (Transamerican Broadcasting and Television Corp., and during World War II produced Victory is Our Business, a radio program featuring Lowell Thomas and sponsored by General Motors. He was then with the War Manpower Commission and the War Production Board.

Later he became associated with Mr. Thomas, acting also as his business manager. With Mr. Thomas and Mike Todd and a number of financial investors, Mr. Smith in 1948 helped form and operate Cinerama Corp., three-dimensional motion picture screen process. He was its managing director until 1953.

All Capital Cities stations last week broadcast a 90-second tribute to Mr. Smith recorded by Mr. Thomas. In the broadcast, Mr. Thomas noted that he had lost his “closest and most intimate associate” and said he wanted to pay his highest compliment to his colleague “who was a genius if there ever was one.”

Mr. Smith was a member of the Midtown Advisory board of the Chemical Bank New York Trust Co. in New York, president of Sleepy Hollow Country Club (Scarborough, N. Y.) and a member of Indian Creek Country Club (Florida). He is survived by his wife, Lisa; a son, Randall Smith; a daughter, Mrs. Helen Vieser, and three grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Aug. 9 in New York. A Frank Milton Smith Memorial Fund has been established at Phelps Memorial hospital, North Tarrytown, N. Y.

Chowchilla, Calif., while vacationing. Last year when Warner Bros. formed community antenna television subsidiary, Mr. DePatie was elected its president. He also was president of motion picture company’s newest subsidiary, a cosmetics firm. He is survived by his wife, Marie, two sons and daughter.

Harmon Duncan, VP of Capital Cities Broadcasting Corp. and co-general manager of WTVD (TV) Durham, N. C., died of heart attack Aug. 3. He was one of founders of WTVD in 1954. In 1957 station became part of Capital Cities group. Mr. Duncan is survived by his wife, Virginia, daughter and four sons.

Alexander Browdy, 49, director of engineering and industrial relations for KCOP(TV) Los Angeles, died Aug. 5 when his Piper Comanche plane crashed in Saugus, Calif. Mr. Browdy, with KCOP since 1948, was a founder of Society of Broadcast Engineers and at his death, officer of that organization. He is survived by his wife Sylvia, son and daughter.

Nicholas Prialux, 76, retired VP, treasurer and director, ABC, died Aug. 8 in Shenango Memorial hospital. Mr. Prialux was named VP-finance and later elected treasurer shortly after Blue Network was purchased from NBC in 1943 (later became ABC) by late Edward J. Noble. Mr. Prialux retired in 1953.

John F. Burke, 92, former West Coast radio station owner, died last week at his Pasadena, Calif., home. Mr. Burke bought KFDV Pasadena (now KGBS) and operated it until his retirement in 1959. He is survived by his wife, son and daughter.

Jack Rogers, 48, commercial manager of WBAP-TV Fort Worth-Dallas, died Aug. 5 of heart attack as he played in golf tournament at Wingfoot Country Club near Scarsdale, N. Y. Mr. Rogers was past president of Association of Broadcast Executives of Texas. Surviving are his wife and two daughters.

Marshall S. Neal, 76, one of founders of KKKW Pasadena Calif., in 1942, died Aug. 4 in Good Samaritan hospital, Pasadena. He is survived by his wife and daughter.

Hearing cases

INITIAL DECISION

 ■ Hearing Examiner, Chester F. Naumoff, Jr. issued initial decision in proceeding on applications of Seven (7) broadcasters for renewal of license of WII Homestead, Fla. and South Bend Broadcasting Co. Radio Networks Broadcast Co. for new AMs in that city, which (1) adopted findings and conclusions on enlarged issues order by review board on April 5 to determine whether Seven League had failed to exercise due care, or by design, to report changes in officers and contracts concerning future disposition or contract of its stock and if so what bearing that failure has upon its qualifications to continue as licensee of WII, and (2) ordered that further hearing procedures be followed. Examiner concluded that Seven League's failure to continue to report stock changes, with First National City Bank of New York and Anthony Friedman contract were violative of sec. 181(b) of rules, but that rule was violated by inadvertence rather than by design and that, therefore, no partial (initial) decision is "sufficient to conclude that the public interest is served by this case. The public interest does not require the absolute disqualification of Seven League as a licensee of this Commission." Action Aug. 8.

