BUILD LOCATION GOOD WILL NOW!!

POST-WAR PLANNING FOR CUSTOMERS

The following article is reprinted from the June 6, 1944 issue of The Cash Box by popular request of many leading coinmen who believe that this item will mean more to the average coinman than wondering when new equipment will again be produced.

A great many millions of words have been written about post-war planning. Most of these have largely centered about the type of equipment as well as what each and every industry in the nation could expect from the post-war period, as far as future growth, advancement, improved business practices, financial aid, etc., are concerned. But very few, if any, have thought about customers. That human relationship equation which makes all business possible for today as well as for post-war.

A great many coinmen are neglecting this closer human relationship in their post-war programs. A great many, at this time, are not only irritating good accounts, but actually antagonizing these accounts with curt statements and continued poor service - all of which they so conveniently attribute to the war period. This can most definitely kill any business regardless of how strongly it is entrenched.

Every coinman and his employees, who are constantly contacting location owners, now have the opportunity to make lasting friends who will become impenetrable assets for the future. This is the time to give extra effort to each location. This is the time to smile, smile, smile - and to explain quietly, intelligently and courteously why certain services or parts are so difficult to obtain.

This is not the time to growl over the phone and tell customers to "try somewhere else", as some are doing. This is, instead, the time when the service man and the collector, as well as the owner, should be out on the route, more closely cementing relationships with locations and developing a friendship that will mean the difference between profit and loss in the post-war era.

This industry is in a better and more solidified position than many other industries are. In many other industries rising taxes, due to the war, have driven away all thoughts of profit. This industry, because it is giving the public just what it needs and wants during these trying and nerve wrenching days is gaining ground faster than ever before in its history. It should continue that gain by getting closer to the location owner. It should win his good will and his friendship and thereby gain greater respect and prestige in his eyes.

In years gone by coinmen realized the importance of having the retailers back of them when arguments, legal or otherwise, arose with the city's authorities or any others in the community. This backing from the retailers proved invaluable to the trade in many localities. This will again become one of the outstanding efforts on the post-war programs of every large organization. It is absolutely essential to gain the backing of the retailers for coin machines success.

To do that the trade must first have the good will of these merchants. It can build that good will now. It can gain the prestige and the necessary respect from its locations by serving those locations with that extra bit of better service and that additional smile, as well as with the gentlemanliness which is necessary to win over these locations, and cement them to itself for tomorrow.

Remember, you present coinmen, tomorrow is most definitely bringing in a flood-tide of new blood. Not only coinmen who have left for the armed forces and for war production plants, but people who have never before been in this business and want to enter into it with the money they have saved during this wartime period. Mistreating locations today - simply means losing these locations - tomorrow.

To keep your locations, the one best and logical way is to use this trying wartime period to build good will. It isn't always necessary to just see how many dollars can be earned from each location. More important is the good will you build up with the location owner for the better products of which you are assured for tomorrow.
"The Coin Machines Merry-Go-Round"

There is no doubt that most coin machine firms are understaffed and are harried with a great many irritating problems these days. So are the retailers. So are all business men. Therefore little acts of courtesy and thoughtfulness to locations now mean more, because they are so many times more magnified today, than they will mean after the war is over.

While a lot of thoughtless coinmen are taking advantage of current shortages to kick their customers around, this is an opportune time for coinmen with foresight and imagination to establish long term competitive advantages.

Of course, if you intend to get out of this business right after the war is over, then just continue kicking your customers around. Keep shouting at them each time they phone, that you can't get them new records, that you haven't any nickels around, that they'll have to wait their turn to get their machines serviced until one of your repairmen is ready, etc., etc.

But, if you intend to remain in this business long after the war, you'll adopt a policy of thoughtfulness and politeness and you'll strictly enforce such a policy with your servicemen and collectors, too. You'll put your foot down to everyone in your offices who answers a telephone.

You'll take time out to carefully explain to each account, politely and thoughtfully, just why you or your service men can't get there in five or ten minutes. But you won't growl down at them and offend them with a short, curt reply.

Better than thinking about the post-war era as far as the type of machines that will be manufactured are concerned, even better than thinking about whether to increase the size of your offices and showrooms and throw overboard what you are doing now to start into a new division of this business, better than all this for post-war is a definite plan, carefully thought out, to build good will with your locations for a long term, competitive pull.

And see to it that from now on in you and your employees win the respect and the prestige as well as the close friendship of each and everyone of your accounts.

Don't growl - smile. Don't be short - be thoughtful. Don't yell - be polite. Do those little, extra courteous acts, regardless of how harried and busy you are. Just because at present you haven't the help, nor the time, nor the supplies, nor the machines, nor the materials - pause, think, build good will - that's worth more to you right now for the post-war era than the extra hundred bucks you can gross this week.

THE MANUFACTURING SITUATION

The excitement sweeping all the trades at this time in regard to the fact that manufacturing of new equipment may start much sooner than expected is reported to be based on the statement of J.S. Krug, acting chairman of WPB, that as soon as the war in Europe is over all controls of this agency will be eliminated.

This may mean the beginning of a mad scramble for raw materials among manufacturers in all industries to be first to get into production of former equipment.

It means that coin machines manufacturers, at least those who are not completely engaged in the production of war materials, may be able to swing into the manufacture of former equipment almost immediately after the European war is over.

WMC has issued a statement to the effect that controls of this agency, too, would also be eliminated when the war in Europe is finished. This means that with the worries over the manpower situation eliminated the manufacturer can take right up where he left off without fear of losing skilled men.

In addition there are certain orations appealing to OPA to also somewhat relinquish its controls, especially on prices of all new products that will be manufactured, the moment the war in Europe is finished.

Should this come about there will be an entirely new pricing set-up by manufacturers in all industries. Prices will no doubt be much higher than what OPA controls would call for should this agency eliminate its present pricing system for new equipment.

Most active in this movement in Washington at this time is the American Retail Federation. In his appeal to Price Administrator Chester Bowles, Walter Morrow, acting president of this federation, wrote the following.

"There is positive action that OPA must take speedily if the WPB policy is to be effective. We are sure that you are aware of it but take the liberty of stressing its importance because from our position on the civilian supply firing line we feel that the impact of the problem must be met promptly. It is not a condition that merely exists today or will become acute at some time in the future. It has been with us for some time.

"We refer specifically to the problem of pricing new goods, which would be done immediately at the manufacturing level. If it is not done a great deal of production will be lost because of the uncertainty of the manufacturer on how to price or even his ability to get a price in the end that will reflect his cost and give him a profit".

These statements from the heads of important Federal agencies, as well as from business leaders such as Mr. Morrow who represents over 500,000 retailers through the nation, have brought about a great flood of optimism as to the possibility of earlier new equipment production. In fact - production right after the war in Europe ends.

In addition there seems to be a very definite certainty that this industry will hit right into an unusually prosperous era, and that for the first two years after the production of new equipment gets started, colliers will ride the top of the boom.

After that period, leaders claim, the trade will settle down to a more normal existence, and many who will have started with the re-opening of manufacturing will be gone from the picture - leaving a more solid nucleus for continued future growth.

Yet, with all these turbulent and seemingly certain statements as to reconversion and the rapid approach of new production, many in this industry are still of the belief that no new equipment will be seen, in any quantity whatsoever, until late in the Spring of '46.

These leaders explain that the larger factories are entirely engaged in war work which is of such outstanding importance that it will continue on until the war with Japan is over.

In keeping with the above, one leader explains that the war with Japan may continue on for a much longer period than can now be foreseen. He also encloses a clipping from the editorial page of his newspaper which reads, "Pressure at the fighting front depends upon pressure all the way back to the mine, factory and transportation system at home. The Army is only the point of the flying wedge. The nation is the body of it."

Others are of the belief that the debate now in progress in Congress as to reconversion plans will bring about raw materials rationing because of the fact that without such rationing the larger industrialists will be in the most favored position to obtain what they need, long before the small manufacturer can even get around to his needs.

Others counter this statement with the fact that the nation's large industrialists are most completely engaged in the war effort and will remain so until the finish of the war with Japan. They claim that these manufacturers will naturally get whatever raw materials they will need first to continue their war production. But after they have had their share, they claim, the rest of the nation's manufacturers, whether large or small, will be able to get the balance, and will not in any fashion therefore effect the war effort.

In the meantime excitement continues at high pitch and seems to also be the rule of the day wherever the members of this industry gather. The average collier is of the belief that manufacture is practically already started. He is deafening his hearing to any and all arguments against such possibility.