Accountant to salesman in one easy leap

Steve Allen's and Jack Paar's Tonight shows.

"When Steve went off The Tonight Show," says Mr. Rittenberg, "we worked up a replacement show. It was priced right; it was budgeted right; it bombed. This opened my eyes that it wasn't money that ruled. The real problem is talent selection."

Mike Dann, now CBS-TV programming chief but then NBC-TV vice president of special program sales, enticed Mr. Rittenberg into the green but land-mined field of sales. As manager of sales development he wrote and edited the sales presentations delivered by the "sales types." "I was that back-room boy," says the NBC Films president.

Once Joe Culligan convinced his presentation-writing colleague to stop ghosting and finally appear at sales presentations, Mr. Rittenberg discovered, "I was a ham. I loved it; they couldn't get me off stage."

A director of NBC Domestic Enterprises, Mr. Rittenberg handles NBC's merchandising and diversification. The subsidiary conceives and markets children's toys and comic books, teen-age wearing apparel and hard-cover books, adult games and phonograph records, all based on NBC-TV programs and personalities.

The products are conceived in cooperation with major firms in the field. In past diversification activities, Domestic has backed Broadway plays.

NBC Films syndicates such off-network series as Hennessy, 87th Precinct, People Are Funny, Car 54 and Richard Boone. It also offers 80 feature films, 10 documentaries and foreign-produced, first-run cartoon series like Astro Boy (I and II), Forest Ranger and Klumba the White Lion.

When Mr. Rittenberg took the baton at Domestic Enterprises in 1960, the organization was "a sick department, financially."

Through the teen-age and adult-oriented merchandising that Mr. Rittenberg introduced to Domestic Enterprises, operations are now thriving. He is credited with virtually creating NBC Enterprises' domestic arm.

NBC's syndication subsidiary, then called California National Productions, was also down on one knee when Mr. Rittenberg took charge in 1961. The entire syndication business, associated at the time with first-run, high-budget production companies, was depressed by a flood of off-network shows and feature films.

Mr. Rittenberg restored the subsidiary's original name and took a new tack. He concentrated on marketing off-network shows and sent out feelers to low-budget foreign producers.

He also negotiated agreements for the nontheatrical distribution of NBC-TV documentaries and specials. Through the text-film division of McGraw-Hill Book Co., New York, and Encyclopaedia Britannica Films, Wilmette, Ill., over 140 films are distributed, chiefly to schools.

Wide-ranging interests in the products of the human mind and hand have given him what he calls the most important quality of salesman: empathy.

"I try to discern," he says, "what the client wants. The process is often more emotion than intellect. And if he wants print, that is what I sell—to NBC-TV programs and films clothed in the characteristics of print."
EDITORIALS

Exit, Mr. Rogers

The sudden decision of Walter E. Rogers (D-Tex.) to leave Congress—after he had won his party's nomination for a ninth term—is a blow to many broadcasters. The militant Texan has been a champion of broadcasters' causes and had made communications his legislative specialty.

Until last year Mr. Rogers was the number-two man in the House on communications, second only to Commerce Committee Chairman Oren Harris, of Arkansas. When Mr. Harris left Congress to become a federal judge, Mr. Rogers, as chairman of the Communications Subcommittee, ostensibly moved into communications leadership. But the new full-committee chairman, Harley O. Staggers (D-W. Va.), himself assumed control over all subcommittee activities. The Rogers subcommittee hasn't held a hearing so far this session.

There are those, however, who relish Mr. Rogers' departure. The FCC's crack-downers, for example. He thwarted their efforts to limit broadcast advertising and has opposed FCC arrogation of program control.