UNITY

Continuing in the belief that only by unity can this industry assure reaching the highest possible peak of progress and growth is offered the statement of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek in his plea before the third plenary session of the People's Political Council in Chungking.

"If troops cannot faithfully follow a unified military command, we will lose in strength, while the enemy will gain. If the people cannot respect a unified political policy, the country cannot resist aggression, cannot become a modern state.

"To assure victory the entire people, whether individuals or groups, should be thoroughly unified, both in name and deed."

The above is in the same vein as the statement of Secretary of State Cordell Hull at the opening of the conference at Dumbarton Oaks, which appeared in the September 12, 1944 issue of The Cash Box and which was featured in the "Cartoon" that appeared with that issue.

Surely, with the post-war period practically upon this industry, it should be the desire of everyone engaged in this business to unify "both in name and deed". And, "whether individuals or groups" bend all effort to assure such unification for the greater progress, the more certain growth and welfare of all concerned with this trade.
Post-War Distribution Causes Concern

Believe Fewer Distrs, Larger Territories to be Vogue. Alarm Over National Distrib Combines.

NEW YORK—Many of the nation's distribs are 'viewing with alarm' what they believe will prove to be a complete change in the present distribution set-up for post-war.

Some of these men explain that they have worked hard to maintain their distrib set-ups during this wartime period. They not only helped repair and maintain equipment of their customers, they report, but also rationed parts and even secured the country to get supplies for customers so that these buyers of the machines they distributed prior to the war would be completely satisfied with the service they were able to give.

These men are now of the belief that from all present indications there will be less distributors appointed throughout the country. They claim that there are already appearing large combines who have their own plans for consumer's coverage and that these will appoint their own sub-distributors and jobbers.

They also explain that large operating combines will have much to do with post-war distribution arrangements. They believe that those men who combined large routes of machines may be given first preference.

These men are bitter over what they believe will be these many changes for, as they state, they have endured the hardships of distributing in the wartime period, knowing when they could possibly enjoy the fruits of their labor, they will be left out in the cold.

It is the belief of The Cash Box that these men are becoming overly alarmed by rumors and hearsay and that when the post-war period enters in full force that distribution changes will not be as drastic as these reports seem to indicate.

Contrary to such alarm is the fact that the average manufacturer is of the belief that his distribution set-up should be such that it will be able to better and more rapidly service customers than in the pre-war era. It became evident, at the beginning of the war, that many manufacturers had not given into consideration the need for servicing of their equipment directly by their distribs.

With the further fact that many new and intricate mechanisms may appear on the market, the need for better servicing both from a mechanical and sales standpoint is extremely critical.

To make this fact, many of the nation's leading consumer's goods manufacturers have already decided on smaller areas for distributors so that they may be assured of closer and better coverage of operating accounts.

Indicative of this trend is the fact that these manufacturers, in the consumer durable goods division, such as radios and refrigerators, plan on small territories for their distributors for post-war so as to be more certain of intensive coverage and better servicing.

These men are of the opinion that many of the rumors and hear-say are of this same opinion. They, too, are convinced that large territories, except in such states where these can be safely and efficiently handled, should become a thing of the past.

The Cash Box is of the belief that the amusement machine division will pick carefully and strategically as in the pre-war era. The music field may be the first to set up an entirely new distribution method. Merchant and service equipment will continue its direct factory sales methods from all present indications.

Alarm at this time on the part of any distribs that they may lose their territories or that the volume of sales may not increase to their promotion. These rumors and hear-say concerning the industry should be most carefully weighed and the chaff first extracted prior to giving them any credence.

BANK'S SCALE CREATES INTEREST

The industry is always interested in the public's reaction to its products. Ralph Grether, savings dept mgr of the City National Bank & Trust Co., this city, has added many an interesting page to the study of human nature because of the free scale in this bank's lobby which is right beside his window.

He has seen many men and women take off their shoes and weigh themselves in their stocking feet. He has seen women step on the scale and that dog and even a small dog in their arms not even thinking of the extra weight. He has been known to both sell and buy shoes and have customers paid off on testimony of the scale.

He heard one man declare proudly that he had gained 30 lbs. He has heard innumerable declarations of weight being lost, the record being 42 lbs. in a 5 week period. The scale has regular customers who visit it at least once per week.

Grether reports that women are more concerned over their weight than men. They also like their weight compared to a 'Norm'. People who are underweight remain on the platform many times. The word 'Derby' especially weight women, will wait until there is no one around and then sneak onto the platform of the scale.

BALLY ANNOUNCES FIRST POST-WAR GAME

CHICAGO—First post-war game to come off the Bally production line will be named "Victory Derby" according to an announcement just released by George Jenkins, Vice-President and Sales Mgr of Bally Manufacturing Company.

"Of course, I can't go into details," Jenkins stated, "but I can assure you that 'Victory Derby' will have plenty of new play-stimulating features, which I hope to publicize as soon as the fine figures currently reported on pre-war 'Bally' games.'

OPA '42 PRICING BRINGS PROTEST

WASHINGTON — The fact that OPA will continue price controls for new products, which are expected to be sold on a parity with the market after revaluation gets under way, at the '42 levels, has caused a storm of protest from manufacturers and retailers throuout the nation.

Claim is that this will nullify the good intentions of WPB and WMC to bring prices below the high figures currently reported on pre-war 'Bally' games.'

WPB's plan has been greatly simpli-fied. First, materials will be re-leased to those manufacturers still do-ing war work. Second, priority on materials will go to extremely neces-sary those plants which will be placed on the open market for all other manufacturers so that they can start building former prod-ucts.

It is expected, leading economists report, that right after V-E day there will be about 4,000,000 workers without jobs and another 1,000,000 service men returning from the service. These will be returned to civilian life. To insure these getting work, materials are to be released as speedily as pos- sible so that the average factory will be able to get quickly into former products production.

The average merchant and manufacturer claim that the first new products will be anywhere from 50% to 75% more costly than pre-war, and from 25% to 40% higher during this wartime period.

In an effort to appease manufac-turers OPA reports that such items as auto and small refrigerators will be priced in Washington, and manufacturers, who will find the pricing policy not in keeping with their pro-duction costs, will be able to get re lief at their local OPA offices. Local price boards will therefore have much more power than formerly.

At present action is continuing to get OPA to change this pricing set-up. Whatever the result it is all of great interest to this industry.
For the first time in many weeks, the national collections average has at last shown a decided upward swing. This increase is as yet very small, it at least indicates that the upward trend is on the way and that the trade can expect to see collections rising from now on in. The average rise in collections through the nation this past week is computed to be approximately 4%, that is, from the previous week's low point.

This recovery can be attributed, in the main, to the upward swing so definitely evidenced in the music and amusement machines fields. Music showed greater recovery than even amusements. Whereas in some territories music showed the greatest decrease this past summer, it has begun to rise in averages in such territories, too. In many other areas it has surprised with rapid recovery.

Amusement machines also indicated this past week that recovery was on the way in this field. Some areas report unusually good rises in collections this past week. Others report small increases but sufficient to indicate that the trend is now swinging upward. Some are even of the belief that this Fall-Winter season of 1944-45 will probably bring about best collections yet.

Merchandising equipment, on an average, continues to lag behind. This continues to be attributed to lack of merchandise. Many of the smaller merchandise machine operations especially in the cigarette field, have given up the ghost and will wait for return of more normal merchandise delivery. These men complain that average tobacco jobber is neglecting them entirely. Larger merchandise machine operations continue on due to fact, it is reported, that they are on the "direct list" with merchandise manufacturers. Even these latter report not being able to maintain their equipment as they would like to.
Considerably more action was noted this past week in buying and selling equipment. Due to the cooler weather no doubt and the demand for equipment for fall and winter locations. And perhaps the trade is getting to realize that many a coin chute will wear down before the manufacturers are in a position to turn out new equipment, even if the war in Europe does end soon.

Many of our friends in the coin machine industry have inquired about our postwar plans. We are now primarily interested in helping our sons and yours, to return home as soon as possible. A.B.T. is proud of the part it is playing in reaching the inevitable goal of peace.

When the war ends, all of us must reconverst our production. Our designers have planned so that A.B.T. will be one step ahead of the others and thereby maintain our place as a leader in the coin machine industry. Our plans will be completed well in advance of the armistice. Your plans should include A.B.T. products. If we can assist you in your postwar planning, call on us.