Whoever succeeds Mr. Rogers as subcommittee chairman may find himself with little authority if Mr. Staggers continues to dominate all Commerce Committee functions. But it is nonetheless important to broadcasters to support designation of a legislator who is more interested in protecting the public's free broadcasting than in garnering headlines. One of several senior Democrats on the main committee could fill the vacancy with wisdom and distinction.

Whatever the reason for Mr. Rogers' decision to quit Congress, we wish him well in his private law practice.

The Austin story

It wasn't very long ago that the broadcast newsmen would be the last man anyone would call to find out what was going on when a big story unexpectedly broke in any community. Now he's apt to be the first.

Take, for example, the story that broke in Austin, Tex., on Aug. 1 when Charles Whitman began shooting from the University of Texas' tower. The main source of news for the nation and the world was KTBC-AM-TV Austin.

KTBC broadcast its first radio bulletin on the sniper at 11:10 a.m., four minutes after the first police report of firing, and its first television bulletin two minutes later. Within 20 minutes it went live, on both radio and TV, to the university campus, and stayed there until the assassin had been killed and taken from the tower. (KTBC-TV's coverage was enhanced by the use of a live camera provided by the educational TV facility at the university. KTBC has no live remote TV camera of its own.)

In addition to programing its own stations, KTBC provided audio feeds to CBS Radio and to hundreds (nobody kept an exact count) of radio stations that called from all over the U. S. and Canada. It supplied a four-minute edited television feed to CBS-TV and NBC-TV for their early evening news and provided action footage that was used later that night on a CBS-TV new special and the next day on NBC-TV's Today show and a special report.

For a while, during the siege on the campus, the United Press International bureau in Austin quit filing its own reports to UPI's Dallas regional office and simply put a radio set tuned to KTBC by a telephone connected to Dallas.

KTBC's own 6 p.m. regular evening news show was devoted entirely to coverage of the murders. At 10:30-11:30 p.m. the station broadcast an hour special that included tapes and films of the scenes of the shooting, live interviews with key figures in the story and reports on Whitman's background and the notes he had left—a detailed wrap-up of a shattering story that had begun less than 11 hours before airtime.

KTBC was able to rise to an occasion it could never anticipate because of the journalistic talent it has attracted and kept—a dozen newsmen who can report, shoot film and appear on the air, headed by Neal Spelce, director of television news, and Joe Roddy, radio news chief. Several of the station's journalists have advanced degrees, and others are studying for them.

There are many other stations that could do as well—and for the same reasons. The spread of professionalism through broadcast journalism has made the difference between a medium that once took its news from someone else and a medium that everyone else now turns to.

It's a long time between stories as big and terrible as Austin's story of Aug. 1. But there is plenty of other news—less dramatic but probably more important—going on all the time in every community. It is worth covering as expertly as KTBC covered Whitman, and it demands quality work from qualified journalists.

Freebie TV

The appeal of getting something for nothing, or for what appears to be nothing, is as strong to the television program manager as it is to anyone else. Indeed a whole business has been built in television upon the recognition of that principle, as the special report in this issue makes clear.

The "free" film—produced for exposure on television at no program cost to the station and no advertising charge to the sponsor—is now occupying television time that is worth some $15 million a year. That is a lot of time, and it would take a great deal of money for stations to fill it with programs that they had to buy from some other source or produce for themselves.

Still, the fact remains that the sponsors of these films are getting $15 million worth of free advertising. That is a pretty long ride to take on a pass.

As the story in this issue reports, the bigger stations in the bigger markets seem to be getting choosier about the free films that they play. That, we suggest, is the mark of maturity as well as affluence. On the television station that can afford to exercise strong editorial control over its programing, the film supplied by a sponsor with a message to get across is bound to find less and less room.

"The sponsor not only cancelled your show; he doesn't want you buying his product!"
